NUTRITION EXPERIMENTS—Warren Junior High School students recently conducted experiments investigating the nature of saturated fats. The class, instructed by John Manuelian (left), is part of an overall study of the heart and the risk factors of heart attacks. This new educational unit will be taught in all seventh grade classes and is an important phase of the risk factor screening project in Newton's five junior high schools sponsored by the Greater Boston Heart Association.

Favor School Autonomy

School autonomy was at issue this week and the response was an overwhelming "yes".

About 30 people attended a hearing before the aldermanic Legislation and Rules Committee Monday and indicated their opposition to bills before the State Legislature to give some School Committee budgetary power to aldermen.

The committee was considering a resolution favoring a bill giving aldermen the power to cut school budgets by a two-thirds vote.

After hearing from representatives of the League of Women Voters, and Newton Citizens for Education, School Committeeman Alvin Mandell and State Rep. Paul Guzzi, the three members of the committee present voted to deny a favorable report on the resolution to the Board of Aldermen next week.

The committee also took action on a request to establish an Urban Beautification Commission.

Guzzi, who serves on the legislature's Education Committee, said he objects to proposals affecting school budget autonomy because "we cannot say we will provide a solution by simply shifting authority."

"I think its easy to isolate the school problems and to isolate the school budget, "Guzzi said. "The irony is that so much of it comes down to the salaries of people — and that is true of the city and the state."

Alderman Harry Crosby pointed out that other levels of government have checks and balances on budgets but schools do not.

Guzzi replied: "I think people have the ultimate check every two years at election time."

Margaret Smith, representing the League of Women Voters, presented a statement on behalf of the league stating it "supports the principle of fiscal independence for school committees and opposes any attempt to limit or repeal that indepencence."

"The key point in our view," the statement says, "is in Massachusetts, the members of school committees do not act as agents of the city but as public officers administering state laws."

School committees by law have general charge of all public schools within a city or town.

"A veto power over the finances necessary to carry out this charge would permit municipal legislative bodies to undermine a critical state responsibility— adequate educational programs for children in the Commonwealth," the league maintained.

Armed with statistical evidence, Mandell pointed out to aldermen the fact School Committee members have succeeded in reducing budgetary percentage increases over the last five year to "the lowest percentage increase in the last 27 years" in 1973.

"Over the last five years the School Committee has been a very conscientious and responsible body and has tried to consistently get the maximum out of every dollar spent," Mandell said.

"I think we (aldermen and school committee members) are suffering from mutual frustrations about inflation and rising budgets," Mandell stated," and Iwill not scapegoat the School Committee as the culprit. I think we've indicated fiscal responsibility. The School Committee is not the enemy of the Board of Alderman or the city."

Daniel Ahern, the new president of Newton Citizens for Education, put his organization on record "as opposed to any

Parking Lot Got Frigid Welcome

By LEN BATEMAN

"They paved paradise to put up a parking lot," are words from a popular song heard frequently during the waning days of the Savage Sixties.

The refrain was evidently running through the minds of several Newton South High students and members of the Chestnut Hill Garden Club when they recently banded together to prevent just such an occurrence from befalling one of Newton's last remaining vestiges of the Ice Age.

The students are participants in the Newton School Department's Environmental Science Program. They and the program's co-director, Peter G. Richter, were concerned over the fate of the only "glacial pavement" in Newton.

Richter and his students attended a recent meeting with members of the garden club to make a plea to the contractors of the Chestnut Hill Shopping Mall to save the "glacial pavement" from eventual destruction.

The contractor had planned to cover the unique specimen with asphalt for use as another parking lot.

The young environmentalists explained to Julian Cohen, contractor for the mall, the geological significance of this naturally made pavement located at the very edge of the construction site about 200 feet from the end of Moody Street.

The "glacial pavement" is, they said, a patch of bare rock planed off by the continental glacier which covered this area about 100,000 years ago.

They told Cohen that if he stood at the end of the "pavement" he he would quickly notice many parallel grooves running across the plane of the rock from northwest to southeast.

These scratches were evidently caused by a moving glacier dragging small pebbles in its path and the visible trend on the rock indicates an ice movement substantiated by leading glaciologists for this area.

What makes it even more unusual, according to Richter, is the presence of a large boulder sitting atop the "pavement."

It is made of conglomerate rock," stated Richter, "and indicates that it was moved about erratically by the glacier and finally rested in Newton when the ice melted."

The boulder is unlike any other in composition and points up the origins of the sandstone upon which it rests.

In addition to the parallel grooves in the plane of the sandstone one can also notice ripple marks.

"These were originally caused by wave action caused by the ocean when the stone was still just plain sand on a beach," Richter explained.

The beach was evidently buried by sediment before the ripple marks could be disturbed. The ocean receded and the sand became rock, preserving itself for future generations.

Evidently the garden club ladies and Richter's students convinced Cohen that the geological formation should be preserved for even more generations.

The day after the meeting Cohen brought his engineer and architect to the site of Newton's pre-historic Riviera and original winter carnival.

They too decided that it is beautiful and immediately revamped their plans.

"I am happy to report to you we will be able to keep it intact and no damage will be done to it," Cohen stated in a letter to Mrs. Charles F. Hovey, president of the Chestnut Hill Garden Club.

Confident after their successful attempt to preserve Newton's only remaining "glacial pavement" the determined group of environmentalists have now turned their attention south across Route 9.

There, right on the Brookline-Newton boundary, and 150 yards due east of the Brookline incinerator, lies the only existing example of a "true" bog within a 20 mile radius of Newton.

Richter and his associates have been visiting Lost Pond Bog for several years and recording the changes taking place.

They feel it is now seriously polluted and Richter explained that the failure of the Town of Brookline to curb chemical runoff from its dump during and after a rainfall is the cause.

"These chemicals have the effect of disturbing the ecological balance of the bog by retarding and eventually eliminating some plant growth

Meter Readers Are To Carry Identification

Newton has undertaken a program of identification of city water meter readers and repairmen.

The program, according to Mayor Theodore D. Mann, is designed to provide city residents with some kind of assurance the men they let enter their homes to check meters have the proper authority to do so.

Each meter reader and repairman has been issued an identification card containing a picture and title.

Police Chief William F. Quinn and Water Commissioner Willard S. Pratt worked together to implement the idea.

Quinn said he believes people "cannot be too careful who they allow into their homes."

The chief warned: "Be more careful and do not let anyone into your home unless they are properly identified. This includes gas meter readers as well as water meter readers.

Seventh Graders Part Of New Heart Program

Seventh grade students in Newton will soon be participating in a risk factor screening and education program, one of the first of its kind in the country, under the sponsorship of the Greater Boston Heart Assocation.

Along with the Heart Association, this total community endeavor will involve the Newton Public School Department, Newton Health Department and Newton-Wellesley Hospital in an effort to educate young people to the risk factors of heart disease.

The initial screening for students at Newton's Warren Junior High School will take place today March 1 and March 5, and students in Newton's four other junior high schools will be screened in the spring. The screening will test for high blood pressure and high blood cholesterol.

Dr. Alan Goldblatt, a pediatric cardiologist at Massachusetts General Hospital and co-chairman of the Heart Association's Risk Factor Screeing Committee, explained that many years of study have shown certain factors such as high blood pressure and high blood cholesterol lead to premature coronary artery disease — the major cause of heart attack.

Medical experts believe that an individual who learns to avoid these factors early in life has a better chance of preventing premature heart disease, he said.

In various other parts of the country, other risk factor screening projects have been conducted on adult and child populations.

Dr. Goldblatt pointed out, however, that this is the first program that has screened young people and attempted to eliminate risk factors through education and medical intervention.

The educational phase of the program has been coordinated by Dr. Robert Kilburn, science coordinator of the Newton School System and John Manuelian, a science teacher at Warren Junior High School. This new education unit will be incorporated into the seventh grade science curriculum

Students will learn the importance of other risk factors of heart disease — lack of exercies, overwieight, cigarette smoking, a diet high in saturated fat, tension, a family hisoty of heart disease. They will also learn about how the heart and circulatory system functions and how to protect their heart health.

It is expected that approximately 5 per cent of the seventh graders in the program will be identified as high risk youngsters. For those children found to be "at risk", more extensive screening will be arranged for the child as well as other members of the immediate family. It is hoped that the family will participate in an educational program geared to everyday living changes that may reduce the risk of heart attack for the entire family.

It is also hoped that youngsters found "at risk" will follow up the findings with a

Ask Board To Form A Department Of Human Resources

The Board of Aldermen has been requested to form, by ordinance, a Newton Department of Human Resources.

Sending his request to the board, Mayor Theodore Mann commented he believes "such a department is necessary to better enable the city to cope with the myriad of social problems."

Mann said one of his advisory committees studied the feasibility of creating this department and reported it "would permit greater coordination of Newton's human relations agencies and provide better service to city residents."

In his request, the mayor also asked that the department be given these duties:

—implement its policies and goals through the following autonomous commissions: Community Relations, Council on Aging, Youth, the purposes and functions of which have already been established by ordinance.

—clarify responsibility in overlapping areas of concern.

—advise and assist the mayor in promoting understanding among persons of different races, colors, religions, national origins, and help create better communications among all residents of Newton.

Drinan Lends Support To Handicapped

Rep. Robert F. Drinan voiced support for legislation to aid the handicapped — including financial aid — at a meeting with representatives of the Massachusetts Association of Paraplegics (MAP).

The meeting was held in the Wellington Hall unit at Middlesex County Hospital. Drinan praised the unit for young adults with spinal cord injuries who are attending college and employed. It is the only one of its kind in New England.

"The disabled shouldn't have to pay for needed medical supportive services," Drinan said. "We must get funding before we can do much."

He pointed out the elderly pay over $3 billion for prescription drugs yearly — an immense sum they shouldn't have to bear on their small earnings.

Drinan was one of the sponsors of the Vocational Rehabilitation Act of 1972 which got a pocket veto from President Richard Nixon.

The congressman said he feels Congress would have passed the bill over the veto if it had not already recessed and urged MAP members to work for early passage of an identical act this year.

Drinan's interest in spinal cord injured persons stems from an early age when a friend became paralyzed due to a driving accident.

"It is better to fund research for those with permanent or long term disabling diseases than to fund research for heart disease, cancer and stroke because the disabling diseases are the ones that cost the public the most year after year," the congressman said.

"Let's start allocating money for diseases that cause long term disability to prevent long term suffering," he said.

He commented that he had not noticied many kids in wheelchairs when he visited high schools in the area.

Elmer Bartels, President of MAP, pointed out that few handicapped could attend public high schools due to the physical barriers and the attitudes of the school officials.

"Yet the stated goal of all at present is to get the handicapped back into society as early as possible," Bartels added.

A comparison between funds and care available to veterans with spinal cord injuries and those who receive their injury in a civilian accident show a large discrepancy, Bartels noted. A veteran is given $17,500 for a down payment on a home and $2,000 to purchase a car while the civilian gets nothing. The veteran receives a portion of his Armed Service's pay for life while the civilian is cut off from all public resources if he seeks employment. The veteran receives free medical care in Veterans Administration hospitals while the civilian must bear all the cost of his own medical bills.

The group was also concerned with the cut-off of funds to the Tri-State Regional Medical Program which has helped organize a regional plan for the management of the spinal cord injured. Funds are scheduled to be cut off July 1 based on President Nixon's cutbacks. Boston University Medical Center has applied for a federal grant as a model center for spinal cord injuries but funding for this is highly doubtful at this time, Bartels explained.

"The support of the Tri-State Regional Medical Program has provided the spinal cord injured in New England has been crucial. It has demonstrated how regional programs can pull resources together," Bartels said. "The demise of this program may mean the end of efficient coordination of institutions and activities."

At present there are only five centers in the nation for spinal cord injury research and each of these has only received planning grants.

MAP also urged Father Drinan to support legislation which would permit paraplegic and similarly disabled people an exemption on their federal income tax equal to that allowed the blind. The organization wants the physically disabled to deduct transportation expenses to and from work from their federal income tax. (Transportation for the disabled tends to be more expensive than for others.)

IT DOESN'S BITE — Eight - year - old Thomas O'Meara (left) appeared unconvinced by this lesson in the proper way to brush teeth as presented by Dr. Michael Sheff of Newton, Chairma for Massachusetts Dental Health Month. Younger brother John O'Meara, 5, (right) appeared to be a little more fascinated by the lesson.

A weekly column of information about the Newton Centennial Celebration

The ecumenical spirit prevails throughout planning for Newton's Centennial, with virtually a complete cross section of the community serving on each committee.

Nowhere is this spirit more in evidence than in the planning for the religious observance related to the Centennial, an outdoor city-wide prayer meeting being planned by the Newton Clergy Association. This event is scheduled for Sunday, May 6, on the mall at Newton City Hall, immediately following the ceremony for the planting of the Centennial Tree and the burying of the Time Capsule.

The program, according to Centennial Religious Committee Chairman Msgr. William A. Granville, will have a "minimum of sermonizing and speeches and a maximum of color and song."

A printed history of the development of Newton's religious institutions will be distributed at the ecemunical service.

The program will include a procession, choral and congregational singing, a program of non-sectarian responsive reading and a folk singing presentation.

Chairmen and members of the various committees planning the Centennial Ecumenical Service include: Facilities chairman Rabbi Robert Miller, Temple Beth Avodah; Publicity, Msgr. William A. Granville; Written Service-Rabbi Terry Bard, Temple Shalom; Rev. Mrs. Arthur S. Laughland, First Unitarian Society; Rev. Thomas Lehman, Grace Episcopal Church; Rev. George Dufour, St. Jean's Church; Rev. William Lowe, Church of the Messiah; Rev. John Balcom, St. Paul's Church; Rev. Baldwin Callahan, United Church of Christ; and Rev. Newell Curtis, pastor of the former First Church.

In charge of music for the religious observance are Rev. Lehman and Mrs. John E. Coleman, Grace Episcopal Church, Choral; and Rev. Donald Clifford, Sacred Heart and Rev. David Strosahl, Lincoln Park Baptist Church, Congregational Singing. Handling the historical aspects are Rev. Michael Scroggin, First Baptist Church; Msgr. Daniel Riordan, Mary Immaculate; and Rabbi Sam Chiel, Temple Emanuel.

"Newton's village system developed in Colonial times as new churches were founded," said Msgr. Granville, "so our religious institutions have played a key role in Newton's history and we all have a vital concern for the success of our City's Centennial Celebration."

"We are receiving complete cooperation from both the religious and lay leaders in our temples and churches and we look forward to conducting an inspirational and joyful ecumenical service."

LEARNING POWER — The Newton Teachers Association recently conducted a training session for its faculty representatives designed to strengthen the role of the 40 in attendance. The evening concentrated on items such as image building, legislative programs, contract maintenance, problem solving and grievances and building membership. Among those attending were (from left): Majorie Sooklal, Williams School; Marcia Fry, Horace Mann; David Gelkie, Newton High; (back table from left): Richard Staley, Warren Jr. High; Michael Davies, Burr School; Ann Sanguinetti, Newton South High; Rudy Satlak, Newton High; Helen Herzog, Angier School, and Emilie Larson, Weeks Jr. High.

Buses Unsafe Legislators Told

State Rep. Lois G. Pines told the State Legislature's Committee on Public Safety last week that "most of the half million school children who ride in school buses in Massachusetts entrust their safety to vehicles which become lethal weapons of injury and destruction-weapons aimed directly at the safety and lives of our children."

Mrs. Pines, sponsor of H.5149, stated: "The need for adequate safety standards for school buses is widely recognized.

"In 1971, there were 47,000 school bus accidents taking 150 lives and injuring some 5,600 persons, many of them injuries particularly resulting from weak structural design which allowed the buses to crumble upon impact.

"Many other tragedies result from poor seating design with the chests and heads of children propelled into inflexible metal bars on tops of seat backs.

"Still other children suffer serious injury when their bodies are hurled forward over low seat backs and into steel protrusions in the front of schools buses."

The bill if passed would prohibit standees on school buses, require an adult (18 or older) monitor on each school bus, establish one state agency responsible for pupil transportation and establish a school bus driver training and selection program. These provisions are now mandated by Standard 17, issued in May, 1972, Rep. Pines said.

The bill also deals with the lack of "structural integrity" of school buses, she went on to say.

"Metal sheets of the exterior of a school bus are ripped apart on collision, she told committee members. "Their razor-sharp edges become another source of injury for the child. The school bus has been named a 'cookie cutter' because of tragic accidents."

The bill would require the Registrar of Motor Vehicles to establish design criteria and safety standards for school buses.

"Massachusetts has a responsibility to see that iron bars and dangerous metal are eliminated from school buses this year," Mrs. Pines said.

She added that that the American Society of Oral Surgeons estimated 98 per cent of the 1350 school age children who received severe facial injuries as a direct result of school bus collisions from impacts with iron seats could have been less severely injured or could have escaped harm had appropriate safety measures been used.

"The Commonwealth currently pays about two-thirds of the cost of school bus operations," she said, "with the rest being paid by cities and towns.

"The Commonwealth is in the poor position of heavily financing the operation of unsafe vehicles. Do we care so little for the lives and safety of our children?"

Legislators Explain Bills For Education

State Representatives Paul Guzzi of Newton and Ann C. Gannett of Wayland, members of the Massachusetts House of Representatives Education Committee, will lead discussions at the next Newton Council of PTA's meeting on Thursday, Mar. 1, at 7:45 p.m. at the Beethoven School in Waban.

Meeting participants will discuss "1973 Proposed Legislation Affecting Education in Newton."

Of more than 5,000 bills filed in the current session of the General Court, about 800 have been assigned to the education committee, according to S. Wendell Kravitz of Newton, president of the PTA Council.

Representatives Gannett and Guzzi will discuss their interpretations of some of the more significant bills pending before the state legislature with emphasis on school committees, fiscal autonomy, transportation, state financing, community use, school lunches, private and parochial schools, racial imbalance and metropolitan school districts.

Citizens of Newton and surrounding communities are urged to attend and participate in the discussions with Guzzi and Gannett.

Emerson Sets Registration

The Ralph Waldo Emerson School, 5 High St., Newton Upper Falls, will hold kindergarten registration on Tuesday, March 6, from 1:30 to 3 p.m.

To register, a child must have reached his fifth birthday by Jan. 1, 1974.

A parent should bring the child's birth certificate and complete information regarding immunization and childhood health problems.

Skaters Abound At Outing

More than 500 men, women and children attended a skating party at Ware's Gove in Auburndale recently. This family-oriented activity was sponsored by the Burr School PTA in co-operation with the Newton Recreation Department.

Mrs. Walter Cole was chairman of the evening for the Burr PTA which served refreshments to those participating in the three hours of healthfyl outdoor exercises.

The weather cooperated long enough for the children, mothers and fathers to enjoy the old fashioned skating party.

Recreation Supervisor William J. Barry, who coordinated the affiar, indicated that the Burr skating party was probably the last of the season as outdoor skating will be downhill from here on.

Those seeking up-to-date information on skating conditions may call the special telephone number 969-2851, 24 hours a day, seven days a week. The number will be in operation as long as conditions permit.

Recreation Commissioner John B. Penney says that the Ski Classes held for Newton youngsters at the Prospect Hill Ski area in cooperation with the Waltham Recreation Department, were very successful and next year the program will begin earlier in the season.

The facilities at Prospect Hill with the snow making equipment made it possible to continue the program with a minimum natural snow fall.

The Newton Swim Team is back on the track after the Febraury vacation and will continue until the season ends on March 15. The local swimmers hold regular practice sessions at the Brighton YMCA pool according to Recreation Supervisor, Fran Towle.

Miss Towle urges mothers and daughters to sign up for the special exercise class to be held for their benefit beginning March 13. The class will be held on Tuesday evenings from 7 to 9 p.m. for daughters registered in the 4th, 5th, and 6th grades and their mothers. The place, the Horace Mann School. To register, call 969-3171.

There are also some openings in the Toneastic classes being held for the next six weeks at the Newton Center Playground Field House off Tyler Terrace. Mrs. Barbara Valinsky conducts the classes on Mondays and Thursdays from 9:30 to 10:30 a.m. Call 969-3171 for further information.

The Newton Recreation Department's Girls' Junior High Basketball league opened its 1973 season February 28th at the Sacred Heart School gym in Newton Centre. The League will play three games each Wednesday night at 6:30, 7:15 and 8 p.m. through April 4th, when the regular season concludes. The championships and consolation games will be played on Wednesday, April 11th.

The Adult Badminton program is continuing at Warren Junior High School Thursday nights from 7:30 to 10:30 p.m. Some 25 men and women are participating in the program each Thursday night and any Newton adult who would like to join the program should contact the Director, Mrs. Jennie Rogan, at the school, evenings when the program is in operation.

Its playoff time for the "A" Division of the American League of the City Basketball program sponsored by the Newton Recreation Department. The first and fourth teams and the second and third finishers will square off at Warren Junior High on March 5th.

The latest standings has the Silver Lake Electronic Club out in front with eight wins and no losses, followed by Georges Cafe, 7 - 1, and Centre Pizza, South High and the Waban Wonders tied for third with identical 5 - 3 slates. The Stern Club is close behind with four wins and four losses.

The "B" Division of the American League has a couple more weeks to go before their playoffs. Leading the pack at the moment is the Newton Boys' Club sporting a 7 - 0 record with the Lovemen, Stumblebums, Bucks and Oakley Spa ina four way tie for second each with 6 - 2 records.

Latest standings in the National Division finds the Lakers well ahead of the pack with all 11 wins and a single loss. Second is shared by the Brewers and the Beginners, 7 - 5, and the No Names are third with a 6 - 6 record. The Boys Club and the Messina Club are tied for fourth, with 4 wins and 8 losses each. Newton Center at 3 and 8 is last.

The playoffs are being held Tuesday and Thursday of this week at Warren Junior High School.

P. Guzzi Advocates Tight Fiscal Control

State Representative Paul Guzzi has urged adoption of legislation to control the so-called 0-3 account for the hiring of outside consultants by state agencies.

Noting the unregulated expansion of this account from $16 million in 1962 to $150 million today, Guzzi conceded the need for employment of special consultants under certain conditions. However, the Newton legislator agreed with the Committee on Post Audit and Oversight that the use of 0-3 consultants should meet, as a minimum, the following five conditions: a request setting forth the need for such devices; a written contract setting forth the duties and responsibilities of the parties; a resume setting forth the qualifications of the proposed consultant; a disclosure statement setting forth any income derived by the proposed consultant from the state; a statement setting forth the names and addresses of all persons with any interest in the contract.

Commenting on legislation before the Ways and Means Committee, Guzzi also is supporting two additional proposals dealing with the financial operations of state agencies.

Under the first proposal, no agency would be allowed to expend any money without an appropriation by the legislature and an allotment from the Governor. Under the second proposal, no transfer of money between accounts would be permitted without a specific request from the department head and approval from the legislature.

Rep. Guzzi emphasised the need for the legislature to re-assert itself in the budget making and refining process. Citing the Massachusetts Constitution, Guzzi noted that the House of Representatives is the only designated body for originating money bills. "Given this constitutional power, it is certainly our responsibility to insure that monies are spent wisely. The kind of regulation I am recommending would bring back some semblance of legislative control to state spending."

New Group For Common Cause

A new, citizen action program, Common Cause — Massachusetts (CC—M), has been formed, according to John W. Gardner, Common Cause chairman.

It is, he said, the first state Common Cause to be formed and modeled after the national organization.

Serving on the new state board is Norma Fine of Newton, vice chairman, and Sally Swensrud of Chestnut Hill. K. Dun Gifford is the chairman.

The Boston Common Cause office will become the center of operations for the new group.

Gifford said "CC—M is organizing a strong and sophisticated citizens - lobby geared to opening up the operations of state and local government. Our emphasis is that the public's business should be conducted in public, or it should not be conducted at all."

In outlining CC—M's legislative program, Gifford said, "Our proposals are fair and reasonable. They get at the core of some of the most secret and corrupting practices in Massachusetts government."

"What we are asking for is nothing more than an affirmation of the public's right to know about what goes on in meetings of Legislative Committees, County Commissioners or local School Committees. We want the public to know who the lobbyists are, who their clients are, how much they spend, on what, and what bills are they interested in.

"We want the public to know who gives money to political campaigns, how much, and how often. And we want to stop the subtle and silent power that flows from secret campaign contributors and testimonial dinners."

"To accomplish these objectives," he continued, "we intend to push hard for passage of H.3556 and H.3557 (Lobbying Control Bills), H. 3539 and H. 3555 (Open Meetings of Legislative Committees and Other Government Bodies) and for several campaign finance bills. In each instance the Legislature will be voting on the public's right to know. It's that simple."

During the next few weeks, CC—M will announce details of its other citizen - action, positive reform programs. Gifford indicated they would focus on litigation, public education, fiscal management and budgetary procedures in state government, the environment, and elimination of excessive patronage. He pledged the full resources of CC—M to resolving problems in these areas by achieving positive change.

Gifford also announced that Mrs. Carole Cohen, formerly New England Regional Coordinator for Common Cause, would be director of organization for CC—M. He said that Sam Tyler, formerly state director fo the Massachusetts Council on Crime and Correction, is now a full-time consultant to CC—M.

Mrs. Reichard Will Address Ward 7 Dems

Newton School Committeewoman from Ward 7 Mrs. Dorothy Reichard will address the Newton Ward 7 Democratic Committee at its meeting Tuesday, March 6, at Grace Episcopal Church.

Mrs. Reichard will discuss the specific goals of the School Committee, as reflected in its new budget, within the context of both the community's continued demand for excellence in education and the concomitant spiralling of fixed costs. The relationship of the School Committee to the community, and to other governing and administrative units in the community will also be discussed.

At its last meeting, the Ward 7 Committee elected Gordon A. Martin Jr., of 31 Grant Ave., as its vice-chairman. Martin, a delegate to the last Democratic State Convention, is a member of the on-going Platform Committee of that convention.

The Ward 7 Committee meeting is open to the public, and all are invited to attend and participate.

Novice Chess Contest Slated For Families

A family novice chess contest will be held Saturday (March 3) at the Newton YMCA, 276 Church st., from 9:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m.

Seven trophies will be awarded to adult winners and top finishers in elementary, junior high and high school.

The event is open to anyone who has never played in a chess contest. The entry cost is $2 in advance or $3 the day of the event. Players must also join the Massachusetts Chess Association, $2.50 for adults, $1 for students.

Players will receive Chess Horizons magazine, published by the Massachusetts Chess Association, for one year.

Directing the event and receiving entries is Andrew Schmidt, 35 Caldon Path, Newton Centre, (332-7954).

Players should bring chess sets and a bag lunch. Spectators are welcome. Between 75 and 100 contestants are expected.

Discuss Legislation For Licensing Of Mechanics

Newton Representatives David J. Mofenson and Peter F. Harrington have urged the joint House-Senate Committee on Government Regulations to adopt legislation to license auto mechanics, gas stations and repair shops.

The bill was originally drafted in 1970 and filed with the Newton Board of Aldermen by Harrington who is also an alderman.

At that time, City Solicitor Melvin J. Dangel ruled it would be unconstitutional for the city to adopt such a measure and Harrington took the proposal to Mofenson to be filed at the state level.

"Last year this bill was reported favorably but died somewhere in the Ways and Means Committee," the chairman of the Regulations Committee noted at last week's hearing. "I think we will have to concentrate our efforts this year in getting favorable action from Ways and Means."

Mofenson said he favored the bill because it is designed to "protect both the unaware consumer and the vast majority of businesses which are run honestly and competently."

"There are two main problem areas encountered by the consumer," Mofenson noted, "that of deceptive practices and mechanical incompetence."

Harrington said the bill is aimed at "upgrading and standardizing the job of automobile mechanics, improving automobile safety, and providing increased consumer protection by requiring that only properly licensed auto mechanics be allowed to work on cars."

"The net effect is a law raising the employment status of auto mechanics to the level of blue collar professionals," Harrington went on to say. "It requires classroom study and practical on-the-job training under supervision."

Elaborating, Mofenson said "a drastic shortage of qualified mechanics in the industry exists."

"There are no entry requirements in the profession and the industry itself has no standards," he said. "The acceptable industry ratio of mechanics to vehicles is 1 to 80. In 1965, the ratio had risen to 1 to 129 and by 1975, it is expected to exceed 1 to 150. The heavy demand for new automobiles in the last decade has overburdened maintenance facilities."

The legislation, he said, will establish a six-member Board of Registration of Motor Vehicle Repair and Service Stations consisting of one lawyer, two members of the public at large, and four other members associated with the industry.

The board will be empowered to set rules und regulations of the profession and make investigations, hold hearings and subpoena witnesses.

The law would require all operators of repair shops, service station attendants, motor vehicle mechanics, and auto body repairmen to be licensed by the Commonwealth after passing an examination.

"This bill is a plan to establish comprehensive regulations for the industry," Mofenson said. "In the Commonwealth's quest for increased consumer protection, passage of this legislation will rejuvenate a profession that has lost the public's confidence."

EXPO — The Newton Police Explorers Post No. 300 will participate in the first Norumbega Council Explorer Exposition Saturday (March 3) at Wellesley High School. "Expo" is designed to inform the public about explorer activities and bring posts together. Sgt. John Likely and Detective Robert Braceland are the advisors to the police post. Newton's exhibits will include displays on drugs, safety, weapons, fingerprints and photography. The Expo will be open from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. and an admission fee of $1 will be charged with the proceeds used to defray Explorers' costs.

Making Move To F.A. Day Occupies School Committee

The Newton School Committee spent the greater part of its meeting this week discussing its current impasse with the Board of Aldermen over the future of the old F. A. Day Junior igh School.

Committeeman Richard M. Douglas of Ward 3 explained Monday the committee had "not adequately defined" its plan for rehabilitation of the structure to the aldermen and he could thus understand the board's hesitancy to grant adequate funds for the project as envisioned by the school committee.

As explained by Harry Portnoy, architect and chairman of the School Building Advisory Committee, the project would involve consolidating administrative, counseling and computer services now scattered throughout the city into an "inner landscape concept" carved out of the 70,000 square feet of floor space in the old building.

According to Portnoy, the building is currently inadequate to house the services which the committee would like to place there, but a total redesign of the interior of the structure would make it suitable.

Portnoy's design would eliminate the cell like classrooms of the building and replace them with free flowing space which would still insure privacy for working areas.

"If rehabilitation is done on a piecemeal basis, it could cost more in the long run," stated the architect.

"Many things have to be done to bring an old building into the 20th Century," added Portnoy who also told the committee that his total structural, heating and electrical design would add another "30 to 40 years of use" to the building.

When asked the cost of the architect's fee by Committeewoman Dorothy Reichard, Portnoy gave an indication of the total cost of the renovation when he stated that the fee would probably be $100,000 based on a cost estimate of $1.1 million.

Portnoy did say that his master plan could be divided into phases and the total cost could be extended over a longer period of time than if the renovation was done all at once.

Committeeman Herbert F. Regal asked if it would not be better to rehabilitate while the building is still vacant and Portnoy answered that "it would be better because it would probably cost more to remodel while the structure is occupied."

Several committee members, including Eleanor S. Rosenblum, voiced concern over the state requirement to force abandonment of the old Stearns School and occupancy of F. A. Day by next September, but she stated that perhaps "existence of a master plan for renovation will show good faith on our part and the state will grant us an extension until the work is completed."

Portnoy added that an extension may not be necessary if a go-ahead is given soon because a "fast-tracking" system of construction would enable rehabilitation to be completed by September.

While speaking in favor of adoption of the master plan, School Committee Chairman Manuel Beckwith stated that "some aldermen are obsessed with cutting the budget, but if they realized the F. A. Day project is self-liquidating we may be able to work something up with them."

In another matter related to the upcoming opening of the new North High School, the committee declined to act on a request from Superintendent of Schools Aaron Fink that the last day of school for sophomores and juniors be June 8 instead of June 22.

The school administration requested the change "to provide time for the staff to work with the movers to help us make the transition to the new school as smoothly as possible."

The committee decided to wait until Fink returned from out-of-state before granting the request.

Officer Nabs Theft Suspect

A West Roxbury juvenile suspected of automobile theft was apprehended in the Oak Hill section of Newton recently by Officer James A. Rogers after a foot chase lasting almost 20 minutes.

An anonymous telephone call from a resident of Oak Hill brought Officer Rogers to the scene where he spotted two youths running up Van Wart Path, according to the police.

Rogers pursued the youths, and after firing warning shots from his service revolver, managed to apprehend one of them, a 15-year-old who was later charged with larceny of a motor vehicle, stated police.

Police recovered the automobile reported stolen the previous evening by Peter J. Doucette of Cranmer Electronics, 54 Wells Avenue, Newton Highlands.

Police also apprehended a Newton youth and have issued warrants for the arrest of his brother in connection with an alleged narcotics selling operation, according to Detective Kenneth B. Donovan.

Donovan kept the home of the two brothers under surveillance for several weeks after receiving a tip from a confidential informant of alleged marijuana sales taking place in the Newton residence, he said.

Police obtained search warrants and arrested one of the brothers and charged him with being present where controlled substances are found after police discovered a quantity of what they believe to be marijuana, according to Donovan.

Warrants have also been issued for the arrest of the second brother on alleged charges of intent to sell narcotics and possession of Class C and D controlled substances, said police.

Three out-of-town men were arrested and charged with larceny of a motor vehicle and suspected possession of burglar tools according to a police spokesman.

Richard M. Whelan, 21, 36 Eddy St., Waltham, Paul H. Leary, 24, 84 Margaret St., Arlington, and Frederick I. Pidge, 21, 23 Palmer St., Waltham were apprehended by Detectives Kenneth B. Donovan, Joseph W. Donohue, Jr., and Officers Rupert G. Baker, Jr. and Richard M. Forbes.

Police stopped the men in the vicinity of Chestnut Street after running a stolen car check on the automobile they were driving, according to reporting officers.

Police said the car had been declared stolen to Cambridge Police by a Somerville man on Feb. 24.

When police searched the alleged stolen vehicle they found several tools which they consider to be "useful to one intent on burglary," stated a police department spokesman.

Newton Police were also investigating two cases of alleged arson in which automobiles were destroyed in separate areas of the city.

The first automobile, owned by Marie L. Rose, 241 Wilson Blvd., Islip, N.Y., was completely destroyed by flames while parked at the Town Line Gas Station, 249 Centre St.

Firefighters at the scene told police that the fire was allegedly set by someone who placed a flaming, rolled piece of paper on the front seat.

An automobile belonging to Francis H. Murphy, Jr., of 122 Falmouth Rd., West Newton, was destroyed in flames at the entrance to the old Pine Street dump.

Police said that Murphy had reported his car stolen to Boston Police a short time before firefighters from Engine 2 responded to the alarm.

The State Fire Marshall's Office is currently investigating the cause of the blaze.

In the only successful breaking and entering reported to police during the last week, thieves managed to break into the home of Maurice Kates, 23 Converse Ave., and make off with approximately $500 worth of tools and electronic equipment.

Police are continuing to investigate the break, they reported.

Guzzi Files Home Rule Charter Bill

State Representative Paul Guzzi of Newton has filed legislation to establish procedures for the adoption of home rule charters by counties.

Under provisions of the bill, a petition signed by at least 15 per cent of the registered voters of a county would place the question of forming a charter commission on the ballot. If approved by the voters, 15 members of the commission would be popularly elected from equal districts within the region. After their election, the commission would have 14 months to prepare and submit a final report which would be acted upon by the voters.

Appearing before the Joint Committee on Counties, Rep. Guzzi emphasized the need to restructure and revitalize the county form of government throughout Massachusetts. Noting that different regions have different needs, he stated "this procedure would have the flexibility necessary to allow the people to determine what functions their county should perform. Moreover, the transition to regional government would be greatly expidited through this legislation."

The Newton Democrat cosponsored the bill with Senator Chester Atkins (D—Acton) on behalf of Citizens for Middlesex County (CMC). Guzzi and Atkins are legislative chairmen for the group, and are hopeful that efforts to promote change in Middlesex County will serve as a model for other areas. They feel that this bill can be the vehicle for such change.

March Brings Whirl Of Library Activities

March winds bring a whirl of activities and exhibits to the Newton Free Library, 414 Centre street, Esther Geller's one-woman show of encaustic paintings (done in wax) and intaglio prints are on view through the month. A reception for the artist will be held Wednesday evening, March 14 at 7 p.m. at the Main Library. During the reception interested patrons are invited to enjoy the electronic music of Professor Harold Shapero.

A discriminating selection of free films is screened every Tuesday at noon, every Thursday evening at 7 p.m. and every Sunday afternoon at 2:30 p.m.

The Main Library's Centennial case exhibits for March include selected materials from the Newton Room and the Jackson Homestead relating to the history of Newton women's clubs. Also in the cases will be embrodiery samplers from the workshop of Mrs. Rene Fell of Arlington.

A history of Newton women's clubs presented by Mrs. Eugene Faucher and an explanation of Mr. Wayne Altree's Oral History Project conducted at Newton South High School will highlight the Newton Free Library's third Centennial Program, Sunday, March 25 at 3 p.m. at the Newtonville Branch. Refreshments will follow the program.

Also at Newtonville will be an exhibit of enamels by Mrs. Felice Kahn and students from her adult education class. March 1 through 15.

At West Newton Branch, Leon Onofri, president of the Railroad Buffs and a photographer, will show slides of "Boston - Old and New" at a coffee hour today March 1 at 7:30 p.m. Mrs. Dorothy O'Connor, branch librarian, invites interested borrowers to attend.

More library activities occur at Waban Branch where a discussion of Transcendental Meditation is scheduled for Tuesday, March 13 at 7 p.m. According to its teachers, Transcendental Meditation is a way of achieving a deep state of rest, the basis for increased energy and effectiveness in daily life.

On Thursday, March 22, at 10 a.m. Waban Branch Librarian Arlene Lynde invites Newton residents to a coffee hour to hear Mrs. Henrietta Aladjem, author of "The Sun is my Enemy."

Oils by Mrs. Nancy Campbell who has exhibited widely in this area will be on view at Waban through March.

The third in a series of free films at Oak Hill Park is scheduled for Wednesday, March 21 at 7 p.m. "Mark Twain's America" and "Mr. Dickens of London" will be shown.

Auburndale's Branch Librarian, Marie Simpson, invites residents to a coffee hour-slide talk on Iceland with Miss Lilian Birrell, Wednesday, March 28 at 10:30 a.m.

Also at Auburndale are the acrylics, oils and watercolors of Mrs. Guna Oster of Weston. The show continues through the month.

CAMELS, by nature, are a cantankerous lot, but Lena is an exception. As a featured attraction of the World Pet Expo coming to the National Guard Armory, West Newton, March 3 and 4, she had delighted thousands of youngsters with a memorable camel ride high upon her back. Originally from Hollywood, California, Lena has numerous movie film appearances to her credit. Just shy of eighteen years of age, she has been with the children's animal show since 1969.

School Athletics Topic Of Forum

"Newton School Athletics: Competition or Education?" will be the subject of a panel discussion sponsored by the Newton Citizens for Education Wednesday (March 7) at 7:45 p.m. at the Newton College Barry Science Auditorium, 885 Centre St. Newton Centre.

Participants will include school committee members Alvin Mandell and Eleanor Rosenblum; Miss Helene Breivogel, director of athletics for the Newton schools; George Winkler, chairman of the athletics department at Newton South High School; Reginald Smith, chairman of the athletic department at Newton High School and Mr. Chamberlain, chairman of the athletics department at Weeks Junior High School.

Athletic programs in the elementary, junior and senior high schools will be reviewed. School Committeeman Mandell will speak about the distribution of resources for athletics and School Committeewoman Eleanor Rosenblum will discuss the inadequacies of the present program for girls.

The meeting was planned following budgetary discussions of the athletic program before the School Committee. The question was raised as to the goals of the program and whether the developmental needs of all children were being adquately served.

Tower Building Occupants

A battle is being waged between the parents of the students attending Girls' Latin School on one side and Black leaders and parents of students at English High School on the other for the right to use the new Tower Building behind English High starting next September.

Some advocate that the new structure should be turned over to Girls' Latin School.

That, however, would be unfair to English High School and a disservice to Girls' Latin School. Parents of Girls' Latin students who are being told otherwise by some school officials are being kidded.

The Tower Building was erected for English High School. State funds were used to pay part of the construction costs with that understanding. If the building were turned over to Girls' Latin School, the Supreme Court would take it away and return it to English High, leaving Girls' Latin School in a chaotic condition.

Dr. Wilfred O'Leary, the highly able headmaster at Boston Latin School, recently outlined a fair, reasonable and carefully thought-out plan for giving the largest possible number of children quality education.

He proposed that the Tower Building be given to English High School until the New Campus High is completed, at which time English High would be moved into that building; that Girls' Latin School be moved from its present location in Codman Square to the present English High School across the street from Boston Latin School.

This would make possible a closer relationship between Boston Latin School and Girls' Latin, and Girls' Latin could move into the Tower Building when the Campus High School is completed and ready to house the English High students.

Unless decisive action is taken promptly, however, it will not be possible to follow that plan, and Girls' Latin School will be forced to remain in its present location at Codman Square.

A contract has been awarded for the demolition of the present English High School building which Dr. O'Leary proposes be used to house Girls' Latin School.

Plans call for the building to be torn down so that a swimming pool and gymnasium may be erected on the site.

Those parents of students attending Girls' Latin School, who would like to see the school moved from Codman Square to the present English High building on Avenue Louis Pasteur across from Boston Latin should join in urging the School Committee to cancel out that demolition contract.

Otherwise, there will be no place to which Girls' Latin may be moved when the argument is finally ended and the dust settles.

From the standpoint of the School Committee it would make much more sense to use the Old English building to house Girls' Latin School than to tear it down so a swimming pool and gymnasium may be built in its place.

Two Masters

It is an unusual situation, but Dedham's Youth Counselor must serve two masters. Unfortunately, the present Counselor, Thomas Clinton, appears to have neglected one at the other's expense and as a result his job, and the future of the position are on the line. The situation has arisen because the Dedham Finance Committee has decided not to recommend to the upcoming Town Meeting the continuation of the position.

Several reasons have been listed by the FinCom for their decision but the major objection appears to be Clinton's failure to "sell" the position, or the need for it, to the financial group. A question of the counselor's appearance, that is his long hair and a beard, also surfaced, as did some confusion over what body or agency is the counselor directly responsible to in his capacity as counselor.

Not receiving the answers or satisfaction they wanted, the FinCom said no. We think that they may have been a little hasty in their decision. Clinton's prime objective was and is to establish rapport with the town's younger people. He is to be available to assist them, counsel them, and speak for them if the need arises. A statistical report of his activities, on file with the Board of Selectmen, is staggering. There is no question that the counselor is working with a tremendous number of Dedham's youth.

Measuring the effectiveness of the position is of course extremely hard to do. By his nature, Clinton, will be the last to trumpet his own horn. He's just not the type of person. But if you stop and talk to the kids of Dedham you will find that there is a tremendous amount of respect for Clinton's work among the youth who really are Clinton's first masters.

The Board of Selectmen, who, because of the EEA funding for the position in the past, are Clinton's on-paper bosses, have given Clinton an unqualified endorsement and the Fincom's negative recommendation was something of a surprise.

Last week it was rumored that the FinCom was going to reconsider their position. It might be a good thing to do.

POLITICAL HIGHLIGHTS

By JAMES G. COLBERT

Maryland Offers $35,000 For Bay State Lottery Plan

State Treasurer Robert Q. Crane has done so outstanding a job of running and directing the state lottery in Massachusetts that Maryland, which wants to go into the lottery business, has offered $35,000 for a copy of the Bay State plan.

That is quite a tribute to Crane and the men working under him and speaks well for their integrity and ability, especially since Governor Francis W. Sargent balked last year when the Legislature voted to place Crane in charge of the lottery.

Mr. Sargent vetoed the bill naming Crane as the lottery head, but Senate President Kevin Harrington and House Speaker David Bartley invoked party discipline and lined up the necessary votes to pass the measure over Sargent's objection.

The caliber of the job Crane has done has made Harrington, Bartley and other members of the Legislature look good.

However, that does not mean that the state government should go any more deeply into the gambling business than it is at present.

The fact that there has been no hint of scandal in the operation of the lottery under Crane and that the lottery has produced a substantial amount of money for the assistance of the cities and towns has caused many legislators to urge that the state go into such other avenues of gambling as off-track horse race betting and wagering on baseball, football, basketball and hockey games.

That would provide the opportunity for the manipulation of point spreads and fixed races and games by professional gamblers. It would be an operation fraught with peril. The Legislature would be wise to leave well enough alone.

Freed POWs Now Silent On Their Treatment By Captors

The men returning home from prison camps in Vietnam apparently have been instructed or requested to say nothing about their treatment by their captors until All American prisoners have been freed.

Virtually all the ex-POWs have been silent on that subject. One man told with understandable bitterness about being chained in a bamboo cage with ants and poisonous snakes in a jungle prison camp and give vivid expression to his hatred for the Viet Cong who mistreated him.

But most of the servicemen coming out of the grim shadows of the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong prison camps have impressed onlookers with their patriotism, courage and discipline, have voiced their love of their God, their country, their President and the people of the United States but have said little about the way they were treated while they were held captive.

There is great speculation as to what they will say when all their fellow prisoners are home and the men missing in action are accounted for and what the reaction will be, especially in Congress, to the stories they tell.

As they adjust to the pleasures of being back in the United States and reunited with their families and friends, some of their bitter feeling may gradually subside, but observers believe some of these men are just waiting to explode.

When they do, President Nixon probably will find it more difficult to get the $2.5 Billion he proposes to spend to rebuild North Vietnam.

Paradoxically, President Nixon and Vice President Agnew, while ready to forgive our enemies in North Vietnam with whom we have been fighting almost a decade, take a hard line against the immature, young Americans who ran away to Canada and Sweden rather than be inducted into the armed forces.

Many persons consider this somewhat inconsistent. They reason that if we are going to forgive our enemies after all the prisoners are freed and the war is behind us, we should also allow the draft-dodgers to come home.

President Nixon's rather harsh reference to "junkets in the Peace Corps" is widely considered to have been ill-worded and poorly chosen.

An increasing number of Congressmen, incidentally, when interviewed by the writer, have declared that they will not vote to appropriate funds to rebuild Hanoi while President Nixon is cutting back programs for the poor in this country.

Some, like Senator Fulbright, assert that they would appropriate funds for aiding North Vietnam only if President Nixon makes corresponding reductions in other foreign allocations.

The recent devaluation of the American dollar and the strength of the yen in Japan and the mark in Germany, two countries whose economic recovery we made possible after we defeated them in World War 2, is also causing some second thoughts on Capitol Hill about now pouring over two billion of those devalued dollars into North Vietnam.

President Nixon apparently can refuse to spend money Congress appropriates, but he, in turn, cannot spend money Congress refuses to appropriate.

The President faces a hard fight on Capitol Hill over his proposal to aid North Vietnam at the expense of the poor people of the United States, and it will become increasing bitter when the former POWs start telling about being marched in handcuffs through the streets of Hanoi while jeering crowds spit on them, about their barbaric treatment in the Viet Cong jungle and of being forced to subsist on rice and pork fat.

The going will really get sticky then for those advocating that we spend our money to rebuild North Vietnam, as we did Germany and Japan.

Strong Move On Beacon Hill To Control School Spending

Back through the years "education" has been a word revered on Beacon Hill and placed almost in the same category with "motherhood."

Under the law, School Committees were in a class by themselves and set apart from other public bodies.

Except in Boston, the School Boards could spend as much money as they pleased. No interference was brooked from Mayors, City of Town Managers, City Councillors, Aldermen or Selectmen.

If the voters didn't like the actions of a School Committee member, they could throw him out of office when he came up for reelection, but that was as far as public control over School Boards went.

The spending power of School Committees has been frequently tested. The School Boards always have won. When test cases were taken into court, the School Committees were awarded triple damages.

A few years ago, several members of the Newton School Committee went on a junket to California. The Newton Aldermen refused to pay the bills they incurred. The School Board took the matter into court and was awarded triple damages.

A Finance Committee chairman made a stand against the School Committee in Needham some years ago, but the all-powerful School Board rode roughshod over him at a Town Meeting.

Now there is strong support for bills pending before the State Legislature which would curb the spending power of School Committees and give other city and town officials some control over them.

Whether any of those measures will be enacted this year is uncertain, but inevitably some of the bills will be adopted in the near future because home-owners in cities and towns across Massachusetts are staggering under the weight of their soaring tax rates.

School budgets and the salaries of teachers have increased year by year over the past decade. As they have risen, local tax rates have climbed, and real estate tax bills have reached confiscatory heights.

Within the next few years the Supreme Court probably will order that the State assume the cost of public school education in Massachusetts and that approximately the same amount be spent to educate a child in each community so that all children would have the same educational opportunites.

That, of course, would mean a state-wide standard pay scale for teachers, under which they would get the same salaries in all 351 cities and towns of the Commonwealth.

But some controls over the spending power of School Committees undoubtedly will be voted by the Legislature before that happens. They are being demanded loud and clear by the people who pay the bills.

Decision Disputed in Case Of 16-Year-Old Holdup Boy

The unusual action of a Superior Court justice in dismissing serious charges against a 16-year-old boy, who allegedly shot and wounded a cab driver during a holdup, because of a technicality, is headed for review in the Supreme Court.

The upper court jurist threw out the case on the ground that a district court judge violated the youth's constitutional rights when she failed to tell him that the juvenile charges against him were being dismissed and that he was to be tried as an adult.

So the youth walked out of the courtroom to freedom while the 24-year-old cab driver remained in the Boston City Hospital, where he has been under treatment for almost six months, still partly paralyzed from the shooting in which he was robbed of a $50 watch.

Veteran and highly respected attorneys, who stress that they are not claiming that the Superior Court jurist acted improperly or illegally in dismissing the charges, say they do not know of any provision in the law which required that the juvenile defendent accused of a felony be informed that he was to be tried in open, adult court.

This recalls to mind the case of a 16-year-old boy, the son of public official, who was accused of throwing a switch which caused a train wreck a few years ago in which nearly 100 persons were injured, some of them severly and critically.

He was arraigned in juvenile court, and it was ordered there that he be tried publicly as an adult.

But when he came to trial in public session, the presiding judge immediately referred the case back to the Juvenile Court. The case was public only long enough for newsmen to obtain the right to publish the boy's name. He had lost that protection.

The boy was sentenced in Juvenile Court to serve an indefinite period in a Youth Detention Center. After he was given his freedom, his family moved to another state.

The answer to whether he was rehabilitated will be provided in a distant community.

Long Island Hospital Story Brings Back Old Memories

A story in the newspapers the other day reported that Long Island Hospital in Boston Harbor may be closed down before the end of this year. It brought back memories of a time a thousand years ago when this writer was a young Boston City Hall reporter for the Boston Post.

The causeway and bridge linking Long Island with the mainland had not yet been built, and the only way of reaching the island was by boats which carried employees to and from the island each day and also transported food and other supplies.

One of the customs carefully observed in the administrations of Frederick W. Mansfield, Maurice J. Tobin, John E Kerrigan and James M. Curley was that they go to Long Island just before Christmas to participate in the Yuletide party for the patients.

This reporter usually was assigned to go with them not only to cover the Christmas party but also to be on hand in case the Mayor got pitched into the chilly waters of the harbor while attempts were being made to tie up the boat at the Long Island pier.

That almost happened to Fred Mansfield as he tried to step up onto the wharf from a boat which was bobbing up and down in the rough water.

The Mayors would be accompanied by aides carrying big boxes of gifts which the chief executives would personally distribute to the patients. Curley also had his own pockets bulging with silver dollars.

Each of the Mayors would play a game of cards with one of the patients and would invariably manage to lose, a feat that was not always easy but which delighted the spectators.

Long Island Hospital then was a combination home for elderly persons who had no place else to live, a hospital for the chronically ill and a retreat for unwed mothers.

It was run by a staff dedicated to the task of making the people entrusted to their care as contented and comfortable as possible.

Once a year the Mayor of Boston took time away from his duties to centre the city's attention on the patients at Long Island, and they looked forward to it for months in advance.

All that seemed to end when the causeway and bridge were built to Long Island, and relatives and friends could journey there by automobile to visit the patients.

Now Long Island, beautiful in summer but bleak in winter, may be closed because of changing conditions and the need for economy.

That trip down Boston Harbor to Long Island on a chill, grey December day used to do something for the souls of the visitors as well as the visited.

Controversy Explodes Over Wallace's Ability To Serve

A controversy has erupted in Alabama as to whether George Wallace, partially paralyzed by a would-be assassin's bullet, is physically capable of serving as Governor of that state and fulfilling the duties of the office.

Alabama newspaper publisher Harold Martin suggested that Wallace resign from the Governorship, maintaining that he is unable to meet the demands of the office and charging that the state is being run by a "group of bickering parasites."

Wallace, who has had six operations since he was shot down while campaigning for the Democratic Presidential nomination in Maryland last May, has no intention whatever of resigning and has already had one meeting of his supporters to discuss the campaign he plans to wage in 1974.

Indications are that Wallace, a tragic example of the harm that can be wrought by a kook with a cheap handgun, probably will experience difficulty in mounting another campaign for either Governor or President because of his physical condition.

He is paying a terrible price for the failure of Congress to enact an effective gun-control law and for his own insistence on taking unnecessary risks against the advice of the men attempting to guard him in last spring's Presidential Primary campaign.

Goldwater Chides Critics Of Nixon's Vietnam Policy

Senator Barry Goldwater is second-guessing his fellow Solons, newspaper columnists and television commentators who charged that President Nixon had no plan for ending the war in Vietnam and that the December bombing of North Vietnam would only prolong the war and delay the release of our POWs.

Goldwater has been circulating a so-called "White Paper" containing statements by the gentlemen who expressed their lack of confidence both in Mr. Nixon's ability to achieve peace and the effect of the bombing he ordered. Here are some of the quotes from the "White Paper":

Senator George McGovern: "If we continue under the Nixon policy, we're not going to see our POWs again."

Senator Edward M. Kennedy: "It is a senseless act of military desperation by a President incapable of finding the road to peace."

Columnist Tom Wicker of the New York Times: "The answer can only be that he has no plan to end the war, much less win the peace, that Vietnamization by itself is not and cannot be such a plan."

Columnist James Reston of the New York Times: "The bombing is a war by tantrum, and it is worse than the Cambodian and Laotian invasions."

New York Times editorial: "The American bombs falling on North Vietnam have dimmed the prospects for peace in Vietnam."

Senator Hubert Humphrey: "It is fraught with danger and will not contribute to the settlement of the war."

File Early, IRS Suggests

An estimated 1,600,000 taxpayers throughout Massachusetts due refunds on their federal tax returns were asked today by IRS District Director William E. Williams to file as soon as possible.

Williams revealed the Internal Revenue Service anticipates these taxpayers are due an estimated $394,234,936. He said the IRS is anxious to not only return the refund money but seeks to reduce processing costs at the Internal Revenue Service Center in Andover through an early filing program.

He pointed out that taxpayers who file their refund returns now will receive their checks long before the Apr. 17 deadline. He asks taxpayers to use the preaddressed name label and self-addressed envelope that came with their tax package.

One of the important things on the return this year, Williams advised taxpayers, is the revenue sharing questions. Failure to answer them could affect local communities' share of much-needed federal funds, he said.

Abortion Ruling Fight

Editor, Newton Graphic:

Massachusetts Citizens For Life, Inc. would like to inform those who sent telegrams and letters requesting a rehearing of the Texas and Georgia abortion cases that those telegrams and letters have had some effect already.

Late last week both the attorney general in Texas and the attorney general in Georgia filed the necessary petitions for a rehearing. Thus, once again, the abortion question lies in the hands of the Supreme Court. They may grant the rehearing request or they may choose to ignore the hundreds of thousands of letters and telegrams sent to them from all parts of our country urging a rehearing. Of this number we know that a good portion of these requests for a rehearing came from the state of Massachusetts.

At any time any expression of your view on the abortion issue to the president, Supreme Court, or legislators (state or national) would certainly be in order. However, Massachusetts Citizens For Life, Inc. working in conjunction with pro-life groups throughout the country and wish the National Right to Life Committee, will learn of what further specific steps are being undertaken, and we shall pass this information on to all of our members and to as many other people as we can.

Massachusetts Citizens For Life, Inc. is a non-profit, nonsectarian organization whose purpose is to foster respect for all human life, born and unborn, and to defend the right to life of all human beings from the moment of conception. Any persons interested in joining with tens of thousands of their fellow Massachusetts citizens in speaking and acting in behalf of the most innocent and most helpless members of the human family are asked to contact Massachusetts Citizens For Life, Inc.; 430 Centre Street; Newton, Mass. 02158. The telephone number is 965-5433.

As a member of the Massachusetts Citizens For Life, Inc. you will be speaking for those who are unable now to speak for themselves, and your voice together with the voices of millions of other Americans who share your concern for the preciousness of all human life, born and unborn, will create one loud and clear pro-life voice which will not be able to be ignored by those in a position to reverse the horrendous decision made by the Supreme Court on January 22.

and encouraging the growth of others. Once gone, this bog cannot be replaced!" stated Richter.

Lost Pond Bog, like its Ice Age neighbor across Boylston Street, was formed by a melting glacier, and the only others like it in eastern Massachusetts are located at Rhodoldendron Swamp, Sharon; Black Pond, Cohasset; one further north in Haverhill; and several on Cape Cod.

"It is also interesting for Newton residents to note that Meadow Brook is fed by run-off from Lost Pond," added Richter.

He and his summer school class sent a letter to the Brookline Department of Public Works objecting to the conditions at the town's incinerator.

Richter state that a solution lies in merely digging a ditch which would carry the chemical run-off elsewhere instead of to the pond.

He received a letter from the Brookline Department of Public Works stating that it did not intend to change the situation so Richter took the problem to the Brookline Conservation Commission.

Under the impression that the commission had taken up the cause, Richter recently voiced chagrin when informed that the agency "intended to watch the situation very closely."

"We took a look at (the pond) last fall with a water pollution man and saw it was badly polluted," stated Frederick Ficken, director of the Brookline Conservation Commission, "but we haven't decided on a definite course of action."

Richter expressed surprise that the commission had not as yet invoked Hatch Act hearings against the Department of Public Works, but unequivocally stated he and his students would continue to fight for preservation of Lost Pond Bog.

Autonomy-

effort to restrict fiscal autonomy of the School Committee."

"I think this issue emphasizes our responsibility," Ahern said, referring to the organization." We really should come to all of these meetings."

Alderman Edward Richmond, author of the resolution, explained after the meeting he had made the proposal to provoke just this sort of debate.

Aldermen Jason Sacks, Richard J. Bullwinkle and Thomas Concannon, the only members of the eight-member committee present, voted on denial.

The trio then turned its attention to the Beautification Commission proposal, made by Richmond and Crosby, and voted 3-0 to report it favorably to the Board of Aldermen next week.

The ordinance calls for the establishment of a nine-member Beautification Commission to advise the mayor and various department heads, aldermen, the Housing Authority, the School Committee and private individuals on "matters affecting urban beautification."

The commission would be an unpaid body.

Rolce Payne of West Newton, currently serving of the Centennial Commission in this area, indicated support for the plan.

"We have a lot of well-meaning projects proposed by private citizens and no one to maintain them or to consult on designs," she noted, adding the Commission might "give some impetus to groups who would like to work on beautification projects."

Mann is also asking that the director of the Dept. of Human Resources be in charge of coordinating the functions of the three commissions mentioned and of any committee established by the mayor to deal with social problems.

Mann also envisions the director's role as advisory to the mayor and all department heads with human relations problems.

Aldermen Had No Choice On Revaluation, But . . .

Editor, Newton Graphic:

The decision, by the Board of Aldermen, for a transfer of $135,000 from Budget Reserve to the Assessing Department to engage a professional appraising firm is in my estimation a malignant tragedy, however, in view of the present restraining orders issued by Judge Chmielinski of the Middlesex Superior Court, I believe the Board had no alternative.

Mayor Mann's views were expressed over a year ago when he initiated the idea of revaluation. Since that time I have fought to delay such a concept until we received some help from the Federal Government. I have never said I was unalterably opposed to revaluation but merely that I desired a period of grace while awaiting federal aid.

An idea of this magnitude conceived by the mayor last-year was, in my opinion, ill researched, unwise and mysterious. There was no taxpayer's suit festering at this time. Sure, it was the law, but you didn't have to enforce it Laws are subject to economic forces and how they relate to the surrounding conditions. Should there be one person like a god who is to decide the fate of 100,000 people, or should the people be allowed to make such a decision? In a true democracy, the people would make this decision.

What is going to result now is:

1. The City of Newton will lose $500,000 in revenue from the utility companies. They are currently paying taxes based upon 100 per cent valuation as set by the Department of Corporations and Taxation. If the tax rate is cut as the mayor promises, they will pay 100 per cent based upon the lower yax rate.

2.To revalue property in Newton will cost $450,000 - $500,000. This is based upon the average of $20 per house to assess. It isn't that easy to resolve 25,000 pieces of real estate which are presently valued at $328 million dollars and bring in $49,200,000 in revenues. Many disputes will arise.

3. We will lose substantial reimbursements from the state. In 1970, the City of Newton was reimbursed $663,570.53 and in 1971, the city was reimbursed $826,940.72. The two key factors in determing the amount of money Newton is receiving—school expenditures and the ASSESSED VALUE OF REAL ESTATE in the city. While school expenditures will remain relatively constant, the increase in the assessed values of property will cause a loss of several hundred thousand dollars in reimbursements from Chapter 70 School Aid, State receipts and gasoline distributions. With only 125 of the 351 cities and towns assessing their taxable property at full value serious injustices will accrue to Newton.

4. People over the age of 70 with an assessed $45,000 worth of real and personal property or less are now entitled to an abatement. There are currently 13,000 people over the age of 65 in the city of Newton. With the increase in assessments, most of the people who presently qualify would no longer be eligible.

5. Veterans and widows who currently receive a tax break of two times the current tax rate would accordingly lose a substantial amount.

Brookline when it went to 100 per cent had an initial decrease of 36 per cent, but now has a tax rate higher than it was prior to revaluation. Waltham had a 62 per cent decrease, out is now climbing back up. Andover had a 24 per cent decrease initially but now has a tax rate higher than it was prior to revaluation.

Assuming we do not lose all the above revenues I indicated, and based upon the history of the cities and towns that have revalued, the greatest tax rate reduction we could initially achieve would be 50 per cent. With the current tax escalation trend this would mean a $100 tax rate or half of the $200 tax rate estimated in (1976) when revaluation would be completed.

What happens to the people who have made improvements on their homes since moving in, such as family rooms, swimming pools, central air-conditioning? I think the resulting tax bills will trigger a taxpayer's revolt that will result in an enormous exodus out of the city.

The Mayor's Advisory Committee on Revaluation substantiates many of the positions I have highlighted. The committe agrees, as pointed out on page eight of its report that the elderly, handicapped, veterans and people with low income will be hurt most by revaluation. They also agree the city will lose revenue from the utility companies. I contend that the tax bills for everyone will be greater after revaluation. How many youn families in their 30's will be able to buy homes in Newton? How many young families will be able to pay $4,000 for just real estate taxes?

The tax rate danger is that the tax rate three or four years after revaluation is completed will climb back up where it was before revaluation. And unless all property is constantly updated every two years, all assessments will be out of line. It is a fact that revaluation, does not impede or hinder the tax rate climb. However, with property at full market value, a $5 increase in tax rate is comparable to an $18 increase at the present rate.

Suppose the Board of Aldermen appoint a joint committee to advise the mayor on abatements. Suppose the Board of Aldermen formally request the mayor consult with the committee in respect to abatements. Since the Board of Aldermen is constitutionally entitled to a voice in running of the city, the request would be eminently more reasonable, than having one assessor dictating abatement policy. Almost all cities and towns in the Commonwealth have three assessors. Why should only one assessor have so much power as the mayor would like him to have?

I, for one, will continue my fight to minimize the cost of running city government in Newton and it is my hope that the mayor and other responsible city officials will worl with the Board of Aldermen in making the City of Newton an economically attractive place to live.

'Arrogance' In Broadcast Journalism

Editor's Note: Jeffrey A. Newman of Newton has asked the Newton Graphic to publish this letter, originally written to a prospective employer. Mr. Newman has deleted the name of the recipient of the original letter and states that although the situation described is a personal one, he feels it has general implications. We gladly comply with his request.)

Dear Sir:

Having just spoken to you, I felt compelled to send you this humble message. I had asked you for a five minute interview within the next month. You refused, stating in effect that your schedule would not permit such a wasteful expenditure of energy. I am sure that your schedule is extremely demanding. Having worked in a Congressional office, I can appreciate the value of minutes during the days schedule. However I ask you to consider the following:

First, I did not expect to find employment at your station as I do not expect to find employment at most broadcast stations. However, by meeting you for a couple of minutes I would at least have been granted the dignity of a face-to-face refusal. Also, it would be a chance for you to get to know me in case the distant future held an opening at your station.

Secondly, despite the utter and apparent arrogance of those who are now in the business, broadcast journalism needs much improvement. No such improvements will occur until more imaginative and varied viewpoints are added to the stagnant news programs we now view. Both the quality and variety of viewpoints are lacking because news personnel are rubber-stamped. Profit motives have stifled the state of your art because the advertisers demand a certain type of person to hire personnel and to develop the news. For example, how many persons of radical persuasion (perhaps socialistic in ideal) do you have employed at your station? None. You are full of liberals or conservatives, liberal-conservatives, or conservative-liberals. The result is the same, the public hears a very selective interperatation of the days events. Improvements in reporting techniques are meager improvements in the hands of similar thinking people. Is this true diversity in a news program?

To all the people too busy to see me, to all the smug and satisfied faces I have "met" in the past months of job searching I say this: The nature of broadcast journalism will change soon. Time is on my side, not yours. And when I am in a position of responsibility I hope that I will lend a kind word to those struggling hopefuls who come to my door. May I never turn one away because my schedule for the next month did not permit me a few moments. But further, may I allow the entrance of varied talented viewpoints on my staff.

It seems that the only ray of light in your program is Eddie Andleman who does not hide his feelings behind some carefully worded news interpretation which is just as biast in the end.

If I may be of any assistance to you in the future, please feel free to let me call on you.

All one has to do is to mark their ballot for the picture, the actor, the actress, etc., who they think will win the Academy Awards which will be on Nationwide Television, Tuesday evening March 27. All ballots remain the property of Redstone Theatres and any ties will be decided on by the judges.

CHURCHES AND BUSINESS

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — Churches, in a sense, are like businesses in that they engage in financial transactions, own property, communicate with the public and motivate groups.

To acquaint clergymen with some of the management techniques that have proven effective in business, the University of Texas Graduate School of Business conducts "Management for the Ministry Conference" each year.

About 75 church leaders, including participants from Michigan, Oregon, New Hampshire and Florida, as well as southwestern states, attended the interdenominational meeting last year.

Recruiting for Peace Corps/Vista

A special Peace Corps-VISTA Community Recruiting Drive is taking place in the Boston and surrounding areas, through March 2. A team of recruiters will be located at the Carlton House Motor Inn, 29 Hancock street in Quincy during this week to answer any questions on Peace Corps and VISTA.

The drive, headed by Chuck Murray, former Peace Corps Volunteer in Chile, will focus on the need for more skilled trandesmen and semi-skilled tradesmen.

"Most tradesmen don't realize that the Peace Corps and VISTA need their skills," said Marray, who put his training as an electrician to work in setting up an electrical shop in Temuco, Chile.

The fact is that 10 per cent of the Peace Corps Volunteers overseas have skilled trades backgrounds, and each year the number grows. In order for the Peace Corps to attract more tradesmen, the Corps since 1970 has begun to invite a limited number of families overseas.

"The Peace Corps found out that there are damn few qualified mechanics who don't have families," said Murray.

For the family of a tradesman, the Peace Corps will arrange schooling for his children. Housing and medical facilities will be provided. Plus, two hundred dollars will be set aside each month, so that after two years the Volunteer will have accumulated $4800 - $5400.

"Don't get me wrong," said Murray. "We still need a lot of single Volunteers. The skills we will be looking for in Boston are mechanics, machinists, draftsmen, construction skills, electricians, heavy equipment operators, and plumbers. Actually, we can use anyone who has worked with his hands.

Recruiting and information headquarters in Boston during the Campaign February 26 - March 2, will be at the Carlton House Motor Inn, 29 Hancock St. in Quincy. A special bank of telephones will be hooked up at to answer the many calls that Peace Corps and VISTA expect. The special telephone number during the drive will be 328-7488. Hours will be from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. Drop in even if you don't have a skill trade, because Peace Corps and VISTA are looking for over 300 job classifications.

Happiness At Crotched Mt.

Happiness at Crotched Mountain is on tap again this weekend as WBZ sponsors their Winter Carnival starting at 6 p.m. this Friday.

With all proceeds going to the Muscular Dystrophy Asspciation, the carnival will bring much happiness to Croched Mountain and to WBZ's viewing audience as broadcasts from Crotched Mountain will be aired throughout the weekend.

With day and night skiing, horse drawn sleigh rides, ice skating, antique tours, ski fashion shows, and two torchlight parades, the weekend will be one to remember.

Toss in a real live Woo Woo Ginsberg Record Hop, followed by a 40's Dance Marathon, a kite skiing exhibition, some fireworks displays and a Hot Dog ski exhibition, and Crotched Mountain should be some kind of excitement.

More information on the weekend can be obtained by calling (617) 523-6000. WBZ is expected to see you there. after all, they say, it's not every winter carnival that can put a spring in your step and summer in your heart.

V.A. Newsletter

Veterans who have used their G.I. loan can have their eligibility restored and get another VA-guaranteed loan under some circumstances, the Veterans Administration reminded veterans today.

The basic qualification is that the first home was sold for compelling reasons, and in addition, VA must have been released from liability on the original loan. This usually happens when a home is sold with new financing, it was explained.

Some of the reasons for which property may be disposed of and entitlement restored by VA are:

—Transfer of employment from one locality to another by an employer.

—Destruction of home by fire or natural hazard.

—Voluntary change of employment to another locality offering more income and opportunity for advancement—provided satisfactory evidence is furnished VA.

—Retirement of a veteran, or transfer of a serviceman by his military department while he is on active duty.

—Limited space in a veteran or serviceman's home, if a doctor certifies that space is a health question. An increase in size of his family, however, is not in itself sufficient grounds for restoration of entitlement.

—Loss of employment through a reduction-in-force, or curtailment of activities in occupation where he is employed—if suitable employment is obtained in another locality.

VA guaranteed home loans are available to eligible veterans and servicemen with at least 90 days of active duty during World War II and the Korean Conflict, or at least 181 days in the Vietnam Era. Loan benefits also are available to eligible widows, and wives of servicemen missing in action or prisoners of war for more than 90 days.

'Click' Exhibit for N.E. Photographers

Entry forms are now available for "Click," an exhibition of photographic works by young New England photographers 18 years old and younger. The exhibit will be sponsored by the Boston Center for the Arts and will be held in the Cyclorama Building, May 24 through June 11.

Through the exhibit, the Boston Center for the Arts hopes to stimulate and encourage photographic activities in the youth of New England. It will also enable the public, educators, and parents to view and consider the importance of photography in the child's visual development.

All entrants may submit a maximum of three works to be judged by a panel of jurors who will award prizes totaling $500. Prize winners and entrants accepted will be notified immediately following the juror's decision.

All photographic media will be accepted: black and white, color enlargements, slides, polaroid prints, photograms, photo-collages, photoconstructions, and photo silkscreens.

Following the "Click" exhibit, a committee will select 75-100 works which will tour the New England area for a year.

Entry forms are available by writing the Boston Center for the Arts, 539 Tremont Street, Boston, Ma 02116, or by calling 426-5000. No photographs will be accepted without an entry form, and the deadline for all works is Tuesday, April 17, 1973.

Patty Blum Is Bride of Paul Kussell

The Oval Room of the Copley Plaza hotel in Boston was the scene of the Feb. 18 wedding of Miss Patty Gene Blum, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Seymour I. Blum, Kenwood avenue, Newton Centre, to Paul David Kussell, son of Mr. and Mrs. Shepard Kussell, Druid Hill road, Newton Highlands.

Rabbi Israel Kazis officiated the candlelight ceremony. Following a reception in the Oval and Venetian rooms at the Copley Hotel, the couple left for a wedding trip to Mexico City and Acapulco.

Patty wore an embroidered lace gown with a mandarin neckline, high rise waist, long sleeves, and a silk worsted train. Her headdress was of matching lace worn over a camelot cap in mantilla fashion. She carried a bouquet of phaleonopsis orchids.

Matron of honor was Mrs. Claire Port of Newton. Miss Jane Ellen Cherney of Brighton was maid of honor. They wore mint green chiffon gowns with high rise waistlines and white chiffon collars and cuffs. They carried a string milax with gardenias.

William Blum of Brookline, brother of the bride, was best man. Ushers were Peter Blum Newton, brother of the bride, Robert Milgroom of Silver Springs, Md. and John Ladge and Neil Baker of Norwood.

The bride attended Ohio State University and holds the bachelor of science degree from Boston University.

Mr. Kussell holds a bachelor of arts degree from Syracuse University and a M.B.A. degree from Suffolk University.

The newlyweds will reside in Norwood. (Photo by the Nourses)

Sugaring Off at Old Sturbridge Village Beginning March 10th

At a time when 50 cents was a good day's pay and imported sugar sold in the general store for 25 cents a pound, the New England farmer's common-sense led him to seek a more economical alternative.

Putting luxury aside for frugality, he made do with what he had—a natural sweetener in the sap of his maple trees. Not as attractively displayed or easily accessible as the neatly-wrapped, pure white sugar loaves which hung from the ceiling of the general store, nevertheless maple sugar was a fair and inexpensive substitute for the store-bought sweeteners.

Beginning March 10 and continuing daily through April 1, the maple sugaring process used by farmers during the early 1800's—from tapping the trees to tasting the finished product—will be carried on at Old Sturbridge Village, a recreated rural New England community of the period 1790-1840.

Village staff members will tap more than 50 sugar maple trees in a sugar camp set in the woods near the Village Meetinghouse. A hand auger is used to bore holes in the trees and small wooden sap spouts, made by copying available antiques, are placed into the bored holes. By tapping the trees in this manner the sap is allowed to drip into troughs set on the ground. Most farmers of the period would have chopped into the tree to free the sap; however, from the standpoint of the life of the tree it is more practical to use an auger.

Sap troughts are made by hollowing out logs two to three feet in length using an adze. Depending on the conditions, (warm days and cold nights make for better sap runs), it may be necessary to empty a trough several times in a good day.

The sap is emptied into large iron kettles, hung over open fires at the outdoor camp. Each kettle holds ten gallons of sap.

The sap is then boiled to allow its water content to evaporate. When most of the water has evaporated, the sweet liquid is poured into pans or tubs to cool and to harden into sugar. Because 96 to 98 per cent of the sap is water, the yield is small—about eight pounds of sugar from 40 gallons of sap.

The sugar's characteristic brown coloring is a result of the scorching or burning of the sap as it is boiled in the hot iron kettles. Maple syrup, produced by boiling the sap for a shorter period of time, was not often made by the early nineteenth century farmer because storage containers could not be capped tightly enough to prevent further water evaporation and eventual crystallization of the syrup. It was much easier to keep maple sugar for long periods of time.

An advantage of maple sugar was that it didn't use up cash or credit at the store and large amounts could be made at one time. However, its dark color made it less desirable for certain kinds of baking.

Visitors to the Village during maple sugaring time will have an opportunity to visit the sugar camp and watch the entire process, to ask questions and to sample the results.

Located just 20 miles southwest of Worcester off the Massachusetts Turnpike, Old Sturbridge Village is open to the public year round. Village hours during the month of March are 9:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. daily.

Free Boating Course By Power Squadrons

The Great Blue Hill unit of the United States Power Squadrons is offering a free course in safe boating beginning at 7:30 p.m. Monday, March 5, at the Westwood Senior High School.

The 12 weekly sessions are open to men and women who are present or potential boat owners. Registration will be held on the evening of the first class.

Each class will consist of a complete lesson in boating. The course will cover "rules of the road," aids to navigation, compass and chart familiarization, boat trailering, safety afloat, and seamanship.

A Boston Harbor cruise will be held Saturday, May 5, to enable students to employ what is learned in the class room.

Certificates will be presented upon completion of the course and an invitation to join the Great Blue Hill Power Squadron will be extended. Members may fly the flag of the United States Power Squadrons.

Membership in the Great Blue Hill Power Squadron includes boatsmen from Westwood, Norwood, Dedham, Needham, Medfield, Walpole, Foxboro, Sharon, Canton, Norfolk, Franklin, and other communities in the Greater Boston area.

For more information, contact Lt. John H. Gemmel of Needham (449-1362).

Wool Harvest

Melbourne — Australia's wool clip for one season runs well beyond the $750 million mark in normal years.

WATERFALLS IN HOTEL

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — A new hotel here will have water falling into the lobby from six stories up. The 730 room Crown Center Hotel, which opens in April, is built on a natural limestone bluff, part of which forms the building's 12,000 square-foot lobby. Waterfalls will cascade 60 feet down this sloping rock foundation, which will be planted with full-grown trees and tropical plants.

Soccer Talk

By PAUL ELDRIDGE, JR.

The Boston Area Youth Soccer League will be holding their first annual Coaches Clinic on April 4th and 11th from 8 p.m. to 10 p.m. The clinic will be held at Archbishop Williams High School Gym in Braintree.

Coach Seamus Mailin of Harvard Univ. will be the instructor. Not only BAYS coaches, but also high school and college soccer coaches are invited to attend this clinic.

Anyone wishing further information, may obtain some by calling the chairman of the clinic, Joe Dente at 963-1408.

I understand that the Dedham "AA" team is going after the National Youth Cup this year. Good luck to Joe Freitas and all the boys on the team. May you do well and bring the Cup to Dedham and show the rest of the county how well Soccer is played in the BAYS.

Dedham is unique. They do not have Soccer in the high school, the only school in the Bay State League not to have one. Yet, a number of college coaches are interested in the boys on the "AA" team.

Philadelphia, the newest NASL franchise, selected First Team All-American goalkeeper Bob Rigley from East Stroudsburg State College, as the first selection in the Second Annual NASL College Draft.

Miami then drafted U.S. Olympian and St. Louis All-American forward Mike Seerey, the son of the former Cleveland Indian baseball star, Pat Seerey. Toronto selected Niagara Univ. All-American forward, Joe Casucci. Atlanta grabbed U.S. Olympian and St. Louis Univ. All-American midfielder Joe Hamm. Dallas drafted Keith Aqui the sensational All-American forward from Howard University. All-American defender Bill Straub of the U. of Pennsylvania went to Montreal. Andy Rymarczuk, the All-American Senior Bowl scoring standout was chosen by Rochester. St. Louis selected three-time first-team All-American Al Harte from Quincy College and the reigning NASL Champion New York Cosmos drafted NYU All-American forward Joe Fink. The only New Englander was selected by Montreal. His name is Ken Chartier, a defenseman from the Univ. of New Hampshire.

Of the forty-three players selected, twenty-five were All-Americans during their careers, fourteen are natives of the St. Louis Area, nine played for New York colleges, six for Pennsylvania colleges; five are goalkeepers, sixteen are forwards, 8 are midfielders and fourteen are defenders.

Seven of the nine first round selections are American citizens, one, Joe Casucci, is a Canadian citizen and one, Keith Aqui, is a citizen of Trinidad. Thirty-one of the forty-three selections are American citizens, three are Canadians and nine are of foreign citizenship.

Miami, Atlanta, Philadelphia, Toronto have added General Managers and-or coaches to their staff. Miami has signed former New York Cosmos team Captain of 1971 and Assistant Coach of 1972, John Young, as the new Coach of the Toros. Atlanta has contracted former team Captain Ken Bracewell as their new General Manager-Coach. Philadelphia has named Beau Rogers as the club's Executive Vice-President and General Manager. Toronto has signed Ontario Staff Coach David Jones as Assistant Coach of the Metros. Philadelphia and Rochester are expecting to sign their coaches in the next two weeks.

Vera Cruz, presently the third place team in the entire Mexican First Division behind Atlas and Cruz Azul has accepted the NASL's offer to tour the nine league cities in June as the common international team. The results of the games will be included in the league standings. Vera Cruz has been the sensation of Mexican soccer this season and under the direction of former Rochester Lancer Coach Alex Perolli, the team has not lost in the nine games since he took over the reigns.

Vera Cruz boasts Mexican World Cup Left Winger Pedro Domian. The Mexican National World Cup Teams have been the best in the North and Central American and Caribbean region for the last 20 years and the NASL expects that this will be only the beginning of a close and longlasting relationship.

The New York Cosmos' Randy Horton, the Most Valuable Player and leading scorer of the NASL last year, has signed with the reigning NASL Champs for 1973. Siggy Stritzl, the Cosmos' All-Aleague Mid-fielder has also come to terms for the upcoming season.

Philadelphia will launch a contest to name the NASL's newest entry. Details are expected soon.

MRS. JEFFREY Z. KATZ

Barbara Ruth Ribock Weds Jeffrey Z. Katz

Miss Barbara Ruth Ribock became the bride of Jeffrey Zachary Katz at 12:30 p.m. Jan. 28 at Temple Reyim, Newton. Rabbi Philip Kieval officiated the double ring ceremony. Following a reception at the Temple, the couple left for a wedding trip to Europe.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Natalie Ribock, Helene road, Waban, and the late Nathan Ribock. Mr. Katz is the son of Mrs. Mollie Katz, Minerva drive, Yonkers, N.Y. and the late Max Katz.

Barbara was given in marriage by her brother-in-law, Dr. David Shnidman of Lexington. She wore a white princess line dress of chantilly lace. A juliet cap of matching lace appliques held her three-tiered bouffant viel of imported illusion. She carried a cascade of American beauty roses.

Mrs. David Shnidman was her sister's matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Mrs. Stuart Katz of Philadelphia, Pa. and Mrs. Lewis Turgel of Surfside, Fla.

Stuart Katz, Philadelphia, Pa., was his brother's best man.

Other attendants were Dr. and Mrs. Maury Goldman, sister and brother-in-law of the bride.

The bride is a graduate of Newton High School, is a member of the class of 1973 at New York University where he is majoring in music therapy.

Mr. Katz is a 1972 graduate of New York University where he majored in public relations. (Bachrach Photo)

Women's Church Position Defined

The women of St. Mary's in Newton Lower Falls will hold their regular monthly meeting next Tuesday Mar. 6, at 1 p.m. at the church.

The program will deal with "Women's Role in Our Church" and the Rev. Elsa Wahberg, assistant at Trinity Church, Melrose, will be the speaker. Miss Wahberg is the first woman in New England to be admitted to holy orders in the Episcopal Church.

The hostesses for the meeting will be Miss Ruth Whitehill and Mrs. Marcy Eager of Wellesley. Mrs. Leonard Tims, also of Wellesley, will lead the devotions.

Community Centers Choose New Governing Directors

Paul Burke, president of the Newton Community Service Centers, Inc. will drop the gavel this coming Sunday, Mar. 4 at 3 p.m. to convene the 66th Annual Meeting of N.C.S.C. Inc.

A business meeting of the corporation to be followed by a meeting of the board of directors will be conducted for the purpose of electing a new board of directors, officers for the corporation, and officers to lead the board of directors. Mrs. Manuel Taylor of 1848 Beacon St., Waban, nominating committee chairman, will read the list of nominees.

Following these two sessions a number of invited guests and staff will join the corporation and board members for a reception and refreshments. Highlight of the program meeting coordinated by Arthur Martin, 42 Plainfield Rd., Waban, will be a presentation by Representative Robert F. Drinan. Congressman Drinan will discuss the current trends in legislation and its implications for organizations such as the N.C.S.C. Inc.

In commenting on the meeting, Burke stated that this will be the final meeting for a number of outstanding persons who have functioned as active and dedicated members of the board of directors. These individuals will leave the board, but will continue as members of the agency corporation and therefore be available for consultation pruposes.

Among these are Miss Alice Corson, past president of Rebecca Pomroy House and one of the prime organizers of that house and the community center merger; Mrs. Lester Steinberg, past vice president of the NCSC Inc., who served as coordinator of volunteers for Newton Headstart and as chairman for the West Newton Youth Center Advisory Committee; Mrs. Isodor Slotnick, past recording secretary of NCSC Inc., who was active on the Pomroy House board of directors and provided leadership for both the Newton Headstart and Newton Day Care Programs; Paul Corcoran, past vice president of the NCSC Inc., who was active as chairman of the camp committee, budget committee and as a special consultant to the president; Robert Danziger who served as a member of the budget committee; and Daniel Malia, who served as the board of directors youth liason member.

"As a result of services provided by these members, the agency grew richer and their contributions will have a lasting effect on the organization," Burke added.

Newton Student 'Adopts' Foreign Family For Year

The Newton Chapter of the American Field Service meet March 1, 8 p.m., at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jordan Baruch, 30 Dudley Rd., Newton Center.

After the business meeting conducted by President Richard E. Gladstone, the featured speaker will be Noboru Konno, an exchange student from Japan now living with the Baruch family.

Noboru attends the Newton South High School and just recently starred in that school's production of "Annie Get Your Gun." He and another exchange student, Sverker Littorin of Sweden, will participate in another American Field Service meeting and speaking program at Warren Junior High School on the afternoon of March 6.

Also at the March 1 meeting, Diane Levy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Levy, 61 Central Sr., Auburndale, will be feted for her acceptance as an exchange student. A Newton North High School student, Miss Levy travels to Yokohama, Japan, on March 6, for a one-year-stay with Mr. and Mrs. Shiro Maruyana.

While in Japan she will attend Gakuegi University High School where she will receive a year's credit. Her "adoptive" family have a 17-year-old "sister" and a 15-year-old "brother" for her.

The ultimate goal of American Field Service is to strengthen ties between American students and those of foreign countries. Host families, hopefully with high school age students, are sorely needed. They will only be asked to provide room and board.

New Course Offers Job Tips For Women

A new course entitled "Women in Careers" will be given Wednesdays, Mar. 7 and May 9 from 9:30 to 11:20 a.m. at Newton Junior College and will feature interesting women who combine homemaking and a career.

The course is designed to provide housewives with an opportunity to learn about jobs women hold and to get first hand information on careers they might want to enter.

Instructors in the new course have been selected and are as follows:

Mar. 7 - "Careers in Health," Polly Hoover, dental hygienist; Portia Halloran, optician; Sandra Best, laboratory technician; Mary Kennedy, dietician. Marjorie Lord, an expert on all careers in the health field, will answer questions on jobs not represented by the speakers.

Mar. 14 - "Careers in Small Business," Nancy Korman, advertising agency (self-employed); Elizabeth Rayner, real estate; Mildred Whitney, secretarial service (self-employed); Norma Garrett, ceramics (self-employed); Betty Davis, cosmetics representative (self-employed); Eloise McCloskey, travel agent. Margaret McDonough, assistant director of the Women's Bureau, Massachusetts Department of Commerce, will answer questions on legal and procedural problems in starting a business.

Mar. 28 - "Careers in Art," Sylvia Slayton, fashion illustrator; Jean O'Hara, costume designer; Joan Sprague, architect; Lillian Lessa, interior decorator; Carol Halberstadt, graphic artist. Judith Crumb of the Massachusetts Fine Arts Museum will answer questions on careers in fine arts.

Apr. 4 - "Careers in Administrative Positions," Nancy Lee, assistant brokerage manager of an insurance company; Stephanie Low, branch manager of a bank; Elsie Waterman, labor relations manager.

Apr. 11 - "Careers in Welfare and Education," Muriel Elman, social work assistant; Noreen Kimball, day-care mother; Virginia Tashjian, head librarian of the Newton Free Library.

Apr. 25 - "Careers in Communication," Martha Wood, public relations director of a hospital; Marjorie O'Byrne, free lance writer; Evelyn Keen, reporter for the Boston Globe.

May 2 - "Putting It All Together," Persis Blanchard, placement director of the Women's Industrial Union; Lucille Knight, Wellesley College Personnel Office; Phyllis Busansky, co-founder of the Boston Project for Careers, Mass. Division of Employment Security.

Registration for this program will be held at Administration Hall, Washington Park, Newtonville, Mar. 1-6, from 9 a.m. to noon. Registration by mail will also be accepted if accompanied with a $10 fee.

Temple Plans Guest Speaker

"Controversies and Issues within Israel" will be discussed by Dr. David Sharon at Congregation Beth El-Atdreth Israel, 661 Ward St., Newton Centre, on Sunday, Mar. 4 at 8 p.m.

The meeting, held under the auspicies of the Adult Education Committee, is open to all.

Dr. Sharon is a professor at Hebrew University, Jerusalem, and a visiting professor at Clark University.

Real Estate HAPPENINGS

BY JACK SOHMER

Many people are frightened or discouraged when they finally realize that it's time for a move. How to sell the old house? How to buy a new one? Actually, the solution to these difficulties is just a phone call away. Of course, there are pitfalls to avoid, such as mistakes in locality, price, appropriateness of the house, etc., but any competent real estate broker can help you avoid these. The advantages are numerous—a house you will be comfortable in and arrangements quickly and correctly concluded.

CJP Chooses Five Leaders

Key leadership positions in the 1973 Campaign of the Combined Jewish Philanthropies of Greater Boston and the Israel Emergency Fund have been filled by five Newton residents.

David W. Bernstein will serve as chairman of Key Leadership and Big Gifts; Paul D. Slater as chairman of Big Gifts; Mitchell J. Marcus, chairman of Trades and Professions, and Mel Fine and Joseph Veaner, associate chairman of the Trades and Professions Team.

The announcements were made this week by George J. Katz, General Campaign Chairman. The Campaign is scheduled to begin next month and will continue until the middle of May.

David W. Bernstein is the chairman of the Board of American Biltrite Rubber, Co. of Cambridge. He is a past vice chairman of Big Gifts and past chairman of the Shoe and Leather Team. He is a member of the Executive Committee and Board of Directors of the CJP and is a former vice president.

Bernstein is past vice president of the Associated Jewish Community Centers and a trustee of the Beth Israel Hospital.

Slater, a Waban resident, is president of Albert M. Slater and Son, Realtors. He has served as co-chairman of the Special Solicitations Unit. Slater is a member of the Executive Committee and Board of Trustees of CJP, and is vice chairman of the Business Men's Council. He is a member of the National Young Leadership Cabinet of the UJA.

Currently chairman of the Board of the Greater Boston Heart Association, Slater is 1973 state chairman of the Massachusetts Heart Fund.

Marcus, president of Production System, Inc., of Waltham, is serving as chairman of Trades and Professions for the second consecutive year. He is a trustee and associate secretary of the CJP.

Chairman of the Subcommittee on Jewish Education and Culture of the Social Planning and Allocations Committee of the CJP, Marcus is also vice president of the Business Men's Council. He is a director and member of the National Council of the Joint Distribution Committee.

Fine was co-chairman o the Retail Discount Team of the CJP in 1972, and is a former chairman of the Housewares Team. He is a director of the Business Men's Council, and of Temple Emanuel in Newton, and is a former director of Boston Aid - to - the - Blind.

Fine is a member of the Citizens Advisory Commission in Newton. He is president of Mel Fine, Associates, Inc., of Norwood.

The Combined Jewish Philanthropies is the central fund-raising, budgeting and planning agency of the Jewish Community of Greater Boston.

Birth Leave Talks Set

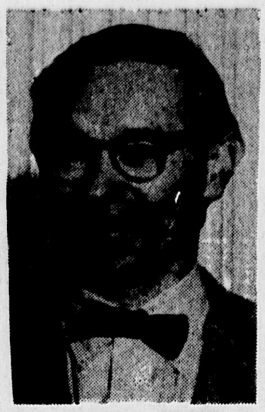
The Mass. Commission Against Discrimination (MCAD) will hold a public hearing Thursday, Mar. 1, on the subject of maternity leave benefits for women.

This hearing is scheduled to begin at 10:30 a.m. and will be held in the Minihan Lecture Hall, sixth floor, Hurley Building, Government Center, Boston.

The purpose of the hearing is to discuss and clarify the Commonwealth's regulations which require that employers grant maternity leave benefits to female employees. State law provides that female employees who have been employed for at least three months are entitled to a minimum of eight weeks of maternity leave. The same terms and conditions which apply to other temporary medical or physical disabilities will now apply to disabilities caused by pregnancy and childbirth.

MDAC will also hold a public hearing at 10:30 a.m., Friday, Mar. 2, on the subject of religious benefits for employees. This hearing will also be held in the Minihan Lecture Hall of the Hurley Building.

The purpose of this hearing is to discuss and clarify the Commonwealth's regulations which require that employers grant certain accommodations to meet the religious needs of employees.



DR. ROBERT KLEIN of Newton has been appointed the state's first director of the Lead New Poisoning Prevention Program by Governor Francis Sargent.

Church Women Hear Talk On Stained Glass

The Women's Association of Central Congregational Church, 218 Walnut st., Newtonville, will meet Wednesday, March 7, at 12:30 p.m.

Lunch will be served by Mrs. J. Edgar Birdsall and Mrs. Benjamin Huke and their committee. Mrs. Henry Myers will be in charge of the waitresses and June Allen is in charge of decorating the dining room.

Mrs. Earl Alban will conduct the business meeting and Mrs. Lowell Burrows will give the devotions. Mrs. Richard Keil, program chairman, will introduce the speaker, Mrs. J. Earl Thompson of Needham.

She will discuss, "Stained Glass and all those Bibles," and will display her craft work in stained glass.

Cerebral Palsy Trustees Told To Remember Adults

Trustees of the Activity Center for Cerebral Palsy in Newton were addressed by the coordinator for planning long - term services for United Cerebral Palsy Associations at their February meeting.

Ernest Weinrich told trustees that for years, Cerebral Palsy organizations have concentrated on the child and neglected the adult.

"While this is important," he said, "there are also many severely or moderately handicapped adults who are not active participants in society."

Enabling such an adult to work, he said, "will enable them to belong to the human race."

C. P. adults do not work because they don't have the skills or the community does not have the resources to help them develop work skills, he said.

It is important for C. P. adults and children to meet the same kinds of challenges as a normal person, so that they can make the same kinds of decisions.

ERNEST WEINRICH

The quality of life for them can then be improved, and Mr. Weinrich spoke about how this might be achieved: teaching adults how to shop, grooming, how to handle money, and even maintain their own living accommodations.

He stressed that these must be some of the goals of the Activity Center. Of prime consideration also, should be transportation to the Activity Center Transportation should not be left to the families of C. P. adults; transportation must be an integral part of the Activity Center's program, he told trustees.

The Activity Center for Cerebral Palsy in Newton is located in the new American Legion Post 440 building, and the American Legion Post is sponsoring the room to be used for the C. P. program. The trustees are raising funds to equip the room and start the program.

Weinrich is a graduate of City College of New York with a Masters Degree of Social Work from Western Reserve University. Cleveland, Ohio. He served as the director of the Development - Training Program for UCP of New York before assuming his present position with UCP. He has published several works including: "Group Work with the Handicapped; A Look at the Future"; and "The Role of Social Group Work in Patient Group Education With Parents of Children with Disabilities."

Center Classes Begin

The Newton Community Center will be offering a variety of courses for children, teens and adults beginning Mar. 12.

The center will be expanding its program to include courses such as modern dance, karate, and a natural foods cooking workshop entitled "You Are What You Eat."

Registration for the workshop ends Mar. 9.

They will be held at the Pomroy House, 84 Eldredge St. and the cost is $22 for an eight-week workshop. A $3 registration fee is required.

Innovations In Sound

You've probably never thought of your car as an ideal stereo listening studio. Well, it is! The minute you sit in your stereo equipped auto, you're blanketed in thrilling sound. You'll witness an entirely new perspective in stereo listening; a richness in stereophony and realism of sound reproduction that has never before been possible. Now, with stereo tape cartridges, whether you listen in your car, home, boat, plane or trailer you enjoy an unparallelled sound sensation . . . crisp clarity and maximum fidelity, superior craftsmanship . . . and a wealth of music for every taste from Broadway to The Beatles, from current hits to classical.

Stereo cartridges are carefully engineered to afford maximum reliability and convenience of operation.

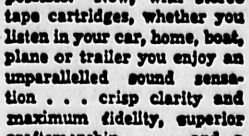
1. You never have to thread or even touch the tape.

2. You may change from one stereo program to another with the press of a button.

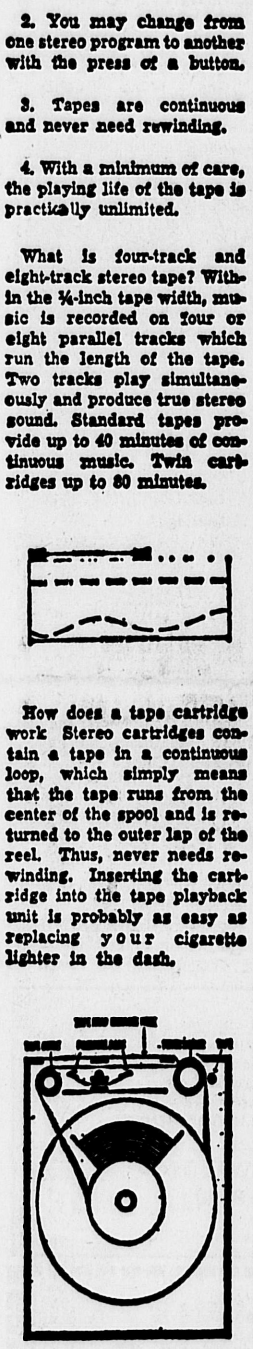
3. Tapes are continuous and never need rewinding.

4. With a minimum of care, the playing life of the tape is practically unlimited.

What is four-track and eight-track stereo tape? Within the ¼-inch tape width, music is recorded on four or eight parallel tracks which run the length of the tape. Two tracks play simultaneously and produce true stereo sound. Standard tapes provide up to 40 minutes of continuous music. Twin cartridges up to 80 minutes.



How does a tape cartridge work Stereo cartridges contain a tape in a continuous loop, which simply means that the tape runs from the center of the spool and is returned to the outer lap of the reel. Thus, never needs rewinding. Inserting the cartridge into the tape playback unit is probably as easy as replacing your cigarette lighter in the dash.



Seeing is believing, however, and perhaps the least expensive method for you to experience the unusual convenience engineered into a stereo tape is to visit a dealer and ask for a demonstration.

Realizing that stereo tapes are here to stay, Lechmere Sales of Cambridge and Dedham is now compiling substantial stocks. This foresighted record dealer and department store devoted exclusively to providing the consumer with even a larger and more complete musical selection than previously realized with the more traditional record album department.

Long recognized as a retailing leader and innovator, Lechmere now features perhaps the largest selection of stereo tape cartridges in New England. It's a certainty that a visit to either Lechmere in Cambridge or Dedham will prove a most rewarding musical experience.

FEW CARS DETROIT—In 1896 there were only four automobiles, generally known as "horseless carriages" in the U. S.

Rabbi Lectures Temple On World War Martyr

"Janusz Korczak, 1878-1942, The Psychological Dynamics of the Making of a Martyr," will be the subject of a lecture by Rabbi Samuel Chiel on Tuesday evening, Mar. 6, at Temple Reyim, 1860 Washington St., Newton.

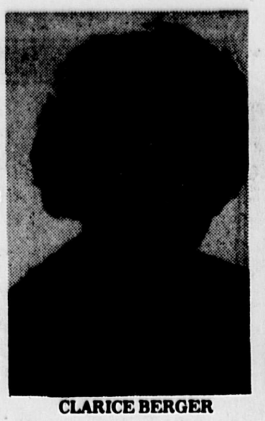
Rabbi Chiel's lecture will be the second in a series of the Combined Adult Education Program of Temples Emanuel, Emeth, Mishkan Tefila and Reyim. The program consists of both classes and lectures with the classes commencing at 8 p.m. and the lectures at 9:15 p.m.

Chiel serves as rabbi of Temple Emanuel of Newton. Before arriving at Temple Emanuel, he served as rabbi at the Malverne Jewish Center in Malverne, Long Island and served for several years as program editor of the Eternal Light television series of the Jewish Theological Seminary of America.

A graduate of City College of New York, he was ordained at the Jewish Theological Seminary. His past experience includes service as a chaplain in the U.S. Army and as rabbi at Temple Beth-El in Quincy, Mass. At present he is a member of the Social Planning and Allocations Committee of the Combined Jewish Philanthropies and a member of the Rabbinical Advisory Council of the United Jewish Appeal.

A volume of Rabbi Chiel's sermons entitled "Spectators or Participants" was published in 1969.

The series is open to the public and further information may be obtained by calling the offices of the participating temples.



CLARICE BERGER

NORMAN LAMBERT

Christian Scientists Elect New Readers

At a recent meeting of the members, First Church of Christ, Scientist, Newton, elected Norman E. Lambert to serve as first reader for a three-year term.

Lambert will conduct the Sunday and Wednesday evening services. He replaces Edmund M MacCloskey.

Assisting him on Sundays as the second reader will be Mrs. Clarice E. Berger. The retiring second reader is Ruth Houghton.

The Christian Science Church consists entirely of laymen and local members are democratically elected to fill all administrative posts and conduct services.

The two elected readers carry the main responsibility for the Sunday and Wednesday evening services of the church. Their primary duty is to read the Christian Science Lesson-Sermon on Sunday. This is a weekly compilation of related references from the Bible and the denominational textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy.

During the week, the same references serve as a Bible Lesson on a specific topic such as God, Man, Reality, Sacrament, or Matter. It is studied daily by Christian Scientists throughout the world.

Good Shepherd Slates Annual Pancake Supper

One of March's earliest events at the Church of the Good Shepherd in Wabar, 1671 Beacon St., will be the annual Shrove Tuesday Pancake Supper, to be held from 5:30 to 7:30 p.m. on March 6.

The supper is sponsored this year by the Good Shepherd Church School's Seventh Grade, with some help from other parishioners, and features generous helpings of pancakes, ham, applesauce, and milk or coffee.

Children up to 5 years are admitted free of charge. Youngsters from 6 through 12 $1.25 and all others pay $2.

Guests from outside the parish are cordially invited to attend.

Temple Shalom About To Pick Man Of Year

The Brotherhood of Temple Shalom of Newton, 175 Temple St., West Newton, will hold an award's breakfast, on Sunday morning, Mar. 4 at 9:30.

Chairman Marshall D. Glen of West Newton, stated that this is the first time a Brotherhood Man of the Year Award will be presented. The name of the recipient will not be disclosed until the presentation is made.

Mr. Arnold Shaw, 44 Gould Rd., Waban, will serve as master of ceremonies and will make the presentation.

The past presidents of the Brotherhood will sit at the head table and a plaque, honoring their terms of service will be presented to Temple President David Krongard.

For information concerning this program, call George Saltzman, 332-0220, or Marshall D. Glen, 332-3093.

Sisterhood Plans Musical Tribute

The Sisterhood of Temple Emanuel, Newton, has chosen Mar. 7 to celebrate Jewish Music Month and plan what promises to be an exciting program.

A noon luncheon will be held for which there will be a small charge of under a dollar.

Rabbi Alan Turetz, assistant rabbi of Temple Emanuel, an accomplished violinist and vocalist, will give a brief talk on "The Music of Our People."

Three talented sisters, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Hillard Morgan of Newton, will play the violin. Alicia Morgan is currently studying with Joseph Silberstein, Melanie Morgan with Mary Lou Speaker and Michelle Morgan has been playing with the Newton Symphony Orchestra during the current season.

Eleana Kenner, the gifted Newton pianist, will accompany the trio.

Reservations may be made by contacting Mrs. Eli Grad at 332-2869.

Parish Plans 'Fairless Fair'

Parishioners of St. Paul's Episcopal Church, Newton Highlands, have been working the last three months on a major money-raising event called "Fairless Fair" and now announce plans for a victory dinner to be served in the parish crypt on Shrove Tuesday, Mar. 6 beginning at 5 p.m.

A pancake and ham supper will be served from 5 to 7 p.m. in an effort to attract families to this event.

The Ways and Means Committee headed by Edgar Swail is in charge of arrangements.

Sisterhood To Hear Ezrat Nashim Member

The Sisterhood of Temple Mishkan Tefila will present Betty Braun, a member of Ezrat Nashim, at its next meeting on Wednesday, March 7 at noon.

Miss Braun, a student at Barnard and the Jewish Theological Seminary, will speak on "The Crisis Facing Jewish Women in the Synagogue." A petite luncheon will be served. Presiding will be Mrs. Marshall Kreidberg and the chairman of the day is Mrs. William Silberstein.

Reservations and babysitting may be arranged with Mrs. Eliot Sagan. Hospitality is under the direction of Mrs. Edward Bardfield, Mrs. Paul King, and Mrs. Arthur Sherman.

Friday Is "World Day Of Prayer"

Mayor Theodore D. Mann has proclaimed Friday, March 2 be observed as World Day of Prayer in Newton.

Services will be held at noon at Central Congregational Church, 218 Walnut street, Newtonville.

Mrs. Fernand Boudrea, president of Church Women United in Newton, has asked Mrs. Arthur F. Callan, the chairman of the day, and Mrs. William C. Lowe, Spiritual Life chairman, to conduct the prayer service. Rev. William Blair Gould will give the sermon based on the general theme, "Alert in Our Time." Rev. Gould is the pastor of Asbury Church, Warwick, R.I., and is also the Methodist representative to the Faith and Order Department of the Rhode Island Council of Churches. He was formerly director of the national office of Campus Ministry with the Board of Missions of the Methodist Church.

The program will also include music furnished by a special chorus consisting of Dorothy Bernard, Shirley Moyle and Ruth Perkins of Central Congregational Church; Deanna Kidd of the Newtonville Methodist Church; and Ann Dwelley and Mary Anne Donaldson of Second Church. Under the direction of Mr. Marshall Wilkins, Director of Music at Cental Church, they will sing "Lift Thine Eyes."

This international service was planned by the women of New Zealand who fear that their geographical isolation is a temptation for them to live complacently and to watch the outside world go by; hence this endeavor to become more aware of world problems and social needs.

The offering this year will be used to understand better and to offer training to American Indians in significant skills; to complete the publishing of special children's books in five languages; to help women in the Caribbean to secure jobs, improve their skills in native crafts and in nutrition; to open child care centers in certain cities in Mississippi; to participate in a health venture to bring quality care to all—the elderly, the poor, and youth; and to help in setting up an international rural network to meet problems of hunger and rural poverty in six or eight countries overseas.

Immediately following the program, a free "mini-lunch" has been arranged by the hostess for the day, Mrs. Earl Alban, president of the Women's Association of the Central Congregational Church, and her committee, made up of members of her board.

All Newton women are invited to participate in the celebration of this day.

City GOP Is Revising Its By-Laws

The Executive Committee of the Newton Republican City Committee is being called into special session with a meeting scheduled for Wednesday night, March 7, it was announced today by GOP Chairman Julius L. Masow.

Among the many items to be taken up at the meeting is the report of the by-laws committee headed by Richard S. Morse. The committee has been revising the organization's by-laws to bring them into conformity with recently enacted state legislation. If approved by the executive committee the proposed changes will go to the general body of the Newton GOP for approval and adoption.

The executive committee will also attempt to fill the office of recording secretary previously filled by Mrs.Janice slessinger who has resignedv.

The crowded agenda also deals with programs for the next general meeting and community activities. Masow said.

Goodwill Industries Reap Harvest Of Neighborliness

Year end figures from Morgan Memorial Goodwill Industries indicate that Newton residents have donated 40,314 Goodwill bags of usable clothing during the past year. This resulted in $70,549 in wages paid out to Goodwill Workers over 1972.

The donated items, ranging from top hats to socks, were placed in one of the ten boxes near the Stop & Shop, Route 9 Chestnut Hill; Finast, and Newton Center Market, Newton Center; A & P, Purity Supreme, IGA, Newton Highlands and Finast and Star Market, Newtonville.

During 1972 Boston Goodwill collected over 1,116,532 bags of usable clothing resulting in $2,233,064 in wages for handicapped trainees. In addition, generous donors have given 28,475 pieces of furniture and 27,820 units of other material. In the process Goodwill truck drivers have traveled over 120,998 miles.

Some of Goodwill's more illustrious donations included a Hammon Organ, 72,000 girdles, and 300 dolls. In addition generous donors gave furniture, small appliances, books and odds and ends.

The donated goods are used in Goodwill's training program for handicapped people. Donations of repairable and no longer needed clothing and household articles are cleaned and mended by handicapped trainees and sold at reduced prices in the Goodwill Thrift Stores. All proceeds from the sales go into wages for handicapped workers.

For the rehabilitation program to be effective, however, the constant flow of donated materials is necessary. For clothing and other portables, donation can be easily made at the nearest Goodwill box.

For larger items, the donor can call the collection department between 9 a.m. - 3 p.m. and a definite day can be arranged for pick up. Boston Goodwill 482-1894 and Worcester Goodwill 798-8631. Lynn Goodwill 592-9630.

Goodwill wishes to thank its many loyal donors for their continuing help and hopes next year can be even more successful than 1972.

Chemicals Corp. Picks F. Rice As Sales Head

The appointment of Mr. Francis J. Rice to the newly created position of sales manager, Electrical Products for his company's Burlington Operations Division was announced here today by Chester A. Brown, Jr., vice president, sales, Electronized Chemicals Corporation (ECC).

Prior to joining the ECC organization, Rice was associated with the Simplex Wire and Cable Company, Cambridge, and North Berwick, Me., where he served as New England District Sales Manager from 1963 to 1972.

Mr. Rice is a graduate of Boston University, where he was awarded the B.S. degree in business administration in 1957. He is currently affiliated with a number of professional and community organizations and is a professional member of The Electric Institute; an elected member of the Recreation Commission, City of Newton, and a member of the board of directors and assistant-treasurer, Newton YMCA.

Between 1951 and 1953, Mr. Rice served on active military duty with the U.S Army Airborne Force, achieving the rank of master sergeant.

Fix Up School Begins Shortly

What a homeowner can do to increase the value and comfort of his home through improvements or repairs will be demonstrated by experts during Grossman's annual free Do It Yourself Home Fix Up School beginning Tuesday, Mar. 6, at Grossman's all-new Wellesley store.

Classes will continue on successive Tuesday from 7-9 pm. for about four weeks.

A Grossman's tradition for over 40 years, the course offers home handymen and women the chance to learn a variety of home repairs and remodeling techniques. During the sessions, novices are given the basic skills for successful home projects by Grossman's own do-it-yourself experts. Experienced home improvers are guided in polishing their techniques and in learning how to handle new materials.

Included in this year's "Do-It Yourself" course will be the installation of partitions, paneling, drywall, ceramic tile, plumbing and insulation. Other topics which may be discussed are ceiling installation, painting and floor covering techniques, and subjects of interest suggested by class members.

Registration, prior to the first class, will be held at the store.

Newton High Bows In State Basketball Tourney

By DAVID CUTLER

All good things must come to an end. Newton High's basketball season did just that after the opening round of the State Basketball Tourney on Monday, February 26. Facing Taunton, a 15-3 team from Division One of the Southeastern Conference, the Tigers lost a 64-63 squeaker.

Newton certainly had momentum going into the Tourney. In their final regular season game they had beaten New Bedford 57-54. The same team had toppled the Tigers 75-64 back on January 18. The greatest factor contributing to Newton's victory was the foul shooting. Newton went to the line 28 times while New Bedford only took five trips. This difference offset New Bedford's 26-17 field goal advantage as Newton sunk 23 of their free throws while their opponents netted only two. The 57-54 victory featured a 21 point performance by Pete Laskaris and Ed Beckler's 17 points. The win gave Newton a 14-6 final record, but did not affect their league standing.

The Tigers were playing at the top of their game when the State Tournament started. Through one half against Taunton they held a 35-28 lead. But then they lost the all-important momentum. Pete Laskaris started picking up fouls and the lead was down to 48-45 with one period to go.

Unable to effectively break the press, Newton faltered in the final segment. They fell behind 63-61 before Ronnie Wilson hit an 18-footer with 22 seconds left. Taunton's Brad Smith, who scored six of his eight points in the fourth quarter drew a foul when he tried to shoot with one second left in the game. Smith missed the first toss, but sank the second the second. Ed Beckler's inbounds pass sailed the length of the court and beyond, but time had run out for the Tigers.

"These guys will never work harder than they did this season," said Coach Jerry Phillips. "Talent-wise this is the best team I've ever coached."

South Wrestlers Fourth

Before the Eastern Sectionals, last week, Newton South wrestling coach Aredis Kojoyian was unsure of his team.

"It's the greatest team we've ever had going in," he said. "We don't have the balance we've had before. We only have a few seniors and half the squad is first-year wrestlers. It's hard to say. I don't know what's going to happen. I hope the kids respond to tournament competition. It's very different from dual matches.

Kojoyian also noted that his team, which usually finishes second to Wayland, was on guard against the Warriors, but was also wary of Melrose and Brookline.

And that's the way it ended up. Wayland, 114½ points, in first, followed by Melrose, 92, Brookline, 88½, and South, 86 points.

South's only champions this year were Dave Berkowitz, who was a third-place state finisher last year, in the 147-pound class, avenging an earlier loss to Wayland's Mark Kowalski, and heavyweight John Staulo.

Paul Linn grabbed second place in the 100-pound class scramble.

Newton South completed its dual match season with a 10-3-2 record.

PERMANENT JOB?

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Walter Alston has signed 20 contracts to manage the Dodgers, all of them one year in duration. The one-year managerial contract, a Dodgers' management policy, does not prevent Alston, now 61, from being the dean of all major league baseball managers.

NO SORE ARM, EITHER

HOUSTON, Tex. (UPI) — Ageless George Blanda attempted an all-time professional football record of 68 passes in a game against Buffalo in 1964. Blanda completed 37 of his tosses that afternoon, topping by one the old record of 36 held by the New York Giants' Charlie Conerly.

NEW SITE — A new site and a new program have been announced for Camp Academy by Sumner Burg and Martin Karlin, directors. The site includes 11.5 wooded acres in Stoughton, 20 minutes from the existing location in Newton. It features a main lodge with facilities and recreational activities to accommodate 200 children on rainy days and for weekend activities. Sports activities include baseball, basketball and volleyball, soccer, fencing, track, field hockey, and archery. There is also a full - size stage for performances. Enrollment for the June 24-Aug. 24 session is now open.

Newton Skaters End Season

By DAVID CUTLER

Just as floating is to swimming, and walking is to running, Newton High's hockey team found out the importance of skating to their sport. "We definitely lacked in skating ability and we just couldn't make up for it," said Coach Jim Ronayne in explaining the team's 3-14-1 record.

Newton pulled off quite an upset beating Brockton 3-2 on Wednesday, February 14. Brockton had previously tied undefeated Waltham. The Tigers reverted to their old ways, though, in the final two games of the season losing 6-2 to Cambridge Latin and 6-1 to Brookline.

"I was really discouraged at the end," said Ronayne," because we were really getting out-gunned." Offensive power has not even been one of the team's mediocre points as they have averaged only 1.89 goals per game. They have allowed an average of 4.62.

The season ended with a scrimmage against Newton South on Monday, February 26. The Tigers showed Suburban League superiority over their Dual County League foes as they triumphed 7-1. "I was satisfied," said Ronayne. "I really didn't want to lose this one."

Youth and inexperience have been a trademark of this year's squad. Only six members will be graduating. There is also a promising group moving up from the Junior High level.

"These kids are going to have to work like Hell in the off-season to improve their skating ability," insisted Ronayne For even though they call it hockey, the name of the game is skating.

South Six Wins Finale

It wasn't the season that everyone was looking for, but at least it ended on a winning note.

Last week the Newton South hockey team was bombed by Concord-Carlisle, 4-0, and then roared back to skin the Weston Wildcats, 3-1, in the final game of the season. The Lions finished 4-10-2.

Concord kept the pressure on South goalie Jimmy Caruso from start to finish and kept the South front lines from penetrating deep against its own netminder, Larry Tympanick.

Bill Terrio blasted two goals to push Concord past the Lions, one in the second period and one in the third period.

Caruso was forced to make 21 stops, while Tympanick made 10 saves.

The finale against Weston was a little more positive. South opened up with two goals in the first stanza and then added an insurance tally in the third period after Weston had closed to 2-1 after two.

The Lions got goals from three different players in the battle. Steve Tresca made it 1-0 at 2:34 of the first period with a shot from in close after taking a feed from Dave Rourke. Seven and a half minutes later Jim Kavanaugh bagged the game winner on a rebound of defenseman Steve Owens' shot. Senior Larry Ryan also collected an assist on the play.

Frank Hiatt notched the only goal of the second perod and brought Weston within striking range. But the two teams battled scorelessly from 6:31 of the middle stanza to the last 11 seconds of the game when South netted its final score into an open goal. Joe Donlan got the credit on an unassisted play.

South's final record tied it with Maynard for the sixth spot in the Dual County League.

Newton Indoor Track Team 5-3

There's nothing that bad about a 5-3 record, unless it belongs to Newton High School's Indoor Track Team. More accustomed to going undefeated or suffering a single loss, this season's tracksters faced an extremely tough Suburban League schedule. "Sure 5-3 is down for us," said Head Coach Lamoine Boyle, "but the Suburban League was unusually strong. Waltham which finished below us beat the first place team Brockton."

Newton held a 5-2 record going into their final meet against Rindge Tech on Tuesday, February 13. The Tigers were dealt double setbacks on this day. Rindge handed them a 45.5-41.5 defeat and Tiger sprinter Bob Hoover was beaten for the first time this season. It took a league record time of 35.1 seconds in the 300 yard run (that's 17.4 miles per hour for you speed freaks) to beat him.

Hoover was the only Tiger to qualify for the State Meet. He finished second in Class A running his best time ever, 34.8. The winning time was 34.6, and the state record is 34.3.

"Bob did exceptionaly well this season," said Boyle. "He's one of the best runners around."

The main reason for Newton's relatively poor record is the youth and inexperience on this year's squad. There are only three seniors so the team will remain largely intact for next season. "We've got a lot of experience coming back," said Boyle. "But you can never tell."

Private School Sports Roundup

The Sebastian's basketball team was rolling along with a 14-2 record, but have now lost three out of their last four games, the last two defeats coming last week.

The Arrows were ice cold against St. Mark's and practically went into hibernation at the start of the third quarter as the hosts ran off 17 straight points enroute to a 47-39 win.

That loss dropped St. Sebastian's into a first-place 10-1 tie with Rivers in the Private School League's southern sector.

Kris Grundberg, a 6-8 senior center, fired in 17 points to total the Arrows. St. Sebastian's' high scorer was 6-5 center Phil Coleman who popped in 12 points. Bob Maguire was next in line for the losers with nine points.

The next loss was a shocker, though not as costly. Non-league foe Pomfret (of Connecticut) overame a seven-point halftime deficit with a 35-foot desperation heave with four seconds left to stun the Arrows, 62-61.

Sophomore guard Tom Giblin had given the Newton School a 61-60 lead with 10 seconds left, but Cal Hawlins unleased his bomb to win it.

St. Sebastian's opened up an early 21-14 lead and carried that into the lockerroom at the intermission, but again suffered a third period lapse when Pomfret outscored the Arrows. 15-6.

Coleman, 14 points, Kevin O'Malley, 12, and Terry Grant, 11 markers, paced the Aroow attack.

High scorer in the game was Keith Curry, who notched 18 points.

St. Sebastian's is 15-5 on the year.

The Arrow hockey team had a better week, but only because it didn't play twice. The pucksters dropped their only contest of the week, 6-2, to Brookline High.

Brookline, a Suburban League entrant, built a 4-0 lead and was never really threatened.

Joe White put the Arrows on the score board at 2:15 of the final period and Steve Maskell followed up with a goal 10 minutes later with the score 6-1. Maskell and Bab Devaney contributed assists on White's goal and Maskell's was unassisted.

Arrow goalie Tim Foley had a rough night. He was bombarded with 37 shots, but made 31 saves.

St. Sebastian's is 8-13-2.

Our Lady's of Newton fought back from a 34-31 halftime deficit with a 19-8 third quarter explosion and then beat back a strong final quarter challenge to pull out a 67-56 Catholic Suburban League victory and win its seventh straight game, over North Cambridge.

The win gave Our Lady's a 12-7 record.

It was a well-balanced effort as forward Peter Kelly tossed in 18 points and pulled down 10 rebounds, Andy Coletti added 15 points and eight rebounds, Al Gentile fired in 14 points, and Peter Sullivan chipped in with 11

South Soph Hoop Action

By ALAN FREEDMAN

A last-second hoop attempt by Newton South's John Bamel rolled around the rim and out as the Lion sophomores were edged by Weston High, 54-53, last Wednesday at Newton.

The Lions trailed from the start in this contest as Weston used a fast-breaking offense to build a 25-19 first half advantage.

The game switched from a defensive to an offensive battle in the second half and Weston was still up by six, 49-43, with only four minutes left to play.

Steve Selib and Bamel then led a South comeback which saw the squad close to within one point with only 17 seconds remaining.

Weston went into a stall and the Lions were forced to foul in order to get the ball back.

John Breck was shooting for the Wildcats and he sank his foul shot, but in the process stepped over the line too soon and South was awarded the ball with five seconds showing on the clock.

Bamel took the inbounds pass at halfcourt and made a great drive towards the basket, but the ball spun around the rim twice and just wouldn't fall for him.

Selib and Bamel paced the Lions with 14 and 12 points, respectively. Jay Reubens and Mark Schwartz contributed fine efforts on the boards.

This was the Lions' final game and it closed out their season with a not-too impressive 7-12 record, but quite an improvement over last year's 0-14 mark.

GLUE-FINGERS

DALLAS (UPI) — Lance Alworth of the Cowboys caught at least one forward pass in 96 consecutive games covering the 1962-69 seasons while a member of the San Diego Chargers. Alworth's mark is the all-time NFL record, topping Green Bay's Don Hutson mark by one game.

South Hoopsters End Season

By Lewis H. Freedman
Asst. Sports Editor

For the first minute or so of the Newton South's final home game of the year against Weston, it looked like a scoreless tie was brewing — the teams started off slow.

Lion captain Ned Moan hit a jumper and then Weston finally got on the board with 4:46 left in the opening stanza to prevent that awkward and embarrassing circumstance. Unfortunately, Weston also got its points at a slightly faster rate and took home a 53-51 victory.

After Moan's initial basket the squads traded hoops for the rest of the quarter until South center Rich Spector sank a three-foot turnaround with three seconds left for a 12-11 Lion lead.

South opened things up a trifle at the beginning of the second period when Moan ran off six straight points after three straight feeds from forward Rich Duffy. The Lions opened their biggest margin of the game at 20-13, but Weston, paced by Fritz Nately, tallied 8 of the next 11 points to pull within two, 23-21 before a final spurt carried the Wildcats to a 28-27 halftime lead.

Nately, a 6-4 pivotman who can handle the ball and who surprises you with his smoothness, went crazy in the third period and Weston came out of it leading 46-40.

Weston quickly expanded its lead to eight points, 48-40 and 50-42 after the tap in the fourth quarter before South put on some fancy offensive maneuvers and stiffened its defense.

A baseline drive by Mark Jefferson, a bomb from the corner by Moan and then a Moan drive with 1:40 remaining gave the Lions a 51-50 lead.

John Wilson duplicated Moan's shot and then hit a free throw in the last minute as South simply could not get the ball back, even when the Wildcats missed foul shots.

When they did get it there were only three seconds left and Moan had to make a desperation heave which fell far short.

Nately topped all scorers with 23 points and Wilson chipped in with 15 points for the winners.

Spector fired in 18 points for the Lions and Moan added 17. Al Grupp also broke into double figures with 10 points.

The first time Newton South played Acton-Boxboro this year, the Lions wern't very impressed with what the Colonials showed on the court. In fact, South won that game, 61-59.

So it was kind of hard to believe that last Friday, all that stood between Acton-Boxboro and a bid to the state tournament was Newton South.

Of course, Acton was riding along on a seven-game winning streak. Could this be the same team?

The answer was no. Whichever Acton-Boxboro is the real Acton-Boxboro is up for grabs, but one thing is clear. The two teams don't bear much of a resemblance to each other.

The new Acton beat South, 77-44 to finish 11-5 in the league and get an invite to the post-season playoffs.

It was a magnificient fullcourt press which did it. The pressing defense gave Acton a 23-7 first quarter lead and a 42-15 halftime break. When a team is as high as Acton was, it's hard to stop it.

Joe Harrington hit for 16 points to spark the winners, and Moan topped the Lions with 13 points, while guard Tom Sullivan added 10 for Newton

Newton South finished its season with a 6-12 record.

Knights Ousted by LaSalle in Tourney

By BOB CREEDEN

This past week the Catholic Memorial basketball team opened defense of its New England Catholic Title. In the first round the Knights drew Holyoke Catholic and went on to defeat them 74-53. Then on Saturday night the Knights were beaten by LaSalle (Providence) to put them out of the tournament.

Beat Holyoke

Last year C.M. opened its season against this team and with the help of a 55 point performance by King Gaskins won by two points. Seven members of that losing team were back so the Knights knew they were in for a game.

Holyoke broke the ice on a Dave Tabin bomb, but C.M. pressed and quickly took a 6-4 lead. The rest of the quarter the two teams traded hoops and a tip in from Tim Skaggs gave Memorial a 18-16 lead. Holyoke caught fire and their outside shooting brought them back to 22-18. Then midway through the period Holyoke took the lead and went on to take a halftime edge of 31-30.

The third started the takeover for the Knights. Running fast breaks that brought one's memory back to the Costello, Raynor, Gaskins eras the Knights came back to take a 41-37 lead. The Knights defense shut off the Holyoke bombing and went on to take a 49-39 lead going into the fourth.

Opening the fourth the Knights outscored Holyoke 15-5 to give them a twenty point bulge and the Knights coasted home from here.

High scorer for C.M. was Ronnie Perry who had 24 points many of them coming off a back door move matched by none. Following Ronnie was Mike Vicens with 21 points and 16 rebounds and Joe O'Brien who had 16 points.

Beaten By LaSalle

Also last year the Knights defeated a team that was a heavy favorite to win the Catholic Tourney. That team was LaSalle and they were back again and in the same position. The Knights to win this year would have to stop All-American Joe Hassett, who came into the tournament averaging 30 points a game.

The Knights were ready as they sent the crowd into ecstasy jumping out to a 7-0 lead. C.M. kept the press on and took a 19-10 first quarter lead. LaSalle opened the second quarter with a spurt of eight points to close within one, but the Knights' Joe O'Brien hit two buckets to make the margin five at 27-22. Both teams played good offense and defense as the Knights took a 34-30 halftime lead. In the first half Memorial had also held Joe Hassett scoreless.

The third quarter was the one that proved to be the Knights' downfall. Being outscored 20-10 LaSalle went from a 34-30 trailer to a 50-44 leader. They boosted their lead to 10, but the Knights came back. Memorial started to move behind the scoring of Joe O'Brien and Bill Griffiths as they closed the gap to three at 64-61 with only one minute left.

From here the Knights had the chances but either didn't get the break or missed the shot. Time ran out and the final score was LaSalle 68 C.M. 64.

The Knights will now open defense of their State Division 1 South Sector ftile.

Boston College Sports

By LEWIS H. FREEDMAN

When Boston College and Boston University play hockey, you know that there's going to be something going on, but whatever happens, you also know it's going to be close.

Last week the two Commonwealth Avenue institutions battled for the third time this season, this time at BU's Walter Brown Rink. The outcome was a 2-2 tie to even the season's series at 1-1-1. (BC won earlier at McHugh Forum and BU won the Beanpot at the Boston Garden.) It also left the all-time mark between the two schools at 51-51-4.

Whenever the two teams step on the ice the emotion is high enough to cause flirtation with a rumble, and last week's matchup wasn't very different. BC defenseman Rich Hart, however, displaying the overzealousness of Harvard's Doug Elliot, almost singlehandedly caused an uproar with his physical tactics.

Boston University almost beat BC goalie Ned Yetten (of Waltham) with a shot in the first 20 seconds, and that set the tempo of the first period. There was a brief interlude a minute and a half into the contest when the referees told the Eagle band to shut up, but BU resumed its shelling of Yetten immediately afterwards.

Yetten, who was an All-Scholastic goalie in 1970 on a team which didn't win a game, is used to seeing a lot of shots come his way, and since he also plays first base for the Eagle baseball team, has had a lot of practice with a glove. He needed it. Between his swift glove hand and fast-moving skates he was forced to kick out 17 shots in the first period to preserve a 0-0 tie.

There was one play in the first period, though, which even Yetten classified as luck after the game. BU's highscoring Paul O'Neil (33 goals) stickhandled his way in past two defenders and flicked a short wrist shot at Yetten. Yetten sprawled to push it away, but the rebound came out directly onto the stick of wing Bill Robbins who had followed O'Neil in. Robbins' momentum, however, carried him past the cage and he partially fanned on the shot so that it ended up resting safely against Yetten's prone body.

The game, which had featured some tight checking in the first period, opened up in the second stanza, and the Eagle defense was giving Yetten a little more help.

BU defenseman Peter Brown, who played for Norwood High's state champions, last year, was cut in the face with a stick, but stayed in the game and ended up losing the puck in back of his own net.

BC picked it up and Richie Smith fed linemate Bob Reardon for a shot in front. Reardon faked BU goalie Ed Walsh and the Eagles had a 1-0 lead. Defenseman Tom Mellor, who played for the US Olympic team last year, notched the other assist. The score came at 6:35.

Brown left the playing area to absorb five stitches in his lip and was replaced by Gerry Gryl, another walking member of the Terriers. Gryp, the younger brother of the Boston Braves' Bob, had injured his wrist and hadn't played in six games.

BU knotted the game at 12:16 when the Terrier fourth line combined for a shot from point-blank range. Bill Bishop put it past Yetten after a perfect pass from linemate Bill Burlington.

Brown returned to the ice in the third period and at 9:35 unleashed a long blast from the blue line. The puck shot over Yetten's head and smashed the red goal light to smithereens. A large number of spectators wanted to award Brown a prize for the shot.

The Terriers took a brief 2-1 lead at 12:49 on a terrific effort by Ray Cournoyea. Cournoyea, who sat on the bench the last two years while BU was winning national titles, finally got a chance to play this year and has responded with 20 goals.

Cournoyea raced to the boards to stop the puck from sliding out of the BC zone, but was twice checked into the BC bench. He still managed to kick the puck back into the zone, climb to his feet and feed captain Dave Wisener who fired it and collected his 20th goal. Vic Stanfield (younger brother of the Bruins' Fred) also claimed an assist.

That lead lasted a whole 1:09 as Harvey Bennett (younger brother of the Atlanta Flames' Curt) tied it up by stuffing in a rebound in front. Smith and Mike Powers got assists.

That's the way it ended, though not before a 10-minute overtime period, and a few more saves by Yetten (42 in all) and Walsh (32).

"There sure was a lot of rubber coming my way," said Yetten after the game. "They had a lot of shots that scared me to death tonight. I'll tell you, I think BU is the best team in the East right now."

"We really played well," chimed in coach Len Ceglarski. "We've been struggling lately. I don't know if we get lazy or what, but we needed this good effort. Ned saved us. He's the best around."

Boston College is now 16-5-1 on the year and owns an 11-5-1 ECAC Division I mark. Presently, the Eagles have a solid hold on the third place spot and really could come up with no way not to receive home ice for the playoffs.

The Eagle hoopsters upped their season's mark to 9-13 with an 88-68 rout of LeMoyne. Senior Tom Anstett, a rare starter, pumped in 24 points and hauled in 13 rebounds to pace BC.

Freshmen Bob Carrington, 15 points, and Wilfred Morrison, 10, also tallied in double figures as 15 Eagles got into the game and 12 broke into the scoring column.

PASS-MASTER

NEW YORK (UPI) — Slingin' Sammy Baugh made most of his headlines as a forward passer. However, in 1943, Baugh, a two-way performer, set a National Football League record for pass interceptions, four in one game, reports the Royal Crown sports bureau. Baugh's defense record has been tied many times, but never broken.

Newton Girl JV Hoopsters Unbeaten

By MARI PLATI

Boasting a phenomenal unbeaten streak of 27-0 over a two year period, Newton's Girls J.V. basketball team snatched first place honors once again in the Suburban League for the 72-73 season. The J.V.'s were 3-0 this year as they followed in pattern with the unconquerable style of basketball which has left their record unblemished. Coach Judith Davidson sums it up by explaining that "There was no competition for us for the level we were playing at."

Debbie Cohen Stars

Surprisingly, only one member is a veteran of last year's squad. Junior Debbie Cohen has been the mainstay this year, demonstrating a remarkable improvement from her previous substitute role. Debbie asserted herself as high scorer tallying over 100 points for the season total with a personal high of 14 points in one contest. Several other players developed with rapidity early in the race reaching their peak in the 2nd and 3rd games and maintaining their powers throughout the following schedule. One or two girls didn't find their limelight until the 9th game, such as Helen Fuchs who worked her way up from the 3rd string to a starting position in the latter part of the sesson. Other performers such as Patty Gardner, Kathy Fox and Sue Ingalls displayed potential for top spots.

In the 15 player group there were 9 sophomores and six juniors, of which only one was a starter compared to the four junior regulars of last year's club. "We possessed a good standard of basketball this year," adds Miss Davidson. "The girls were in good condition, they understood the game and the desire to play well was there." Juniors Sharon O'Brien and Erin Condon co-captained the group which controlled a variety of skills within its members. Newton owned some height as two of the girls were tall enough to give a notable boost. Karen Houston and Patty Gardner were two consistent shooters with Patty being outstanding in quickness and recoveries and "an exciting player to watch in games." Kathy Barber added to the resistent defense blocking shots with steadfast maneuvers as Newton often held the opposers scoreless for a sizable amount of playing time.

Newton id have its portion of vital contests in whcih the opposition was out to penetrate their flawless tally of wins. Arlington presented a stiff challenge early in the season as both teams held a 4-0 record and psychologicaly it was a big test for both sides. Newton emerged the victor though as they chalked up 40 points to Arlington's 12 with Patty Gardner attaining the game high of 13 notches. In what was not a particularly high scoring game Cambridge Latin managed to reduce any offensive explosion from Newton but could not provide any contributions of significance themselves and lost 28-12.

Newton later faced the true challenge as Brookline, hot from a six game win streak had been defeated previously by Newton by the slim margin of one point. Karen Houston was played against Brookline's tall scorer and prevented any shots from the offensive leader while containing the whole team to a 32-8 score. The win helped pace Newton through the rest of the schedule to the final outcome which can only be described as perfect. With a few more years of the same results Newton could have a dynasty.

WAYNE SCHELL

Named As Head Tennis Official

HARTFORD, Conn., Feb. 20 — Wayne V. Schell, former chairman of the Umpires Assn. of New England, has been named chief umpire and referee for the second annual Aetna World Cup Tennis Tournament, March 8-11 at Trinity College.

A resident of Newton, Mass., Schell formerly was a highly ranked player in the New England Tennis Assn. and the National Fathers and Sons Assn. of the USLTA.

As an accomplished badminton player, Schell has held national titles in the United States and Canada in addition to being state and intersectional champion in that sport. He will serve as chairman of the U.S. Open Badminton Tournament scheduled for April 1 in New Britain, Conn., and has been chairman of many New England tennis tournaments.

A graduate of Bentley College, Schell is the only athlete ever to win letters in five sports at Leominster (Mass.) High School. He is a member of the University Club of Boston and the Longwood Cricket Club.

He is a sales engineer for Texaco.

Newton-Wellesley Hospital Passes Its Test Once Again

Newton - Wellesley Hospital has been granted full accreditation by the Joint Commission on Accreditation of Hospitals, William S. Brines, administrative vice president, announced.

The hospital has received a two - year certificate of accreditation, Brines said, which is the longest interval of accreditation the Joint Commission grants. Newton - Wellesley has been a voluntary participant in the accreditation program since its beginning in 1952 and has measured up to commission standards in each by-annual review.

Accreditation insures that every area of the hospital's operation meets the carefully designated standards for patient care established by the Joint Commission and is a mark of quality in medical and hospital service.

Representing four national health and medical organizations - the American College of Surgeons, the American College of Physicians, the American Medical Association and the American Hospital Association, the Joint Commission visited Newton - Wellesley Hospital last fall.

During this bi-annual inspection, the hospital voluntarily submitted to a detailed two-day examination, designed to measure its standards of patient care. The review was conducted by a hospital administrator and a physician, both thoroughly trained in all phases of hospital operation.

The standards used by the Joint Commission of the Accreditation of Hospitals are those medical and hospital authorities consider necessary to insure high quality medical care. They call for the application of certain basic principals of organization and administration for efficient patient care and require a hospital to meet certain standards in its physical facilities as well. During the inspection, every area of hospital activity is exposed to detailed scrutiny from the quality and handling in preparation of patient meals to quality care received in the hospital and assurance that there is a plan for continuing care after hospital discharge.

"We are naturally gratified that we have again met this rigorous test," said Brines, "but we are never complacent. We keep at meeting our standards and trying to improve on our performance and service to the community all the time. That's why, I suppose, we are rewarded with accreditation. To the community it means we measure up - to our personnel from physicians to housekeeping personnel, it means a hard - earned 'well done'."

Hospital Men Plan Election

The third annual meeting and brunch of the Men's Associates of the Beth Israel Hospital will be held at the Marriott Motor Hotel in Newton on Sunday, Mar. 4 at 9:30 a.m.

The gathering will be marked by the election of officers and directors of the Men's Associates as they begin their fourth year of service in support of Beth Israel, a major teaching hospital of Harvard Medical School.

In addition, Dr. Lester A. Klein of Newton, head of the Department of Urology at Beth Israel Hospital and assistant professor of surgery at Harvard Medical School will give an illustrated presentation entitled "Family Planning and Population Control - a Male Responsibility?"

Members of the associates and their wives, as well as the general public are invited to make their reservations through the Development Office at Beth Israel Hospital.

Boating

Renting A Home In The Middle Of The Lake

By LOUIS CASSELS
UPI Senior Editor

BALLENTINE, S.C. (UPI) — A fork-lift truck rumbles into a big steel shed, elevates and extends its padded arms, gently plucks an 18-foot yellow runabout from its storage bin, and lumbers out to deposit it in the water alongside a dock.

The waiting owner and his family clamber aboard, stow their picnic baskets, cast off lines and the boat roars out onto Lake Murray for a day cruise.

The scene is repeated hundreds of times each weekend at Wells Marina, one of thousands of handsomely-equipped installations that have sprung up on American waterways to serve the needs of 9 million people who own pleasure boats.

Recreational boating is one of the nation's fastest growing outdoor sports.

The National Association of Engine and Boat Manufacturers says Americans spent nearly $4 billion last year on boats, boat equipment, and related costs such as fuel and marina storage.

To save storage fees, many owners transport their boats to and from their homes aboard specially-designed trailers. These can be backed into the water at the concrete launching ramps which are located profusely around lakes, rivers, inlets and other waterways. Nearly 4 million boat trailers are now registered in the 50 states.

700,000 Sailboats

Registration statistics indicate America's pleasure fleet includes about 700,000 "pure" sailboats, 700,000 yachts with inboard motors or large sailboats with auxiliary power plants, and 5.4 million outboard motor boats, big enough to require licensing.

In addition, authorities estimate there are about 2.2 million smaller boats, mostly fishing craft, which are powered by outboards too small to require registration. (The rules differ from state to state, but the typical state law requires licensing of any boat with a motor of 10 horsepower or more.)

Sailboat operators traditionally look down on powerboats, to which they refer disdainfully as "smokepots."

Powerboat people retort it's a good thing for "ragmen" (sailboaters) there's someone around to tow them in when they're becalmed or pluck them from the water when their craft capsizes in a stiff breeze.

Within the powerboat fraternity, there are distinct strata. The upper class consists of cabin cruisers, usually 30 to 40 feet long, which are fitted out with sleeping accommodations, galleys for cooking, and toilet facilities.

Cabin cruisers are good for taking long trips, which require you to spend several days and nights aboard. They cost anywhere from $25,000 to $250,000.

Houseboats, rapidly growing in popularity, are flat-bottomed, slow-moving boats meant to be anchored in one place most of the time. They make great weekend homes for water-loving families. Since they are designed for comfortable living rather than flashy performance, they are much roomier than cabin cruisers. In fact, a houseboat resembles a small floating cottage with a covered porch at each end. Again, costs range widely, depending on size and luxury of accommodations.

Runabouts Popular

By far the largest class of powerboats are runabouts. As they name implies, they are designed for "running about" lakes or waterways for picnicking, water-skiing, fishing, swimming, or just for the sheer joy of whipping through the water at high speed.

Runabouts generally have no galleries, toilets or sleeping facilities. They are primarily for one-day outings on the water. They are driven by outboard motors ranging in size from 15 to 150 horsepower, or inboard-outboard motors, which may go as high as 260 horsepower.

The size and type of the motor is a major factor in determining the cost. You can buy a pretty runabout with adequate outboard power for around $2,500, or a deluxe model with high horsepower for $3,500 to $5,000.

Averaging out manufactuers' statistics — and just looking around a busy lake on a balmy Saturday—leads to the conclusion that the typical powerboat is a 16-foot runabout with a 40-hoursepower outboard motor. It cost about $2,500, complete with trailer.

One unfortunate aspect of boating's phenomenal rise in popularity is that some waterways now get dangerously crowded on summer weekends and holidays.

The peril of on-water collison are heightened by the fact that many new owners take their boats out and operate them at top speed without ever bothering to learn the "rules of the road" of water navigation.

Drunken driving also is a manace, on waterways no less than highways.

But a careful boat driver, like a careful auto driver, usually can anticipate and avoid these traffic hazards. And once you're gotten away from the crowded waters around the marinas, and into a lonely stretch of tree-lined lake where you can fish, swim, eat lunch or just nap in the sun—well, it's mighty peaceful and pleasant out there on the water.

Nature's Insect Control . . .

The Boom In Purple Martins

By RICHARD S. BOGGS

OKLAHOMA CITY (UPI) — The ecology boom has rekindled interest in the purple martin method of insect control, capable of clearing a neighborhood of flying bugs without chemicals. Reason: the little birds are voracious insect eaters.

Mac Teague, who builds martin houses by the hundreds, says new interest in ecology has doubled the size of his plant this year.

The tiny member of the swallow family migrates thousands of miles to the Amazon Valley of Brazil each year, then returns to summer homes in North America.

An adult martin can consume his own weight in flying insects each day. Since the colorful purple and gold birds live in colonies, a 12-family martin "apartment house" of the type Teague makes could rid an entire neighborhood of pests through the warm spring and summer months.

"They're just like the swallows of Capistrano," says Teague. "They have some kind of radar, and no one knows how they do it, but they come back to the same home every year if it's warm, clean and comfortable."

Teague says now is the best time to put up a martin house, before scouts are sent northward to locate a summer home.

The advance platoon must check whether their homes are still available and free from nests of other birds.

"When martin people see the birds on telephone lines, they pull their sparrow plugs and watch," Teague says. "The scouts will check out the home, then fly south to pick up the colony."

Doors Are Closed

Sparrow plugs are pieces of plastic that tightly block the entrance to each unit in the martin home. A martin house owner cleans out the complex once a year after the martins leave, then plugs the holes until spring, when scouts appear.

Teague learned about the high-impact, weatherproof, colorfast material he uses by working 20 years planning and installing outdoor signs. He has built 1,000 martin homes each of the past five years and expects to turn out 2,500 this year.

The houses are easy to wash out. Just turn a garden hose on one and it's ready for the returning colony. It is air cooled and well vented.

The vent is an improvement since the original model and the new ones have balconies so young birds can try their wings before their initial flight.

"You should see the martins in flight. They're beautiful," says Teague. "Sometimes they'll fold their wings and free-fall toward their house so fast you'll think they're going to crash, but their wings pop open at the last second and they glide home."

Teague has begun a new line of plastic sparrow homes, at $14.95, "for the kids."

"You can put that house just outside the window and children can watch the birds raise and feed their young, and they do a lot of little antics," he said.

Art Museum Acquires Morris Louis Paintings

A gift of six major paintings by one of America's greatest artists, Morris Louis (1912-1962), internationally recognized as a pivotal figure in the development of modern painting, was announced today by the Museum of Fine Arts. The new paintings, combined with three Louis works already in the Museum's collection, form the largest and most comprehensive public collection of his work in the world.

All nine of the Museum's brilliantly-colored Louis canvases will be on view from February 23 through March in the Contemporary Gallery. Most of the newly-acquired paintings have never been seen before. This gift is the most significant acquisition received by the newly-formed Department of Contemporary Art (September 1971).

Morris Louis was part of the generation of colorfield painters of the 1950's that succeeded Jackson Pollock and other New York Abstract Expressionists. The six paintings document the four major phases of the artist's work, including examples of the early atmospheric "veils," the bursting "florals," the monumental "unfurleds," and his columnar "stripes" which form his last series.

"With these paintings, Boston becomes the center for the study of one of the great colorists of the modern era," explained Kenworth Moffett, Curator of the Department of Contemporary Art. Mr. Moffett announced that copies of letters and original documents relating to the work of Louis will be organized in archives at the Museum. The Museum also plans to hold exhibitions on different aspects of Louis's work and to publish a monograph on the artist.

The newly-acquired paintings are dated between 1954 and 1962, the period when Louis made his major contribution to modern art. In 1954 he made a break from his traditional style and began exploring the expressive treatment of color in large abstract compositions.

Two of the newly-acquired paintings, Beth Tet (1958) and Beth Dalet (1959), are large darkly-stained pictures from the "veil" series. Manipulating the canvas as he was pouring paint, Louis was able to achieve the desired image with subtle blendings of hue.

Winged Hue II with its bright explosions of color shows the imagaery of "floral" period. Delta Gamma and Delta Beta are monumental "unfurleds." In these Louis has run rivulets of pure color from each side towards the bottom edge of the picture, leaving an expanse of untouched canvas in the center. Pillars III (1962) is a late "stripe" painting in which he juxtaposed rows of pure color to form double columns on the canvas, again achieving ringing contrasts of color.

An early "veil," Longitudes (1954), and "unfurled" Theta (1961) and a late "stripe" painting. No. 19 (1962) are the other major Louis paintings in the Museum's collection.

Morris Louis was born in Baltimore, Maryland in 1912 and worked primarily in Washington D.C. When Louis died of cancer in 1962 at the age of fifty, he was a t the height of his powers as a painter. At his death, his work was known only by a relatively small number of critics and artists. Today his pictures hang in major museums throughout the world.

The Museum of Fine Arts was the first museum to organize a retrospective exhibition of the work of Morris Louis in 1967 in conjunction with the Los Angeles County Art Museum and the City Art Museum of St. Louis. Other major museums have subsequently held exhibitions of his work.

Louis's work was first brought to the attention of New York galleries by the critic Clement Greenberg. In recent years, exhibitions of individual series of his work have been held at the Andre Emmerich Gallery, New York. The first memorial exhibition for Louis was held at the Guggenheim Museum, New York, in 1963, and in 1964 he was represented in the American exhibition at the Venice Biennale with thirteen paintings.

Lecture by Winner of Nobel Prize

The Emmanuel College Chemistry Department will sponsor a lecture by Professor Salvador E. Luria, of M.I.T., 1969 Nobel Prize winner for Physiology or Medicine, on Wednesday, March 7, at 7 p.m. in the Library Auditorium.

Professor Luria is the Sedgwick Professor of Biology and an Institute Professor at M.I.T. He is also director of the Center for Cancer Research there. He is a Non-resident Fellow of the Salk Institute for Biological Studies, a member of the Scientific Council, American Cancer Society, on the board of Scientific Advisors, Roche Institute of Molecular Biology, and on the Editorial Board of "Experimental Cell Research."

CAR REPAIRS!

✓ HAVE YOU BEEN PLAGUED WITH FAULTY GUESS WORK ON YOUR CAR?

NOW AT MASTER MECHANICS . . .

No more guess work on your car! With the latest and most dependable computerized diagnostic equipment and the finest factory and field trained technicians, you will know exactly what repairs are absolutely necessary to have done. You will know exactly what the total bill will be BEFORE the work starts, not when it's finished.

✓ HAVE YOU BEEN HIT WITH INFLATED BILLS FOR YOUR CAR?

NOW AT MASTER MECHANICS . . .

Do you know that most chains, dealers, gas stations, tire stores and mechanics pick up most of their parts used to repair your car from jobbers, so that at times you pay higher prices. Master Mechanics are Warehouse Distributors, which means we buy below jobbers prices and can pass the savings on to you!

✓ DO YOU KNOW MANY REPLACEMENT BRAKE SHOES ARE FACTORY REBUILT!

NOW AT MASTER MECHANICS . . .

Officers Gave Police 85 Years

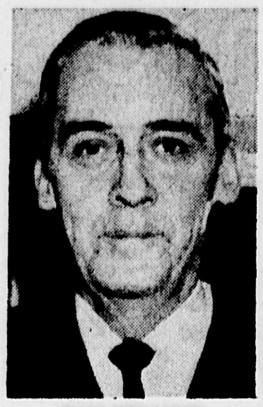
EDWARD HOLT



PAUL DONAHUE

JOSEPH DEVOY

Three Newton police officers were honored by fellow officers at a retirement dinner held at Valles Steak House, Feb. 27.

The three officers, Capt. Paul Donahue, PTL Edward Holt and PTL Joseph Devoy have served a total of 85 years.

All three represent police families. Capt. Donahue is the son of the late PTL John Donahue of West Newton, and brother of Capt. Richard F. Donahue of Newton. In addition, he has a nephew in the Natick Police Department. He was Chief William F. Quinn's executive officer prior to his retirement and served a total of 25 years.

PTL Holt has a son, Ronald E. Holt, who served as a highway patrolman with the Dade County, Fla., Highway Patrol and a niece who worked as a Newton Police Crossing Guard. Ed Holt worked as a cruiser Patrol Officer in the Chestnut Hill section and recently as a foot patrolman in Newtonville and covered Newton High School.

Devoy is the son-in-law of the late PTL George Hannan. Devoy, when appointed, was assigned to his father-in law's route in Nonantum and has since worked as a cruiser patrolman in the West Newton district and more recently was assigned to Newton Corner.

Arrangements for the affair have been made by Sgt. Robert Mahoney and PTL James Rogers.

Lincoln Dinner Plans Progress

Plans for Newton's Thirteenth Annual Lincoln Day Dinner are now being carried forward with patrons already being listed for tables at the event to be held Wednesday evening, March 28 at the Marriott Motor Hotel, according to Donald P. Quinn, president of the Newton Republican Club.

With William I. Cowin, Secretary of Finance and Administration of the Commonwealth, as its guest of honor and principal speaker, the dinner is drawing a great deal of interest from adjacent communities as well as Newton, Quinn noted.

Patrons for the dinner are being listed by the co-chairmen of the Patrons Committee, Mrs. Edward C. Becherer, Mrs. Robert L. Tennant, and Miss Charlotte Thornbury.

Dinner arrangements are being made by a Committee of more than 100 headed by Mrs. Herman Smerling and Henry J. Wilson.

John L. DiSabato is Chairman of tickets, assisted by Mrs. G. M. Swift.

Sponsors of the Annual Lincoln Day Dinner are the Newton Republican Club, Newton Republican City Committee, Newton Young Republicans, Newton Italian American Republican Club, and the Newton Women's Republican Club of which Miss Thornbury is President.

ADA Announces Guest Speakers For Annual Roosevelt Day Dinner

The Massachusetts Chapter, Americans For Democratic Action, will hold its 25th Anniversary Dinner on Saturday evening, Mar. 10, at the Copley Plaza Hotel in Boston.

The annual dinner, named in honor of Franklin Roosevelt whose liberal goals the organization was originally formed to perpetuate, will feature three speakers of prominence in today's liberal political scene.

Sissy Farenthold, recently elected president of the National Women's Politicla Cacus at its Houston convention last month, is one of America's outstanding political leaders. She was a candidate for Governor of Texas in 1972, after serving as a member of the Texas Legislature where she was a prominent member of the liberal block known as the "Dirty Thirty." She was nominated for Vice President of the United Sates at the Democratic Convention where she received a very impressive vote, including support from members of the Massachusetts delegation.

Jerry Wurf, president of the State, County, an Municipal Employees of America is a featured speaker. Wurf has a reputation as a tough minded and progressive labor leader and his union is the fastest growing labor organization in the nation.

The Massachusetts chapter will bestow its Annual Roosevelt Day Dinner Award for the second time on Joseph L. Raugh, Jr., prominent Washington lawyer and ADA National Vice Chairman. Rauh was counsel to the Miners for Democracy in their long struggle to take over the leadership of the United Mine Workers, a struggle which ended in victory this past December.

Raugh had another legal victory on Feb. 16, in the NAACP case in Federal Court, on school desegregation, where he also served as legal counsel.

He was among the chief opponents in the battles over the confirmation of nominations of Judges Haynesworth and Carswell to the U.S. Supreme Court.

The dinner will also honor past Massachusetts chairmen. Presiding will be this year's chairman, Elizabeth Parnes of Waban. Dinner chairman is Dr. Nancy Menzin of Cambridge.

For further information about the dinner, open to the public, write or call the ADA office, 3 Joy St., Boston, La. 3-3631.

Mrs. Yoffe Hosts Meeting Of Hadassah

Representatives of Hadassah chapters throughout the New England Region met last week at the Newton home of Mrs. Sidney Yoffe to launch the 52nd Annual Conference.

Mrs. Nathan Lappin of Swampscott, chairman, detailed the highlights of the conference which will take place May 6, 7 and 8 at the Sheraton-Tara Hotel, Framingham.

"Cherish the past; embrace the future" will be the theme of the gathering which will celebrate Israel's 25th anniversary and Hadassah's 60 years of service to the state. In conjunction with the city-wide celebration in Israel's honor, conference participants will be transported to the Music Hall in Boston for the occasion.

Mrs. Harold Silverman, conference co-chairman, described the workshops and called on individual activity chairmen for specifics.

Suffolk Selects Ken Garni

Kenneth F. Garni of Newton Highlands has been appointed director of psychological services at Suffolk University effective July 1, President Thomas A. Fulham announces. Garni succeeds Leo Liberman, who is retiring from the position.

A graduate of Amherst College, (A.B., 1964), Garni received a master of education degree in counselor education from Boston University in 1967 and a doctorate in education in counselor education from B.U. in March of 1972. An associate professor, he has served with Suffolk's psychological services department since 1969.

Prior to coming to Suffolk, he taught at Lee Academy, Lee, Mass. where he was also athletic director and coached baseball, basketball and soccer. He also has been a research assistant at North Reading High School and a counselor at Concord-Carlisle High School and the North Suffolk Mental Health Clinic in East Boston.

He is a member of the American Personnel and Guidance Association, the American Psychological Association, the New England Psychological Association, the Massachusetts Psychological Association and the Massachusetts Personnel and Guidance Association.

Garni is married and lives at 74 Circuit Ave., Newton Highlands.

Optometrist Studies At Ohio Myopia Seminar

Dr. Wilbert E. Libbey, 471 Washington St., Newton, recently returned from participating in a three day seminar in Warren, Ohio.

The seminar participants discussed recent research in the area of orthokeratology which is a philosophy of fitting contact lenses for the purpose of flattening the cornea of the eye in order to reduce myopia (nearsightedness).

The technique allows the patient to see clearly without wearing glasses or contact lenses full time.

New Chairman

WASHINGTON — Screen star Charlton Heston is the new chairman of the American Film Institute's board of trustees. He was elected for a one-year term to succeed Roger L. Stevens.

We think the average parent should know as much about drugs as the average pusher.

Sometime soon you'll want to talk with your teenagers about drugs. The sooner the better. We hope this page gives you something to start talking about. Because we want you to get to your kids before somebody else does.

THE OPIATES

When most people refer to "narcotics" this group of drugs is what they are talking about. Opiates are used medically as pain killers. On the street they cause pain for the user and society in general.

Opium
a white powder from the unripe seeds of the poppy plant. Opium can be eaten, but it is usually smoked in an opium pipe.

Morphine
is extracted from opium. It is one of the strongest medically used pain killers, and is strongly addictive.

Heroin
this strongly addictive drug is prepared from morphine. Outlawed even from medical use, heroin is the most commonly used drug among addicts. It can be sniffed, injected under the skin, or into a vein. Street slang for heroin includes "scag", "smack", "H", or "junk".

"On the Nod"
or nodding. The state produced by opiates. Like being suspended on the edge of sleep.

Mainline
or "to shoot up" – injecting a drug into a vein.

"A Hit"
street slang for an injection of drugs.

Works
the apparatus for injecting a drug. May include a needle, and a bottle cap or spoon for dissolving the powdered drug.

A Fix
one injection of opiates, usually heroin.

Junk
heroin, so named because it is never pure as sold on the street.

Junkie
an opiate addict.

Skin Popping
to inject a drug under the skin.

A Bag
packet of drugs, or a single dose of an opiate. Amount of the drug in the bag is denoted by price, a nickel bag ($5), a dime bag ($10).

"Cold Turkey"
describes the withdrawal that occurs after repeated opiate use. The addict can become irritable, fidgety, perspiration increases, there is a lack of appetite. The main problem in discontinuing opiate use is not getting off the drug, it's staying off.

Track

Overdose
cause of over 200 teenage deaths in New York City last year. Death is caused because the part of the brain that controls breathing becomes paralyzed.

Addiction
physical dependence on a drug, so that when the drug is taken repeatedly, and stopped suddenly, physical withdrawal occurs.

THE STIMULANTS

These drugs stimulate the system, or make a person more lively. While they are not physically addictive like the opiates, they produce a psychological dependence or craving.

Amphetamines
these stimulants are taken in tablet or capsule form, or injected into the blood stream. Among the widely used amphetamines are:
Dexedrine – or "dex" or "dexies".
Benzedrine – or "bennies".
Methedrine – or "speed" or "crystal meth".
Biphetamine – or "footballs".

Speed Freak
person who repeatedly takes amphetamines or "speed", usually intravenously.

Mental Effects of "Speed" amphetamines produce a decreased sense of fatigue, increased confidence, talkativeness, restlessness, and an increased feeling of alertness. As dosage increases amphetamines can produce irritability, distrust of people, hallucinations, and amphetamine psychosis.

Amphetamine Psychosis
a serious mental illness caused by overdoses or continued use of amphetamines. The person loses contact with reality, is convinced that others are out to harm him. The most frightening part – this psychosis sometimes continues long after person has stopped taking the drug.

Rush
the brief heightened state of exhilaration at the beginning of a high.

Crashing
withdrawal from amphetamines, the swift descent from an amphetamine high to severe lows of depression.

Cocaine
another kind of stimulant, derived from cocoa leaves. It is sniffed as a white powder, or liquefied and injected into a vein. It produces a fast and powerful feeling of elation. Cocaine does not produce physical dependence (addiction), but does produce a strong psychological craving.

Coke
street slang for cocaine.

PSYCHEDELICS

The medical classification of all mind altering substances. "Psychedelics" change a person's perception of his surroundings.

Hallucinogens
Those psychedelics which cause hallucinations.

LSD
probably the most powerful psychedelic. Reactions to LSD are extremely unpredictable. Distortions in time and space. Brighter colors. Vivid sounds. Feelings of strangeness. A sense of beauty in common objects. Sometimes fear and panic. Sometimes even psychosis.

Flashback
a user can be thrown back into the LSD experience months after the original use of the drug. Other possible risks of LSD, which are being thoroughly researched, include brain damage and chromosome breakage.

Acid
a slang term for LSD. A frequent LSD user is an "acid head".

Drop
to take any drug orally. LSD is usually dissolved in water, and may be placed on a sugar cube. The term is to "drop acid".

DMT
a powerful psychedelic prepared in the laboratory as a powder or liquid. It is usually injected into the vein or smoked along with marihuana or in cigarettes.

Psilocybin
this psychedelic comes from a mushroom. It is less potent than LSD and takes a larger dose to get the effect.

Peyote
from the peyote cactus, causes pronounced visual effects. It is used in a religious ritual by some Southwestern U.S. and Mexican Indians and its use in these rituals is legal.

Mescaline
"mesc" is the common name for this drug which also comes from the peyote cactus. Stronger than peyote itself, mescaline also causes vivid visual impressions.

DOM
called STP by users. The effects of STP can last for two or three days.

Marihuana
the crushed and chopped leaves and flowers from the hemp plant. Sometimes smoked in cigarette form. Sometimes smoked in pipes. Reactions can be: a giddy feeling like drunkenness; changes in perception and mood; feelings of well-being or fear; and possibly hallucinations. Slang terms for marihuana are "grass" or "pot".

Joint
a marihuana cigarette.

Roach
the butt end of a joint.

Stoned
describes the intoxicating effect of marihuana. or really any drug, or alcohol.

Hashish
called "hash". Also prepared from the flowering tops of the hemp plant. Hashish is smoked in a pipe or taken orally, and is more powerful than marihuana.

THC
tetra hydro cannabinol. Purified extract of the resin of the hemp plant. Also made in the laboratory. It is thought to be the substance in marihuana and hashish that causes the mind altering effects of these substances.

Trip
a name for the reaction that is caused by a psychedelic drug. A bummer is an unpleasant or frightening trip.

Head someone who uses drugs frequently.

THE DEPRESSANTS

The category of drugs that depresses the functions of the brain.

"Downs" street slang for depressants.

Alcohol
ethyl alcohol, a depressant because it slows the functions of the brain that control thinking and coordination. In high doses it produces drowsiness and sleep. Alcohol is an addictive drug, since after prolonged or continued use, it can cause physical dependence (alcoholism), and when discontinued, causes withdrawal symptoms at least as serious as the other addictive drugs.

Barbiturates
these drugs are in the group called sedatives medicines to make you sleepy. Barbiturates are taken in capsule or tablet form. They cause physical dependence (addiction), and after repeated use, physical withdrawal does occur when these drugs are discontinued. Among the common commercial names for barbituates are:
Seconal or "red devils"
Nembutal or "yellow jackets"
Amutal or "blue heavens" or "blue-devils"
Luminal or "purple hearts"
Tuinal or "rainbows" or "double trouble"

Barbiturate Overdose
more people in the United States die as a result of an overdose of barbiturates (usually suicide) than of any other single substance.

Intoxication
sedative or tranquilizer intoxication is similar in its symptoms to alcohol intoxication. Driving while intoxicated can be extremely dangerous, and is thought to cause at least 25,000 traffic fatalities a year.

Tranquilizers
drugs that calm tension and anxiety. These drugs do not cause sleep except in high doses. Tranquilizers are taken in capsule or tablet form. Some common commercial names for tranquilizers are: Equanil, Miltown, Librium, and Valium.

INHALANTS

Among substances which are inhaled and produce a high are: glue, gasoline, lighter fluid, and refrigerants. Continued inhaling has been reported to cause severe anemia, liver damage, brain damage, and death.

Science Museum Color Photo Exhibit

A collection of color photographs by the celebrated nature photographer, Eliot Porter, is the first exhibition in the new Washburn Gallery at Boston's Museum of Science.

On display through May 15, the photographs are representative of the varied subjects Porter chooses in the outdoor world. Small animals, flowers, trees, rocks, and water are shown in their natural state. His locales range from offshore Maine to Baja, California, from the Adirondacks to the Galapagos Islands.

As a conservationist who crusades with a camera, Porter deliberately records what remains of the natural landscape. He hopes to impress viewers with its beauty as well as with its importance, he says, in the "delicate fabric of interdependent life."

Aside from his mastery of photographic technique, Porter is recognized for his fresh perception of detail and his ability to convey the reality of outdoor textures, color, and contour. His strong sense of design gives each photograph individuality as an art form.

His work has appeared in many Sierra Club and other publications. His most recent book, The African Experience, was published in 1972 in conjunction with The Tree Where Man Was Born by Peter Matthiessen. He is represented in the collections of the Museum of Modern Art, the Smithsonian Institution, and the George Eastman House.

He is a native of Winnetka, Illinois, and was graduated from Harvard College and Harvard Medical School. He has made his home in Santa Fe since 1946.

The Science Museum's Washburn Gallery in the recently opened west wing is a 40 by 50-foot room that suppliants a smaller one donated by the trustees in honor of the director, Bradford Washburn. The new gallery is paneled in red oak and a neutral-colored carpet fabric, made of the same synthetic material as the astronauts' space suits, for resistance to fire. With hinged wall panels and free-standing floor-to-ceiling panels, the room may be rearranged to permit flexibility in the display of science-related art.

The Gallery is open during regular Museum hours: Mon. - Sat., 10 to 5; Fri. night to 10; Sun., 11-5. Admission is $2 for adults, $1 for ages 5 through 16 and over 65. Half price admissions obtain on Friday nights and weekday afternoons from 2 to closing and from September 1 to April 1 except during school vacations and holidays.

Profile: Dennis Weaver . . .

At Heart A Missouri Farm Boy

By VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Dennis Weaver, star of the "McCloud" series and former sidekick to Jim Arness in "Gunsmoke," is a Missouri farm boy who has never outgrown his love for the soil.

"There's something about the earth that everyone should learn to work in and love," he says.

Weaver does just that in the small plot of land which surrounds his home in Calabasa, a distant suburb of Los Angeles where he moved to escape smog and heavy traffic.

His vegetable garden includes tomatoes, watermelon, radishes, onions, lettuce, spinach, squash and strawberries. He tends the garden himself. A gardener trims the lawn and grows flowers.

There are also five varieties of fruit trees on the property.

As simple and down-to-earth as is the garden, the interior of Weaver's California mission-style house is elegant.

It is a riot of rich colors, deep carpeting, high-beamed ceilings, rich woods and nubby textured furniture.

Most of the credit for the beauty of their home goes to Geraldine who was married to Dennis in 1945. Both Weavers worked with an architect and a designer in building their dream house.

In addition to growing much of his own provender and working for ecological groups, Weaver thinks Southern Californians should spend more time on bicycles and less in automobiles.

Weavers Ride Bikes

To that end he has made bike riders of his family. On a weekend morning Dennis and sons Rob and Rusty can be found pedaling around the San Fernando valley. An older son, Richard, has become an actor and lives in an apartment not far from the family home.

The NBC series takes only 20 weeks a year of Weaver's time. He is on the set about 12 hours a day, usually arriving home by 8 o'clock.

When he is free of the series Weaver stars in television movies and makes occasional guest appearances on other shows.

Dennis is not socially oriented. He and Geraldine entertain infrequently.

"Gerri is a fantastic cook and one of the most informed nutritionists I know," says Weaver. "She manages a health food store. I guess I shouldn't use the term 'cook,' because about 75 per cent of our food is prepared raw."

Weaver is a vegetarian who does not believe in hunting or fishing.

He enjoys hiking. The family owns a large mountain cabin on the steep shores of Lake Arrowhead, a two-hour drive from their home. Many a weekend—both summer and winter—are spent at the cabin.

When Lake Arrowhead becomes crowded with tourists in the summer, Weaver and his sons drive up into the Sequoia country of the Sierra-Nevada and backpack several miles to camp under the huge trees.

"It's even more fun in the wintertime," says Dennis, "when you have to spend most of your time just finding enough to eat and staying warm."

Dennis combines the best of show business worlds, the comforts of home and the excitement of the mountains. "I'm lucky," he says.

INTERNAL REVENUE SERVICE

Tax Questions and Answers

Q. We had a child in August of 1972. The child lived only two hours and then died of respiratory complications. We have been told we can claim a full exemption for the baby on our return. Is this true?

A. Yes, as long as your child was born alive, you may claim a full $750 exemption for the year 1972. This is true even if the child lived only momentarily. You may not claim an exemption for a stillborn child.

Q. I paid a large fee to my attorney for drawing up my will. Is this a deductible legal expense?

A. No, this type of legal expense is not deductible because it is personal in nature. Only legal expenses arising out of, or proximately connected with, the conduct of your trade or business, or with the production of income, are deductible. For example, you may deduct attorney fees that are attributable to the collection of alimony, or separate maintenance, which is includible in income.

Q. When must a taxpayer itemize his deductions?

A. The following taxpayers must itemize their deductions:

1. Non-residents aliens
2. Estates and trusts
3. U.S. citizens entitled to special benefits for income from a U.S. possession other than Puerto Rico.
4. Individuals filing short-year returns because of changes in accounting periods.
5. Married persons filing separate returns whose spouses itemize deductions.

Q. I am employed by a private school as a teacher. I was out ill for several weeks last year and I was required to pay my substitute. Is there any relief for me?

A. Yes there is. Amounts you pay for a substitute teacher to take your place are deductible. However, you are not entitled to this deduction to the extent that it is allocable to amounts excluded as sick pay.

Q. My wife's eyesight is failing. I was told that she can claim an additional exemption for blindness. Is that correct?

A. An additional exemption for blindness is allowed if certain conditions are met. The law states that if the central visual acuity does not exceed 20-200 in the better eye with correcting lenses, or if the widest diameter of the visual field is no greater than twenty degrees, you are considered blind for tax purposes. If you are totally blind, attach a statement to that effect to your return. If you are partially blind attach a statement from a qualified physician or registered optometrist that your vision is no greater than that described above.

Q. My wife died in 1969 and left me with large medical bills. I finally paid them off in 1972. Can I deduct the payments on my return?

A. Yes, expenses paid by a surviving spouse for the medical care of a deceased husband or wife are deductible in the year paid. Whether paid before or after the decedent's death.

Q. Should we attach the 1099's which the bank sent us regarding interest income, to our return?

A. No, do not attach the 1099 information reports to your return. You should keep them with your copy of the return.

Q. I was divorced in 1972. As part of the settlement, I had to pay my ex-wife a lump-sum of $5000. Can I deduct this as alimony?

A. No, lump-sum cash or property settlements required by a decree of agreement are not deductible as alimony. In order for alimony or separate payments to be deductible, they must be periodic payments made because of the marital relationship and are required by and paid after a decree of divorce or separate maintenance or a written instrument incident to such degree or by a written separation agreement.

Q. I am a salesman. My company reimburses me for all my travel and entertainment expenses. I just found a few receipts for entertainment expenses incurred in 1972. Apparently, I forgot to submit the receipts to my employer for reimbursement. Is it all right to take a deduction for the expense on my return?

A. No. If you fail to claim from your employer a reimbursement, to which you are entitled, you may not claim a deduction for the expenses to which that reimbursement applies.

Q. I am a teacher and I make mandatory contributions from my salary to the city retirment fund. Is this deductible?

A. No, this is not a deductible item. You will recover your contribution to the pension plan tax-free when you retire.

Q. Last year I joined the local union connected with my profession and I was assessed an initiation fee in addition to my regular union dues. Is the whole amount deductible?

A. Yes, dues and initiation fees paid to obtain and maintain union membership are deductible, if you itemize your deductions.

Q. I am a widow with four children. I earned about $3000 last year. I received a Social Security allotment of $360 per month for the four children ($4320 per year). Can I claim the children? What filing status should I use?

A. No. You may not claim your children since the Social Security payments constitute more than 50 percent of their support. You should file your return, reporting the $3000 you earned and use single rates. You may not claim head of household rates in this case, because you must furnish over half the cost of maintaining a household for the entire year for at least one relative in order to qualify as head of household. The Social Security payments provided over half the cost of maintaining your household.

Q. I got a scholarship to college last year. Is this taxable?

A. A scholarship generally means an amount paid or allowed to, or for the benefit of, a student at an educational institution (an institution that normally maintains a regular faculty and curriculum and has a regularly organized body of students in attendance at the place where its educational activities are carried on) to aid him in pursuing his studies. If your scholarship falls within the above definition, it is non-taxable.

Q. When are work clothes considered deductible?

Generally, you may not deduct the cost and maintenance of work clothing. However, if your occupation requires special apparel or equipment as a condition of employment, its cost and maintenance are deductible if it is not adaptable to general or continued usage in place of ordinary clothing. The cost of protective clothing required on your job is also deductible.

Q. Is an organization exempt from Federal Income Tax required to have an Employer's Identification Number even though it has no employees?

A. Yes. every exempt organization is required to have an Employer's Identification Number, whether or not it has any employees. If your organization does not have an Employer Identification Number, a completed Form SS-4 must be filed. Our Automatic Data Processing System is based primarily on such identifying numbers.

Q. I received a fee in 1972 for performing duties as executor of my uncle's will. Is this taxable?

A. Yes, fees received as executor or administrator of a will are taxable.

Q. I paid the real estate tax on my parents' home last year since they were having financial difficulties. May I deduct the amount of the tax on my return?

A. No. A tax must be imposed on you to be deductible by you. Since you were not the owner of the property, you may not deduct the real estate tax.

Q. I own rental property. I do a lot of repairs on the property myself in order to save the cost of the labor charge for a regular workman. I figure that the time I spend doing the work is considerable and I was wondering if I could add an estimate of the value of my labor to the cost of the supplies in order to arrive at my repair expense deduction.

A. No, an estimate of the value of your time and labor spent on your rental property is not deductible. Only the actual amount spent on repair work is allowable.

Q. Is severance pay taxable?

A. Yes, severance pay is compensation for services and is taxable.

Q. Do I have to show my wife's social security number on our joint return?

A. Her number is required if she had wages subject to withholding, income subject to self-employment tax or interest and dividends if $10 or more. Even if your wife had no income at all it is suggested that her number be shown to assist in processing your return.

Concert of French Music

The Chorus pro Musica of Boston will present "French Music for Vocal Ensembles from 1523 to 1973" on Wednesday, March 7 at 8 p.m. in Burden Hall of the Harvard Business School (on the Charles River at Storrow Drive and the Lars Anderson Bridge).

The concert, under the direction of Alfred Nash Patterson, will feature Figure Humaine by Poulenc. Other works to be performed include Exultate Deo by Poulenc, Cantata de la Guerre by Milhaud, Trois Chansons by both Debussy and by Ravel, and songs by Couperin, LeJeune, and Jannequin. The music is of composers spanning over 450 years, from LeJeune to Milhaud, who is still living.

Tickets are $2 and may be obtained at the dorr; at Harvard Information Center (Holyoke Center) in Harvard Square; by mail: CpM, 645 Boylston Street, Boston 02116; and from Chorus members. A map is printed on the back of each ticket.

The Chorus pro Musica is performing for the first time in this unique auditorium which was completed in the fall of 1971. Its highly functional architectural design is by Philip Johnson, who was one of the designers of the New York State Pavillion at the New York World's Fair, and of Lincoln Center in New York. The main building is brick, punctuated only by two glass entry ways; the main auditorium looks like a Roman amphitheater with concrete tiers rising in a huge semi-circle from the floor.

Welsh Society To Celebrate Saint David's

The Welsh Society of Boston will celebrate St. David's Day this year on Saturday evening, March 3 with a dinner at 6:30 and a program at 8 o'clock in the Boyden Room of Central Congregational Church, 218 Walnut street, Newtonville.

The English have their St. George, the Irish their St. Patrick, the Scotts have their St. Andrew and the Welsh, who originate in the maountains of the small province in southwestern part of Great Britton and known as Wales honor St. David (472-554) as their Patron Saint.

St. David's Day is traditionally the First of March and on or about that date Welsh folk throughout the world will celebrate with dinners, festivals and typical Welsh singing for which they are universally famous.

A cordial invitation is extended to all those with Welsh blood in their background to attend this St. David's Day dinner and-or program next Saturday evening.

For dinner reservations call 325-7409 or 527-2449.

Good Athlete

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Kansas City Royals manager Bob Lemon, who posted 207 wins as a major league pitcher, was good enough to make the major leagues as a hitter. Lemon was the Cleveland Indians' starting center fielder on opening day in 1946, also played third base for the tribe and didn't begin pitching regularly until he was 27.

Across The Kitchen Counter

Ruth Lenson

Lamb was once considered a seasonal meat available only in the spring. Now lamb, both fresh and fresh-frozen, is found year round in meat markets throughout the country.

Did you know that lamb is one of man's earliest animal foods? Archeological findings have reported that primitive man ate sheep in prehistoric times. In the Middle East, lamb is a ceremonial food as well as an every day meat. Lebanon has kibbe, a lamb meat loaf prepared in a variety of ways. In India, where pork is forbidden to Muslims and cow is sacred to Hindus, lamb has always been a staple meat often eaten in hot curries.

What is lamb? Lamb is the meat from young sheep and to be classified as lamb, the meat must be marketed at 12 months or before. What is the fell? This is the thin paper-like covering found over the fat of all lamb. If it has not been removed from chops in the market, this should be done. However, leave it on the leg for it will hold its shape better and be juicer with the fell left on.

Lamb cooking tips: There are basically two methods of cooking lamb: Dry Heat Methods and Moist Heat Methods. Dry Heat Methods include; roasting, broiling, panbroiling and panfrying. As the name implies, the meat is cooked by dry heat which means using open pans (lids on pans hold in moisture making moist heat). Dry heat methods are best for tender cuts bringing out the juiciness and flavor of the meat. Cuts in this category are: leg roasts, sirloin roasts, loin roasts, rack roasts, crown roasts and shoulder roasts.

To roast lamb, sprinkle roast with salt, pepper and any other desired seasonings; place on rack (fat side up) in 325 degree oven. For accuracy use a meat thermometer inserted in the very center of the roast. Lamb is rare at 150 degrees, medium at 160-170 degrees and well done at 175 degrees. If a glaze is desired, apply during the last 30 minutes to 1 hour of roasting time.

All chops — loin chops, rib chops, shoulder chops should be broiled or panbroiled. Always use tongs to turn chops and steaks — a fork pierces the meat and allows more of the juices to run out. Before broiling season chops on both sides with garlic-flavored French dressing. To panbroil place lamb in heavy frypan (do not add fat or water and do not cover); cook slowly and turn lamb occasionally, pouring off any fat that accumulates. Cook until lamb is browned on both sides and as done as you like.

Braising: This moist heat method of cooking is used for both small and large, less tender cuts of lamb like neck slices, shoulder chops, riblets, breast, shanks, cubed lamb and shoulder roasts. To braise: Heat a small amount of fat in a heavy fry pan and brown lamb on all sides. Pour off drippings; season with salt and pepper; add a small amount of liquid (water, vegetable juice or soup). Cover pan tightly and cook at low temperature until tender.

PEPPER LAMB STEAKS

4 lamb steaks, about ¾ inch thick
One-third cup olive oil
2 cloves garlic, sliced
1 medium onion, sliced
4 medium green peppers, cut in strips
Salt and pepper
¼ teaspoon oregano leaves

Place lamb steaks in shallow dish; add oil and garlic. Cover and set aside at room temperature for 2 hours. Drain oil and garlic into large skillet; saute garlic until lightly brown, then discard. Add onion and green peppers to skillet and brown over medium heat; sprinkle with ½ teaspoon salt, dash pepper and oregano. Cover and cook until tender. Add salt to taste. Meanwhile, broil lamb 3 or 4 inches from source of heat 6 to 8 minutes per side or until desired doneness. Sprinkle with salt and pepper after turning. Serve with hot peppers and onions. Serves 4.

EVERYBODY'S FAVORITE — a big baked apple, tender and juicy, served warm or cold. Rome beauties make wonderful baking apples, because they keep their shape as they become tender. For recipe please see "Across the Kitchen Counter."

HONEY-LEMON PRECARVED LAMB SHOULDER

¼ cup parsley
Salt and pepper
Precarved shoulder of lamb (have butcher saw and tie it)
1 medium lemon, sliced
One-third cup honey
2 tablespoons orange juice
⅛ teaspoon ground allspice

Sprinkle parsley, salt and pepper on carved lamb. Place on rack in shallow roasting pan. Roast in 325 degree over 30-35 minutes per pound or until meat thermometer registers 175 degrees. Halve the lemon slices and insert in lamb between slices. Blend honey, orange juice and allspice and baste occasionally on lamb during the last 30 minutes of roasting time. Serves 6, serve with Pilaf.

PILAF

1 medium onion, chopped
2 tablespoons butter or margarine
3 cans beef broth (apprx. 3¾ cups)
2 cups long grain raw rice
¼ cup raisins
¼ cup chopped peanuts or pine nuts

Cook onion in butter until just tender; add remaining ingredients, cover and bring to boil; simmer, covered at lowest possible heat about 16 minutes or until rice is done. Serves 6-8.

SHOULDER LAMB CHOPS WITH APRICOT STUFFING

5 slices enriched bread
¼ cup chopped nuts
½ cup chopped celery
1 cup (1 lb. 1 oz. can) apricots
2 tablespoons melted margarine
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
4 shoulder lamb chops, ¾-inch thick
1 clove garlic or ½ tsp. garlic salt

Preheat oven to 425 degrees. Cube slices of bread; drain apricots, reserving juice and chip. Combine with bread, nuts, celery, margarine, salt and pepper. Add liquid from drained apricots. Rub both sides of lamb chops with peeled garlic clove or sprinkle with garlic salt. Divide dressing into 4 portions and place on chops. Bake 25 minutes or to preferred degree of doneness. Serve 4.

KEEMA HUZOOR PASANDH
(Ground Lamb Curry)

One-third cup onion flakes or 1 medium onion
¼ cup water
1½ pounds ground lean lamb
¼ cup instant minced onion
1 clove garlic, minced
1½ teaspoons salt, divided
¼ cup butter or margarine
1 teablespoon curry powder
2 cups plain yogurt
1 tablespoon tomato paste

Mix onion flakes with ¼ cup water; let stand 10 minutes to reconstitute. (Or use 1 medium onion, chopped.) Mix ground lamb with ninced onion, minced garlic and ¾ teaspoon of the salt. Shape with hands to make one-inch balls; set aside. Melt butter in large, heavy skillet. Add soaked onion flakes and curry powder; saute about 3 minutes; add meatballs and, shaking pan gently, brown on all sides — about 10 minutes. Drain off excess fat. Mix yogurt, tomato paste and remaining salt. Add to meatballs and stir frequently while this cooks, uncovered, over low heat about 30 minutes. Serve with rice and garnish with pineapple chunks and orange wedges, if desired. Makes 25 meatballs.

GLAZED BAKED APPLES COINTREAU

6 large baking apples
1 tablespoon grated orange peel
1 cup orange juice
¾ cup brown sugar
Few grains salt
½ cup canned roasted slivered almonds
2 tablespoons Cointreau, optional

Core apples; pare about one-third of the way down from stem end; place in shallow baking pan, pared ends up. Combine orange peel, orange juice, brown sugar and salt in saucepan; bring to boil; pour over apples. Bake at 350 degrees for about 45 minutes or until apples are tender, basting often with orange syrup in pan. About 5 minutes before apples are done spread 1 teaspoon of Cointreau over surface of each apple and scatter almonds on top. Serve with cream, plain or whipped. Serves 6.

Coming: A Classroom For Beauty

Not every woman can be a beauty. But every woman does have a facial feature which, emphasized with makeup, can make her individually attractive.

Instead of bewailing certain beauty "defects" (and we all have them), consider the wise words of Elizabeth Arden's director, Pablo Manzoni, "Your imperfections are endearing to those who love you."

Bearer of the above advice is the vibrant Doris Day look-alike, Olivia Heraty, who swept into Boston to announce an Elizabeth Arden Red Door Clinic, a "Mini Day at the Salon" to be held at the Jordan Marsh Seventh Floor Fashion Center, Boston, next month.

Admission is by ticket only and tickets go on sale February 28 at the Cosmetics Department. Classes will be limited to 80. The fee is $5 for the two hour session, $2 of which will be redeemable toward the purchase of Elizabeth Arden merchandise at the conclusion of the class. Classes will be held as follows.

Monday, March 19th 1:30 p.m. and 5:30 p.m.
Tuesday, March 20th, 10 a.m. and 2 p.m.
Wednesday, March 21st, 1:30 p.m. and 5:30 p.m.
Thursday, March 22nd, 10 a.m. and 2 p.m.
Friday, March 23rd, 10 a.m. and 2 p.m.
Saturday, March 24th, 10 a.m. and 2 p.m.

According to the blonde, glowing Miss Heraty, the 1973 look for spring is the face with lips and cheeks that are brighter and eyes framed with lovely subtle modulations of color. Wearing this new make-up requires the foundation of shining, healthy, vital skin . . . the result of daily conscientious home care.

At the classes each woman will wear a cape and headband. In front of her will be a mirror and a kit containing 17 of the Arden beauty products. There will be no hurrying or confusion . . . step-by-step directions will be given along with printed directions for at home use.

Twelve trained beauty consultants will advise women individually as Olivia conducts the class. Step No. 1 deals with teaching the essentials of skin care because, as Miss Heraty explains, "A woman's most valuable natural resource is her skin. A clear complexion can give the illusion of beauty and preserving this with cleansing cream and skin lotions calls for a daily regime."

Ardena cleansing cream gently removes makeup via thorough deep pore cleansing action. This cream will be chosen as a special aid for each woman according to her skin type.

Following this, skin lotion, moisture oil, moisture film and the magic of a cream mask which is applied and allowed to remain on for 10 minutes—during which time exercises are taught.

"Once the skin is healthy, firm and refreshed," said Miss Heraty, "the application of make-up becomes an easy matter. It's as though the individual becomes the artist and her face the canvas . . . it's up to her to paint a pretty picture."

When complimented on her own flawless complexion, she quickly explained that when still in college, she was plagued with problem skin and through the care of experts at the Elizabeth Arden Salon in Boston she discovered that skin care and make-up were not merely the "frivolous fancy" of a few women, but a science for every woman to follow.

"Women are afraid of aging," she said, "and really, character lines are nothing to be ashamed of—what is important is the inner radiance that lights up a person's face. It's fun to apply makeup and see what you can do for yourself . . . it gives you a winderful sense of well being . . . a sense of confidence. Once a woman learns to take care of her skin, apply makeup properly, she goes forth well groomed, with a feeling of vitality."

In the class, women will practice with proper shades and application of foundation and make-up themselves rather than be made up by consultants. In this manner, she goes home fully experienced in the art of applying treatment as well as make-up.

A make-up foundation should be used for an overall skin tone. The look should be dewy, not a dry matte powdered look. Many women confuse a dewy look with a greasy look—not so. Actually women in their middle years should avoid a look of dryness because it is aging. Make-up will exaggerate lines when the skin is not soft and moist. If desired, those with oily skins can lightly poweder with transparent loose powder, the "T" zone—the center of the face.

Cheek color is applied high on the cheeks—smile as you blend the color up and out over the cheekbones to the hairline.

Since lips look more youthful when colored, there are a whole range of delicious colors ranging from light and bright to the more earthy shades. These colors should be used as counterpoint to the eyes . . . sometimes it's fun to use two shades of lipstick to achieve the desired effect.

"When it comes to coloring the eyes," Miss Herarty explained, "it's no longer necessary to choose a shade of eye shadow to match the costume . . . use a trilogy of shades, say a pale pastel shade, a smokey tone and a color to make eyes listen. Violet is pretty for brown eyes and blue is flattering for all eyes. A spot of pale under the eyebrows helps brighten and enlarge the eye."

What makes a pretty face is what other people see. . . A face that lights up with happiness. . . The eyes, a mouth turns up at the corners in a half-smile with pleasure.

OLIVIA HERATY, face designer and representative for Elizabeth Arden, will conduct "Red Door" clinics at Jordan Marsh during March 19-24.

As Elizabeth Arden once so wisely said, "You know what a woman is thinking by the way she holds her mouth." And when a woman has taken pains to achieve an appearance of good grooming, it's reflected in her happy attitude.

Information Please

Ruth Lenson

This is the reader's column. If you have a question or a recipe to share with other readers, please write to: Information, Please, Transcript Newspapers, 420 Washington Street, Dedham, Mass. 02026.

Our thanks to Mrs. O. H., Norwood who writes: "We were invited to a very elegant dinner party where the hostess served a most unusual vegetable casserole. Our compliments brought forth the receipe and as a thank you for the many recipes we've enjoyed on the Women's Page, we are sending you the recipe for your readers. Hope they enjoy it as much as we did.

SPINACH CASSEROLE

1 pkg. (10 oz.) frozen chopped spinach
½ cup chopped onion
½ cup (1 stick) butter or margarine
1 teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
2 eggs, slightly beaten
2 cups milk
2 cups cooked rice
1½ cups grated sharp cheese

Cook spinach; drain thoroughly. Saute onion in butter or margarine and add seasonings. Mix spinach, onion and remaining ingredients. Turn into a buttered 1½ qt. casserole and bake at 325 degrees for about 1 hour and 15 minutes or until custard is set. Serves 6-8.

Question: I believe you are the same person I saw many years ago demonstrating Challah baking before a group of B'nai B'rith women. Over the years I've lost the recipe and am interested in baking bread again. Also, my family loves homemade chicken soup but they are not too fond of the boiled chicken. Do you have any recipes that utilizes boiled chicken? Thank you again.

E. A., Chestnut Hill

Answer: Yes, I taught the almost lost art of baking Challah (rich egg bread) and it's been quite some time since we've had the recipe in this column, so I will repeat it with pleasure. Here are some leftover chicken ideas for your family.

CHALLAH
(Rich Egg Bread)

6 tablespoons margarine
2½ cups very warm water
2 tablespoons sugar
3 teaspoons salt
3 eggs (reserve 1 yolk for glazing)
2 pkgs. active dry yeast+
6½ to 7½ cups all purpose flour
Poppy or sesame seeds, optional
+Add 2 tablespoons water to reserved egg yolk, and a dash of salt and set aside for glazing top of breads.

1. Put first 5 ingredients into a large mixing bowl. Sprinkle active dry yeast into 2 cups of the flour, stir and add to liquid ingredients. Beat at medium speed for 2 minutes with electric mixer. Gradually add remaining flour by hand, stirring well, until dough pulls away from bottom and sides of bowl. Turn dough out onto floured board (or counter top) and knead until dough is smooth and elastic (8-10 min.). Place dough in a large (5 qt) slightly oiled bowl or cooking pot, turning dough once to oil top surface. Cover lightly with foil or waxed paper and let rise in warm place until dough has doubled in bulk — about 1½ hours. Punch dough down, divide into 3 parts. Each section represents one loaf.

2. Cut one of the sections of dough into 3 parts; roll each by hand into ropes securing at one end with a knife; pressing down to secure. Braid ropes bring-center rope over knife and crossing remaining ropes; bring center rope down and cross ropes; repeat until you reach end. Tuck ends under. Place greased and lightly floured 4x8x2-inch pans. Repeat with remaining 2 parts of dough.

3. Breads are glazed twice — now and just before baking. Dip pastry brush into egg-water glazing mixture and brush top of breads, saving one-half of glazing liquid for second glazing. Set breads to rise in warm place for 1 hour. Glaze breads again. Sprinkle with poppy seeds or sesame seeds if desired. Bake in preheated 400 degree over 35 minutes or until loaves are golden brown. Turn out to cool on wire rack.

VARIATIONS: Raisin bread: add ½ cup golden raisins to first 5 ingredients. Onion bread: saute 1 small onion, finely chopped, in 1 tbs. margarine add to first five ingredients.

LEFTOVER CHICKEN PATTIES

2 cups finely chopped or ground cooked chicken
two-thirds cup mayonnaise
1 tablespoon grated onion
½ teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
1 cup soft fine bread crumbs

Combine chicken, mayonnaise onion, salt, pepper and bread crumbs. Mix well and shape into 8 patties about an inch thick. Roll in bread crumbs. Place a half-inch apart on greased baking sheet and bake in 425 degree oven until browned, about 15 minutes. Place patty in toasted bun and serve.

CHICKEN HASH

½ cup celery
¼ cup chopped onion
2 tablespoons fat
1 cup diced, cooked chicken
2 cups diced, cooked potatoes
Two-thirds cup chicken soup
½ teaspoon poultry seasoning
Salt and pepper

Saute celery and onion in fat; add chicken, potatoes, chicken broth and poultry seasoning. Season to taste with salt and pepper. Cook slowly, stirring occasionally until heated and increase heat during last 10 minutes to achieve browned undercrust. Serve with cranberry sauce. Serves 4.

Question: I am seeking a recipe for a potato tomato combination similar to scalloped potatoes called "Tombay" by a popular restaurant on the Cape. The potatoes were highly seasoned swith garlic and other undetectable flavorings. Can you help?

Gil's Gal, Newton

Answer: Your recipe sounds very interesting but I'm sorry to say I've never tasted the dish and unfortunately you didn't give me the name of the restaurant. Perhaps one of our readers can help out.

Mrs. H.G., Needham apologizes for sending in a recipe she had earmarked for our column last Thanksgiving. Better late than never, Mrs. H. G. and THANKS!

FRUITY SWEET POTATO CASSEROLE

2 pounds fresh sweet potatoes
6 tablespoons butter or margarine
½ cup firmly packed brown sugar
½ cup chopped walnuts
1 teaspoon pumpkin pie spice
½ teaspoon salt
1 can (1 lb.) fruit cocktail, drained

Cook potatoes in boiling salted water for 30 minutes or just until tender. Remove the skins, cut into ½-inch slices. In a small skillet, melt the butter, stir in brown sugar, walnuts, pumpkins pie spice and salt. Arrange one-third of the sliced potatoes in a buttered 2-quart baking dish. Top with one-third of the fruit cocktail. Dribble with butter sauce. Repeat layering until all potatoes, fruits and sauce are used. Cover and bake in preheated over at 325 degrees for 40 minutes or until hot and bubbly. Serves 6.

Question: Do you have a cookie recipe, just a plain sugar cookie please, that uses oil instead of butter, shortening or margarine? Thanks!

Answer: Here it is, and it's called:

AUNT FRAN'S SPECIAL SUGAR COOKIES

2½ cups all purpose flour
1½ teaspoons baking powder
¾ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon nutmeg
¾ cup corn oil
1 cup sugar
2 eggs, unbeaten
1 teaspoon lemon juice or vanilla

Combine oil and sugar in mixing bowl; add unbeaten eggs, one at a time, beating well after each addition. Add lemon juice. Add dry ingredients all at once and blend well. Shape dough into balls about ¾ inch in diameter. Dip tops of balls into granulated sugar; place balls, sugar side up about 3-inches apart on lightly greased baking sheet. Press cookies with tines of fork, crisscrossing with fork, to flatten. Bake in 350 degree oven 10-15 minutes; remove to a cake rack to cool. Yield: approximately 5 dozen.

Senior Citizens Enjoy Golden Activities Here

Residents of the Newton Convalescent Center, 25 Armory St., West Newton, celebrated Valentine's Day with a party in the center's recreation room.

The room had been decorated for the occasion with large hearts and messages of love and looked very festive. Several of the ladies had participated in making the refreshments as well as in decorating and everyone was very pleased with their efforts.

Special guests for the occasion was the Girl Scouts, Troop 1032 from Franklin School. They entertained with songs they had written themselves under the direction of Mrs. Flo Turner of the New Gospel Choir.

Mrs. Turner is well known in the area for her musical accomplishments which were certainly in evidence in the fine performance presented by the girls. They helped to make the afternoon most enjoyable.

Earlier in the month, on Feb. 5, the residents were feted at a bingo party hostessed by a group of women from the Newton Community Center. Everyone took away lovely prizes and memories of a pleasurable evening. These parties are now a regular monthly event looked forward to by all of the residents.

On Feb. 23, six residents were honored at the regular monthly birthday party. As always, Andy Caroselli of Watertown was at the piano for everyone's enjoyment. Those residents who were guests of honor were Jules Angoff, Jacob Sokoll, Thomas Simpson, Mrs. Marietta Rizzo, Mrs. Alice Bertrand, and Miss Elizabeth Jack. Miss Jack received special recognition as she is our real "senior citizen," having marked her ninety-ninth birthday.

Popular activities still continue as residents keep busy with sewing, cooking, crafts and bingo. Plans are also underway to begin a gift shop where regularily needed items as well as many special things will be avaialble.

Volunteer help is still needed to enhance the ongoing program and anyone interested in serving is encouraged to call Mrs Milton Farmer at 969-2300.

Schultz Attends Harvard 'Live-In'

George Schultz, president of ISM Corp., and a resident of 54 Brush Hill Road, Newton, recently attended a three-day "Live-In" seminar held on the campus of the Harvard Graduate School of Business Administration.

The seminar, designed for the small business executive, was sponsored by the Smaller Business Association of New England, Inc. (SBANE). The course consisted of classes, study and discussion of a total of 12 case studies in management, marking, finance and human behavior.

Schultz was one of 135 executives from 18 states who attended SBANE's unique educational program.

Besides providing programs of continuing education for the small business executive, SBANE legislates on the national level and offers procurement assistance, governmental liaison, group insurance, trade missions and business counselling for its 1,000 member companies.

Cub Scouts Entertain Families

On Friday evening, Feb. 16, Cub Scout Pack 303 held its annual Blue and Gold banquet for their families at the Walnut Park School in Newton.

In addition to displays and awards presentations to cubs in the three dens, the entire group of 130 young scouts were entertained and educated by older scouts from Explorer Post 508.

Thirteen performers, including Tod Lincoln, narrator, demonstrated Indian dances dressed in authentic costumes.

The costumes represented various midwestern Indian tribes, especially those from South Dakota, and various clothing styles worn between 1840 and 1900.

Eleven dances were performed, including hunting, courting and war dances. All the cubs and their fathers participated in a "Quiet Dance."

Lincoln shared much information about the traditions and history of the American Indian.

Guests of honor were Sister Rita Hennessey and Sister Arcadius, principals of Jackson and Walnut Park Schools respectively.

The following award presentations were made: Den 1, George Washington; Den 2, Benjamin Franklin; Den 3, Martin Luther King, Jr.

Mark Sortir received one gold and one silver arrow. Giovanni Fazio received one silver arrow and Donald Uhlman, one wolf gold arrow. Lee Castro received one gold and two silver arrows, John Keohane, one gold and three silver arrows, and Jeff Keohane, one denner bar.

Dr. Giovanni Fazio gave a brief talk in which he thanked all those who helped to put the elaborate spaghetti together, and Sister Arcadius for allowing the use of the hall in the Walnut Park School.

Among the parents and leaders mentioned by Dr. Fazio in his brief address were Bob Malone, cub scout master, Frank Mazzola, Mr. and Mrs. Fondacaro, Mr. DiGiovanni, Mr. and Mrs. Tom Sortir, Richard Rose, Mr. and Mrs. Hordyski and many others who planned, decorated and prepared for the evening.

Newton Democrats Plan Meeting

The Newton Ward Five Democratic Committee will hold its monthly meeting on Wednesday, Mar. 7, at 8 p.m. at the Church of the Good Shepherd, 1671 Beacon St., Waban.

Ann Lewis of Newton, director of the Massachusetts Women's Political Caucus, will speak on "Women as a Political Force." Ms. Lewis has served for the past year as a member of the Executive Committee of the National Women's Political Caucus. At the recent national convention of the caucus, she was elected regional representative to the National Steering Committee.

Museum Sets Poetry, Music Workshops

The Jackson Homestead, a community museum in Newton, will be offering workshops for older teens and adults beginning Mar. 12.

The Homestead was built in 1809, and is now maintained to keep alive the heritage of Newton. Appropriately then, the five courses to be given all relate to Early America: an Indian crafts workshop, a study of early American poetry, a survey of American folk music, a drawing class and a workshop in off-loom weaving.

The deadline for registration is Mar. 9.

The cost for the eight-week workshop ranges from $22-$25. Additional information may be obtained by calling 332-2612.

Scouts Honor Den Mothers

Women who have made outstanding contributions to the spiritual side of cub scouting will be honored Sunday, Mar. 25, at the annual day of recollection for den mothers.

The presentation of the Corrigan Emblem to these Cub Scout leaders will be the highlight of the day at Austin Preparatory School, Reading.

The medals will be presented by Rev. Msgr. Robert W. McNeill, Archdiocesan Director of the C.Y.O. The conference speaker will be Fr. Frederick Ryan of Catholic Memorial High School.

The Day of Recollection will open at 9:30 a.m. with registration and continental breakfast. Mass at noon will be followed by dinner. At 2:45 p.m. the day of recollection will end with the presentation of the Corrigan medals.

Tickets, which include payment for dinner and refreshments, are $6 each. They may be obtained from C.Y.O. headquarters, 29 Perkins St., Jamaica Plain, 02130, or your den mother representative.

Reservations close March 10, 1973.

Den mother representative for Newton is Mrs. Sally Milano who may be contacted nights at 332-8788.

Plan Boating Classes

Spring boating classes emphasised safety and correct boat handling techniques are offered in Watertown and West Acton by the Pequossette Power Squadron, a unit of the United States Power Squadrons. Classes begin in Watertown at 7:30 p.m. Monday, March 5, at the Phillips School, 30 Common street.

Classes in West Acton commence at 7:15 p.m. on Wednesday, March 7 at the Acton-Boxborough Regional High School. Registrations will take place at the first class.

The 12 week course is open to men and women 18 and over and to teen agers under 18 who are accompanied by an adult. Admission is based on a desire to learn correct boating techniques. Ownership of a boat is not required.

The course is aimed at teaching the minimal knowledge required for safe boating and developing the boatsman's confidence. Subject matter covered in the classes includes Boat Handling Under Favorable and Adverse Conditions, Seamanship, Rules of the Road, Aids to Navigation, Compass and Chart Instruction, Running Lights and Equipment, Boat Trailering and more.

Completion of the basic Boating Course is one of the prerequisites for admission into any of the United States Power Squadrons. Squadron members further their boating knowledge by taking advanced courses. Pequossette Power Squadron conducts advanced courses at the Weston Junior High School and at the Acton - Boxborough Regional High School.

Squadron members come from all walks of life and share a common interest in boating, be it inboard, outboard or sail.

The United Power Squadron is the largest volunteer educational organization for boatmen in the world. Its members are dedicated to promoting safety in boating through education and they donate much of their time to this service. There are more than 400 squadrons in the United States, with nearly 85,000 members.

For additional information about the course, call Ned Lensen at 969-7799.

Animal Welfare Group Urges Cruelty Curbs

Animal lovers and concerned citizens will welcome the formation of a Newton chapter of the Animal Birth Control Action League (ABCAL) composed of men and women committed to fight the growing dog and cat overpopulation and the suffering it brings.

ABCAL members are active on the legislative front and have initiated a number of important animal welfare bills into this session of the state legislature.

Educationally, ABCAL reaches out into the community through films, shopping mall displays and school programs to make the public aware of the staggering fact that over 55 million dogs and cats die annually because they are born unwanted.

As a partial solution to the problem, ABCAL is currently working with legislators, veterinarians and animal welfare groups to bring low-cost spay clinics to the state and to bring a much needed veterinarian college to this area to remedy the tremendous shortage of qualified veterinarians.

Everyone interested in these programs is asked to attend the initial meeting of ABCAL on Friday, Mar. 2, 7:30 p.m., at 27 Howland Rd., West Newton, tel. 965-4291.

Lt. Walter Kilroy of the Mass. Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals will be the guest speaker. He will address himself to the serious problem of steel trap usage in this state and the need to ban it for its blatant cruelty.

Brown Institute Speaker

Prof. Thomas W. Brown of the University of Massachusetts will speak on March 7 at 8 p.m. at the Kehillath Jacob Institute of Religious and Social Studies, 858 Walnut street, Newton.

His subject will be "Mediations on the Irish and the Jewish Experience." Brown whose field is history, is a graduate of Boston College and received his M.A. and Ph.D. from Harvard University. One among the many books he has written is "Irish American Nationalism."

EILEEN T. DREW, a Simmons College senior majoring in management, was one of 14 students employed in Star Market stores and offices to win a $750 scholarship being presented to her by Vice President Jack Avedisian. Miss Drew is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William F. Drew of Shawmut Park, Newton, and was graduated in 1969 from Newton South High School. Scholarship winners were chosen by an academic committee comprised of Robert Kates of the College Entrance Examination Board, Harvard Dean Fred Jewett, and Fr. Edmond Walsh of Boston College.

Awards Dinner Honors Cubs

Newton's Cub Scout Pack 348 held its annual Blue and Gold banquet at Our Lady's High School cafeteria this year and the 137 scouts and their families enjoyed a spaghetti dinner following the opening exercises.

Cubmaster Bob Graf introduced the head table, which included pack committee members and invited guests. Service stars were presented to the den mothers and assistant den mothers, some of whom have served the pack for three years. And, in recognition of his outstanding dedication and hard work, Cubmaster Bob Graf was presented a special gift from the pack committee.

The scouts were given a preview of the up-coming scout show to be held at Newton South High School. Tickets will be on sale soon from all Cub Scouts. Those scouts who sell the most tickets will be eligible for special scout prizes, which were displayed at the banquet.

Finally, a drawing was conducted, the winners of which will enjoy dinner for two at McDonald's of California Street, Newton. After the drawing, the Judo Club of Boston College explained and demonstrated their special skills and talents.

The following scouts earned badges and awards. Den One: Joseph McCarthy, Wolf Badge and Gold Arrow; James McCarthy, Bear Badge. Den Two: Jackie Simmons, Wolf Badge; Key Nuttall, Silver Arrow, Bear Badge, and Gold Arrow. Den Three: Rick Cleary, Gold Arrow. Den Five: Charles Suitor, Wolf Badge and Gold Arrow; Richard Owens, Silver Arrow; Greg Ryan, Gold Arrow. Peter Lennihan and Tim Halle received their Webelso Colors.

Webelos Den Achievement Awards went to the following Scouts: Artist; Steve Coan, David Kelley. Athlete, David and Tony Lyman. Outdoorsman; Glen O'Connor and David Kelley. Athlet; David Kelley and Alain McMurtrie. The scouts changed the position of their pins on the Pack's Achievement Ladder to indicate their new rank in the Pack. The ladder has become more heavily decorated this past year due to the continuing growth of the Pack, now in its third year.

Pest Prevention To Be Pollution Free?

Dr. Auxtin M. Frishman, associate professor of Biology, State University of New York, believes in continuing training of pest control service people in order to improve efficiency and reduce pollution hazards.

Recently, as Chairman of Waltham Chemical Co.'s training program. Dr. Frishman presided over an all-day training seminar with Waltham's pest and termite control personnel. The meeting was held at the Holiday Inn in Newton. The theme of this session was "Protection Without Pollution."

Using Federal Environmental Pesticide Control Act guidelines for the licensing of pest control operators, Dr. Frishman described insect anatomy and habits using slides and enlarged models, and then detailed the proper use of pesticides including solution concentration, technique of application, and potential hazards to be avoided.

Waltham Chemical Co. is part of a group called Copesan Services, Inc. Copesan (Coordinated Pest Control and Sanitation) coordinates training over the entire U.S. for its affiliated companies and co-sponsored the Waltham Chemical Co. seminar.

Copesan affiliated firms have developed this training program in the interest of assuring protection through expert, careful application of chemical and biological methods to avoid contamination of the environment.

TOYOTA Model A-1, The First Car Produced In Japan

ESTABLISHMENT OF TOYOTA MOTOR CO., LTD.

The history of Toyota Motor, a pioneer in Japan's auto industry, goes back to January 1933, when Mr. Kiichiro Toyoda, Managing Director of Toyoda Automatic Loom Works, Ltd. (the oldest son of Sakichi Todoya), established an Automobile Department and started developing passenger cars.

Mr. Sakichi Toyoda, a world-famed inventor of automatic looms, always advanced his business with a keen eye to the future. He early anticipated that the producing of automobiles would become a major industry of the future and dreamed of its industrialization. Weighing available income from patent licensing fees for his automatic looms and the efficient use of sales profits, he decided to eventually invest in the automobile industry. Shortly thereafter, he handed on his business and his dream to his oldest son, Kiichiro Toyoda. This can be said to be the dawn of the Japanese automobile industry.

In May 1935, a prototype test car, designated as Toyota A-1, was completed. It was the first car to be produced entirely in Japan. However, the fabrication of car bodies proved to be much more difficult than at first anticipated and required huge capital outlays. A further complication was the unfavorable timing; the development came during the Sino-Japanese War. In view of this, the Government prohibited manufacturers from entering the automotive industry unless they gave priority to truck production. A prototype of the Toyota G-1 truck was finally completed in October 1935 and production models appeared on the market shortly thereafter.

In August, 1937, Toyota Motor Co., Ltd. was established under the presidency of Risaburo Toyoda, with Kiichiro Toyoda appointed vice-president.

Production started out smoothly, but auto sales proved to be venturesome work in an unknown field. Salesmen had to deal with an undetermined number of prospective customers, an unpredictable factor that made sales tougher than production. Kiichiro Toyoda, who later succeeded Risaburo Toyoda to become the second president, became acquainted with Shotaro Kamiya (now President of Toyota Motor Sales Co., Ltd.), who then headed the Sales Department of General Motors Japan. Shotaro Kamiya and Seisi Kato (now executive Vice-President of Toyota Motor Sales Co., Ltd.) were invited to join Toyota Motor Kamiya was given authority to manage all sales efforts, a move that proved to be the major factor in opening the way for company expansion.

In November 1938, the company's first independent vehicle factory was constructed and started production in Koromo city. The facility is now Toyota Motor Company's Honsha plant. Koromo City (now Toyota City), where the complex is located, is near Nagoya, the largest city in central Japan.

However, with the outbreak of World War II in 1941, the production of automobiles was stopped and the assembly line remained dormant until the end of the war in August 1945.

POST—WAR RESUMPTION OF AUTOMOBILE PRODUCTION AND ESTABLISHMENT OF TOYOTA MOTOR SALES CO., LTD.

At the end of 1945, the General Headquarters of the Occupation Forces permitted a monthly production of 1,500 trucks, but enforced a tight ban on the production of passenger cars. While engaging in the production of trucks, Japanese auto manufacturers, however, conducted extensive research in preparation for the future manufacture of passenger cars. Toyota directed its engineering efforts particularly toward the development of small cars.

The ban was lifted in October 1949, but the post-war economic condition of the nation had not yet sufficiently recovered to allow rapid expansion of passenger car production. Furthermore, the "Dodge Line" panic in 1950 put the management of Toyota in a tight spot. In view of the situation, Toyota decided to separate sales from production and establish an independent sales company. Consequently, in April 1950, Toyota Motor Sales Co., Ltd. was established under the presidency of Shotaro Kamiya.

With the establishment of the sales company, the "two wheels of Toyota" — Toyota Motor Co., Ltd. and Toyota Motor Sales Co., Ltd. — began to roll. Toyota Motor Sales Co., Ltd. is a unique organization in that it performs the function of maintaining an all-important balance among the entities of the Toyota group, comprising production plants, sales outlets, parts makers, etc. There is no counterpart anywhere in the world.

PROGRESS OF MOTORIZATION AND EXPANSION OF FACILITIES

Toyota's first passenger car assembly facility, the Motomachi Plant, was built and started operation in August 1959. It was here that the production of "Corona" and "Crown" models was initiated. Following his, the Kamigo Plant was inaugurated in 1965 for the production of engines. In December of the following year, the Takaoka Plant was constructed; the added capacity made possible a monthly production of 30,000 Corollas.

The Miyoshi Plant was built in July 1968 to produce engines, chassis and minor parts for various models. In December 1970, the Tsutsumi Plant was constructed in Toyota City for the production of Celica and Carina models. With the completion of this modern, fully-equipped plant, Toyota was ready for an annual production of two million units.

Since 1969, Toyota Motor Co., Ltd. has ranked third in vehicle production among all automotive manufacturers in the world. On January 25, 1972, Toyota Motor Co., Ltd. was the first in Japan to achieve a cumulative production of ten million vehicles.

Brighter, Lively Dodge Colt Is On The Scene For 1973

DETROIT — The Dodge Colt line has some extra kick to it with five, instead of four, new models introduced for 1973.

A sporty GT model 2-door hardtop is the latest addition to the lighter, brighter lineup that includes the standard hardtop, economically-priced coupe, 4-door sedan and 2-seat station wagon.

"Colt is beginning its third year on the U.S. domestic market," said Robert D. Loomis, Dodge general sales manager, "and we're convinced it has developed the charisma that will bring increased sales response from a car-buying public just beginning to identify with the Dodge subcompact."

Sales up 20 Percent

Colt rang up a 20 per cent sales increase for the 1972 calendar year compared to 1971. In its brief two years on the U.S. scene, it has gained sales momentum despite shipping strikes, surtax obstacles and currency reevaluations and has pushed up among the top dozen subcompact sellers in a segment of the market that has almost as many nameplates as the rest of the market.

"An overhead cam 1600 cc. four cylinder engine, quality workmanship, unit body construction and many, many items of equipment made standard for added consumer value and simplicity in ordering are some of the appealing traits of the Colt," Loomis said.

In an era when fuel prices threaten to increase, an average Colt owner can expect to get about 28 miles per gallon with a manual transmission model, as determined in manufacturer's 50,000-mile emissins tests. Mileage is less for automatics. "We expect that fuel economy alone will be a strong selling point for Colt in 1973," Loomis said.

Lighter brighter interior trims are one of the cheering changes in Colts for 1973. There are new brighter grilles on all models, and added body side protective moldings oh high line models. All Colts aill have new integrated seat backs and lower positioned seats for improved headroom. With a new 5 mph front and 2½ mph rear impact protection system and some emissions control refinements, Colts meet all federal and state safety and emissions requirements for 1973.

GT has Sporty Look

The GT is expected to capture the fancy of two-door buyers. The car will have exclusive sunset orange, bright yellow and silver metallic high visibility paints, plus red.

Standard GT features include a hemi overhead cam, 1600 cubic centimeter engine and 4 - speed manual transmission, a unique sport grille, wide rim road wheels with chrome hubs and nuts, whitewall tires, a large console and exterior with simulated woodgrain trim, soft rim steering wheel, accent stripes on bucket seats, body side and hood tape stripes and rear blackout treatment with GT identity.

Station wagons have a luxury package option that includes roof luggage rack, whitewall tires, soft rim steering wheel and fully trimmed, carpeted cargo area.

Many Features are Standard Many Features Are Standard

Options are limited because Colt models have so much standard equipment including such highly desirable items as front disc brakes, inside hood release, adjustable tilt steering column, electric windshield washers, four-speed fully synchromeshed transmission, and variable ratio steering.

Sedan and hardtop options include a new electrically - heated rear window defogger, plus air conditioning tinted glass, radio, whitewall tires and floor-mounted three speed automatic transmission. Coupe options are automatic transmission and whitewalls.

The Green Thumb

By GEORGE ABRAHAM

THE HOME ORCHARD: In spray literature you often see the term "Dormant" spraying. A dormant spray iis one applied shortly before or just after the buds have begun to swell, but before they show green at the tip. This can be winter or spring.

You can buy dormant fruit sprays from your garden center, and they can be helpful in checking mites, aphids and diseases of fruit trees at a time when you don't have to worry about a residue problem.

You often see the term "pink" stage and that is when the fruit trees start to show color in the blossom buds. Most fruit trees benefit from a "pink" spray, and you should spray just before the blossoms open.

As a general rule, small planting of several varieties of fruits will benefit if sprayed in the pink stage, an important time too spray.

STARTING SEEDS INDOORS: You'll soon be starting seeds of your favorite plants indoors. Some items such as peppers, eggplants, salvia, should be started next month. To get the best germination possible, remember one point: most seeds like an honest 75 degs. F. or more for germination. They don't like 75 degs.F. in the day and a drop to 60 or 65 degs. at niht. In our greenhouse we sow seeds in wooden flats and these are rested on a hot-bed able set into a layer of sand.

A thermometer is inserted to check on the soil temperature in the actual flats. We keep it from 75 to 80 degs., until seeds sprout.

For those of you who start seeds in the window or under glass keep is point in mind, too: You can get flats too warm—on hot days. We've had seedlings scalded when the temperature hit over 100 degs. due to hot sun rays. Our seeds are germinated in straight Jiffy-Mix, used by most florists, and nothing added.

Wet it clear through 4 or 5 times before sowing, level it off, and then sow. Cover flats with plastic sheets—no more water needed until seeds sprout.

Polyethylene sleeve keeps moist in and works fine on all seeds. Note: Be sure to remove it once seed has started to sprout.

Caution: Don't try sowing seed in soil scooped up in your backyard! Try one of tthe mixes florists use, or use a half and half mix of sand and peat moss.

GREEN THUMB CLINIC: A reader writes: The bottom leaves of our poinsettia have curled and dropped. What causes this?"

Ans.: Sounds like too much heat, lack of water (soil too dry), or in some cases overwatering. Usually, a dry soil is main reason for dried leaves.

FREE: Send me a self-addressed, stamped envelope for a copy of my guide, IS YOUR SOIL SWEET OR SOUR? It tells how to test it simply.

Address all inquiries to George Abraham, Naples, N. Y. 14512.

Most Valuable

BOSTON — Bobby Orr, of the Bruins, winner of the Hart Memorial Trophy as the National Hockey League's most valuable player during the 1971-72 season, is the first player to win the award three years in a row. Orr also won the Norris Memorial trophy as the league's best defenseman for the fifth straight year.

A BRIGHT FUTURE WITH GOOD PAY!

Isn't that what we're all seeking?
We'll pay you a starting salary of $150-$170 to learn our business and provide a good fringe package and raises as fast as you can earn them.
When you are promoted to Manager 12-24 months from now, you will be earning $200-$250 a week immediately with prospects for more as soon as you show us you can build business and control costs.
We have many Managers making $300-$400 a week and they aren't working 70 hours per week to do it. But, they have complete responsibility for making our business successful and that's why they are paid so well. Candidates must be over 21, have high school diploma and transportation.
Give us a call or drop us a line and we'll arrange an interview to discuss how you can be a Friendly success story, too.

An Informative, sparkling column on national and international affairs

On Feb. 14, 1772, Thomas Jefferson, 29, brought his bride — charming Martha Wales Skelton, a childless widow of 23 — to his unfinished Monticello.

That he should do so on what is now Valentine's Day is exceedingly appropriate. Martha was his Galatea and, although only two daughters of their six children survived infancy, their married life was exceedingly happy and Jefferson never remarried after Martha's early death.

Albemarle County was in the Virginia wilderness, and Jefferson took 25 years to build this world-famous classic of architecture on his Charlottesville hilltop.

Monticello means "Little Mountain" and Jefferson always used the Italian pronounciation, like the musical instrument. Although unschooled or unapprenticed in these arts, Jefferson was Monticello's designer, draftsman, architect, engineer and landscape genius as well.

The wood came from his hillside, the bricks from his kilns, the nails from his nailery. No great man's house exists which is in the spirit and labor so completely from within the man himself. And that anyone innocent of training could achieve it is incredible.

Jefferson, Virginia's prince of all trades and master of all, was a man with an oarsman's back, 6 feet, 2 inches tall, straight and true as the Washington Monument, large-boned, slim, slightly red-haired. He was a delightful, kindly and congenial companion, always hopeful, a good talker, a good listener, treasured as a friend.

A superb and fearless rider, his favorite horse — named Caracatacus — stood at the top of all the racing horses in Virginia and he rode horseback up to 30 miles a day at the age of 70.

Jefferson's architectural idol, in addition to Andrae Palladio, was Giovanni Lorenzo Bernini (1598-1680), who became an architect at 26 and practiced it gloriously for 40 years. His ability to overcome every sort of engineering difficulty, his gift of sympathetic imagination, and his ability to enter into the emotions of others stirred Jefferson.

To Jefferson, Bernini was the cultural father of the Renaissance. Bernini, of course, gave St. Peter's its magnificant piazza, and Jefferson considered this greatest senic designer of his age capable of an ecstatic repudiation of the forces of gravity.

Jefferson immensely admired the Hotel de Aalm in Paris and its architecture inspired many of his Monticello alterations. Jefferson believed that the Roman temple at Nimes, France, the Maison Carree, was the most perfect example of cubical architecture. He took it for his model for the Commonwealth of Virginia Capitol at Richmond. And he called the Pantheon at Rome the nearest to perfection in spherical architecture.

Jefferson adapted the Pantheon, in one-half scale and with radical changes in form, for the University of Virginia Rotunda, the central administration building and library of this university of which he was the founder and builder. This, with Monticello, is his architectural masterpiece.

Jefferson's dying request related to his Rotunda's Dome Room, along with his own rough sketch and notes for his tombstone's obelisk.

On the day the fourth President of the United States was inaugurated, this third President saddled his own horse and rode alone to Monticello, never again to set foot in Washington. And he rests in his grave halfway up the beautiful Monticello hillside.

Michelangelo insisted that just a small marker show his burial at the Church of Santa Croce in Florence. At Jefferson's insistence his grave is marked only by the simple gray granite obelisk shaft that he designed.

Jefferson, 83, died on the 4th day of July, 1826. It was precisely the 50th anniversary of the adoption of the Declaration of Independence, which he wrote on a remarkably inventive candle-lit desk of his own design which you can see at Monticello today.

Astoundingly, three of our first five Presidents died on the 4th of July—Jefferson, Adams, Monroe—as if in benign salute to the Declaration.

Jefferson's last words were: "This is the Fourth?" The last words of Adams, a champion of the Declaration, who died a few hours later, were: "Jefferson still lives." Monroe, Jefferson's Virginia hilltop neighbor, died five years later.

Jefferson had said, "All my dreams end where I hope my days will end, at Monticello." They did. He had occupied Monticello 55 years. And from the day a hollow, reverberating cannon, fired down in Charlottesville, signaled his death, no one in all our great history had died less than Thomas Jefferson.

Health For All

FRIENDS OF LIFE

Green plants and trees are friends of life, quietly giving off the gift of oxygen. Silent friends we should get to know better.

Survival is a delicate balance for trees, just as it is for all living things. Like people, trees need enough air and water to survive. They do not have lungs for breathing, but there must be an exchange of oxygen and carbon dioxide in the leaves as well as in the roots. Anything that disrupts that exchange kills the tree.

Water-logged soil, for example, blocks off the tree's oxygen supply and drowns it. There is not enough air in water-logged soil, and most trees grow best when a fifth of the soil filled with air. The best growth conditions are when water loss through the leaves is offset by water uptake through the roots.

Just how the water rises up through the trunk against the tremendous force of gravity is one more of a tree's incredible triumphs.

Curiously enough, the very center of a living tree — its core which is sometimes called heartwood — is dead. The cells grow around this dead core, and the rings of growth tell the tree's age. The cells survive on the sugar made by the tree's leaves, minerals taken up from the soil, and tremendous amounts of water.

When conditions are right, some trees can live for three or four thousand years and grow as high as a 40-story skyscraper.

Recent studies of trees show that air pollution is stunting their growth and upsetting the delicate balance. Air pollution is also damaging human lungs. Fighting air pollution and helping living things survive is one goal of your Boston Tuberculosis and Respiratory Disease Association. Contact them and make friends with life.

CZECH RECORD

NEW YORK (UPI) — More than 54,000 American tourists visited Czechoslovakia in 1972 to help boost the year's tourism to a record estimated total of 12 million foreign travelers, an increase of 300 per cent over the 4 million foreign visitor arrivals recorded in 1971, the Czechoslovak Travel Bureau reports.

Tourist arrivals from the United States represented a 17 per cent increase over 1971, when 46,000 Americans toured the country. Canadians also came in record numbers, establishing an increase of 22 per cent with 8,724 arrivals, compared with 7,100 in 1971.

BOATING

By JACK WOLISTON

NEW YORK (UPI) — For the cruising boatman, is a dinghy an asset or a liability?

And if you are addicted to a dinghy, what do you do with it while under way?

Both questions are controversial among boatmen.

Some of the pros and cons of the dinghy question are contained in a folder, "Dinghy Management," authored by boating expert W.S. Kals and offered free of charge by Grumman Boats, Marathon, N.Y.

"If you always return to your dock or to your mooring within tooting distance of the well-bribed operator of the club launch, you'll have no dinghy problems. Especially if you don't have a dinghy," Kals writes.

"It's different when you cruise. You anchor off in strange places, gunk-hole into uncharted creeks, hang on sandbars, feel the urge to maroon a guest, or simply run out of beer. Then you have dinghy problems. Especially if you don't have a dinghy."

Also on the asset side for the dinghy, Kals continues:

"A dinghy lets you lay out a second anchor when it breezes up; sometimes the only way to get an anchor up again is from the dink. With a line rove under the thwarts and leading to bow and stern of the yacht it makes a painter's scaffold. It's survey ship, tug and ferry boat. It's also lifeboat, rain catcher, laundry tub, bait bucket, fishing creel, and swimming ladder."

Where to Put It

As to where to put the dinghy while under way, Kals opts for storage aboard, either by davits at the stern or lashed keel up on deck.

"But where do you lash it?" he asks. "On deck the dinghy is in everyone's way; on the cabintop it cuts the helmsman's visition? on the foredeck it interferes with anchor work and sail handling, and puts the forehatch out of commission; on the upper deck of a cruiser it becomes awkward—and even dangerous—to handle when you cruise short-handed."

The alternative, Kals says, is towing the dinghy, and "in protected waters, in calm seas, you may get away with it many times."

He adds: "Someday you'll regret it. The dinghy, a mere nuisance when stowed, can change into a sea monster when towed. It surfboards down the face of a wave until you think it's coming through the transom. At the last moment it changes its mind and aims for your head."

Kals advises that a length of rope over the stern of the dinghy as a miniature sea anchor may slow these excursions.

How long should the towing line be?

"Sea conditions, your speed and the personality of your dinghy will answer that question. Experiment!"

In the folder, the contents of which come from a Kals book, "Practical Boating Inland and Offshore—Power and Sail," published by Dougleday & Company, Inc., the author touches on such other subjects as a controlling a dinghy at anchor and handling a dinghy adrift or swamped.

Centennial Ball, Jazz Festival Tickets On Sale Monday

Newton Centennial Committees launch sales activities Monday (March 5) for tickets to two major events of the city's 160th Birthday Celebration--and both committees have staked out the lobby of City Hall for their initial efforts.

The Centennial Ball Committee, with about 200 volunteers, will kick-off its activities at 10 a.m. with a squad of women staffing the sales booth until 4 p.m.

Ticket chairman Mrs. Joan Saklad has scheduled sales efforts for the first 10 day sales campaign at several banks and at all of the Newton branch libraries.

The Ball will officially open the month long series of Centennial events at McElroy Commons Boston College, Saturday evening, May 5.

Ticket prices for the gala event have been set at $25 per person for Patrons and $5 per person for General Admission.

Patrons will attend a pre-ball supper party. All Ball goers will enjoy dancing, entertainment and refreshments.

The Ball ticket sales schedule for City Hall and banks which have offered lobby selling space to the Ball committee is as follows:

Monday, March 5 and Thursday, March 15 - 10 a.m. - 4 p.m. at Newton City Hall; Tuesday, March 6 - 9 a.m. - 3 p.m. at Community National Bank, 433 Watertown street, Newton; Wednesday, March 7 - 9 a.m. - 3 p.m. at Auburndale Co-Operative Bank, 307 Auburn street, Newton; Thursday, March 8 - 9 a.m. - 3 p.m. at West Newton Savings Bank, 1314 Washington street, West Newton; Friday, March 9 - 2 p.m. - 8 p.m. at Northeast Federal Savings and Loan Association, 32 Austin street, Newtonville; Tuesday, March 13- 9 a.m. - 3 p.m. at Newton Savings Bank, 1188 Centre street, Newton Centre; Wednesday, March 14-9 a.m. - 3 p.m. at Newton South Co-Operative Bank, 33 Lincoln street, Newton Highlands.

Serving with Mrs. Saklad on the Ball Ticket Committee are Mrs. Rochelle Alexander; Mrs. Nancy Donahue; Mrs Arlene Harris; Mrs. Edward Becherer, in charge of library sales; and Mrs. Eloise Houghton, liaison for Newton clubs and organizations.

Ticket volunteers include Mrs. Robert Cahoon; Mrs. Maudyea M. Campbell; Mrs. Cedric Callander, Mrs. Isabel Coleman; Mrs. Max Day; Mrs. Mary Lou DeSouza; Mrs. Gertrude DiCarlo; Mrs. Mary A. Ebel; Mrs. Don W. Fawcett; Mrs. John Keefe; Mrs. Ruth M. Fitzgerald; Mrs. Marion Fitzgerald; Mrs. Bernice H. Sheridan; Mrs. Peggy Tennant, Mrs. James Toyias and Mrs. John Webber.

Simultaneously, the Festival of the Performing Arts Committee will sound the opening gun of its tickets sales campaign for its Jazz Jubilee at City Hall on March 5.

Volunteers, under the direction of ticket chairman Alfred Karp will be on duty at Ckty Hall and at supermarkets located in Newton. Tickets will also be sold in all Newton High Schools– public and parochial– at Newton colleges, country clubs and at seven Newton fire stations...dates for sales at these locations will be announced next week.

Jazz Jubilee tickets will be on sale at City Hall, March 5 from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.; on March 9 and 10 from 9 a.m. to 10 p.m. at the following locations: First National Store, Newtonville; First National Store, Newton Centre; I.G.A. Store, Newton Highlands; Waban Super Market, Waban; Stop & Shop, Route 9, Chestnut Hill; Purity Supreme, Route 9, Newton Highlands; and Big Buy, Newton Corner.

The Jazz Jubilee will bring to Newton an array of the world's foremost jazz performers. The stellar production, under the supervision of internationally famed jazz impressario George Wein, will feature Dizzy Gillespie, Thelonius Monk, Art Blakey, Sonny Stitt, Bobby Hackett and the Newport all Stars, and the Preservation Hall Band of New Orleans. The jazz spectacular will be held on Saturday evening, May 12 at McHugh Forum, Boston College.

Tickets for the Jazz Jubilee are priced at $12.50 per person for Sponsors, $5 for Donors, and $2.50 for General Admission.

Jazz Jubilee tickets are also included in the Centennial Combination Ticket Package. This strip ticket includes, for Sponsors at $35 tickets to the Prevue Champagne Party Art Show on May 3 at City Hall Memorial Auditorium; the Jazz Jubilee on May 12; the musical spectacular "Newton's History in Words and Music" on May 13 at Roberts Hall, Boston College; the Homecoming Garden Party on Sunday, May 27 at the Marriott Motor Hotel; and a complimentary copy of the znewton Centennial Journal. Donors combination tickets at $12.50 per person include the Jazz Jubilee, musical spectacular, Homecoming garden party and complimentary copy of the Centennial Journal. ## Miss Barres Gives Recital On March 10

Joanne Barres, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Barres of Newton, will give a recital at the Boston Conservatory of Music on Saturday, March 10, at 8:30 p.m. in te Assembly Hall. The recital is free and the public cordially invited to attend.

Miss Barres, currently a senior at the conservatory, majoring in Music Education, expects to receive her Bachelor of Music degree in June, 1973.

Twins Dinner Due In Dedham

Mrs. William Kelly will represent Newton at the annual Fathers' Night Dinner of the Massachusetts Mothers of Twins Association, Inc., Dedham Regional Chapter, to be held on Tuesday, Mar. 6, 7:30 p.m. at the Jacob Jones Post, Dedham.

Members will be served a pot luck supper. The Blessed Sacrament Happy Wanderers, a 30-man chorus, will provide the entertainment. Mr. Robert Mahoney will direct the singers.

Two Newton Women Chosen Art Judges

Two Newton women, Mildred Kingsbury and Selma H Stone, will act as state judges for the American Mothers Committee Inc. Major Art Award, to be presented at the group's annual convention in Denver, Colorado this May.

The Newton women will be among five Massachusetts women who will pick the two best state entries to be sent to Denver. All state entries will be presented at the Massachusetts State Exhibit on April 27 in Belmont.

At the Denver convention, entries from throughout the country will be judged, and a $1000 first prize and a $500 second prize will be awarded.

Mildred Kingsbury is presently an oil painting instructor at the Newton and Brookline public schools. She was formerly an art consultant in the Concord and Wayland schools.

A former research editor for Simon-Schuster Publishers, Selma H. Stone has co-authored "Understanding Modern Art." She is an art teacher, lecturer and has presented several one-woman shows.

Both women have collaborated on an art guide for teachers. It is currently being considered for publication by Holt, Rinehart and Winston, Inc.

Conservatory's Friends Sponsor Symphonic Premiere For Boston

Tickets went on sale at Symphony Hall on Feb. 26 for the Boston premiere of one of Europe's foremost orchestras, the brilliant Bamberg Symphony, which will perform an all Beethoven program Mar. 19 at Symphony Hall.

Conducting will be Eugen Jochim, already known to Bostonians as the guest conductor of a well received performance of the Boston Symphony in January.

Soloist will be Herr Jochim's daughter, Veronica Jochim von Moltke, herself a member of the New England Conservatory's piano faculty.

The Friends of the New England Conservatory are sponsoring this benefit performance.

Performances Net Scholarship Funds

Thirty students of the Cambridge School, Weston, will perform an evening's entertainment entitled "Green Beans in Butter Sauce," a group of one-act plays, on Tuesday and Friday, Mar. 1-2, at 7:30 p.m.

Under the direction of Robin Wood, the plays are being given for the benefit of the school's Black Scholarship Fund. Admission at the door is 50 cents.

Newton participants in the productions are Chris Lovell, Dorothy Nemetz and Adam Gross and Tom Gold of Waban.

Musical Program Planned

On Sunday, March 4, the First Baptist Church in Newton will present a musical program by a group known as "Clearing."

This presentation, which will follow the morning worship service, will be performed by Joan Minkoff, Jeff Brewer and Sara Benson. It will offer a unique interpretation of worship and celebration of life through voice, guitar, banjo, dulcimer, piano, flute, mandolin and recorder.

"Clearing" has appared at many churches in the area, on television, and in concerts for schools and coffee houses.

The morning worship service at 10 a.m. will feature a sermon by Rev. Gene Bartlett entitled "The Place of Christian Indignation."

Preceding the morning activities will be a pancake breakfast to which the public is invited. Proceeds will go to benefit the Committee of Responsibility, a group housed in the church which provides medical aid to war-injured children in Vietnam.

The breakfast, cooked and served by members of the Junior and Senior High Fellowships; will be held from 8:30 to 9:30 in the fellowship hall of the church.

Local Resident Performs With Dance Group

Barbara Goldfinger of Newton will perform with the Concert Dance Company in its second concert of the season on Friday and Saturday, Mar. 9 and 10 at 8:30 p.m. The performance will be at the Spingold Theatre of Brandeis University, Waltham.

The company, Boston's repertory dance theater, is presenting new works by guest artist Mimi Kagan Kim, formerly of the Hanya Holm Company and director of the Henry Street Playhouse in New York. Works by Barbara Kauff and Geol Weirs will also be performed.

Miss Goldfinger is co-author and director of the lecture-demonstration program which the company offers to community schools. This lecture-demonstration is a regular part of the Newton Creative Arts Program.

At a recent performance by the lecture-demonstration group in the Burr School, principals and creative arts coordinators in the system attended.

Altman Exhibit On View

Paintings and drawings by West Newton artist Henry Sam Altman are on display through March 17 at the Meeting House Gallery in Boston.

Altman, 15 Hazelhurst Ave., teaches at the Boston University School of Fine Arts. He holds degrees from the Pratt Institute and Queens College, and studied in Munich Germany on a Fulbright Fellowship.

Altman has had exhibitions in New York, Wiscasset, Me., Munich, Brookline and Boston.

In addition, his works are part of the private collection of the Showhegan School of Painting and Sculpture where he studied in 1969.

Father, Son To Display Art

Two area men will exhibit their art work in a two-man show during March at the Rexmere Gallery, Stamford, N.Y.

They are John B.G. Palen Jr., art resource specialist for the Wellesley Public Schools, and his father, a vice-president and senior trust officer at the Newton-Waltham Bank and Turst Company.

A preview exhibition will be held on Saturday, Mar. 3 The exhibit will open on Monday, Mar. 5, and will continue throughout the month.

The younger Mr. Palen showed talent in his early years, and to further this talent, enrolled at Dean Junior College, Franklin and later at Bradley University, Peoria, Ill., where he majored in painting. He produced in the fields of ceramics, drawing and lithography. He has had several one-man shows, including one in Peoria, and one in Dec. 1971 at the College Art Gallery, State University of New York at Cobleskill. He also displayed his ceramics in the Schoharie County Artists' Spring '71 Exhibition. Several of his pieces are now included in private collections. In addition to his work with the Wellesley schools, he also gives ceramics instruction for adults.

His father began his art career in 1959 with an adult education course in the Newton schools. He also studied with Paul Strisik at Rockport, but states that most of his training "has been under Professors Experience and Practice."

He is a member of the Copley Society in Boston, the Cape Cod Artists and the Newton Art Association.

Susan Bawer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leon Bawer, 53 Rokeby Rd., Waban, has achieved dean's list status at Nasson College, Springvale, Maine, according to the office of the college registrar.

Fair Housing Group Denounces Program

The Newton Committee for Fair Housing and Equal Rights revealed recently the contents of a letter it sent to the Department of Housing and Urban Development denouncing Newton's Workable Program Application for 1972-1974.

The criticisms were based on the committee's dissatisfaction with the alleged "misrepresentations" made in the application by the city when applying for federal funds for urban renewal, code enforcement, rent supplement and other assistance projects for Newton.

According to Steve Shugrue, chairman of the Fair Housing Committee, the existing housing situation and the efforts taken by Newton to improve it were not accurately reported to Washington.

The committee had been working with teams of Boston College students for the past several months in reviewing the application, according to Shugrue.

He and his committee recommended HUD deny the city's application for four reasons: the programs proposed to alleviate the present housing situation were inadequate; the city failed to meet the goals set in the immediately previous application for the years 1970-1972; the information furnished the federal government wqs inaccurate and misleading and finally, Newton failed to set out its housing need in concrete numbers.

The Fair Housing Committee did state in its letter to HUD that it would recommend approval of the application if six conditions were met.: "the City of Newton explain the failure to carry out programs for 1970-1972; the survey of housing needs begun in 1972 be completed now; a plan of action be developed to expand the supply of housing for low-income families with children and moderate-income families of all sizes; the city establish a real working relationship with citizens groups and city government concerning housing; a detailed plan for meeting housing demands be submitted for 1972-1974 on a month to month basis; and, Newton must adopt a model code for multi-family housing."

The committee also charged the city with the use of numerous applications to exaggerate the number of units proposed by the Housing Authority and misrepresenting the relations between citizens' groups like itself, and the city goverment.

According to Shugrue, his committee also recently distributed leaflets to over 100

Begin Search For Revaluation Firm

Newton has begun its search for a revaluation firm.

After aldermen appropriated an initial $135,000 to get the ball rolling, the city sent out bid invitations to qualified firms. The deadline for the bid opening is Friday, March 16.

Despite the action taken in Newton, Middlesex Superior Court Judge Henry H. Chmielinski has not yet lifted the temporary restraining order which would ultimately prevent the city from sending out its tax bills this year.

Mayoral aide James Salter said Tuesday the judge has indicated he is satisfied with the current action being taken, but still wants a definitive plan.

Salter went on to say the bids and firms will be discussed with the Board of Aldermen, particularly aldermen interested in this matter. The board will eventually have to appropriate the entire sum necessary to conduct the reassessment of all Newton property.

During debate on the initial $135,000 appropriation, aldermen questioned whether or not this matter would be taken out of their hands by their agreement to the partial sum.

They were assured at that time Mayor Theodore D. Mann did not intend to choose a firm until the entire payment had been authorized by the aldermen.

City Solicitor Melvin Dangel said Tuesday he is in communication with the attorney for the 37 taxpayers who brought suit to force revaluation.

He said once the appropraation is made and the firm is selected, he will go back to Judge Chmielinski with the city's plan.

"I am inclined to think the judge will remove the restraining order at that time," Dangel said.

However, Dangel said, the suit against the city would still have to be resolved, whether or not the restraining order is lifted.

He said the matter would come to trial unless the "other side" stipulated it was satisfied to wait until revaluation was done, or if the judge insists on proceeding with the case.

According to City Treasurer Theodore Scafidi, the restraining order has had no effect on the city's short-term borrowing power.

Interest rates on the short-term notes have not been increased in view of the court action, he observed, noting banks were educated in this matter by the situation in Worcester when it went through a similar case.

The only borrowing the city is doing now is in anticipation of tax revenue. Aldermen last month authorized him to borrow up to $28 million and he said he has borrowed $2 million at interest rates varying from 3.19 to 3.27 per cent.

Arrests Follow Accidents

A 20 - year - old Auburndale man was arraigned in Newton District Court this week on a charge of driving under the influence of alcohol in connection with an auto accident that claimed the life of Alice P. Muskin, 2236 Commonwealth Avenue, Auburndale, according to a police spokesman.

John W. Castoldi, 20, of 21 Normandy Rd., Auburndale, was booked on the charge and released on personal recognizance. He was granted a continuance of his case by the court, police said.

The accident occurred early last Saturday morning on Commonwealth Avenue between Robinhood and Rowe Streets.

Both automobiles were extensively damaged in the accident and Newton firefighters were called to the scene to wash down spilled gasoline.

Miss Muskin was pronounced dead on arrival at Newton - Wellesley Hospital where Castoldi was also taken for treatment of cuts and bruises.

Police officers assigned to investigate the accident and death were Sgt. Paul C. Robinson, George E. McNair Jr., Anthony L. Penzo, Roy A. Fairweather, Matthew S. Pini, Edward J. Drew and Thomas J. Claflin.

Also arrested in connection with complaints stemming from an auto accident, including one charge of assault and battery on police officers, was 18 - year - old Michael F. McSweeney, 43 Fiske St., Ntick.

Police said they charged McSweeney with operating under the influence of alcohol, refusing to stop for an officer in uniform, leaving the scene of an accident after causing property damage and rude and disorderly conduct, in addition to the assault charge.

The Natick youth was arrested after a collision between the vehicle he was driving and that driven by Augustine M. Signore, 351 Langley Rd., Newton Center.

The accident happened late last Friday at the junction of Woodward Road and Route 9.

Given first aid for cuts and bruises after a commotion developed while McSweeney was being booked at Police Headquarters were Officers

Slate Talk On Mysteries Of The Atom

A demonstration lecture on atomic energy and its uses, sponsored by the Atomic Energy Commission, will be presented at Newton South High School Monday, March 12.

The program, entitled "This Atomic World," is designed to acquaint students with the basic principles of nuclear energy, its sources, and its role in agriculture, industry, medicine and research. The grant for conducting this lecture-demonstration program among high schools in Massachusetts was awarded to Wentworth College of Technology by Boston Edison.

Christopher Buckley, lecturer-demonstor from the Wentworth College staff, will present the assembly program explaining in student terms the structure of atoms and the operation of nuclear reactors as well as such concepts as radiation, fission and fusion.

Buckley has completed extensive training at Oak Ridge, Tenn., facilities of the Atomic Energy Commission. He holds a bachelor of science degree in Management Engineering Technology from Wentworth College of Technology.

Specially designed electronic equipment is used during the 40-minute program to deonstrate the sources of radiation, how nuclear energy is harnessed to furnish electric power for cities, and the use of radioisotopes to aid in diagnosis and treatment of diseases and to learn more about life processes.

Aldermen Listen To Pros/Cons Of Capital Improvements Program

By LEN BATEMAN

Members of the Newton School Committee took the opportunity of an aldermanic public hearing on the proposed Capital Improvement Program to explain their plan for the $1.2 million renovation of the old Day Junior High School.

Superintendent of Schools Aaron Fink explained the school administration's position to members of the aldermanic Planning Committee.

The hearing was called to allow the aldermen a chance to gather public opinion concerning the improvements program submitted to them by Mayor Theodore D. Mann.

According to Fink, the money would be necessary in order to consolidate administrative, counseling, and computer services now scattered throughout the city into an "inner landscape concept" carved out of the 70,000 square feet of floor space in the old building.

He argued that money now spent utilizing two other buildings and the upkeep of the vacant junior high building would be saved in the proposed move.

James Ferner, 86 Hancock st., Auburndale, criticized the school department's section of the citywide improvement plan because "the public doesn't know what it's all about, and there is no justification for the request for extra classrooms in some schools or why the move to the old F. A. Day will cost $1.2 million."

Fink explained that some classroom requirements had been scaled down in light of the City's diminishing school population and added that his department considered temporary or piecemeal improvements to the old building wasteful, whereas the total renovation plan would add 30 to 40 years of use to the structure.

When asked about a proposed parking plan for the Day building, Fink replied that a preliminary study costing $4,800, done by the architectural firm of Haldman and Goranson, indicated that existing parking spaces on the property of the old school and additional street parking would be more than adequate for the 147 expected employees in the building.

Fink also said the building would only require air conditioning in the section reserved for computer services.

This reference to computers prompted Donald Levitan, Newton community development director, to tell the aldermen and assembled citizens that a study on the consolidation of the City's and school department's computers is currently underway and should be ready by Apr. 15.

League of Women Voters President Ellen Lipson criticized the Capital Improvement Program for leaving out several important projects which the League feels are vitally important to the City.

President Lipson recommended that the program be amended to include "money for incinerator pollution control, land acquisition for all municipal needs and construction of a new main library."

She explained that Newton had submitted a compliance schedule to the state Depart-

Nix Electric Plant Proposal

A mayoral advisory committee on electric power has told Mayor Theodore D. Mann it does not feel Newton should pursue the plan of getting a municipal generating plant and concentrate its efforts on upgrading the present street lighting system.

The 11-member committee was formed to investigate the feasibility of Newton owning and operating a municipal electric light plant, buying electricity from Boston Edison and distributing it from a center in Newton, and keeping the present system and studying the present charges for illumination and improving it.

The committee report said that due to state law, the amount of power required by Newton, the high costs involved and the potential damage to the environment caused by pollution, it would not recommend establishing the municipal plant.

As a result of the same state laws and a major technical problem involved, buying electricity from the Boston Edison Company and establishing a municipal distribution center, also does not seem feasible at this time, the committee decided.

It does recommend keeping the present system and improving the present street lighting in the city by the replacement of existing incandescent lamps with new mercury vapor lamps in cooperation with Boston edison. The present rate structure for street lighting requires that installation costs of incandescent fixtures be written off over a 15 year period of time. Fortunately, for Newton, most

Japan: Not Everything You Expect

By DICK GLOVSKY
First of a series)

Imagine a two month vacation. Imagine flying to Japan and then to Hong Kong, Thailand, Singapore, Australia, New Zealand, and Tahiti. If you can imagine all that, you can realize how fortunate my wife, Jean, and I feel to have made such a trip over a recent 65-day period.

After a few days in San Francisco and Honolulu, we boarded a Japan Airlines 747 jumbo jet for Tokyo. We entered the Orient as we entered the aircraft. Stewardesses in kimonoes and stewards in tuxedos, who immediately served us tea and rice cakes, constantly scurried up and down the aisles seeing that everyone had reading materials, pillows, blankets, enough tea.

The flurry of activity presaged Tokyo, the first signs of which we noticed as we exited the airport: neon everywhere. We drove down a boulevard at the end of which red and yellow blinking, twinkling, and winking signs stretched for about ¼ mile. By the time we had reached our hotel, we had already seen more neon that we had noticed in all of our preceding 25 years, which included more than one trip to Times Square.

Being economy-minded tourists, we used public transportation. In Japan, public transportation is fast, efficient, and inexpensive. A model for the world. You can go anywhere in the city for 80 Yen (about 20 cents), most fares being less. Trains run every three minutes.

All station names are in English as well as Japanese (due to the 1964 Olympic Games) and the lines are color-coded, so easy to follow.

The only complicating factor can be the humanity.

There are more human beings packed into this metropolis than lives in Massachusetts, Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, and Rhode Island together. You have never been in a crowd until you have visited Tokyo.

But the humanity complicates less than it could due to the stereotyped but true Japanese characteristic, the unflappable disposition. We are likely to curse at the discomfort of a mashed toe, the Japanese remain unmoved. We would probably retaliate for a bloodied shin; the Japanese don't acknowledge the wound.

Remarkably, there is always room for one more in a Japanese subway car. None is stranded on the platform, although it may appear that only a contorionist could slither in. My friends disbelieve this story, but I watched a man measure a four step approach to a jampacked car, take those four steps at a hustle, and dive into the crowd. He landed in a horizontal position, wedged into a web of arms, legs, and torsos. He barely righted himself in time to walk off at his stop.

The inscrutability of the Japanese was apparent to us, but the well-known blanket of pollution over Tokyo seemed barely noticeable. We did notice numerous pedestrians wearing surgical masks, but could not find the oxygen dispensers Walter Cronkite told us were available at major intersections — until we visited the zoo.

My notes on the zoo read "a bit ragged but with some unusual residents: a lynx, a panda, and one huge gorilla." Located in Ueno Park along with the National Science Museum, the National Museum of Western Art, and the Tokyo National Museum, the zoo was crowded with strollers. After wasting half an hour locating the panda, to be found in a cordoned area surrounded by security guards, and then finding that viewings were limited to a few hours per day, all of which had already passed, we were ready for some enlivement.

"There it is!" I thought. "An oxygen dispenser." Grey steel box from which a hose extended. I put 10Y (Yen) into the slot, placed the hose to my mouth, and — the hose was talking to my tonsils, explaining in Japanese the facts on the organgutan sitting in front of us . . .

So we never did find oxygen machines. Perhaps they are portable, being kept indoors during the cold and rainy winter months when they are less necessary.

Once we reached our destination, whether it was the zoo or the Imperial Palace, we never had trouble finding a place to eat. Restaurants, as everything, abound in Tokyo. And there is no language barrier, because most eateries place exact plastic replicas of their offerings in their front display window along with price tags. After looking over the reproductions of the available dishes and making our selections, we would usher the proprietor or waiter out to the window to indicate our order.

Unlike restaurants, in most public accommodations, language difficulties can arise, often producing humorous dialogue. From Tokyo, we bused to the town of Odawara, where we caught another bus into the central mountain region of Japan, home of Mt. Fuji. A Japanese inn, or ryokan, built into the hillside at Chokonomori provided a relaxing release from the maddening pace of Tokyo. From Choko, we rode a train and then cablecar over the mountains to Lake Ashii, which we crossed by ferry. On the other side of Lake Ashii, we caught a bus back to Choko.

After sitting all day, we were more than anxious to loosen our limbs in the large communal bath in the basement of the ryokan. We slipped into hotel-provided kimonoes and descended the stairs to a steamfilled room containing a

Receive Lower Collection Bids

Bids received for the next Newton garbage collection contract are lower than the fee the city pays the current collector.

According to the Purchasing Department, five firms bid on Newton garbage collection on the basis of one, two and three-year contracts, the lowest bid being $288,000 on a one-year basis.

Capello Brothers, whose current contract expires in April, are now paid $300,000 and bid $367,000 for the new contract. The firm had the highest bids in all three categories.

Acting Director of Public Works Richard Dudman said Tuesday the city is undecided on whether or not it will continue to use a private collector for garbage. Dudman said a decision could be expected "within six or seven days". The city is also considering mixing garbage with trash collected by Public Works Department workers.

Dudman said he was "not surprised" the bids were lower than the current rate.

At least two factors account for the shift downward. Newton residents on the average have increasingly installed garbage disposals and are putting out less garbage for collection. Plus investigations conducted by the aldermanic Public Works Committee revealed the bi-weekly pickup schedule contracted for was proving unnecessary.

Bids for the new contract specified a pick-up once a week with the exception of summer months when garbage would be collected twice a week.

On the basis of a one-year contract, the firm Kristoff Brothers had the lowest bid of $288,000. Eastern Contractors and James A. Freaney of Boston both bid $320,000.

Kristoff Brothers held to its $288,000 per year charge for the two year contract proposal and was again the lowest bidder. Freaney bid $3000,000 per year on the two-year basis; and Eastern bid $310,000 for the first year and $335,000 for the second. Capello's offer was $357,000 for the first year and $347,000 for the second.

F. & R. Services entered bidding on the three-year pact, offering to collect for $256,000 for each of the three years. Freaney bid $279,000 per year and Kristoff stuck to $288,00.

Eastern held to its two year figures and added $350,000 for the third year of the three-year deal. Capello kept his two-year figures and added $337,000 for the third year.

There is a third alternative also to be considered, Dudman

Drinan Speaks To League On Washington Power Fight

Congressman Robert F. Drinan will speak to the members of the League of Women Voters of Newton about congressional - executive relations and congressional reform on Friday, Mar. 9, from 9 a.m. to 12 noon at the Auburndale Congregational Church, 64 Hancock St., Auburndale.

Serious observers of our government are concerned with the weakening of legislative authority and the resultant increasingly powerful executive branch. It was recently written in the "New Republic" that, "there is no institution in Washington more clumsy, more inefficient, more disgraceful. Its procedure is so awful that it has a kind of charm, like preferring an outhouse to modern plumbing."

Many people, including the League of Women Voters, agree with that statement. After the 18-month study of congressional procedures, the League's conclusion was that Congress must put its own house in order to reassert itself as a co-equal partner in government.

Congressman Drinan has been one of the leaders in the cause of congressional reform. Friday morning he will address himself to this and to the problems of congressional-executive relations.

In order that League members may reacquaint themselves with League positions on these issues and with the sometimes intricate maneuverings of congressional committees, there will be several small discussion groups prior to the Congressman's talk.

The discussions will focus on welfare reform - or lack of it - and the meanderings of environmental bills in and out of committees. They will be set up in such a way as to give members a real perspective or the problems.

The public is urged to attend, and because of the special importance of the meeting, babysitting for children of all ages will be available.

For further information about the meeting call Bonnie Orlin at 244-9501.

Marsha Slotnick, 244-6268, will be happy to provide any information about the League of Women Voters of Newton.

Using puppets they made, painted and dressed, they have since performed the show for Bowen nursery school and for several other elementary classes.

Tax Relief For Elderly Urged

State Representative Peter F. Harrington (D-Newton) recently called upon the joint House-Senate Committee on Taxation to "stop economic discrimination against the elderly," when he filed a bill which would limit real estate tax payments to 10 per cent of the first $7,500 of income of those over 65.

Harrington, a freshman representative, campaigned on a promise to fight for legislation to "protect the dignity of our senior citizens."

In addressing the taxation committee, Harrington stated, "there are a spate of bills before this committee designed to improve the status of the elderly. None are as far-reaching as the one I propose, but all are designed to provide some relief. That relief is absolutely necessary because society requires a man or woman to retire from gainful employment at age 65."

"Our Social Security laws limit elderly income to a few hundred dollars a month, but our real estate tax laws take that same amount away," added Harrington.

Citing the question of constitutionality of elderly tax abatements, Harrington proposed that the legislature pass abatements anyway and then let the courts decide on their legality.

"If the constitution is a living document, as I believe it is, let it allow life with dignity for our elderly. Over the years, the courts have evolved many changes in the law to adjust for the needs of society. Let them also resolve the problem of this apparent conflict," stated Harrington.

"You should know, we have one hell of a problem in this Commonwealth. The courts have held that all cities and towns must fix their assessed values at 100 per cent. With the unexpected increase in the cost of living over the past few years, a $2,000 abatement is less than meaningful," concluded Harrington in urging his fellow legislators to help those elderly who have paid to support government throughout their adult lives.

A NEW ANGLE — Anita Capeless (right), chairman of the Newton League of Women Voters' local study of "Redevelopment, Rehabilitation and Conservation Areas of Newton," and Sharalyn Arntz, vice chairman (left), view the Baury House, commonly called the DAR House, at corner of Concord and Washington streets in the Lower Falls. The historic building will be rotated about 45 degrees in order to allow for the widening of Washington Street. The Newton Redevelopment Authority received a grant from the federal government to do the necessary work for saving the structure. This league committee will hold discussions on its findings March 14, 15 and 16.

Camp Fire Girls Skit Night Goes Citywide

There were 12 groups of Newton Camp Fire Girls and two Junior High Discovery Clubs participating in all Newton Camp Fire skit night, held in th Bowen School auditorium last week.

Planned and coordinated by Mrs. Henry Hall, program chairman of the Newton Camp Fire Girls, the event was one of a monthly series aimed at bringing Newton Camp Fire Girls together for an evening of fun and fellowship.

The theme of the evening was "Winter Wonderland," and the skits were announced by Carolyn Hall. Participating groups and their leaders were:

Angier School: Mrs. David Todres, leader (3rd grade); Caroline Barbec, Andrea Costa, Donna DiNisco, Karena Paukulis, Wendy Ann Ryter, Kristine Sabin, Robin Jane Stone and Rachelle Todres.

Bowen School: Mrs. Robert Cohen, guardian (5th grade); Heidi Cohen, Dawn Framson, Randi Goldstein, Sharon Green, Carol Hsiung, Elizabeth James, Lisa Regan and Lisa Zolli. Mrs. Preston Pollack, guardian (5th grade); Karen Bain Dorothy Barry, Gay Davis, Helaine Green, Jennifer Knight, Julie Miller, Leslie Pollack, Phyllis Rosenberg, Catherine Seasholes, Michele Skerry, Sharon Sussman and Sabra Seyer.

Mrs. Harlon Willis, guardian; Joni-Marie Caron, Leslie Cohen, Catherine Daly, Karen English, Deborah Garfinkle, Patricia McLellan, Karen O'Connor, Lynda Seletsky and Beth Willis.

Refreshments were served. Mrs. George MacDonald, chairman of Newton Camp Fire Girls, announced that the next city-wide event would be a family square dance, to be held Saturday, March 24, to celebrate Camp Fire Birthday week.

Women's League Undertakes Study Of Municipal Renewal Priorities

The local study committee of the League of Women Voters of Newton will meet with members of the Newton League and the public for discussion of "Redevelopment, Rehabilitation and Conservation of Areas of Newton" at unit meetings scheduled for Wednesday, Mar. 14, Thursday, Mar. 15, and Friday, Mar. 16.

The words in the title are professional terms used regularly by planners. Redevelopment is the revision or replacement of the existing land use pattern according to a controlled plan including clearance of dilapidated structures or undesirable uses.

Rehabilitation is the improvement, according to an overall plan, of a built-up area threatened by blight.

In 1963, the City, with a federal grant, did an extensive study of specified areas of Newton. This was published as a report, entitled "Community Renewal Program." Among the board recommendations of the report were: establishment of a planning department for the city, establishment of a redevelopment authority, adoption of a housing code, completion of the comprehensive plan, and continuing analysis of neighborhoods. Only the first two recommendations have been carried out to date.

In Newton Upper Falls a Comprehensive Code Enforcement Project was undertaken in 1967. Within a specific area, every structure was inspected. Those with violations were offered 3 per cent loans, or in cases of very low income, outright grants, to rehabilitate the buildings. This is a technique suggested for older areas of the city. The meetings will discuss whether this was a useful project. Did it really make a difference in Upper Falls, and could it be used elsewhere?

A redevelopment project is under way in Lower Falls. Land has been acquired and plans made for the construction of an industrial area, new office buildings, and low and moderate income housing. There will be a discussion of the relationship between the Newton Redevelopment Authority and the people of Lower Falls. Why has this project taken so long?

The report designated Newton Corner as the area of highest priority for renewal ten years ago and conditions have probably declined since that time. What can be done? The residents are beginning to talk about a community dvelopment corporation by means of which they would do their own renewal. The Newton Corner Study, put out in 1971, presents four different plans for redevelopment, each with different combinations of business, high density residence, moderate density residence and park and recreation areas.

The schedule of unit meetings follows: Morning meetings are from 9:15 to 11:30, luncheon meeting is from 12 to 2, and evening meetings are from 8 to 10.

Wednesday morning, Mar. 14, at the First Baptist Church, 848 Beacon St., Newton Centre, babysitting provided, please park behind the church, enter the lot from Centre Street. Wednesday luncheon at the home of Carole Fischberg, 10 Burnham Rd., West Newton. Wednesday evening at the home of June Rosenberg, 131 Sargent St., Newton.

Thursday evening, Mar. 15, at the home of Roberta Needleman, 351 Waban Avenue between Carlton and Varick Roads, Waban. Friday morning, Mar. 16, at the Auburndale Congregational Church, 64 Hancock St., Auburndale, babysitting provided, please park in the lot behind the church.

For further information about the units call Anita Capeless, 969-9483, chairman of the study committee. For further information about the League of Women Voters of Newton call Marsha Sloynick, 244-6268.

Busansky Directs Center For Adolescent Problems

Freeport, Inc. this week announced the appointment of Ms. Phyllis Busansky of West Newton as executive director.

Freeport, a private non-profit community organization, offers a residential program for teenagers who for one reason or another cannot live with their families.

"We are fortunate to have Ms. Busansky join the Freeport staff," Ms. Marion Kaufmann, president of the board, stated. "She brings to her new post a great deal of experience in initiating and implementing programs for students and young adults."

While living in Clearwater, Florida, Ms. Busansky was program coordinator and tutor at a black high school and founder of the College Fund of Pinellas County, which provides financial assistance and guidance for disadvantaged students.

Since moving to Newton in 1967, she has been an English tutor at the Center for Opportunity for Progress in education in Roxbury, and a teacher of remedial skills at the Training Center for Comprehensive Care at the Lemuel Shattuck Hospital.

In 1971, with two other women, she found the Boston Project for Careers, an organization involved in both educational counseling and job placement.

"The appointment of Ms. Busansky promises to bring a new sense of dynamism to Freeport," comments Ms. Kaufmann.

"She shares the Freeport philosophy that the house should be a place of warmth and openness — a haven for adolescents for a short stay or an extended one."

"We want Freeport to be a place for kids to come when life gets too rough," Ms. Busansky stated.

She lives on Somerset Road with her husband, Sheldon, and three children.

Ms. Busansky or a member of the house staff can be reached by calling the Freeport Office number 969-2969 for further information about Freeport.

Dorm Stays Vacant

Members of the aldermanic Land Use Committee this week declined to speed action on moving students into one of the new Boston College dorms.

Meeting Monday during a recess of the Board of Aldermen, committee members heard a Boston College spokesman indicate one dormitory was finished and could accomodate 216 students now.

The spokesman, Atty. Robert Freeto, explained Boston College spends about $2,000 per day to house students off-campus and is naturally "anxious" to get students on-campus as soon as possible.

Freeto said one of the four dorms under construction had been carpeted and furnished and inspected by city departments. He said landscaping had not yet been completed but BC was willing to post a $50,000 bond as a guarantee landscaping would be done to board specifications.

Committee Chairman Ald. Alan S. Barkin, describing the area as "a sea of mud," responded he had visited the campus Monday and did not agree the building could be occupied now.

"The mere fact they have wall-to-wall carpeting doesn't mean a thing," Barkin stated. "This project has got to be finished in the fashion the Board of Aldermen contemplated. If we allow your request, we will defeat the purpose of the conditions we set down."

He went on to add: "I think it would be an act of negligence on the part of the college trustees to let students occupy the building."

The chairman had stated he had seen many pieces of heavy equipment operating in proximity to the building in question and had seen workmen working on its roof.

Group Meets On Lettuce Boycott

A group of Newton residents recently attended a meeting in Waban for the purpose of learning about the national lettuce boycott of the United Farm Workers Union.

After watching a film prepared by the United Methodist Church, those attending heard a first-hand account of conditions in the strike area from Ralph Lemus. Lemus is a farm worker and came to Boston recently with Cesar Chavez, president of the UFW.

Among those present were Susan Yates, Richard Scanlon, Brenda Brathwaite, Mary Feld, Leon Brathwaite, Dennis Yates, Pauline Katz, Sara Gordon, Marck Chesler and Theresa Schlager.

For further information about the Newton Lettuce Boycott, contact 288-4347.

Kindergarten Registration Soon

The Claflin School will hold registration for the September Kindergarten classes on Mar. 20, 1973, Tuesday, 1:30 to 3 p.m. at Claflin School, Newtonville in the kindergarten classroom.

In order to be eligible, the child must be five-years-old on or before December 31, 1973. Birth certificate and a record of immunizations are necessary at the time of registration.

Concert Lovers Can Hear Symphony Sunday

Karen Phillips

Concert lovers who enjoy hearing world premieres and world-renown artists can stay right in Newton this week.

The Newton Symphony Orchestra is presenting a concert containing these elements Sunday at 8 p.m. in the Meadowbrook Junior High School auditorium. The event is in celebration of the 25th anniversary of the State of Israel.

Admission is $3.50 and tickets can be obtained by calling 969-4232.

Under the direction of Michel Sasson, the orchestra will play Saint-Saens Introduction and Rondo Capriccioso, Nigun from the "Suite for Baal Shem" by Bloch; and the New England premiere of Shostakovich' symphony No. 13, "The Babi Yar," with the Highland Glee Club.

The concert's opening number will be a world premiere of Dann Coriat Wyman's "Ode to the Viola." Wyman, a Newton artists, has been with the symphony snce its inception.

In his notes on the composition he explains the viola "has for many years been a sublimated instrument, used by composers primarily for its rich harmonic values."

"Among modern composers," he went on to say, "it has been recognized as having a special tone of its own which can be shown to advantage in orchestral compositions."

A violist himself, Wyman related how the composition reflects a struggle for recognition and can be construed as symbolic of Israel's own struggle for recognition.

DANN CORIAT WYMAN

The piece is scored for solo viola, violins, cello, bass and piano.

Karen Phillips will be the viola soloist.

Miss Phillips had made appearances all over the world, including Europe, the Soviet Union, in the Middle East, the United States and Canada. She has given world premieres to seven other compositions for the viola and has recorded for Columbia Records, RCA, CRI and the Musical Heritage Society.

Reviews describe her as "one of those fortunate musicians who know how to concentrate their energies and their audiences' attention," and as "absolutely overwhelming."

Wyman has played the viola in orchestra and string quartettes in this country, Canada, and Europe. He studied piano at Faelton School; violin, viola and solfeggio with Arthur Fieldler and Anna Golden; harmony and counterpoint with Margaret Tuttle; composition with Maude Howes and Hindemith.

The concert's other soloist is Marjorie Kransberg, who will be featured in the Bloch and Sanint Saens selections.

ACT Files Complaint Against Cereal, Snack Manufactures

Complaints against television ads directed at children for cereal, snack foods, and candies were filed Tuesday with the Federal Trade Commission by ACT (Action for Children's Television) of Newtonville.

The eight complaints cited General Mills, Kelloggs, Curtis, Mars Mfg., Post Division of General Foods, Hershey Foods, Quaker Oats and the CBS Television Network which ran the ads.

The complaints specified commercials which, ACT declared, directed "unfair and misleading advertisements to children" on children's television programs on Saturday morning, October 28, 1972. The TV ads were for: Sir Grapefellow cereal, Baron von Redberry cereal, Pop-Tarts snack, Danish-Go-Rounds snack, Baby Ruth candy bar, Milky Way candy bar, Fruity Pebbles cereal, Cocoa Pebbles cereal, Froot Loops cereal, Hershey's Instant Milk additive and Vanilly Crunch cereal.

The announcement of the complaints was made by ACT President Peggy Charren during testimony before the Senate Select Committee on Nutrition and Human Needs, in Washington.

"A medium which could be a powerful educational tool to inform the American public of good health and nutrition is instead a vehicle for falsehood, misinformation and misleading persuasion," she said to the committee. "TV advertising presents several dangers to the health of children - the most significant are dental caries, the exclusion of more nutritious foods from the diet, obestity, and other health problems which arise in adulthood as a result of a taste for sweets acquired during childhood."

ACT stressed that the consumption of non-nutritious and sugared foods as snacks was a major cause of cavities. In a study of several hundred 5-year-olds, a direct correlation was found between the number of snacks eaten and the number of cavities in the children's teeth.

"Those who ate one snack had a caries score of 4.8; two snack, 5.7; three snacks, 8.5; and four or more snacks, 9.8 stated Ms. Charren. "It is not the amount of sugar ingested but the frequency of intake."

An analysis of ads directed to children on a Saturday morning found that almost all of the food products were for sweet, sticky snack foods, the most likely foods to cause caries. There were NO ads for apples, pears, oranges, carrots, celery, nuts, cheese, fish or eggs.

ACT also filed supplementary data with the Federal Trade Commission as an addition to its earlier filing on edibles advertising to children.

In the additional filing, ACT stressed its concerns with the high sugar content of foods advertised to children, and the misleading food information being presented to children in commercials.

Sahatjian Acting Director For Mental Health Area

The Newton-Wellesley-Weston Mental Health and Mental Retardation Area Board announced Edward A. Shatjian has been appointed acting area director of the Newton-Wellesley-Weston Area.

Sahatjian will be responsible for the planning and development of comprehensive community mental health and mental retardation services for the Area. He has been the Associate Area Director since 1971.

"Our goal is to develop a system of mental health and mental retardation services that will begin to meet the needs of all who need help," he said.

The Newton-Wellesley-Weston Area Office is located at 76 Eldredge street, Newton, and the phone number if 969-5917. The office can provide information, referral, as well as consultation and planning services.

Sargent Dinner Guest of GOP

Governor Francis W. Sargent will be a head table guest at the Annual Lincoln Day Dinner being held Wednesday evening Mar. 28 at the Marriott Motor Hotel, it was announced today by Donald P. Quinn, president of the Newton Republican Club.

In making the announcement, Quinn declared: "We are delighted to have the Governor join us at our gathering as we honor William I. Cowin, the Commonwealth's Secretary of Finance and Administration."

"It is our happy privilege to have Governor Sargent with us at our Annual Dinner event where he will receive a special award for outstanding civic service presented by the New York Young Republican Club. Representatives of the New York group will join us at the dinner to make this presentation," added Quinn.

Quinn also pointed out that the annual Lincoln Day dinners in Newton are not fund raising events. "Our aim through these events is to provide a medium for the promotion of community and party cohesiveness and to give our group a sense of direction," Quinn added.

The event, featuring Secretary Cowin as its guest of honor and the principal speaker, is now well on its way to an attendance of several hundred, it was reported.

The list of patrons subscribing for tables now includes the following names: Mrs. Edwin F. Cave, Mr. and Mrs. David A. Lurensky, Hon. and Mrs. Theodore D. Mann, Mr. and Mrs. Julius L. Masow, Mr. and Mrs. John L. DiSabato, Mr. and Mrs. Anthony J. Medaglia, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Donald P. Quinn, Mr. and Mrs. Herman Smerling, Miss Charlotte R. Thornbury, Republican Ward Four Committee, Mr. Henry J. Wilson.

Co-Chairmen of the Patrons Committee are Mrs. Edward C. Becherer, Mrs. Robert L. Tennant, and Miss Charlotte R. Thornbury.

John L. DiSabato of Waban is Ticket and Reservations Chairman with Mrs. G.M. Swift Co-Chairman.

Sponsors of the event are the Newton Republican Club, Newton Republican City Committee, Newton Women's Republican Club, Newton Italian - American Republican Club, and the Newton Young Republicans.

Newton Needs A Hard Line On Spending, Realtors Say

With no relief expected from the state in the form of comprehensive tax reform this year, Newton officials must adopt an uncompromising hard line on municipal spending to prevent any further rise in property taxes, a spokesman for the Greater Boston Real Estate Board said in a statement released today.

In a letter to Mayor Theodore D. Mann, Kevin F. Hughes pointed out that the "crushing, disportionate tax burden on property and home-owners is approaching oppressive levels and that to add to this burden would be unjustly cruel."

Hughes is president of the Real Estate Board's Council J, composed of Newton realtors.

Hughes noted that according to figures from the State Tax Commission, Newton's tax rate jumped by 92 per cent between 1967 and 1972.

"For five years, we have been promised a tax reform package with substantial relief for property taxpayers," Hughes said. "But, reports from Beacon Hill indicate that while the state's Master Tax Plan Commission may issue a report later this year, it will not be submitting a specific plan for tax reform to the legislature. Statements by Gov. Francis Sargent that he does not plan to push for property tax relief this year reinforce the viewpoint that it will be at least 1974 before a serious effort is made in this direction."

The realtor's statement added:

"In the face of this bleak outlook, it becomes evident that the only way our property tax rate can be checked is by implementing severe austerity measures in municipal programs and by applying all federal revenue sharing funds to ease the pressures on the tax rate.

"Because of the critical nature of the property tax dilemma, myself and other realtor members of the Greater Boston Real Estate Board have embarked on a coordinated campaign to hold the line on local property tax rates . . . Our initial efforts will be to assume the role of taxpayer 'watchdogs' in our respective communities by speaking out and gathering support for stringent economies in municipal spending programs.

"A number of specific steps of action can be taken to hold the line on taxes. First, municipal agency heads should postpone for one year all capital outlays and equipment replacements, except those that are imperative to the health and safety of the community.

"All budget increases should be strictly held to a percentage rise equal to that of the cost of living index. Lastly, municipal fiscal offices should be instructed to adopt a 'zero line' approach to agency budgets and eliminate any part of a program that cannot be literally classified as an 'essential need'.

"These recommendations obviously are little more than emergency, stop-gap measures and do not constitute a lasting solution to the problem. But, they must be instituted until we can convince state government leaders of the urgent need for comprehensive tax reform.

"Belt-tightening is not a pleasant prospect to contemplate, but neither are the harsh consequences of an unjust system of taxation. There is already ample evidence that soaring property taxes are forcing the elderly to sell their homes and are excluding young families from the home-ownership market.

"In short, home-ownership as a way of life in many Massachusetts communities is being acutely undermined. Although the property tax cannot be indicted as the sole villain, it is the largest single contributing factor to what is known as the 'cost crisis conspiracy' against home-ownership."

Newton Kiwanis Give Scholarships

Mr. Richard F. Foley, President of the Kiwanis Club of Newton, Inc., announced today that senior high school students of all public, private and parochial high schools in the Newton area are urged to check with their school principals or guidance counselors with regard to the annual New England Kiwanis Scholarship awards.

Some of these scholarships provide assistance for three years towards tuition in a college of the recipient's own choice. Basis for the awards are need, scholarship, character and leadership qualities. The awards are made to outstanding young people in New England without regard to sex, race, creed, color or national origin.

Kiwanis Scholars from New England states are now attending M. I. T., Harvard University, University of Massachusetts, Yale, Lehigh, University of Maine, Fordham, Worcester Poly, University of Rochester, Tufts, Bowdoin, Florida Presbyterian, Boston University, University of New Hampshire, Brandeis, Syracuse, Northeastern, Southern Connecticut College, Smith, Wheaton, University of Bridgeport and many others.

Funds for these scholarships come from voluntary contributions made by individual Kiwanis members in the New England District of Kiwanis International.

Kiwanis will award five three-year scholarships of $1600 each and 21 awards of $200 each.

POW Divorces

A number of the POWs returning from Vietnam have learned upon their arrival in this country that they were being or had been divorced by their wives.

It can be assumed that no self-respecting man wants to remain married to a wife who does not want him as a husband, but some of the reasons accepted by judges for granting divorces to the wives of POWs can only be viewed with bewilderment.

One woman claimed her marriage broke down while her husband was in prison. He was held captive almost seven years, and the period in which he was supposed to file his answer in court was running while he was imprisoned.

Another POW was accused of abandoning his wife while he was in an enemy prison camp. A third wife complained that her "neat and docile" life was disrupted while her husband was a prisoner of war. (That was probably the most honest reason of all.)

It is understandable that some of these women could not stand the strain of long separations from their husbands. But it is difficult to understand how a competent judge could allow a charge that a POW had deserted his wife while he was being held by duress in a North Vietnamese prison.

No Limits

The Massachusetts Senate, by a lopsided 30-5 vote, has killed a bill which would have given Mayors, City Councils, Boards of Aldermen and Town Meetings limited control over school spending.

That ends the controversy on that issue for this year. So overwhelming was the Senate rejection of the measure that any variation of the proposed new law to limit the spending power of School Committees also appears certain of defeat.

It means that School Committees in all Massachusetts cities and towns except Boston may continue to spend what they choose with no interference from anyone except, of course, the voters who may throw their members out of office when they come up for reelection.

This to a large extent reflects the attitude of Senate President Kevin Harrington, one of the authors of the Harrington-Willis Report of a few years ago and a staunch advocate of fiscal autonomy for School Boards.

The teacher organizations also had a part in protecting the spending authority of School Boards. Their interest, of course, was not entirely altruistic. The teachers were preserving the right of the School Committees to grant them pay raises.

In the final analysis, however, the reason a majority of the Senators voted against the bill was that they believe most of the people they represent do not want controls placed on their School Committees.

Unfortunately, there is no certainty that is correct although it may be. A great many people don't take the time or trouble to let their elected State Senator or Representative know how they feel on a matter that is coming up for approval or rejection.

In many instances the rank and file voters don't know as much about the bad and good points of a bill pending before the Legislature as does a law-maker who has studied it.

But the average person should know whether he or she wants any controls placed on the spending power of his or her School Committee.

This is an issue which will be up before the Legislature again next year. You should consider it carefully and then tell your State Senator and Representative whether you feel such a bill should be approved or rejected.

Too many people fail to make their opinions known and then complain of the action taken by the Legislature. You can made your views felt.

A Time to Forget

An uneasy sort of temporary truce obviously exists between some of the former prisoners of war who have been brought home after serving varying periods of captivity in Vietnam.

Some of the presently silent ex-POWs are far from ready to forgive and forget either the experiences they endured or the misconduct of fellow prisoners they believe collaborated with the North Vietnamese or the Viet Cong.

Military officials would prefer that any charges against former prisoners of war be dropped. They point out that some men withstand physical and psychological torture better than others.

A man hung upside down by his heals from the beams until he is ready to talk may find his resistance weakened. So may a man chained in a jungle cage into which his captors are shoveling insects.

It would seem that any of these prisoners, who failed to stand up under pressure and issued anti-war statements or collaborated in other ways with the enemy, have more than paid the penalty for their actions with their periods of imprisonment.

But some of the liberated military officers are not prepared to be that compassionate. They intend to file criminal charges against certain of their former comrades when all the prisoners of war have been released.

It is to be hoped they will have a change of heart. Such allegations at this point in time can serve little useful purpose. This is an instance where the strong can afford to be generous with the weak.

LEAVING NO DOME UNTURNED

POLITICAL HIGHLIGHTS

By JAMES G. COLBERT

McGovern and Father Drinan Both Are Under Sharp Fire

Two prominent members of Congress—Senator George S. McGovern of South Dakota and Congressman Robert F. Drinan of Newton—are under fire for taking stands which seem to be in conflict with his past record in the case of McGovern and with his background as a Catholic priest in the case of Father Drinan.

McGovern is being criticized for doing an about-face and opposing any United States aid to North Vietnam at the expense of domestic programs in this country.

Father Drinan has been blasted by a Brockton woman who heads a group which is seeking an amendment to the U.S. Constitution that would permit voluntary prayers in public buildings, including schools.

Mrs. Rita Warren, a native Italian and World War 2 bride, claimed that Father Drinan has influenced other Catholic Congreemen to vote against proposals to sanction prayers in public schools and urged that he be ousted from Congress.

The voters of his district can give Drinan the heave-ho in the 1974 election if they choose to do so, but until then there is no way to remove him from Congress as Mrs. Warren is advocating.

When McGovern recently visited Massachusetts to make a speech at Brandeis University, he declared rather petulantly that he knew why he had modified his views on North Vietnam but that New York Times columnist Tom Wicker didn't know.

McGovern was making plain his despleasure with a recent column in which Wicker reported that the change in McGovern's position on aid to North Vietnam resulted from the public sentiment in McGovern's home state of South Dakota where he faces a hard fight for reelection next year.

Wicker's opinion was a reasonable one to draw from all the facts, and his comments seemed moderate.

McGovern's assertion sounded both ungracious and stupid. It was ungracious because Wicker beat the drums lustily for him in last fall's Presidential campaign.

It was stupid because if Wicker and this writer and other columnists don't know why McGovern has changed his mind about helping North Vietnam, it's because McGovern hasn't told us.

Any public official has a right to modify his views to conform with those of the people he represents. If he does not do that, in fact, he is risking the possibility that he will be thrown out of office by the voters.

Why McGovern is so sensitive, when observers assume that he is modifying some of his views to make them closer to those of the people he is serving, is not clear from this distance.

One of his own staff members declared that the mail from South Dakota was heavily opposed to any U.S. aid for Hanoi. If that is not the reason he changed his mind, he would do well to make the people of his prairie state think it is.

Louise Day Hicks Pressured To Seek City Council Seat

Friends of former Congresswoman Louise Day Hicks are exerting increasing pressure on her in their efforts to persuade her to run for either the Boston City Council or the Boston School Committee in next fall's municipal election in the Hub.

Mrs. Hicks undoubtedly could win a seat on either body, but she presently is not disposed to stand for election to any office this year.

She wants to wait, conserve and build up her strength and battle Congressman John Joseph Moakley in the 1974 Democratic primary.

Mrs. Hicks defeated Moakley for the Democratic nomination for Congress in 1970 and then easily won election.

Moakley bypassed the Democratic primary last year, ran as an Independent in the November election and, with a combination of Democratic, Independent and Republican support, unseated Mrs. Hicks.

He is now seated in Congress as a Democrat, and Mrs. Hicks points out thbat he will be virtually forced to stand for nomination in the 1974 Democratic primary.

That, of course, is true, but he also will have the advantage of being an incumbent Congressman.

The feeling between Moakley and Mrs. Hicks is bitter, and it is unlikely she will allow herself to be detoured to any other office before she has her rematch with him.

Her unsuccessful fight for election as Mayor of Boston in 1971, after she had been elected Congresswoman in 1970, weakened her for her battle last year with Moakley in a revised congressional district which took in such communities as Norwood, Needham, Dover, Westwood and Dedham.

Her critics argued that she had been to the political wars too many times, pointing out that she ran for Mayor in 1967, for the Boston City Council in 1969, for Congress in 1970, for Mayor again in 1971 and for Congress in 1972.

How effective an issue that was with the voters is uncertain. Her principal mistake was in running for Mayor in 1971, only a year after she had been elected to Congress.

That weakened her political position for her 1971 mayoralty run and helped to set the stage for her defeat last year when she stood for reelection to Congress.

However, some of her supporters—and she still has a large and energetic army of them—believe her chances of winning a comeback victory for Congress next year would be improved by a successful campaign for either the Boston City Council or School Committee next fall.

So far they have been unable to convince Mrs. Hicks that is so although there is some logic to their claim that she may lose some of her vote-pulling strength if she is out of the public eye for two years.

Moakley, of course, is trying to entrench himself as he prepares for the hard fight he will face next year.

Pope Paul's Phone Reported To Be Among Those Tapped

Two-thirds of all the telephones in Italy are tapped, according to a reliable Italian newsman.

How it's possible to bug that many phones is not completely clear to this writer, but apparently anyone can go into a store and purchase the electronic equipment necessary to tap a neighbor's phone.

One famous Italian whose phone is bugged, the newsman reported, is the Pope.

Small Children Left By GIs Tragic Victims of Viet War

A great debate is looming in Congress over President Nixon's proposal to spend billions of dollars to rebuild North and South Vietnam. But little has been said concerning the human problem of what to do about the thousands of small sons and daughters of American servicemen who have been abandoned in South Vietnam.

Everything indicates that tragic problem of monumental proportions will be swept under the rug.

Persons watching the news on their television sets have seen movies of the ex-servicemen who have returned to South Vietnam, some to be with their South Vietnamese wives and sweethearts, others to draw the big pay checks for certain kinds of work.

But little attention has been focused on the illegitimate children who have been left behind by their GI fathers and are looked down upon by the South Vietnamese.

A GI must wade through yards of red tape in order to bring a South Vietnamese wife and a child back to this country. That is why some of them have left their wives in South Vietnam and returned there themselves after their discharge from the service.

It is much more difficult to bring an illegitimate child to this country for adoption either by its father or someone else.

South Vietnamese officials have been uncooperative about helping such youngsters. They have made it more difficult for the half-American children to be taken from Vietnam and have objected to any aid for such children that is not available to South Vietnamese orphans whose parents were killed in the war.

While this problem is a tragic and troublesome one, it can be at least partially overcome if it is intelligently approached.

Any program of economic aid to South Vietnam should include a specific provision for helping those children, and the entire program should be contingent upon South Vietnamese agreement to administering that assistance.

A plan should be set up for bringing to this country for adoption boys and girls who have been abandoned both by their GI fathers and their South Vietnamese mothers and possibly, some other such children whose mothers desire to give them up or are unable to provide for them.

Senator Harrison Williams of New Jersey has filed a bill calling for the creation of a temporary child-care agency in South Vietnam to help children left behind by departing GIs. If the South Vietnamese want our help in other ways, they should be obliged to cooperate with such an agency.

Suffolk Downs Race Track Seen In Financial Trouble

Some law-makers are not at all happy about a bill which would reduce the state's tax on the "take" at the Suffolk Downs horse race track, but supporters of the measure claim the track may be forced to close down unless it is helped.

Actually, Suffolk Downs appears to be suffering from an overdose of racing and from the public reaction to reports that racketeers fixed a race there a few years ago.

Whether Suffolk Down has been helped or hurt by the steps taken to keep it operating is a question that is open to debate. Two years ago, the track was given an additional 60 days of racing so that it now operates 150 days a year, including Sundays.

Public interest seems to have been dulled by the increase in racing dates. A law was enacted last year boosting the track's share of the handle from seven to eight per cent.

Proposals are now awaiting action by the Legislature which, if approved, would further slash the state's share of the amount wagered and give the track an estimated $2 million more a year.

Differences of opinion exist as to how much merit these measures have, but it does seem evident even to a casual observer that Suffolk Downs is in serious financial trouble.

Muskie Would Welcome Call That Isn't Likely To Come

Maine's Senator Edmund S. Muskie, who proved a big bust in last year's Democratic Presidential Primary, is talking as if he might try it all over again in 1976.

On a recent fence-mending mission to the Pine Tree State, Muskie indicated that he would accept his party's nomination for President if someone offered it to him in '76 but that he would not go through another period like the last four years.

Muskie blew his chances of achieving the Presidential nomination with his tearful performance outside a Manchester, N.H., newspaper office, and nobody is likely to try to draft him the next time around.

At times he does seem to shape up as a potentially strong contender for the Presidency, but then the doubts recur as to whether Muskie can keep his cool to the extent that a President must and should.

His hopes of ever running as the Democratic candidate for President probably went down the drain for all time last year.

Senator Muskie, who still wields considerable influence on Washington's Capitol Hill, stressed that he will battle any plan to finance the reconstruction of Vietnam at the expense of domestic programs in the United States.

Muskie makes a lot of sense in his statements concerning possible U.S. aid to North Vietnam. He says we have fought a lot of years and spent a lot of money to create a basis for peace in Vietnam and that having done that, he agrees with President Nixon that we should not risk failure in achieving that goal because of our unwillingness to build a peaceful society in North Vietnam.

But then he stresses that he is not willing to cut other programs in the United States to help fund the reconstruction of North Vietnam. This obviously is an issue on which President Nixon will meet great opposition in Congress.

Strict Anti-Gun Ordinance Brings Peace To Small City

Mayor Charles Evers of Fayette, Miss., whose younger brother Medgar Evers was gunned down as he walked along a highway in Jackson, Miss., in 1963, is proving that a ban on the sale and possession of handguns results in fewer shootings, holdups and other crimes.

Evers pushed through a tough anti-gun ordinance in Fayette after becoming Mayor in 1969. Periodically, he has his police officers conduct surprise raids on the restaurants and night sports in Fayette, search the patrons for pistols and knives and seize all such weapons.

These actions have been criticized and condemned as a violation of individual rights, but Evers' harsh tactics have produced effective results.

Where Fayette prior to 1969 had a gun-related crime every week or 10 days, with frequent shottings in restaurants after patrons had a few drinks, there were only five gun-related crimes in Fayette all last year, and no one was killed by a gun in the community of 2000 during 1972.

Crime dropped approximately 75 per cent from 1968 to 1972. There has not been a holdup in Fayette's city limits since Evers became Mayor. In a recent raid on the city's restaurants police confiscated two pistols and three long knives.

Evers shrugs off criticism of his methods. "If a person doesn't have a gun, what does he care about somebody being searched?" he asks. "No one wants to be sitting in a place eating when some nut jumps up shooting and kills him or injures him for life because he's gotten too much liquor in him." That used to happen frequently in Fayette until Charles Evers became its Mayor.

People also used to ride around town with hunting rifles. Now they get arrested if they have one in their possession. Evers says it's a personal thing with him. "I lost my brother, and I lost five close friends, all because America wasn't strict enough," he explains.

Sarge's Move On Park Plaza May Mean He Will Run Again

Governor Sargent's action in demanding that Miles Mahoney resign from his position as State Community Affairs Commissioner, because of his refusal to approve the Park Plaza redevelopment project, is regarded by some observers as an indication that Sargent really does intend to stand for reelection next year.

Mr. Sargent would not be so sensitive to the public reaction to the rejection of the proposed $266 million project by his appointee if he were not planning to go before the voters again, they reason.

Boston Mayor Kevin H. White also had indicated that the one thing which might cause him to oppose Sargent for the Governorship next year would be a second rejection of the Park Plaza project.

Sarge obviously is not anxious for any return match with White.

Up to now most political pundits have not taken Governor Sargent at his word that he would seek another term next year. They still believe Mr. Sargent would face tremendous obstacles in a bid for reelection.

Revaluation: Was There A Choice?

Editor, Newton Graphic:

It is to be regretted that Alderman Robert Gaynor has taken the position he so unfortunately indicates in his recent statements and in his letter (Graphic, Mar. 1) on the subject of the Revaluation of Real Property in Newton.

The alderman does himself and the community a disservice in speaking intemperately and inaccurately about the matter. The public interest is not served when an office-holder deliberately clouds the issue and makes an attempt at scapegoating and to put the "blame" on others for political advantage.

In his letters published in the press, Alderman Gaynor states: "Sure, it was the law, but you didn't have to enforce it." This is rather startling, to say the least, for as citizens it our duty to uphold our laws until they are taken off the books. As an alderman, as a state employee, and as an attorney. Mr. Gaynor is indeed sworn to uphold the law and not to encourage disregard and definance of legally enacted legislation under which we live. Mr. Gaynor knows that the City of Newton has no alternative but to obey the law unless it is to resort to chicanery and a dishonorable course in defiance of law.

Alderman Gaynor obviously has strong feelings on the subject of Revaluation. However, though present in the Aldermanic Chamber when the vote was taken on the matter, he abstained from voting and avoided taking a position against the measure which was supported by the majority of the Board. Instead, Mr. Gaynor promptly issued a statement to the papers labeling the board's considered judgement "a malignant tragedy."

To many, the tragedy was found in the excesses of Mr. Gaynor's rehetoric which certainly reflected on the the Aldermanic body and served to confuse the community by crating needless alarm.

Alderman Gaynor must be fully aware of a number of facts and circumstances, among them, that:

1. Newton's Board of Assessors, has in compliance with the pertinent statutes, recommended budgetary provision for revaluation in its annual reports;

2. The money for such revaluation was included in the budget by the mayor, not because he initiated the idea, as Mr. Gaynor puts it, but because of the Assessors' recommendations properly made in accordance with law;

3. The current taxpayer suit being heard in Superior Court and calling for revaluation was known to be developing and was clearly predictable;

4. The current judicial proceedings against the city making revaluation inevitable indicate the wisdom of the city's course in facing reality.

If not for the budgetary provision and the subsequent vote of the Board of Aldermen making the funds available, our city would possible have been subjected to very serious consequence including the delay in the mailing of its tax bills.

One must conclude in view of the foregoing that the city has acted prudently and in good faith and its officials should be applauded for their foresight.

The mayor and the Board of Aldermen have acted in an honorable, business - like manner for the good of the general community. In all likelihood they have precluded harsher actions against the city.

5. Nearly 40 per cent of all communities in the Commonwealth, including Waltham and Brookline, have recently experienced revaluation under similar conditions and have emerged without the dire results fortold by Alderman Gaynor;

6. The Board of Assessors and the City Government have a number of avenues of relief open to them for the alleviation of situations of "hardship" where these may occur.

It is earnestly hoped that in the light of all the known facts and circumstances attempts to stigmatize the decision will end. What remains now is for our city to get on with the job of carrying forward the work ahead of us and to assure a proper and equitable program of revaluation in accordance with statutory requirements.

Clouded Answer

Editor, Newton Graphic:

After a lengthy informal investigation of the Newton Redevelopment Authority by the Department of Community Affairs, the Department came to the conclusion that they found no evidence of any irregularities by the Newton Redevelopment Authority as a body. Therefore they gave the Authority the green light to proceed with the state-aided project.

During the investigation the Department of Community Affairs found irregularities that caused them to consider turning over their findings to the District Attorney of Middlesex County for further investigation.

It is our opinion that the above statement implied that there was a possibility of misconduct of office, by a member or members of the N. R. A. who hold office at the present time or held office in the past. That statement casts a cloud of suspicion upon all the past and present members of the N. R. A.

Therefore, the Department of Community Affairs should lift this cloud of suspicion by a written statement to the N. R. A., and also have it published in the local newspapers. If the Department of Community Affairs feels that irregularities have occurred, then it is their duty ( as a Public Body) to turn over their findings to the proper authority for possible further investigations.

Alderman Cohen Checked Before Leaving Town

Editor, Newton Graphic:

I would like to clarify a news item appearing in the Feb. 22 edition of the Newton Graphic pertaining to the Board of Aldermen's approval of revaluation funds.

Your article stated that six aldermen, including myself, did not vote on the appropriation. as a long-time proponent of revaluation, I received numerous calls from my constituents inquiring why I did not vote.

The answer is simple. I was on vacation and not present for the board meeting. Likewise, three other aldermen reflected as not voting were also on vacation and not present at the meeting of the board on Feb. 20.

It may be of interest that prior to my vacation and departure from the city, it appeared to me by inquiries made that there were sufficient votes for approval of this item so as not to necessitate postponing my family's vacation which had already been postponed from last December.

The Right To Borrow

Editor, Newton Graphic:

The City of Newton representing the Newton Free Library, has served notice that it will take 10 library borrowers to Small Claims Court this week in an effort to collect long overdue books and fines. Too many people have abused books or their right to borrow books, records, magazines, and films from the Newton Library, the city feels.

Other suits will soon follow in the Library's frustrating attempt to have the City's public property, including priceless and irreplaceable material from the Newton Room, returned to the shelves.

Ignoring courtesy overdue notices, bills, and telephone calls, the borrowers have ignored escalating bills. The Library's Billing Department sends out an average of 500 bills per month in its frustrating attempt to recoup city property and permit use of city materials by a patiently waiting public.

Books and book materials worth thousands of dollars are involved in the outstanding files which the city feels it must now attempt to recover.

The Newton Free Library has mailed notices to 1600 Newton families owing a minimum of $5 in materials and fines to remind them that the Massachusetts General Laws, Chapter 266, Sections 99 and 100 clearly define the State's position relevant to the infraction of Library rules.

The Library hopes future court cases can be eliminated with the active support of borrowers promptly returning library materials.

McSweeney was granted a continuance of his case in Newton District Court by Judge Monte G. Basbas police said.

Lee Carmel, 19, of 39 Newtonville Ave., was held overnight at Newton - Wellesley Hospital for head injuries he received after being struck by a car last Monday night in Newton Centre.

Police said Carmel was struck by a car operated by Myra Silverstein, 22, of 51 Westbourne Rd., Newton Centre, after he allegedly ran onto Centre Street. He was released the following day from the hospital.

Two juveniles allegedly held up the Manet-Lake Pharmacy, 17 Commonwealth Avenue, last Monday night and made off with $5 in change, some sedatives and "old heart pills" according to the police report of the incident.

The youths, allegedly 14 and 15 - years - old, entered the pharmacy wearing a ski mask and one of corrugated paper and ordered a clerk and four customers to the rear of the store, police said.

According to witnesses, said police, one of the youths carried a "rusty black revolver" and the other a switchblade knife. They demanded money and drugs, specifically "downers" and Dilaudid, from the manager.

Police reported that 16 officers responded to the robbery call along with the new K9, Caesar. This was the first such drug store robbery since police instituted a crackdown in response to a wave of robberies late last year, they sai

Police are continuing to investigate the obbery.

The also said they were investigating two breaks in separate sections of the city.

The Crest Motel Supply Co., 26 Elliot St., Newton Highlands was victimized last Sunday night or Monday morning according to police.

Thieves entered the building in an unknown manner and made off with four calculators, an electric typewriter, and a 19-inch black and white television.

Total value of the missing items was estimated to be about $400. The burglars also ransacked the main offices of the firm.

A stereo system, a pocket watch, a sleeping bag and a tape recorder were reported missing from the home of David Marcus, 62 Waban Avenue, police reported.

It was theorized that the thieves entered the Marcus home through an unlocked cellar bulkhead according to investigating officers.

Police also arrested a 30 - year - old Newtonville man and charged him with driving while under the influence of liquor.

John P. D'Eugenio, 230 Walnut STt., was arrested by Officers Richard V. Toll and Paul E. Golden on Mar. 1, after he allegedly failed to stop for a stop sign. Police said they also charged D'Eugenio with speeding.

He has been given a Mar. 15 trial date.

Run For Your Life

Editor, Newton Graphic,

During my daily jogs through the streets of the Garden City, I am constantly bothered by unleashed dogs whose owners are flagrantly violating Newton's Leash Law. Nightmarish confrontations with ferocious canines often interrupt my leisurely runs.

Let it be understood that I do not dislike dogs indiscriminately. I simply ask owners to realize their pet's instinctive hostility towards strangers and its urge to chase away all passers-by.

Incidentally, leashing the dog would not only benefit the passer-by but the owner as well because it would insure that his dog does not run off and get lost or get hit by a car.

At any rate, I am sure that I speak for all of Newton's track enthusiasts when I implore all dog-owners to please keep their pets leashed at all times. Thank you.

ment of Public Health compelling it to complete the installation of effluent treatment equipment at the incinerator by Dec. 31, 1974.

"Completion of the project may cost over a million dollars," stated Mrs. Lipson who indicated that this was a substantial increase over the $5 million already scheduled in capital improvements for the Public Works Department.

Citing Newton's Recreation — Open Space Plan for 1969 which recommended acquisition of a total of 132.6 acres of land by the City, Mrs. Lipson rapped the Capital Improvement Plan for its lack of consideration for land acquisition other than for a small parcel at Allison Park.

In citing a need for a new main library the league president stated, "it is essential to have estimates of the possible cost of such a major project in order to properly evaluate the entire capital spending program of the City."

Several citizens were also on hand to criticize the City's slowness in improving and taking over private ways.

Robert Ericson of Driftwood lane, spokesman for the disgruntled residents of that area, asked the aldermen to include a provision in the program for speeding up street reconstruction.

Chairman David Small of the Planning Committee told those assembled for the public hearing that his committee will thoroughly discuss the Capital Improvement Program and no doubt would amend it at future meetings of the committee.

Paulist Center Lenten Schedule

The Paulist Center marked the observance of Lent with the traditional distribution of ashes during and after the 7:55, 12:05, and 5:10 Masses on Ash Wednesday, March 7.

A Lenten theme, "Old Words: New Meanings," will be highlighted at the weekend folk liturgies, Saturday at 6 p.m., Sunday at 11 a.m., 6 p.m. and 8 p.m., throughout the Lenten season. A choral-organ Mass is celebrated at 1 p.m. on Sundays. The series will focus around traditional Lenten concepts and their meaning for the Christian today.

The schedule is as follows:

March 11—"Believe and Repent"

March 18—"Prophets"

March 25—"Fasting"

April 1—"The Wisdom of God"

April 8—"Forgiveness"

April 15—"Palm Sunday"

James Young of the Paulist staff will moderate a Lenten discussion series Thursdays at noon, beginning March 15; the series will run for five weeks. Participants will read and discuss articles by Paulist James Carroll in the National Catholic Reporter on "A Terrible Beauty: Conversions in Prayer, Politics, and Imagination." No admission charge; sandwiches and hot and cold drinks will be served.

For information about other programs at the Paulist Center, please call 742-4460.

Most Veterans' Benefits Exempt from Taxation

Massachusetts Veterans' Services Commissioner, Charles N. Collatos, advised veterans filing Federal and State income tax returns that veterans' benefits are generally exempt from taxation and need not be reported as income on income tax returns.

Commissioner Collatatos listed the following items as being among those which are excluded from Federal and State taxes:

1. Veterans State Bonuses and all monetary benefits paid by the Veterans Administration to veterans or their families or survivors, for military service in war or in peacetime. These include compensation and pension payments, educational assistance allowances, "war orphan" educational payments, subsistence payment to vocational rehabilitation trainees, grants for "wheel chair homes," and automobile equipment for the severely disabled.

2. Dividends or proceeds from NSLI and USGLI (insurance) policies (except interest earnings from dividends left on deposit, which are taxable).

3. Government or commercial life insurance proceeds paid by reason of death of insured whether paid in a lump sum or installments, (unless the proceeds are left with the insurer under an agreement to pay interest, the interest being income to the recipient.)

4. The mortgage paid off on the home of a deceased veteran whose state loan was covered by mortgage cancellation life insurance.

5. In addition, Massachusetts Veterans' Services benefits, death gratuity pay to the next of kin of deceased servicemen, social security benefits, workmen's compensation and disability benefits and all benefits to surviving dependents of deceased veterans and compensation allowances authorized for dependents of certain disabled veterans are tax exempt.

Commissioner Collatos reminded Massachusetts veterans that April 15 is the deadline for filing both Federal and State Income Tax Returns and suggested that this not be left to the last moment.

Seek Families to Host Teachers from Europe

Families in this area are needed to entertain English-speaking European teachers in their homes for one or two weeks this summer, it was announced today by The American Host Program.

According to J. Stuart Perkins, board chairman of the Host Program, who is president of Volkswagen of America, American Host is one of the few non-governmental programs designed to show the American way-of-life to foreign teachers by pairing them with American families.

Now in its eleventh year, American Host has opened doors to better understanding for more than 3,000 European teachers who have passed on their new understanding of America to their students.

Perkins said that being a "host family" is open to anyone who has the desire to increase understanding and friendship between Americans and Europeans. All American Host requires, he said, is hospitality—a private room for a guest and free time for one or two weeks to introduce the guest to friends, neighbors and perhaps fellow teachers.

American Host arranges all transportation. Host families are asked to meet their guest upon arrival in their community. Teachers and host families have an opportunity to correspond for at least a month before meeting.

Arrangements for participating as a host family can be made by writing to: Mr. Tom Murphy, The American Host Program, Hotel Commodore, Suite 2100, New York, New York 10017; or call (212) 683-6567.

Deadline for information: March 15.

Syrian Women's Club Offers Scholarships

The Boston Syrian Women's Club will again award several scholarships in the amount of $250. each to aid young women of Syrian or Lebanese origin, residing in Metropolitan Boston, to obtain a college education.

This award is made on the basis of scholarship, character, personality and need. Need becomes a determining factor only where there is a case of equal scholastic standing and equal character qualifications.

Application forms may be obtained by contacting Scholarship Chairman, Miss Mary Naimey, 295 Foster Street, Brighton; or Mrs. N. J. Saliba, 467 Weld Street, West Roxbury. Applications should be submitted before May 1.

'Reformed' Michael Caine Gave Up Booze To Make 'Sleuth'

Long known as one of the most dashing playboys of two continents, Michael Caine appears to have reformed. After participating in numerous hectic love affairs and being the hero of various Don Juan episodes as described in gossip columns in every language, Michael has married an East Indian girl named Shakira Baksh and is on his honeymoon. Furthermore, he "went off the sauce" for seven months to prepare for and co-star with Sir Laurence Olivier in "Sleuth."

He says not only did Shakira "accept me the first time I asked her," but he accepted the offer to play with Olivier the first time the idea was put to him.

Not that Mr. Caine is subdued by his transformation as he is still ebullient, self-assured and ready to handle any amusing repartee.

I gave up drinking to make "Sleuth" because I knew I needed my wits every minute of the working day to appear with Larry," said he. "In other pictures I could come to work with a hangover and get through the scene. But not this time."

Almost any actor in the world would have welcomed a chance to appear with Olivier, an Academy award winner as both director and star and Caine is no exception. He was delighted to learn that the great Larry was first attracted to him when Caine appeared on a TV special program, "Hamlet," which was made on location in Elsinore. Christopher Plummer was Hamlet and Caine had the lesser role of Horatio.

However, he played it to such audience plaudits that there was no doubt he could handle roles calling for intellectual expertise, as his part in "Sleuth" does.

But Sir Laurence did not see himself through Caine's eyes as a great actor doing a favor in letting the much impressed Michael appear with him.

"He never makes an entrance at the studio," declared Caine. He walks in as humbly as any other actor on the set."

For that matter, Director Joseph Mankiewicz, who has a brilliant reputation wherever pictures are made, doesn't throw his weight around, either.

"Joe never shouts or screams. He speaks quietly and smoothly about the logistics of the picture. And he talked with us as mature men would talk."

They made the picture in sequence, which is unusual. But there are so many small properties, so many intricate tricks of he plot, so much depending on what happened a second ago, that the picture followed the stage method of one scene after another, chronologically.

"It was the best script I ever had to play," enthused Caine.

Why is Caine making a trip to discuss the glories of "Sleuth?" It's because he thinks it is such a perfect film.

"I was in Boston in connection with my hitherto favorite picture, "Alfie," and I made myself a vow. I would never go on another publicity tour until I starred in a film that was better than "Alfie." Well, now I have it."

He doesn't particularly want to go back on the stage, where he made his early debut after studying for the theater with money from his mother's meagre savings, earned as a cleaning woman in London. She wanted him so to be "free to become an actor" — he himself did menial jobs to keep body and soul together.

Since that time he has changed his name from Maurice Joseph Micklewhite to Michael Caine (the Caine came from the play "Caine Mutiny") and acted in dozens of films. His mother's sacrifices have been amply rewarded by the successful son.

Caine appears younger than his 39 years in his turtle neck sweater and sports jacket. He owns a penthouse apartment in Grosvenor Square, London, several fine paintings and an estate on the Thames, near Windsor Castle. He grows his own vegetables and there is a terrific rose garden.

But he doesn't expect his Indian bride to turn rose gardener right off. "She can cut the roses I raise," said he.

"How did it happen your wife managed to grab off such a much pursued Lothario as you?" I asked. "Lesser gals have failed so consistently."

"She's the only one who didn't ask me," confessed Caine, who has a horror of possessive girl friends.

Cinema Review:

AVANTI is the appropriate response when your Italian waiter knocks and asks "Permiso?" But when Jack Lemmon says "avanti" in the picture of the same name, he welcomes much more pleasant excitement than merely coffee and a croissant. Juliet Mills, deliciously chubby and beruffled, apparently has no inhibitions, while the uptight, crochety Lemmon is a mass of conventional constraints.

The combination of Lemmon and producer-director Billy Wilder results in an ingenious, clever, wonderfully funny comedy, an excellent followup of their previous productions together including "Some Like It Hot" and "The Apartment." There are so many amusing scenes which sometimes reach real wit (thanks to the dialogue of I.A.L. Diamond) that audience laughter seems to be part of the show.

Naturally the Italian background which feature plenty of shining blue sea and sunny skies, help with the overall blithe character of the story. There are no real villians — even the blackmailers are rascals rather than evil minded men.

And the heroine's worst problem is the increasing fat she can't seem to lose. The scales bother her much more than a loss of virtue. Claire Revill as the amiable Italian hotel man and Edward Andrews, as an American diplomat, aid enormously in putting over the fun.

Cassettes Booming

By United Press International

The economical handy cassette tape recorder is so popular in the United States that Americans are expected to buy 170 blank cassettes each this year.

The very popularity of cassettes has attracted a number of new cassette manufacturing companies, hastily organized to cash in on the boom.

They do not have the technical ability to meet precise standards and are flooding the market with poor quality products. The cheap cassette frequently is not a bargain.

"Consumers play 'cassette roulette,'" says Scott Conover of Audio Magnetics Corp., of Gardena, Calif., said to be the world's largest manufacturer of cassettes.

"We (original cassette manufacturers) prided ourselves on being able to sell a precisely engineered little product at low cost. But in the last two years, there has been an influx of so-called 'cheapie' cassettes. They're hurting the industry's reputation.

The cheapies work properly maybe once or twice. Then they stop functioning and start ruining the equipment on which they're being used."

To take the chance element out of cassette buying, the company has instructed dealers and distributors who sell its cassettes to do what they can to give customers a quick education in cassette buying.

Salesmen are supplied with templates designed to precisely match standardized cassette dimensions. A cassette which fails to fit into the form or which passes through with room to spare will not work properly.

Some Hints

In addition, salesmen offer customers the following hints for distinguishing good cassettes from those of poor quality:

—Good cassettes use clear plastic windows to provide a view of the tape inside the package. Producers of cheap products cut manufacturing expenses by using "portholes" or unsealed openings that allow dirt to get in.

—At the front of the cassette, where the tape is exposed, a pressure mechanism, located in the center of the package, is used to force the tape against the play-record heads. Good cassettes use a pressure pad and metal spring. Poor quality cassettes use only a tiny sponge.

All cassettes are formed by joining top and bottom halves or shells to form a tight enclosure for the tape and internal parts. Perfectly matched shells that are carefully aligned and tightly sealed are the marks of a good cassette.

Use Label on Tax Return

Taxpayers should be sure to use the pre-addressed label on the tax package they receive in the mail, the Internal Revenue Service said today.

The IRS can quickly process income tax returns with labels, since the labels contain necessary identifying information, said William E. Williams, District Director for Massachusetts.

You can peel the label from the tax package and place it on your tax return.

If your name or address has changed, make the necessary corrections on the label and lightly strike through the wrong pre-printed information. If you have a refund due, this will help insure delivery of the check to the correct address.

Taxpayers should also be certain to enter their correct social security number on the label before they file their return.

The filing deadline for 1972 tax returns is April 17, 1973.

GLASS SHELTER

NEW YORK (UPI) — Picnickers in Denver next summer will be sheltered by a pavilion built of recycled glass bottles and rubble from demolished buildings, says the Glass Container Manufacturers Institute (GCMI).

These materials have been combined by the Colorado School of Mines Research Institute with small amounts of clay to make super-strong construction panels. The panels are being manufactured in a pilot plant at Golden, Colo., and the pavilion will be built in a Denver park to demonstrate their use. The shelter will be donated to the City of Denver.

THERE'S A REASON

COPENHAGEN (UPI) — An old saying has it that, come rain or shine, Danish farmers always complain. There's one area, at least, in which their beefs are justified. In 1972, the average earnings of a Danish farmer was $4,300, compared with $6,900 for the skilled non-agricultural worker.

RENT-A-PARENT
When Mommas and Poppas want to go away on an overnight or extended trip, sans enfants, they can take advantage of a babysitting service that sends young married couples in to take care of the children and the house. University Home Services of Needham screens couples for moral character, responsibility and good judgement, then sends them to your home for an interview and approval. Most couples are college age or graduates. They prepare all meals, do the laundry, maintain the house, and manage details such as garbage disposal and snow plowing. It's arranged for the sitters to become acquainted with the children beforehand so they won't be strangers when the parents leave. The Agency can also provide Housewatchers, chaperones, tutors and home caretakers.

Brandeis Women Seek Books For Annual Sale

More than 60,000 books, including paperbacks, collectors' items and first editions will be bargained away at the 1973 book sale of the Braindeis University National Women's Committee.

The annual sale of used books at the Natick Mall starts the evening of May 2 and continues daily through May 9, all under a huge, new red and white tent located in the Route 9 shoping site. Held each year since 1964, the book sale this spring is sponsored jointly by the Greater Boston and the Framingham-Natick Chapters of the nationwide volunteer organization of Brandeis Woman.

Proceeds from the eight-day event go to support the libraries at the University.

Volunteers for this year's Natick sale report they still seek more books to add to the already huge inventory. Spokemen for the sale said the National Women's Committee maintains a year-round, free pick-up service for those who wish to donate books for sinilar future activities. Individual pick-up can be arranged by telephoning 734-8630.

One of the highlights planned for the 1973 sale will be a special collection set aside for sealed bids. In the collection, according to a committee spokesman, "will be scarce books, unique volumes and many collectors' items." Bids will be accepted from opening night of the sale and will be opened the evening of Tuesday, May 8.

MRS. EDWARD W. BROOKE was honorary chairman and hostess of the Art Institute of Boston's Auxiliary Tea, given at her home in conjunction with their current membership drive. Membership in the auxiliary is made up of women interested in the Arts.

Garden Show To Feature "A Bouquet To Fiedler"

The Garden Club Federation of Massachusetts, Inc., in cooperation with the Massachusetts Horticultural Society will present the Artistic Design Division at the annual Spring Garden and Flower Show sponsored by the Society on March 17 through 25 at the Commonwealth Armory, Boston.

The theme, "A Bouquet for Fiedler", will be in tribute to the internationally acclaimed Arthur Fiedler, Boston's "Mr. Pops". Mrs. C. Campbell Patterson, Federation president and a member of the Chestnut Hill Garden Club, heads the committee. General chairman is Mrs. E. Warren Wilkinson of Lynnfield and a member of the flower workshop of Lynnfield.

In keeping with the theme, there will be five classes in the design division schedule interpreting the musical highlights of the famous musician-director. Included will be "Overture at the Esplanade"; "Fire! Fire!" (in compliment to his being made an Honorary Fire Chief of the Boston Fire Department), "Sinfonietta"; "Old Timers' Night" and "Bravissimo".

Awards to be given at the Flower Show include The Marie Hancock Cook; The John Tayler Arms; The Garden Club of America, Zone I, Bowl and Creativity Awards.

There's one thing every lawn needs in spring...

Feeding. It's the single most important thing you can do for any lawn in spring. And when it comes to feeding, more lawnowners choose TURF BUILDER than any other fertilizer. Turf Builder isn't like those "flash in the pan" fertilizers that release their nutrients fast, causing surge growth and extra mowing. Instead Turf Builder feeds slowly, over a prolonged period. Result? Your lawn greens up. Grows denser and sturdier. And it stays that way longer.

LATEX SAND FINISH is a quick dry, easy brushing, ready for use paint made on a modern plastic base. It dries super hard and free of brush marks.
USES: Latex Sand Finish is designed for interior use on new and previously painted surfaces such as sheetrock, plaster, drywall, brick, cinder block, cement, concrete block, or rock lath.
SURFACE PREPARATION: Remove all loose scale, dirt, grease, and any water soluble material such as calcimine, or any coating which may be softened by water. Use steel wool or sandpaper to dull glossy finishes. Use metal primer over all bare metal. This material is self-priming and may therefore be used on porous surfaces.
APPLICATION: Nylon brush, mohair roller (top quality), or spray.
THINNING: Neither required nor necessary.
COVERAGE: One coat of Latex Sand Finish will cover most surfaces, including hair line cracks, fine cracks, and minor defective wall surfaces. If more than one coat is needed, allow 5 to 6 hours between coats.
TEMPERATURE LIMITS: Avoid painting when temperature drops below 40 degrees F. If Latex Sand Finish freezes, restore to room temperature before using.
CLEAN-UP: Clean equipment by washing with soapy water immediately after use.

SPECIAL $3.98 Gallon

Here's why TOWN PAINT . . . now in America's most wanted colors . . . is America's easiest to use wall paint.

ONE-COAT COVERAGE — Dries to a flawless decorator flat in just an hour without paint odors.

EASIEST CLEAN-UP — Wash out brush or roller in plain water to save you time, work and trouble

EVERY MOST-WANTED FEATURE Extra tough film of color lasts for years . . . stands up through repeated washings, touch up an area minutes or months later without visible difference.

'Go Getters' Seek Donations

On Monday March 12, Newton "Go-Getters" will commence seeking donations for the 1973 Channel 2 Auction which begins June 1. In this crisis year for WGBH, citizen participation is urgently needed.

In addition to asking Newton merchants for donations of goods and services, private contributions from Newton residents also will be sought. Paintings, antiques, letters of interest, old or rare recordings, autographs, and pre- or early-electric gadgets are but a few donation possibilities. Donors receive publicity during the Auction at the time their item is sold. Channels 2 and 44 cover an area of 12,000 square miles; in 1972 over 7 million viewers watched the Auction.

Newton area volunteers include Margo Lane and Betty Leitch, area chairmen; Janet Fox, community relations captain, assisted by Diane Paulson and Patty Goldman; and seven Go-getter captains for specific areas of the city, each of whom has several Go-getters working with her: Mrs. Mark Yesley—Waban, Newton Highlands; Mrs. Arthur Obermayer—West Newton; Mrs. Arthur Hall—Chestnut Hill, Newton Centre; Ms. Lyle Miller—Newton Centre, Newton Corner; Mrs. Marc Rector—Newton Centre; and Mrs. Wilfred Gardner—Newton Upper Falls and Newton Lower Falls.

Any potential donors not reached by a Go-getter can make a donation by telephoning 868-3800 and asking for the auction office.

large three-foot-deep oval pool. I quickly jumped in.

Then I quickly jumped out. Wow, was that water hot. At least 15 minutes elapsed before I let myself be gingerly, ever-so-slowly submerged.

Once wet, we soaped up outside the pool and rinsed off under an ex-pool shower. Then, with a bit more ease, we reentered the bath. By the way, to our chagrin, a partition divided the men's section from the women's.

When Jean finished her bath, she met a family meticulously dressing again in their kimonoes. The nine year old girl of the family looked up at Jean and asked simply "Honeymoon?"

We moved on the next morning to Atami, the "Rivera of the East," an undeserved title.

Atami lies on the ocean, but has few other characteristics reminiscent of Cannes or Nice. Where beaches ought to be lie, restraining walls reinforced by piles of hugh concrete jacks exist. But we enjoyed our day there because we stayed in another delightful ryokan, this one overlooking the sea, where an elderly woman served us royally. Unfortunately, she wanted to converse, but neither of us spoke the other's language. She did, however, ask one question in English — "Honeymoon?"

From Atami, a bus and train ride, the latter upon the 150 mph New Hokkaido Line (commonly, the Bullet), took us to Kyoto. The old capital of Japan, Kyoto abounds with shrines and temples, each unique and worth seeing, but the highlight of our week there was without question New Year's Day.

New Year's is the most festive Japanese holiday, tasty foods sepecially prepared ( I craved a brown sponge-like batter wrapped around a mound of rice) and everyone regaled in their finest, which translates kimono. At all other times of the year, only a few Japanese, usually older women, wear kimonoes. And then they are usually a dark gray or blue, nothing dazzling.

But everyone owns a kimono. And on New Year's, out they come.

The streets are a panoply of color as parades of family groups stroll to their chosen shrines to pay their religious respects. At New Year's, Japan is particularly Japanese.

At other times, however, Japan, particularly Tokyo, although foreign, too clearly approaches the West. On Tokyo's Ginza, within one block, one can find franchises for McDonald's, Colonel Sanders, and Dairy Queen. On the corner across from McDonald's, a young man was frying strange meaty looking slabs, selling them on a stick. Determined to try everything, I paid 100Y ($1) for a slabsicle and bit. Jean claims that my face turned green. My immediate reaction was to search for the antidote. I saw McDonald's and happily (and quickly) killed the taste with a cheeseburger. The slabsicle, we later learned, was a squidsicle.

Japan was an experience.

Cub Pack 205 Stages Dynamic Pine Wood Derby

The Cubs and Weblos of Pack 205, Bowen School, Newton Centre, recently held a "Pine Wood Derby" as part of their monthly pack meeting. At a Pinewood Derby the pack members race model racing cars which they have made.

In order to be eligible to compete, the cars must meet rigid standards as to length, width and weight. Each boy is given a rough block of pine wood, 2 axles and four wheels and from there they are on their own. They can shape, size and decorate the car as they wish, within the standards.

The Pack is indebted to Dr. Octo Barnett for supervising the conduct of the races and also for his help with the Webelos in constructing the race track. Mr. Edwin Taylor programmed the elimination heats and was responsible for the smooth manner in which the races were conducted.

The races were judged by Bowen School Principal Jack McLeod, Bowen School Custodian Joe McCormack and Ward 6 alderman at large Michael Lipof.

First place for fastest car was won by Karl Dinkelspiel and for best designed and built car by Danny Hoffman. Winning runner-up prizes were Steve Steinbert, Ted Seasholes and Ronnie Lipof.

Hauer Travels To India For First-Hand Cultural Study

Tommy Hauer, 21, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Hauer, 99 McCarthy Rd., Newton, has been selected by The Experiment in International Living as a participant in the experiment's Independent Study Program for the spring semester of 1973.

The program, designed in cooperation with the association of Colleges for Cross-Cultural Study, enables college students to study abroad in one of 17 countries in Africa, Asia, Europe and Latin America. Hauer has chosen to spend the semester studying the contemporary culture of India and Ceylon.

He will spend his first month overseas living as a menber of a host national family. This homestay experience, an integral part of all experiment programs, was first introduced as an experimental educational device in the early Thirties by Dr. Donald B. Watt, experiment founder, and has since been adapted by numerous educational foundations and cross-cultural associations.

Following the homestay, Hauer will move to a major city to conduct his specified research, with additional travel probably required during the course of study. He will remain abroad for the entire semester and receive academic credit from the experiment's School for International Training in cooperation with Connecticut College, New London, Conn., where Hauer is currently enrolled as a junior.

Prior to his departure for the Indian sub-continent Hauer will undergo a three-week intensive orientation and language training program on the campus of the experiment's school in Brattleboro, Vermont. Language study continues through the entire period abroad.

The Independent Study Program is offered to college students for both the fall and spring semesters. The private, nonprofit educational institution has been engaged in international education for more than 40 years providing numerous programs in more than 35 countries for high school and college students desiring an in-depth experience in other cultures.

Programs are planned at U.S. headquarters in Vermont, with the cooperation of a network of independent experiment offices staffed by host country nationals in more than 50 countries around the world.

The experiment's School for International Training was established in 1964 as an institution of higher learning specializing in cross-culture studies and language training.

It offers graduate programs in international administration and foreign language teaching, in addition to a bachelor's degree in international studies.

More than 10,000 students have studied 45 languages on the experiment's, rural campus in Vermont.

Two Enlist In Army

Two young Newton men recently enlisted in the United States Army under new programs guaranteeing the job and duty station of the enlistee's choice according to Bill Pfeltz, local army representative for Newton.

Richard H. Sullivan Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard H. Sullivan Sr., 25 Maple Park, Newton Centre, enlisted in the army's delayed entry program.

Sullivan will graduate from Newton South High School in June and will then enter active duty at Ft. Dix, N.J., where he will spend eight weeks in basic training.

Following basic training Sullivan will go to Ft. Gordon, Ga., for eight more weeks of military police training. H e will then be assigned to Ft. Lewis, Wash., for at least 16 months.

Victor A. MacLeod recently enlisted in the army for a period of three years to attend a ten-week course guaranteed him under a unit enlistment option.

He is a 1971 graduate of Christian Academy in Lexington and attended Houghton College, Houghton, N.Y. for one year. He is presently taking basic training at Ft. Dix, N.J.

For more information on this and many other job skills call 244-4011 or visit the army recruiting station at 1185 Washington St., West Newton.

Naval Officer Travels

Navy Ensign David C. Cahoon, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert H. Cahoon of 115 Sumner st., Newton Centre, is on deployment in the Middle East aboard the destroyer, U.S.S. Fiske.

Before returning to his homeport in Newport, R.I., he will have visited ports in Brazil, Angola, Mozambique, Malagasy Republic, Kenya, Saudi Arabia and Pakistan.

He is a graduate of Newton High School, class od 1968, and Villanova University, class of 1972.

Tufts Appoints Athans

Dr. John C. Athans of Newton Lower Falls is serving as an area chairman for the Tufts University Medical School's Annual Fund.

This year's record goal in unrestricted funds is $261,000.

Dr. William F. Maloney, Dean of the Medical School, said recently "It is paradoxical and perhaps a measure of our ingenuity that while Tufts University School of Medicine is in the top quartile it has one of the smallest physical plants and lowest operating budgets of the nation's medical schools. We at Tufts depend on private support, especially from our loyal alumni, to maintain the flexibility in programs to assure our continued excellence in medical education."

Dr. Athans is a 1951 graduate of Tufts. He lives at 2000 Washington st., Newton Lower Falls.

Float Study Set

A community - wide Salute To Israel workshop dealing with parade floats, will take place Sunday, March 11, 1973, 2-4 p.m., in the lounge, at the Brookline - Brighton - Newton, Jewish Community Center, 50 Sutherland rd., Brighton.

The float workshop will cover every aspect of parade floats - themes, rental of flat cars, construction and decoration. It is important for every synagogue; Hebrew school and organization to send at least two representatives to the workshop.

Dr. Larry Shu, who joined the Construction Products Division, W. R. Grace & Co., Cambridge, Mass., as a materials scientist in 1971, has been promoted to senior group leader for ZONOLITE (R) Insulation Products, dealing with research and technical service. Dr. Shu, formerly with General Electric and Celanese Research Center, holds a B. S. degree from Taiwan Cheng Kung University in Formosa, and M. Sc. and Ph. D. degrees from Brown University. He is a member of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers and has had numerous technical papers published. Married and father of one, Dr. Shu lives in Newton Highlands, at 272 Woodcliff road.

Mrs. Fine Aids Blind

Mrs. Richard Fine, of Newtonville, recently donated the furnishings and equipment for the lobby in the Boston Aid to the Blind's new building at 1980 Centre street, West Roxbury.

The gift was made in memory of Mrs. Fine's parents, Max and Bessie Morrison.

of the fixtures in the city fall into this age bracket and, therefore, can be replaced, the committee noted.

However, the committee further recommended additional comprehensive study by a consultant firm, into the first two areas of choice. This would be needed to determine the overall costs incolved in either of the alternatives.

The Electric Committee was made up of: Robert L. Sandman, chairman, Sylvia Apelbaum, Harvey Forman, Marvin Fox, W. E. Knight, Victor Nicolazzo, Robert Ricles, Howard Salmen, Jerry Sundell, Peter Ulin, and Henry Wilson.

When the contract went out about three years ago, Capello Brothers was the only bidder to respond. The Purchasing Department indicated bid invitations went to 50 firms this time and the five named responded.

Hospital Cites Area Women

Three Newton area residents, Miss Elizabeth Hammond, Mrs. Leona Sanderson and Miss Mildred Bradley, were recognized in the March issue of the Newton-Wellesley Hospital's "Newell Post" for their many years of service of the hospital.

Honored for 30 years of service Miss Hammond of Auburndale, senior patient service food supervisor in the hospital's dietary department, joined the hospital staff as assistant cafeteria supervisor in 1943.

Mrs. Sanderson, a resident of Newtonville, was recognized for her 25 years of service. She joined the hospital staff as head seamstress in 1948 and was promoted to her present position as sewing room supervisor five years later.

Miss Bradley, also from Newtonville, has been a member of the hospital's dietary department staff for 20 years.

Innovations In Sound

You've probably never thought of your car as an ideal stereo listening studio. Well, it is! The minute you sit in your stereo equipped auto, you're blanketed in thrilling sound. You'll witness an entirely new perspective in stereo listening; a richness in stereophony and realism of sound reproduction that has never before been possible. Now, with stereo tape cartridges, whether you listen in your car, home, boat, plane or trailer you enjoy an unparalleled sound sensation . . . crisp clarity and maximum fidelity, superior craftsmanship . . . and a wealth of music for every taste from Broadway to The Beatles, from current hits to classical.

Stereo cartridges are carefully engineered to afford maximum reliability and convenience of operation.

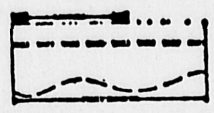
1. You never have to thread or even touch the tape.

2. You may change from one stereo program to another with the press of a button.

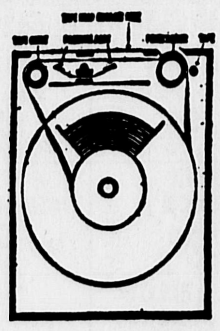
3. Tapes are continuous and never need rewinding.

4. With a minimum of care, the playing life of the tape is practically unlimited.

What is four-track and eight-track stereo tape? Within the ¼-inch tape width, music is recorded on four or eight parallel tracks which run the length of the tape. Two tracks play simultaneously and produce true stereo sound. Standard tapes provide up to 40 minutes of continuous music. Twin cartridges up to 80 minutes.



How does a tape cartridge work Stereo cartridges contain a tape in a continuous loop, which simply means that the tape runs from the center of the spool and is returned to the outer lap of the reel. Thus, never needs rewinding. Inserting the cartridge into the tape playback unit is probably as easy as replacing your cigarette lighter in the dash.



Seeing is believing, however, and perhaps the least expensive method for you to experience the unusual convenience engineered into a stereo tape is to visit a dealer and ask for a demonstration.

Realizing that stereo tapes are here to stay, Lechmere Sales of Cambridge and Dedham is now compiling substantial stocks. This foresighted record dealer and department store devoted exclusively to providing the consumer with even a larger and more complete musical selection than previously realized with the more traditional record album departments.

Long recognized as a retailing leader and innovator, Lechmere now features perhaps the largest selection of stereo tape cartridges in New England. It's a certainty that a visit to either Lechmere in Cambridge or Dedham will prove a most rewarding musical experience.

Newton Reps Seek State Ban On Non-Returnables

State Representative Lois G. Pines (D-Newton) and her colleague, Peter F. Harrington (D-Newton), recently appeared before the Committee of Commerce and Labor in support of a proposed house bill which would require a deposit and refund of not less than five cents on beverage containers.

Pines stated that "the no-deposit beverage container is rapidly on the increase in the nation and in the Commonwealth, yet the benefits of deposit container legislation long extolled by environmentalists, consumers, small bottlers and others are already appearing the Oregon with the passage of their deposit container legislation in 1971."

Harrington added that a 1971 Opinion Research Survey refuted the contention of the beverage industry that the consumer does not want returnable containers.

That survey reported 64 per cent of the American people approved of legislation requiring a deposit on beverage containers, according to Harrington.

Both Pines and Harrington emphasized that "returnable bottles bring a cost savings directly to the consumer that a non-returnable does not."

Both Democratic representatives from Newton have been extremely active in the field of environmental protection.

Pines was instrumental is drafting landmark legislation to allow individual citizens to sue polluters of the environment and Harringtn has sponsored proposals to reduce the amount of road salt in Newton and initiate the City's compost program.

Over the past several weeks they have been actively engaged in promoting their refundable container bill and have called for the creation of a coalition group to work together for passage of their legislation.

To bring the consumer interest closer to home, Pines cited a survey taken recently by a fourth-grade class at the Countryside Elementary School in Newton.

An environmental questionnaire on deposit containers was sent home to the children's parents. A majority of those who returned the survey were in favor of a deposit system but were unable to find deposit bottles in the stores where they shopped.

"Beverage companies claim these statistics do not hold up to actual purchase of beverages in returnable containers, but this is not a fair criticism since most stores do not carry a great deal of soft drinks and beer in returnables," stated Pines.

Both Pines and Harrington explained that the principal function of the proposed legislation is to provide an incentive to bring the individual and society's interest together.

"Less litter, less solid waste, less energy demand and lower beverage costs to the consumer remain outstanding positive outgrowths of such legislation," according to Pines.

"Friends For Life" Formed

The National Jewish Theatre announces the establishment of the "Friends for Life" and plans for a gala Mar. 31 Soiree.

"Friends for Life" is chaired by Mrs. Marvin Milton and co-chaired by Mrs. Sidney Fruman, both of Newton.

According to Mrs. Milton, the purpose of the "Friends for Life" committee is twofold. The primary aim is fundraising for the new non-profit Equity touring company. Second, the "Friends for Life" will nurture a relationship between the financial supporters of, and artists in, The National Jewish Theatre company.

The latter aim will be realized with a Champagne Soiree. At the Mar. 31 reception, "Friends for Life" will meet and mingle with cast members from The National Jewish Theatre prior to the April 5 opening of "The Wall" and commencement of the premier season.

apartment units informing tenants of recent changes in the law regarding the rights.

"State law now entitles a tenanct of sub-standard dwelling to withhold rent for up to two months, and requires a landlord to apply this amount toward repairs, provided a city inspector has informed the present landlord the housing is a health and safety hazard," said Shugrue, his committee also recently distributed leaflets to over 100 apartment units informaing tenants of recent changes in the law regarding their rights.

"State law now entitles a tenant of sub-standard dwelling to withhold rent for up to two months, and requires a landlord to apply this amount toward repairs, provided a city inspector has informed the present landlord the housing is a health and safety hazard," said Shugrue.

He also added that state law requires landlords to give tenants five percent interest per year on security deposits and refund those deposits within 30 days of vacating the dwelling.

"While it seems tenant organization is novel for the involvement of Fair Housing, we've always been interested in seeing Justice administered in Newton with regard to housing," explained Shugrue.

CONSUMER POWER.
YOU GOT IT, BABY.

And we know it.
We know you're fed up with a lot of things.
Like sky high prices,
shoddy merchandise that doesn't hold up,
shopping around in circles,
and promises, promises, promises.
To say nothing of rudeness behind the counter, waiting forever for a sales clerk,
getting pushed into a sale,
worrying if what you need is in stock,
and wondering if what you bought is what you really wanted in the first place.
You've had it. You're ready for a change.
Otherwise, you're just not going to spend your money. Period.
We don't blame you, we're with you.
Best Buy Catalog Showrooms.
A shopping phenomenon. A new way to buy. Faster, easier, cheaper.
Dependable brand names, over 10,000 items, priced for the entire year up to 50% below retail.
Here's how you shop with us. You simply come in to one of our showrooms where all of the brand name items in our catalog are on display. For you to touch, look at, think and ask questions about.
When you decide you're ready to buy, we fill out a ticket with you, and call our huge warehouse downstairs on the intercom. Believe it or not, your merchandise is up on the conveyor belt and in your hands within six minutes. How do we do it? We by-pass the middleman. It's as simple as that.
We buy in great volume directly from the brand name manufacturers, maintain a huge inventory in our vast warehouses, keep our overhead low and sell in volume directly in our catalog showrooms.
That's our story. Honestly and simple.
Except for one thing. That fabulous 352 page full-color catalog of ours. We've got one waiting for you in the showroom right now.
Free, of course.
Come on in, pick up your catalog, take a look around and just to prove a point compare a few prices over the next few weeks.
You'll see what we mean.
And what consumer power means.
Still paying retail?
Forget it.
Best Buy Catalog Showrooms. Where you save the difference.
And then some.

Newton Y Offers Varied Program

The Newton YMCA will once again offer a complete program of physical, recreational and educational classes this spring. Registration for adult courses is now taking place, while youth registration begins March 21.

The youth program features a new magic class taught by Joseph Carota, an instructor and performer in many Massachusetts clubs. The course, which is offered boys and girls 10 years old through high school, covers everything from the history of magic to tricks with salt shakers. Rope magic, paper magic, sponge routines, card magic, cup and ball tricks, coin magic and mental magic-mindreading are among the other features of the class.

The highly successful children's crafts program, run by long-time "Y" instructor Tobey Hirsch, includes ceramics, printmaking and weaving, painting, a general crafts workshop and a unique class for children, three-five, called "Arts n' Tots."

Other youth classes include two dance programs. Ballet, taught by Mr. John Duane, is scheduled for children six and older. Duane has studied at the University of Mexico, the New York City Ballet Company and Warner Brothers Studio.

Creative dance, taught by Miss Wendy Martz, emphasizes movement, games and improvisations to make use of children's natural flexibility. A "Y" instructor for many years, Miss Martz teaches boys and girls four and older.

Sewing, guitar, chess and photography clubs, swimming instruction, recreational swimming, softball, fitness classes and gymnastics round out youth activities.

An executive fitness program for men heads a list of more than 30 adult classes. Based on the famous T. K. Cureton system, the jogging and calisthenics course meets three days each week at 7:15 a.m.

Three popular co-ed programs are once again offered. Tennis lessons, with professional Edward Lamb; karate, taught by black belt Scott Connelly; and judo, with black belt John Hogan are available.

Seven arts and crafts courses are offered adults, including a class in leaded glass which was highly successful when given for the first time this winter. Mrs. Linda Martinez will teach students to design, cut and lead or foil figures of lead chanel into finished works. Cathedral, or stained glass is also used to make articles suitable for window display.

Cooking, with the Boston Globe's Easy Elegance Award winner Mrs. Marilyn Finger, is one of a number of educational and recreational classes. The course uncovers the secrets of delicacies such as Quiche Lorraine, omelettes, crepes and souffles for those with little or no kitchen experience.

Mitchel Johnson, a broker for Harris, Upham and Company, again offers his class in investment for those interested in learning what information sources are reliable and how to analyze them. The course introduces the student to the various types of stocks, bonds and other securities, and focuses on the strengths and weaknesses of each.

Adults who are interested in drawing, painting, flower arranging, ceramics, enameling, stitchery, ballroom dancing, modern dance, bridge, yoga, folk guitar, dressmaking, sewing, driver education, swimming, volleyball or exercise classes will find something for them at the "Y." Classes begin the first week in April. For more information, call the "Y" at 244-6050.

WALK-A-THON—Newton Mayor Theodore D. Mann has announced plans to walk with young people April 14 for the benefit of Muscular Dystrophy. The mayor will meet the group of marchers when they cross the Newton line on Commonwealth Avenue by St. Ignatus Church. The 17-mile walk is to end at Government Ctr. in Boston. Miss Susan Storrie (left) of 87 Barrett St., Needham, can be reached at 523-6000 by anyone interested in joining the walk for this illness.

Community School At Horace Mann

The Horace Mann District of Newtonville will have a five-week Community Schools Program beginning Tuesday, March 13.

The following courses are being offered free of charge, except for materials, in 7 to 9 p.m. classes: Mother-Daughter Tone-Up Program, Stained Glass, Astrology, Knitting, Crochet and Macrame, Cooking.

Classes will be limited in size and early registration is suggested. For further information, call 969-5932.

Newton High Gymnasts 3rd

By DAVID CUTLER

A promising third place finish in the Suburban League Gymnastic Meet ended a rather disappointing season for Newton. The Pigers finished with a 5-6 record, 3-4 within their league. It was a marked improvement over the 2-9 season in 1972, but not nearly up to Coach George Jessup's high standards. "We would have been much more successful if the boys had worked harder in the beginning. We didn't have any outstanding athletes but the team made up for that with very consistent performances throughout the year," said Jessup.

The year was an up and down one for the Tigers as they could never put together two consecutive victories. A high point came against Quincy on February 9. Tom Currier, Chris Brown, and Tony Weber, with scores of 6.30, 5.60 and 4.05, respectively, gave Newton a 15.95 mark in the pommel horse event; a school record. Coupled with a regular season high schore of 12.90 on the parallel bars this projected Newton to a 84.45 - 73.40 win.

Other Tiger victories came against Winchester, Wellesley, Weymouth North and Brookline. Newton High was defeated by North Quincy, Lexington, Newton South, Brockton, Arlington, and Weymouth South. The Brockton loss was by a margin of 0.05 points, 73.70 - 73.65.

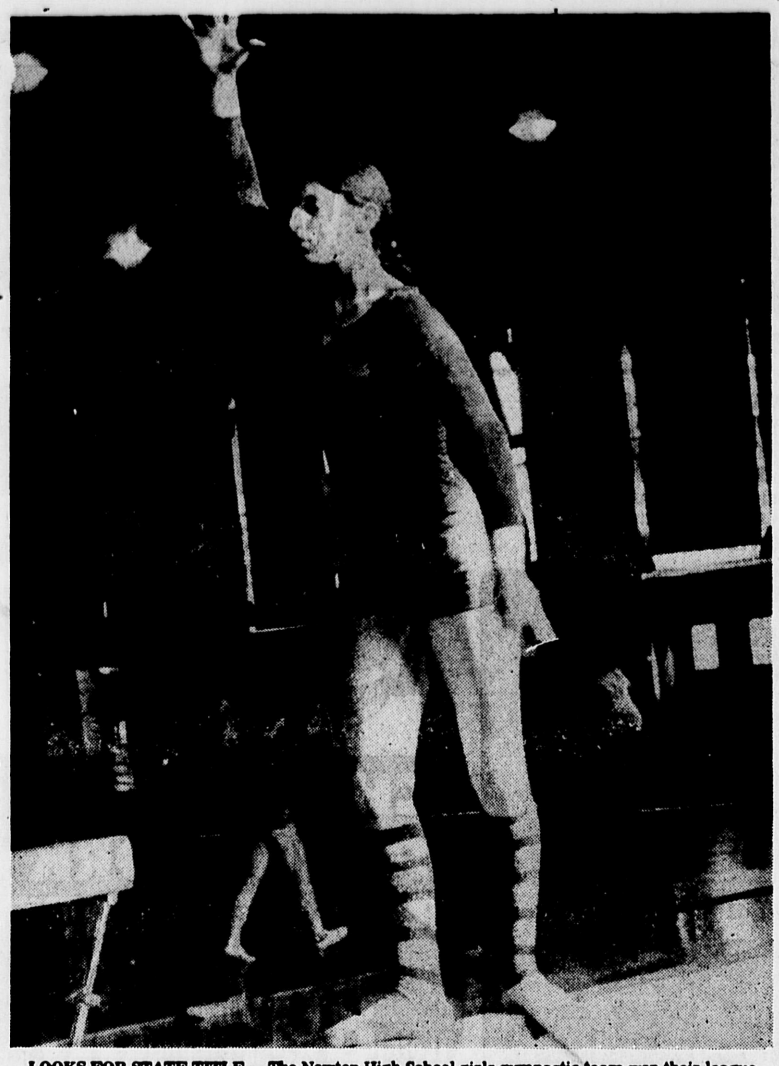
Five of Newton's defeats were by less than five points. "We were in all of the matches until the end," said Jessup. "It goes to show how much balance there is in the Suburban League," he added.

The Suburban League's balance showd up even more clearly in the League Meet on Friday, February 16. The order of finish in the final standings and in the meet were shuffled, but the meet results had no bearing on the final standings.

| TEAM RECORD FINISH IN MEET | | |
|---|---|---|
| Arlington | 7-0 | (2) |
| North Quincy | 6-1 | (4) |
| Brockton | 4-3 | (5) |
| Wey. South | 4-3 | (1) |
| Newton | 3-4 | (3) |
| Brookline | 2-5 | (6) |
| Wey. North | 1-6 | (7) |
| Quincy | 0-7 | (8) |

The results of the League Meet determined the participapnts for the State Individual Meet on Saturday, February 24. Chris Brown was the only Tiger to finish high in the States as he took third place on the pommel horse. Six other Suburban Leaguers finished in the top ten in their events. "It was a pretty good showing by our league," said Jessup.

This year's squad was made up mostly of seniors. "We really won't be left with much of a nucleus for next year's team," said Jessup. "But a lot of hard work could mean a more successful season for us in 1974."



LOOKS FOR STATE TITLE — The Newton High School girls gymnastic team won their league title again this year and will be competing in the state tourney this Friday and Saturday. One of the big stars for the club is undefeated junior Margie McGraw who is favored to win the individual meet on Saturday. She and her mates are also given anexcellent chance for the State Title. # Three Inducted Into B.U. Hall Of Fame

New England Whalers Coach Jack Kelley will be one of three former Boston University athletes inducted into the Varsity Club Hall of Fame at its annual banquet April 13 at the Case Center the University's new multi-purpose sports facility. The banquet will serve as a climax to a week of dedicatory events at the Center.

Others to be inducted are Don MacLeod, All-American hockey defenseman in 1958 who also starred in baseball and is now assistant principal at Acton-Boxborough Regional High School, and Bob Capuano, class of 1953, one of Boston University's greatest football players, who still holds team records for most touchdown receptions in a season. Capuano, a native of Cranston, R. I., died of a heart attack in 1964 and will be honored posthumously.

JACK KELLEY

A resident of his native Belmont and a former resident of Walpole John H. "Jack" Kelley '52 was an All-East defenseman at Boston University and until recently ranked among the school's top 10 career scorers with 53 goals and a total of 95 points. He was named most valuable hockey player in 1952, was a member of the Terriers' NCAA Tournament teams in 1950 and 1951 and also played a season with the U.S. National Team.

Kelley's coaching career began in 1952 as a football and baseball coach on the island of Martha's Vineyard. In 1955, he became hockey coach at Colby College in Waterville, Maine, posting a seven-year record of 89-51-5 in his final season there, he was named NCAA Coach of the Year, the first "small college" coach to be so honored.

He was appointed Boston University coach in 1962. In the next 10 years he guided the Terriers to unprecedented heights, developing from four NCAA Tournament teams and winning the national championship in 1971 and 1972, the only Eastern school to win the title two years in a row. Kelley also became one of only five coaches who have captured the NCAA championship more than once. His Boston University teams won six Beanpot tournaments, one Easter championship and compiled a record of 206-80-8 for a winning percentage of .720.

Accepting the challenge of professional hockey a year ago, when he was named general manager and coach of the New England Whalers in the new World Hockey association, Kelley has developed one of the most successful franchises in the fledgling league.

DON MACLEOD

Don MacLeod, a native of Needham who, as a child, moved with his family to Charlottetown, Prince Edward Island came from Canada to Boston University in 1954 on a baseball scholarship and went on to excel in that sport and in hockey as well. On the ice he was named New England's top defenseman as a junior, was All-East three successive years and as a senior in addition to being named All-American, won the E. Ray Speare and George V. Brown Memorial Awards as Scholar-Athlete of the Year and most valuable hockey player respectively.

MacLeod was a standout pitcher for the University for three years. He was honored in 1958 as the Terriers' most valuable senior baseball player after compiling a career pitching record of 17 wins and six losses. A strong hitter, he often played at second base, shortstop, or in the outfield when not pitching. Chosen for the Greater Boston All-Star team three successive years MacLeod was signed to a minor league contract by the Milwaukee Braves upon graduation. Top pitcher in the Mid-West League in 1959, with a record of 13 victories and only three defeats, he stayed with the Braves organization for four years.

Upon the conclusion of his professional baseball career, Don became a teacher-coach at Acton-Boxborough High School, heading up the baseball and hockey programs from 1962 to 1967, when he was appointed assistant principal.

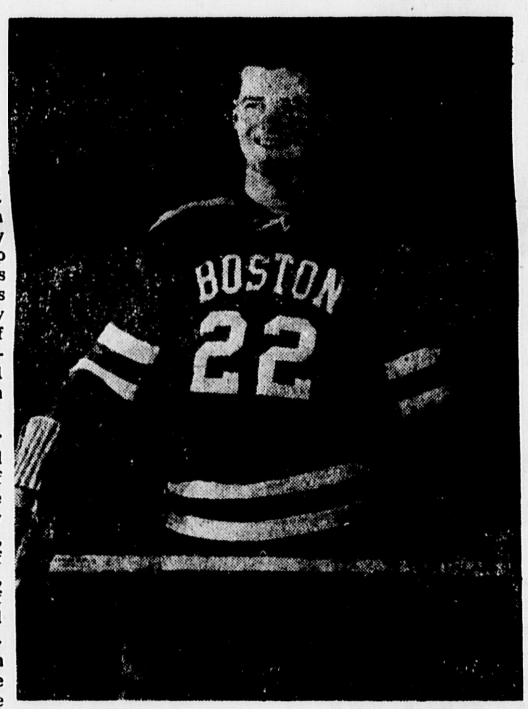
MacLeod earned a master's degree in Education at Boston University in 1965 and is now working toward his docorate. He lives in Framingham.

BOB CAPUANO

Robert L. "Bob" Capuano was voted in 1964– along with George Sulima who was inducted into the Hall of Fame last year – as one of the two top ends in the University's post-war football history. He came in 1949 from Cranston High School, where he won honors as an All-State end in his junior and senior years. He became a favorite target of the immortal Harry Agganis, and in 1951 caught three touchdown passes in a game against the College of William and Mary, a team record which still stands.

Capuano also set a career record of 10 touchdown pass receptions although he played only two years. Elected captain for the 1952 season, he was forced to leave school because of illness and was not able to return.

While at Boston University, he was selected in 1951 as the Outstanding Italo-American Athlete of the Year for Rhode Island and also starred in basketball. His parents still live in Cranston.



HALL OF FAMER — Former Boston University great Don MacLeod has been named to the Boston University Hall of Fame along with former Hockey Coach Jack Kelley and football great Bob Capuano. MacLeod starred in hockey and baseball for B.U. and was a former Needham resident.

South Gymnasts Have Best Season

It's definitely the best group I've ever had," said coach Tom Steeves, and that just about sums up the Newton South High gymnastics season.

The Kions lost two meets to start the season and then ripped off seven straight victories before falling to Lexinton in the final match of the season.

South's newest sport (five years old) never before had a winning record and the way the season began with defeats to Framingham North and Lincoln-Sudbury, it looked like the gymnasts were doomed to another losing year.

The meet that turned the season around was one of the most satisfying, an 87.30 to 83.66 decision over arch-rival Newton High, the second time in the last two years South has claimed victory.

After that the Lions topped Brookline, North Quincy, Dennis-Yarmouth, Weymouth North, Weymouth South, and Wellesley before falling to a rugged group of Minutemen, 84.75 to 84.55.

Gary Framson, a regular winner in the long horse vault and floor exercise, plus a regular placewinner in the parallel bars, and Mark Taricano, who by season's end was scoring in five events, were the two individuals most responsible for the Lions' success.

Bruce King, a consistent winner in the horizontal bar, Mark Forte and Jay Levine are other performers who will graduate. All were big scorers in the South wins.

Other important contributions came from Andy Sisson, Dave William, John Pershe, Joe Duggan, Barry Stone, Gary Spielman, Ricky Gove, and Richie Baruch.

FINAL RECORD 7-3

Newton Wrestlers Finish Second

By DAVID CUTLER

It has been a very good season for Newton High School's Wrestling Team, almost a great one. They finished second in the Suburban League with a 3-1-1 record. They tied Brookline, the first place team, and lost by three points to Brockton in the final weight class. "It was a very close season," said Coach Norm Walker. "If a couple of decisions had gone the other way. . ."

Even in post - season competition Newton always came out the bridesmaid. In their Division Sectionals, the tournament which decides which wrestlers go on to the State Tournament, the Tigers came in as a team fifth. Those individuals who finish in the top four in their weight class qualify for the States. The fifth and sixth place alternates. Tony D'Amico, John Womboldt, Mike Bates, George Hebard, Marc Bordieri, and Dave Eagleson qualified, but none came in first. Eagleson had to withdraw because of a knee injury he sustained as he wrestled twenty pounds above his own weight. Cliff Brown, Mark DeWolfe, and Donny Keefe were alternates. "We did very well", said Walker. "We came in fifth out of nineteen teams. But if a couple of others had won. . ."

In the States Newton's wrestlers again performed well, but not well enough. None of them finished in the top five. "When you've gotten this far the competition gets pretty tough," said Walkar. "It's been just like the rest of the season. We lost a lot of matches by one point or lost leads with very little time remaining. You just can't make mistakes."

hebard, Bates, an Bordieri were all underclassmen who qualified for the States. Bates is moving away, but Hebard and Bordieri will both be back next year. Bodieri, only a sophomore is a real success story. He started the season as the number two heavyweight behind a possible State Champion. But when the opportunity came for him to wrestle he trimmed down and got in shape to the point where by the end of the season he was good enough to qualify for the State Tournament.

Hebard tied D'Amico for the best record on the team, 13-1. Along with Mike Annesi, Mark Siegenthaler, John Trumbull, and Phil Rosenblatt he will give Newton a lot of experience in the lighter weight classes.

"We'va got a lot of kids returning in almost every weight class," said Walker. "We may be weak in the heavier weights, but I think we'll have a really fine team."

South Wrestlers Have Another Winning Season

Newton South's outstanding wrestling team topped off its 10-3-2 season's slate and third place finish in the Eastern Sectionals by placing two men in the state championships.

Senior Dave Berkowitz, who placed third in the states as a junior, moved up to a second-place in the 147-pound class after winning the sectionals. He faced Wayland's Mark Kowalski in their rubber match and lost. He also lost to Kowalski in their dual match but beat him in the Sectional final.

John Staulo, another senior, also finished second. Staulo, who didn't go out for wrestling for the first time until midway through his junior year, competed in the heavyweight category.

Golf Lessons Resume Soon

Golf lessons under the direction of the popular Dan Meany will resume at the Newton Community Service Centers on Mar. 7 and 9.

Meany's course consists of seven one-hour lessons which cover stance, the driver, fairway woods, long irons, middle irons, chipping and putting.

All teaching equipment is supplied, although pupils may use their own clubs if they wish. Sneakers, or more other type of comfortable footwear should be worn.

For additional information or registration, contact the centers at 969-5906 or visit 429 Cherry St., West Newton during the week between 9 a.m. and noon, or 1 p.m. to 4:30 p.m.

South High Track Roundup

By Lewis H. Freedman
Asst. Sports Editor

Coach Don Sutherland wasn't too optimistic before the season started. He knew his team had a long way to go before it could match the power of some of the other Dual County League track entries. And his pre-season analysis turned out to be accurate–the other teams were just too strong for the Lions.

The South track team completed its 1972-73 season with an 0-7 record, last in the league, and the worst mark ever compiled by a Sutherland-coached team.

"We have 27 people out for the team, but we're weak," stated Sutherland before the Squad's first meet. "Unfortunately, we just don't have much speed. They're good kids, and they work hard, but from the looks of the league, with people like Acton-Boxboro, which is a really good club, Westwood, and Wayland, things could be pretty terrible."

No, it wasn't an optimistic preview, but the team went ahead and fulfilled the prophecy. The Lions just didn't have it this year.

The closest the team came to a victory was a 52-34 thrashing at the hands of Bedford.

Individually, although the Lions suffered from a lack of stars and depth, there were some steady, top-notch performers, notably co-captain Jack Ferreri, and senior Barry Kaplan.

Ferreri, who started the season with a good effort in the 1000-yard run, quickly moved down to the 600 and won five races, collecting a best time of 1:20. He also earned a third place medal in the Dual County All-League meet. In his only 1000, the hard-working runner was timed in 2:31. He totaled 35¼ points in all this season.

Kaplan, who didn't go out for track until his junior year developed into a dependable high hurdler and improved his shot-putting tremendously, reaching past 46 feet. He was a double winner on four meets and paced the Lions in scoring this year with 45 points.

Outside of those two performers South didn't have too much to offer in competition with the other teams. Co-captain John Mason turnd in some good efforts, mostly behind Ferreri in the 600, and Don Podufly was dependable for points in the hurdles and high jump.

It would be nice to be able to say that things are going to be better for the Lions next year, but from all appearances it doesn't seem likely.

GREAT KIDS

"They are a great bunch of kids," said Sutherland, "and they work very hard. At no time did their spirit get low. They were terrific, but they just don't have enough speed, and worse than that, they don't come out until they're juniors or seniors. There would be a lot more development if the boys came out as sophomores. You can't expect miracles overnight if you're not a natural. And most of our guys have to work."

So unless there's a tremendous crop of incoming sophomores from the Newton junior highs, South's track team next year is going to face the same difficulties it did this year–not enough speed and not enough depth.

FINAL RECORD: 0-7

Boston College Sports

Heralded freshman Al Weston, who fired in 43 points earlier this season in his first trip to Boston against Boston University, sank a turnaround jump shot in the closing seconds to beat Boston College, 66-65 in his encore performance, last week.

Weston finished with 18 points and got plenty of aid from Calvin Chapman, who beat him by one point.

The Eagles had four players in double figures. Freshman Bob Carrington and senior Tom Anstett tied for top honors with 15 points each. Guard Jere Nolan tossed in 12 points and captain Bobby Smith added 10.

The hoopsters' record is 10-14.

\+ + +

The Eagle hockey team bested Bowdoin, 5-1, last week and carry a 17-5-1 record into the ECAC Division I playoffs, this week.

BC is seeded third in the eight-team tournament, behind Cornell and Harvard and just in front of Boston University.– LEWIS FREEDMAN

Taunton Wins Division Title

The Taunton High School basketball team, which hadn't been in the state tourney since 1942, and had never won a game in the tourney won the Division One Southeastern State Championship at the Boston Garden on Monday night before over 6,000 fans. They now move into the Semi - Finals of the state basketball championship. Taunton had their toughest game in the opening round when they just edged Newton North High School in a thrilling 64-63 win. On Monday night they rolled over highly regarded Dorchester 70-59 to cop the title. . . (David Cutler

Firestone to Open New Store on VFW Parkway

The Firestone Tire & Rubber Company is expanding its marketing network of company-owned stores in the greater Boston area with the opening of its 12th outlet here on Monday, March 12.

The new retail outlet, one of the largest in the area, is located at 1528A VFW Parkway, West Roxbury. It will have eight service bays and an estimated 6,500 square feet of sales and service area, according to J. Ballentine, district manager.

The grand opening will continue through Saturday, March 17. During this time visitors may register for a set of Firestone 500 winter tires and other prizes.

"We believe the growth potential in the greater Boston area justifies the continued expansion of Firestone's company-owned stores," said Ballentine. "We are tire specialists and feel that with the new locations we have recently opened we can better provide this community with the important car-care service needed to keep abreast of the area's growing motoring demands."

The center will offer the motorist the latest in automotive maintenance Operated by trained technicians, it will include the most modern equipment available for providing service for tires, front-end alignment, wheel balancing, mufflers and brakes.

The complete lines of Firestone passenger and light truck tires will be available at the center.

Recruiting Drive By Army Reserve

The need to place much greater reliance on the Reserve components in the future has resulted in an intensified Army Reserve recruiting drive, Major General Leonard W. Cronkhite said yesterday.

The Commanding General of New England's 94th US Army Reserve Command, speaking at the 94th's Boston Headquarters to a gathering of Unit Commanders explained that the increased recruiting effort is the result of streamlining and sharply reducing the size of the active Army, while at the same time recognizing the reality that the nation must have an Army that is combat ready for any emergency.

By bringing the assigned units of the Reserve Command in Conn., Maine, Mass., NH, RI and VT to full strength, over 12,000 prior service personnel as well as initial enlistees will be serving, on a part time basis, in paid military positions closely related to their civilian occupations. At the same time they will have opportunities for promotion and retirement benefits, General Cronkhite emphasized. In addition, he pointed out that for those interested in learning a new skill, vocational and educational opportunities are plentiful.

Another area of activity mentioned by the commander was that of community service as part of normal training. "We have trucked dental units to clinics serving the economically deprived; we have rescued residents from flooded areas; children have been provided with free medical examinations and glaucoma clinics offered in many communities; Boy and Girl Scouts, and YMCA and YWCA camps have been restored, and greenhouses have been constructed for community beautifucation projects", he said.

Unique to the 94th Reserve Command is the 187th Infantry Brigade. The Brigade is exclusively a Massachusetts organization, and is commanded by Brigadier General Sumner Z. Kaplan of Brookline. This unit has already announced openings in these job areas where training will be provided if individuals don't now have the skills: personnel and supply; heavy equipment operations and vehicle maintenance; clerical skills; military police; communications; combat engineers; and artillery operations.

Other typical units in the 94th include, among others, the 167th Support Group; 804th Hospital Center; 626th Military Intelligence Battalion; 329th Engineer Group; 395th Supply and Service Battalion; 729th Transportation Battalion, and the 3rd Judge Advocate General Detachment.

Deadline For Teachers Examinations

Less than two weeks remain for prospective teachers who plan to take the National Teacher Examinations at Boston State College, Saturday, April 7 to submit their registrations for these tests to Educational Testing Service, Princeton, N.J.

Registrations for the examinations must be forwarded so as to reach the Princeton office not later than Thursday, March 15.

Bulletins of Information describing registration procedures and containing registration forms may be obtained in person from Room 109A at Boston State, 625 Huntington Ave., or directly from the National Teacher Examinations, Educational Testing Service, Box 911, Princeton, N.J. 08540.

At the one-day test session a candidate may take the Common Examinations, which include tests in Professional Education and General Education, and one of the 27 Teaching Area Examinations which are designed to evaluate his understanding of the subject matter and methods applicable to the area he may be assigned to teach.

FOR WHEAT'S SAKE

NEW YORK (UPI) —If the more than 43,000 grain cars of Burlington Northern, the nation's largest grain hauler, were coupled together the train would stretch more than 400 miles and have a capacity of 2.6 million tons of wheat, according to a railroad buff who likes to figure out things like that. That, he says, would be enough to make 28 one-pound loaves of bread for each person in the United States.

V.A. Newsletter

The postman rings 92 million times a year at various offices and hospitals of the Veterans Administration, a VA survey discloses.

Thus when writing to VA, the veteran should include full name and address; claim (c) number, if he has one, or his military serial or Social Security number.

Also, include the ZIP Codes as these have become an integral part of moving the mails. VA, for example, sorts its mail by ZIP Code when the volume warrants it, such as in the issuance of insurance notices.

Names and addresses of VA installations may be found in the white pages of telephone directories, it was pointed out.

—o—

EDITOR'S NOTE: Veterans and their families are asking thousands of questions concerning the benefits their Government provides for them through the Veterans Administration. Below are some representative queries. Additional information may be obtained at any VA office.

Q — How much of the money VA spends goes to Vietnam Era veterans?

A — About one-fourth of the VA budget, currently $12.4 billion, goes to direct payments such as compensation and G. I. Bill and for medical care for Vietnam veterans, who now make up about one-fifth of the living veteran population.

Q — How many Vietnam veterans is VA hiring? How many have been hired "on the spot" by VA without having to process through the usual time-consuming procedures?

A — More than half the men hired by VA for full time paying jobs in recent months have been Vietnam Era veterans. More than 12,000 Vietnam Era veterans have been hired "on the spot" by VA under Veterans Readjustment Appointments since these were begun in April 1970.

Q — I am amazed at the marvelous spirit of the VA hospital volunteers in my state and how much they do for sick and disabled veterans. Just how important does VA consider its volunteers? How much do they do for patients, nationwide?

A — Volunteers are an essential link in VA medical care and rehabilitation, and VA considers itself blessed with the best voluntary service support in the nation. Volunteers from 440 organizations contribute almost 10 million hours per year to VA patients, plus a large volume of gifts for individual and in-hospital use. More such helping hands are needed! Those interested should contact the director of voluntary service at the nearest VA hospital.

Concert to Aid Columban Fathers

Ireland's leading entertainers in song, dance and comedy will provide the talent for the annual Boston concert staged by the Columban Fathers, Milton, in aid of their foreign missions.

The concert will be held in Symphony Hall on Sunday, March 11, at 2:30 p.m.

Compering the event will be Ireland's No. 1 humorist, Hal Roach, "The Bob Hope of the Emerald Isle" who has just completed a successful run at Las Vegas.

The vocal section of the program will be headed by Dublin's Maura Kelly, widely-acclaimed star of Jury's Cabaret who performs to her own harp accompaniment.

With her will be Edmund Browne, tenor, who stole the show on his last appearance at the Columban Fathers four years ago.

Unitarians Sponsor New Singles Group

Uncoupled, a mature singles group, is being formed by the First Unitarian Society in West Newton. The first meeting will be held March 18 at 8 p.m. in the church, located at 1396 Washington street.

Despite changes in attitude toward divorce and marriage, Rev. Polly Laughland of the First Unitarian Church said she thinks that "the special problems and needs of the single person (uncoupled) are not being met."

"Single persons in Newton should have the dignity of some sort of socially accepted structure which provides the opportunity for friendships and open communication of feelings, experiences, ideas and problems," Rev. Laughland said.

The Uncoupled group will serve as an alternative to other "Singles Groups," she added.

The Uncoupled group plans to meet weekly on Sunday evenings with a flexible program. Discussion topics will be varied: introduction to transactional analysis, loneliness, alternative life styles, values clarification, sex roles, fear, anger, and suggestions which come from the group. Parties, potluck suppers and outings with children are other possibilities.

All mature singles, separated, divorced and widowed persons will be welcomed to Uncoupled, regardless of race, religion, sex or age. If you wish more information, feel free to contact one of the coordinators: Marjorie Hartl 969-8305, Carolyn Hagan 527-4138, Judy Friedman 332-6366, or Mary Beaton 332-9153.

Lenten Meeting Slated

On Wednesday, Mar. 14, the Men's Club of The Union Church in Waban will sponsor a Lenten Dinner and program for the church family and guests.

Beginning at 6 p.m. there will be a social hour in the reception room. Dinner will be served at 6:30 p.m. by members of Group 2 of the Women's Association under the leadership of Mrs. Matt B. Jones.

The Rev. Justus J. Fennel, Jr. will speak on the subject: "I have a Dream - What's yours?"

A graduate of Yale University and Yale Divinity School, Mr. Fennel is presently finishing up his work toward a doctorate in the field of psychology of religion and pastoral care at Boston University.

He has experience in clinical training with the Foundation for Religion and Mental Health in Westchester Country, New York, and is a certified counselor with the American Association of Pastoral Counselors.

Prior to his coming to the Boston area, he was pastor of the Presbyterian Church of Katonah, N. Y. He is currently doing counseling at Hancock United Church of Christ in Lexington and at the Union Church.

On Mar. 15, Dr. Fred Field Goodsell will begin a series of four lectures on "The World's Great Religions." There will be special emphasis on our Christian faith in contrast to the other major faiths of humanity in these presentations.

Sponsored by the Women's Association, these lectures will be held in the reception room at 10:30 a.m. The specific topics for each date are:

Mar. 15 - "What is Religion:"

Mar. 22 - "The Chief Characteristics of the Oriental Religions."

Mar. 29 - "The Central Emphases of the Monotheistic Religions

Apr. 5 - "The Cost and Rewards of Sincere Christian Discipleship."

Rabbi Tells Of Revolt

Rabbi Philip Kievel will deliver a lecture on "The Revolt of Bar-Kokhba-Fact and Faction" Tuesday, Mar. 13, at Temple Reyim, 1860 Washington St., at 9:15 p.m.

His lecture will be part of the Combined Adult Education Series of the Conservative temples in the Newton-Chestnut Hill area.

Dr. Kieval serves as rabbi of Temple Reyim, Newton. Ordained at the Jewish Theological Seminary of America, he received his M.A. and his PhD. in Jewish history from Braindeis University.

He completed his undergraduated studies at Johns Hopkins University, Baltimore, and graduated from the Baltimore Hebrew College.

He is presently vice-president of the Massachusetts Board of Rabbis, and from 1968-1970 held the office of president of the New England Region of the Rabbinical Assembly.

Rabbi Kieval will analyze the revolt of Bar-Kokhba in the light of recent archeological discoveries, including actual correspondence by Bar-Kokhba on the Second Jewis Revolt againt Rome.

PTA Slates Meeting

The John Ward School PTA has issued an invitation to join them for an informal evening with Aaron Fink, superintendent of the Newton Public Schools, Joseph Gattuso, principal of the John Ward School, and Dorothy Reichard, school committee member.

The meeting will be held on Wednesday, Mar. 14, at 7:30 p.m. 84 Eliot Memorial Rd. Wine and cheeses will be served.

Shoe Sale Slated

The PTA of Temple Emanuel of Newton will hold a shoe sale in the Benjamin Vestry on Tuesday, Mar. 13, from 10:30 a.m. till 9:30 p.m.

There will be shoes and boots from sizes four through 11. There will also be the latest styles in spring and summer handbags.

Come early for the best selection in color and size. Prices will start at $4.99.

Scholarship Concert Series Slated To Open

The All Newton Music School will open its annual Scholarship Concert Series Friday March 16, at 8 p.m.

Burton Fine, the principal violist of the Boston Symphony Orchestra and Harold Wright, principal clarinetist with the Boston Symphony will be the featured performers at the first concert of the three-part series.

Money from the Scholarship Fund series is used to cover private instruction, class lessons and transportation to talented but needy young musicians.

Anyone interested in an elegant, intimate and excellent evening of music can contact: Mrs. Florence A. Moore, 324 Crafts St., Newtonville.

Tickets are $5 for adults and $4 for children. A champagne reception for Patrons and Sponsors will follow the concert.

Swanton Retires

John R. Swanton Jr., is retiring Mar. 1 from the Arthur D. Little, Inc., Consulting Engineers, Cambridge, after 28 years of service in the air conditioning and air pollution fields.

He directed numerous ADL research projects for the American Society of Heating, Refrigerating and Air Conditioning Engineers and was chairman of the Engineering Foundation Conference last summer on "Improving Indoor Air Quality."

He will be doing private consulting from his home in Newton after his retirement.

Life Span

Washington — Average life expectancy of industrial workers i the U.S. is 70 years.

WALKING HELPS — Checking the pedometer as Henry Ferrick, left, 64, of Auburndale starts his daily 10 - mile hike is Lewis M. Sherer Jr., general manager of the Marriott. Ferrick, a weekend employee, took up walking after a severe heart attack four years ago. He was described as "good as new" as a result of patient and persistent efforts to overcome the effects of his heart attack with daily walks.

Temple Concentrates On Race Conflicts

The adult education series, "Jewish Values and Social Crisis," continues at Temple Beth Avodah this Friday, Mar. 9, following the worship services at 8:15 p.m.

This program will focus on "Inter-racial Problems in Today's Society," and the guest speaker will be Mr. Jack E. Robinson, past president of the N.A.A.C.P.

Mr. Robinson was graduated from Roxbury Memorial High School, and received his B.S. degree from Boston University School of Education. He has taught in the Boston School system, and has been on the Board of Directors of several civic programs, such as Action Boston Community Development. Alliance for a Safer Greater Boston. Massachusetts Attorney General Advisory Council and Boston Manpower Area Planning Council.

With his extensive experience in local problems, Ms. Robinson should be able to enlighten us in a discussion of some of the important issues which face us here. Regardless of some of the important issues which face us here. Regardless of personal feelings on social integration, it is an issue that must be faced and dealt with and will ultimately affect us here in the suburbs as well as those in the inner city.

Another issue with which Mr. Robinson has been involved is the problem of Mattapan where Black-Jewish relationships can be an explosive factor.

A question and answer period, as always, follows the speaker's presentation.

The congregation of Temple Beth Avodah cordially invites the public to join them for this frank and honest discussion, as well as sharing in the Sabbath worship. For further information, please call the temple office, 527-0045.

Baptists Celebrate Family Night

The World Mission Committee of the First Baptist Church in Newton Centre will hold a Family Night Supper on Sunday, Mar. 11 from 5 - 7 p.m.

This will be a 'bring-your-own' box, sack or picnic supper and all are welcome. The guest speaker for the evening will be Rev. Michael Ireland of Rochester, New York, a resource leader of Genesis II, a house church.

Sponsored by agencies of the American Baptist Convention and the United Church of Christ, this ecumenical project is an attempt to recapture the power of the early Christian house church while creating a self-sustaining model of the local church of the future.

The morning worship service at 10 a.m. will feature a sermon entitled "When the Power Goes Off" by Associate Minister Mike Scrogin. He will be assisted by Kenneth Joines, an assistant in pastoral care.

Following the service three new adult discussion groups begin a new seven-week series. Kent Wittrup will lead a discussion of "Religion and Rock," a look at what rock music has to say to us today. Dr. Lynn Verhey and Sue Ellen Scrogin will lead a group on Christian perspectives on careers in "Christianity Seven Days a Week;" and Richard Wittrup and Phillip Croteau-Chonka will deal withe the subject of affluence and being a Christian in "Can the Camel Go Through the Eye of a Needle?"

All friends of First Baptist Church are invited to participate in this adult discussion series.

Good Shepherd Gives Lenten Series Schedule

The Church of the Good Shepherd in Waban will hold two separate Lenten programs this year, one on Tuesday evenings and one on Wednesday mornings, from March 7 - April 11.

The Tuesday evening program, scheduled to run from March 13 through April 10, will begin at 6:45 p.m. with a short Communion service. A Pot Luck supper will follow at 7 p.m. and at 8 p.m. a Lenten Seminar will be led by Rev. William E. Foley. This series is entitled "What Do We Believe?" and will cover the development of the Christian community and its creeds. A concurrent schedule of events for young people from the fourth grade through high school age involving participation in a series of play readings is also planned.

Younger children will be the audience for the dramatizations, completing a schedule of activities for the entire family. Guests from outside the parish are invited to attend. The only requirement for admission to the Pot Luck Supper is that each participating family bring a food contribution for the general table.

The Wednesday morning program runs from March 7 - April 11 and consists of a 9:30 a.m. Communion service followed by a conference given each week by a representative of a different religious persuasion.

Guest speakers will be Rabbi Chiel of Temple Emanuel, Msgr. Parsons of St. Philip Neri Church, Father Gallos of St. Demetrios Greek Orthodox Church; Sister Ashe of Sacred Heart Convent, Father Wessinger of the Monastery of St. John the Evangelist.

These informal conferences will begin at 10:30 a.m. and will be preceded by a coffee hour. Guests from outside the parish are invited to attend.

Church of the Good Shepherd is at 1671 Beacon St.

Baptist Minister Honored

Rev. Louis E. Ford, pastor emeritus of Myrtle Baptist Church of West Newton, will be honored at an Appreciation Day sponsored by the church on Sunday, Mar. 11, 1973.

The day will start with dinner at 4 p.m. in the social hall of the church. Dinner will be followed by a Service of Appreication.

The guest preacher will be Rev. A. Roger Wi..iams, former pastor of Massachusetts Avenue Baptist Church, Cambridge, and presently pastor of Union Baptist Church, Hartford, Connecticut.

The pastor of Myrtle, Rev. Harold A. Pulley, will be master of ceremonies and has extended an invitation to all churches, organizations and individuals whose lives have been touched by Rev. aford to be present for this Appreciation Day.

Among the invited guests are Mayor Theodore D. Mann, Special Justice Monte G. Basbas, Dr. and Mrs. Paul Johnson, Geraldine Robert former organist, the Medley family of Haverhill, Dr. Wendell Yeo and people from the business community with whom Ford has had contact as a manufacturer of brooms.

Rev. Ford was born in Martinsburg, West Virginia in 1888 and came to Massachusetts on a scholarship to attend Boston University School of Theology (1921-1923). He remained in the area as an interim pastor at Swain Methodist Mission in West Newton, pastor of Zion Congregational Church in Haverhill and finally as pastor of Myrtle Baptist Church for 31 years (1933-1964).

He is Past Eminent Commander of Knights Templars and Grand Senior Chaplain of Prince Hall Grand Lodge, Massachusetts. Rev. Ford is Past Master of Eureka Lodge No. 8 F. & A. M. and a member of St. Phillip Chapter No. 3 Royal Arch Masons.

His avocation, as he calls his manufacture of brooms, is a trade passed on to him by his father and his grandfather, Abraham Ford, who was an Elder in the Methodist Church in 1869.

Rev. Ford and his wife, Madonia (Dorsey) Ford, have taught five blind men from the Massachusetts Division of the Blind to make brooms in their factory located in Natick. He is still actively making brooms and 13 local businesses carry them.

Under his leadership the church was freed of debt and the mortgage was "burned." New furnaces were installed, the outside of the building covered, the interior refurbished and new electronic organ installed. A parish house was also purchased.

Rev. and Mrs. Ford have a daughter, Delores (Ford) Harper and three grandchildren living in Cincinnati, Ohio.

The Appreciation Day is being co-chaired by Mrs. John K. Williams and Rev. Richard Wright. Other members of the committee are Mrs. Robert Haywood, Mrs. Matthew Jefferson, Mrs. Oscar Carter, Sr., Mrs. Warren Houston, Deacon James Spikes, Howard Haywood, Alfred Haywood, and Rev. Harold A. Pulley.

For further information regarding the Appreciation Day, please call the church office 332-5870 or Mrs. John Williams 332-4330 or Mrs. Jefferson at 332-0810.

Board's Statement on Financial Aid to Students

To aid both the taxpayers of Massachusetts and to bring a more realistic balance between public and private higher education in the Commonwealth, the Board of Higher Education has announced a major new financial aid and tuition policy statement. The Board's position offers a reasonable point to begin the thoughtful re-examination of the Commonwealth's financial aid and tuition policies by all concerned parties.

Chancellor Patrick McCarthy stressed the Commonwealth has reached a critical point in terms of financial aid in both the public and private institutions of higher education. He noted that the Board's policy statement was an attempt to "open up the financial aid log-jam and begin meeting real student aid needs that have become increasingly ignored."

McCarthy pointed to four factors that have brought the Commonwealth to this crisis point: the slow growth of present state scholarship programs; the inadequacy of present programs in dealing with the total financial needs of students, which include a wide variety of fees above actual tuition charges; the threatened loss of substantial previous federal commitments for student aid; and the current financial crisis of Massachusett's private institutions.

The Chancellor stated the Board's policy resolution had two messages. The first to the Executive and Legislative Branches of state government pointing out the financial aid crisis and stressing financial aid funding must be considerably expanded before tuition levels are changed. And secondly, a message to public higher education, that if adequate financial aid monies can be secured, then tuition levels must be raised to a more realistic level for those who can afford it.

The resolution stressed four major themes. First, "it is time for a restatement of tuition and financial aid philosophy that will be geared to public policy for all higher education in Massachusetts." Second, that that philosophy must include the guarantee of higher education for all Massachusetts citizens with the ability and desire for it "without discrimination because of age, race, sex, religion, national origin, or economic condition." Thirdly, that "this policy should be centered on the individual with the objective of allowing him the maximum freedom of choice in pursuing his educational objectives in either public or private institutions." Lastly, the Board clearly states its position that tuition levels cannot be rudely manipulated without prior financial aid commitments.

The actual policy of the Board is attached:

The Secretary of Education seek sufficient funding to eliminate financial barriers to education generated by the total costs to students of attending college in both public and private institutions of higher education.

That the funds for this financial aid program be derived from the General fund, and specifically that tuition revenues not be viewed as a source for these funds.

That creation of a financial aid fund must recognize that tuition waivers are not sufficient to cover the costs facing students.

That the financial aid fund must be sufficient to overcome the loss in financial aid in both the public and private institutions that results from federal decreases in categorical sources of financial aid to students.

When the Secretary has designed the fund and obtained the appropriation sufficient to its purposes and made available such funds to the Board of Higher Education for distribution, the Board of Higher Education recommends that the segmental boards employ their power to set tuition and bring the level of tuition in each segment to a point that is in the range of 30 to 40 per cent of the appropriate cost of instruction.

HURRICANE PREDICTION

MIAMI, Fla. (UPI) — Cuba plans to install three new radar weather stations to aid in hurricane prediction, according to a Cuban radio broadcast monitored here.

The stations will be set up in easternmost Oriente Province, on the Guanahacabibes Peninsula in the extreme west, and on the Isle of Pines, which lies south of Cuba's western region. The equipment is being obtained under a United Nations aid program, the Havana broadcast said.

Julia Phillips Finds Joy In Film-making With Husband

Julia Phillips used to dress just like any other sophisticated Mount Holyoke graduate and New York magazine editor in trim but inconspicuous grays, blacks and browns. She was a successful woman in her early '20s in Manhattan and as such never called attention through sartorial display, any more than the Boston Brahmins did.

about her life and her pictures, one forgets all about how this Boston visitor looks. You listen. "Steelyard Blues," is the first production of the Bill - Phillips Productions. It was written by David Ward, who also wrote the upcoming "The Sting," in which Paul Newman and Robert Redford co - star.

"Bless their hearts, the two of them talk on TV and to the interviewers everywhere about "The Sting" even when they are supposed to be selling other films," said Julia with an ingenuous smile.

Apparently film stars can't help but be nice to Julia. With Jane Fonda, Donald Sutherland and Peter Boyle in the cast of "Steelyard Blues" one might have expected that new producers would have a lot of trouble — including fits of temperment, sharp differences of opinion and quarrels about the plot.

"Not at all," said Mrs. Phillips. "Jane wasn't late one single time and blew up in her lines only once. The three stars got on beautifully together and their performances seemed almost dedicated."

One thing did happen, and that was a total rewriting of the picture's conclusion. The result is that a film which might have gone into the violence - killing category turned into what has been called by writers a "Zap comic book" and proudly displays a PG rating which allows the kids to attend in droves.

The leading character in "Steelyard Blues" is played by Donald Sutherland, and he is a some time jailbird, pickpocket and demolition derby expert. When his brother — the District Attorney — blackmails him into getting a respectable job, he is found cleaning out a lion's cage at the zoo.

A Navy amphibious airplane which he and his pals try to restore comes into the plot, which includes a whole gaggle of friendly ragamuffins. As originally written, the sticky brother and his cohorts were killed by Sutherland and his associates as they tried to escape — a really violent ending. Now, nobody dies and the plotters come to one of the wittiest, funniest, and most fantastic ends that writer Ward could come up with in his last minute change of pace.

"They didn't even kill the guard," beamed Mrs. Phillips, "The shoot-off was off."

She is a real judge of film stories — and why not, since the young professional was Eastern story editor for Paramount Pictures and later creative executive for the Mirish Company, before taking the same position with the newly - formed First Artists group which included Paul Newman, Dustin Hoffman, Barbra Streisand, Sidney Poitier and others.

Her distinguished experience by the age of 28 has made it fairly easy for her to get the really big name stars and technicians to work for Bill - Phillips. She is very happy that George Roy Hill, who directed Paul Newman and Robert Redford in the prize - winning "Butch Cassidy and the Sundance Kid" is now directing the same pair of stars in "The Sting."

Julia's husband Michael is the financial genius of the group. He is a member of the New York Bar, a graduate of Dartmouth and New York University Law School, and has been high up in financial counselling, stock market analysis and investments.

Tony Bill was a successful actor (You're a Big Boy Now') before he turned producer. Bill's first picture as a producer was "Deadhead Miles," starring Alan Arkin, as yet unreleased.

Newton Tennis Buffs Face New Court Rules

Newton Tennis Buffs Face New Court Rules

New regulations for tennis courts under the jurisdiction of the Newton Recreation Department have been announced by Commissioner John B. Penney.

The Newton Recreation Commission at its last meeting voted the changes according to Commissioner Penney.

The fee for a season permit for adults has been increased from $5 to $10 and the season permit will cost students $5 instead of the former fee of $3.

These permits may be obtained by Newton residents at Recreation Department Headquarters, 70 Crescent st, Auburndale, after the middle of April, and at the Newton Centre Playground, Burr Park and South High School courts once the season is underway.

Permits will be required before Newton tennis enthusiasts can play at Newton Centre, Burr Park or South High. An attendent will be on hand at Newton Centre and Burr evenings and weekends and at the South High lighted courts weekday nights.

Newton residents who do not wish to buy a season permit may reserve a court for $2. with a three hour-limit per week. These reservations may be made up to a week in advance.

Student permit holders shall this year, for the first time be accorded the same privileges as adults on evenings and weekends. They may also reserve courts on the day of use, but not in advance.

Out of town guests of Newton resident season permit holders may play for a $1 fee.

Commissioner Penney emphasized that these regulations applied to only the clay courts at Newton Centre and Burr Park and the lighted courts at South High. They account for only 15 of the nearly 60 courts available throughout the city.

Senior Recreation Supervisor James E. Murphy, reporting on senior citizen activity, says that between 25 and 30 residents of Parker House in Newton Centre, were guests recently of the Needham Congregational Church for the famed Morgan Memorial Fashion Show which depicts fashions down through the years.

The final standings in the American A Division of the City Basketball League have been reported by Recreation Supervisor William J. Barry, the League Director.

The Silver Lake Electronics Club finished on top with a perfect nine and zero record followed by the George's Cafe Club sporting a seven and two slate. Tied for third, until a playoff game, are Centre Pizza and Waban Wonders at six wins and three losses each. Next is another tie at five and four, South High and the Stern Club. The O'Malley Club and the Keyon Club are also deadlocked with three wins and six losses each while the Warriors at one and eight and the Verts, zero and nine, complete the standings.

In the B Division the Boys Club finished number one although the second place Bucks, seven and two, spoiled their record with a 62 to 56 win. The Boys Club final slate was eight and one. The Lovemen and Stumblebums have also posted seven and two records for the season to date. Oakly Spa has a record of six and two.

Barry Reports that the division has another week to go before the playoffs start.

A sure sign of an early spring is Barry's announcement that any team in the A, B or C Softball League last year should contact him to signify their intent to play in the league this year.

The League will again, because of a scarcity of diamonds be limited to three 8-team divisions. New teams will be considered when openings are available.

Recreation Intern Auston Moore, reporting on the semi-final play in the National League Playoffs, reports that the Brewers and the Beginnings, two evenly matched clubs, have to go to a third game to decide the issue. After the Beginnings took the opener, the Brewers came back for a 49-45 overtime win.

The Lakers won their round and will face the winner of the third Brewer-Beginnings meeting in the finals.

In the Pony League Recreation Supervisor Robert E. Doherty reports that the playoffs will be held this week with the Boys Club and the Hawthorn Lakers opening an two out of three series. Warren and Sacred Heart will also square off. The finals start the week of Mar. 12 and should conclude the week of Mar. 17.

Pony Division standings: Newton Boys Clubs, eight and one; Warren, six and three; Sacred Heart, six and three; Hawthorn, four and five; Newton Centre, three and six and the Beginnings, zero and nine.

According to Recreation Supervisior Fran Towle, A Division of the Newton Recreation Department's Women's Volleyball League will feature a 2 out of 3 series between the Y-ettes and the Set-Ups. It should be close because both finished regular season play with eight wins and two losses apiece. Other places in the final standings were late Bloomers, five and five; Burr Rockets, four and six; Carr Blues, three and seven and Bouncers two and eight.

Playoffs in B Division, two out of three games will begin at Day Junior High the week of Mar. 19.

Current standings are: Bell Telephone, nine and zero; N's, seven and four; Independents, seven and three; Newton's six and five; Rebels, four and five; Smiles, three and seven and Highland Carpets, zero and ten.

Fran reports that a meeting of the Women's Softball League was held recently to discuss the coming season. Present were Carol Stapleton, president; Kathy Sweeney, treasurer; Nancy Bartly, secretary, and Mary Morrison reporesenting Auburndale Gulf; Ann Brady, Tony's Villa, Peg Connolly and Dot McCormick.

In a swim meet held recently the girls of the Newton Swim Team defeated Weston Junior High School, 44 to 33. The meet was decided by the final event, the freestyle relay. Members of the Newton relay team were Kate Green, Patty Ryan, Joanna Bonazoli and Liz Young.

The Newton medler relay swimmer, winner of the event, were Mary Mulvaney, backstroke; Joanne Fay, breastroke, Patti Higgins, butterfly and Liz Young, freestyle.

Newton winners in the individual events were Patty Ryan, 25-yard freestyle; Mary Mulvaney, 50-yard backstroke and Joanne Fay, 50-yard breastroke.

The Newton Swim Team posted another win at the Wayland Town House Pool, a 119 to 91 victory over St. Zephrins. In the 12 and under group, winners were Paul Higgins, a triple winner with first place in the 25-yard freestyle, the 50-yard Freestyle and the 50-yard backstroke; Kate Green, 50-yard backstroke and 50-yard breastroke and Joanna Bonazoli 50-yard backstroke.

Winners in the 12-14 age group included Mary Mulvaney, 50-yard backstroke and 50-yard butterfuly and Patti Higgins, 50-yard butterfly.

Other Newton swimmers who placed were Liz Young, Janet Collins, Kate Green, Sue O'Halloran, Frank McKay, Bryan Monohan, Dede Jordan, Melinda Berry, Anne Mulvaney, Beth Ryan, Caroline Ryan, Marianne Fay, Patty Ryan and John and Phillip Deacy.

Miss Towle reminds mothers and daughters of the special classes and notes that the Toneastics classes are currently being held at the Newton Centre Field House. For further information call the Recreation Department at 969-3171.

Registration is now being accepted for the special exercise class to be held beginning Mar. 13. The class will be held on Tuesday evenings from 7 to 9 p.m. for daughters registered in the fourth, fifth and sixth grades and their mothers. The place, the Horace Mann School. To register, call 969-3171.

"Jimmy Fund" Day at Garden

Wives of the Boston Celtics players and F. & M. Schaefer Brewing Company have joined support of the Celts' "Jimmy Fund Day," sponsored by H. P. Hood Inc. at Boston Garden, March 18.

The Celtic wives will compete in a foul-shooting contest at halftime of the Celts-Kings game that Sunday afternoon. Each will shoot five free throws, and for every basket Schaefer will donate $10 to the Jimmy Fund.

Competing will be Kathy Finkel, Jackie Chaney, Kaaren Sanders, Diane Kuberski, Sharon Nelson, Bessye Williams and Cindy Westphal. Three others will be cheerleaders — Beth Havlicek,, Estelle White and Carolyn Silas. They are restricted to the sidelines while awaiting a visit from the stork, but will be cheering on their Celtic sorority sisters.

Mrs. Kuberski was the top shooter (making three of five shots) in last year's Hood game as the wives' sharpshooting earned $250 for the Jimmy Fund.

Thus the wives' marksmanship again will benefit children's cancer research.

So will fans who mail-order tickets for the game through the Jimmy Fund or Hood offices. Half-price of such ticket purchases go to the Jimmy Fund. Tickets bought at Boston Garden or any other outlet are not applicable and will not benefit the Jimmy Fund.

Ticket orders can be mailed either to the Jimmy Fund (Hotel Statler-Hilton, Boston, Mass. 02117) or to H. P. Hood's Physical Fitness Dept. (500 Rutherford avenue, Charlestown, Mass. 02129). Regardless of which address, checks or money orders should be made payable to the "Jimmy Fund" and should specify the number of tickets, price range ($5, $4, $3 and $2) and return address.

Tickets will be returned by mail, along with a matching number of souvenir ballpoint pens inscribed to commemorate the event.

Any questions can be answered by telephoning (617) 242-0600 (ext. 370).

Boston College Seminar On Real Estate Mar. 14

If you plan to invest in a home or if you are interested in career opportunities in real estate, the Boston College Finance Academy is holding a day-long seminar to help you. Entitled, "Real Estate . . . Residential Investment, Government Involvement," the seminar will be held on Wednesday, March 14 from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. in McGuinn Auditorium on the Boston College campus.

The seminar will feature ten distinguished panelists who will focus on problems such as what to look for in a neighborhood before you invest, how to purchase a home, where to look for sources of mortgage capital, how to develop residential land, how to build with government funding, and how to manage income producing property.

Speakers for the seminar will include William McCall, president, Greater Boston Realtors Association; Lois Ernst, president, Lois Ernst Association; C.L. Gildroy, vice president, Northeast Savings Bank; Daniel Weisburg, professor of economics, MIT; Robert Speller, president, Five Cent Savings Bank: Fielding Hilgartner, vice president, Data Realty Corporation; Paul Parks, director, Model Cities Program; Joseph Corcoran, developer, Boston Redevelopment Association and HUD; Robert Kenney, director, Boston Redevelopment Association; and Dr. Edward Kaitz, dean, Georgetown Business School.

All students and anyone interested in the seminar topics are invited to attend. There is an admission free of $3 which includes a luncheon, reception, and materials. For further information about the seminar, contact the Boston College Finance Academy at 969-0100, ext. 2471.

Blue Denim Bible Befits Its Title

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Blue Denim Bible, hip pocket size, is true to its title. It has an authentic cotton denim cover—just right to capture the hip pockets of all jean wearers in the youth market That's everyone.

Published by World Arts Foundation in New York, the Blue Denim Bible's text is the popular American Bible Society's new English translation—Good News for Modern Man. This version is a favorite with Jesus Freaks and others in the youth culture.

The denim covers fit with the new informality accompanying the resurgence of interest in religion — an informality marked by carrying, reading and living with the Holy Bible.

From their pre-teen years through adulthood, potential readers dressed in blue denim jeans or similar casual attire can carry these Bibles wherever they go, stuff them into their pockets, read them as casually as younger children read comic books or older ones, "Mad" magazine.

Illustrated, the Bible in tune with contemporary styles and attitudes is not an ornament to lie around on a table to impress visitors and gather dust. Rather, it is to be referred to and carried about. It makes "Good News" portable.

Nature's Ways

By WAYNE H[illegible]EY
(Mass. Audubon Society)

It's odd how money can change the language.

For instance, ditch - digging existed under that alliterative name for many centuries. When my Irish ancestors dried off the sea spray, they became ditch - diggers, or at least, the males did. Later to escape the indignity of the shovel, they became cops and politicians. But that was more than a century ago.

No large corporations, outfits that hold a few million dollars in massive earth - moving machinery which they must keep busy around the clock and calendar are ditch - diggers. But, now that it's big money, the word ditch - digger has changed. It's channelization today. How proud my great - grandfather might have been to be a channelizer!

However, call it what we may, ditch - digging has not been thoroughly sanitized. The National Water Commission in its recent draft statement for a national water policy frowns a bit upon ditching — oops, channelization.

The Commission suggests that the cost of flood control and drainage projects (which includes channelization) should be assessed against "the lands benefitted."

What the Commission is saying in plainer English is that there can be little enthusiasm and no reason at all why payers of federal income taxes should enrich ditch - diggers whose work is destined to make some owner of wetland considerably richer. Or, more simply, if you want channelization to turn a wetland into farmland, pay for it yourself.

In commenting upon the Commission's vision, Dr. Robert Davis, economist, and Roland C. Clement, ecologist, said:

"Large windfall gains have accrued to owners of lands benefitted by federal projects, and biologically important wetlands have been destroyed in the process. We agree that by making the beneficiaries pay the full costs, only those projects which are economic for the private landowner will be constructed. This would certainly eliminate many channelization projects. . ."

What strikes me as strange is that the Commission and commentators on the draft report have overlooked a real subsidy paid to those fortunate enough to have the taxpayers create land for their personal gain. The facts are that in most channelization projects the landowners down stream pay a price even greater than the taxpayer pays.

Water falls as rain—or snow in more northern regions — and it has to go someplace. For reasons too complex to explain, it goes downhill, as it always has. The implications of this downhill movement are rather simple. If one removes a catch basin by channelization, the water that would have lingered there rushes downstream and floods even wider in the next low spot. So whoever borders that marsh, swamp or wetland finds water standing where water never stood before.

If a home or factory stands within that new high - water mark, the owner pays a price which in effect subsidizes the upstream channelization. In other words, as in most things, one man's gain is another's loss.

Prison Artists Breach The Walls With Brushes

By CARRICK LEAVITT

VACAVILLE, Calif. (UPI) — Rapist Gerry Matthews plans to bank more than $7,000 by selling the paintings he will make in a Vacaville state prison barber shop during the next two years of his term.

Bob Jahemelick, 39, says his impressionistic originals "are where it's at" and they sell quickly on the "outside."

His paintings feature deep blue tones or solid browns and sport titles like "The Disciple." They reflect a life of rambling through the cities of America, with frequent stops in jails and prisons for crimes ranging from narcotics to second-degree murder.

"I didn't really come from anywhere. Mainly I was frustrated with my society," he said.

Mike Adams is a [illegible]-year-old car thief from R[illegible] Nev. He started painting in the "Old Joint" —the[illegible]let, Ill., state prison—[illegible] in 1968.

"I [illegible]ed into a guy's stall one [illegible] and saw him painting. I offered him $10 to do one for me and he said, 'I'll teach you,'" Adams said.

Four years later and in another prison Adams is enrolled in a handicraft program involving some 375 inmates.

The painters have become a singular success, increasing their earnings far above the pocket money picked up by other convicts through the sale of handmade jewelry, chessboards and ceramics.

"We had one man here—he's gone now—that made so much money from his paintings that he had to pay income taxes," said Vernon Pereira, 48, handicraft manager. "It was the first time in his life he mwde enough money to have to pay taxes."

The program is on an honor basis and is designed as a type of therapy. Inmates must have six months' "clean time," hold down regular prison work details and purchase their own materials such as paints, wood and metal.

Many earn money to get started by donating blood or serving as guinea pigs for pharmaceutical companies. They can earn $7.50 per pint of [illegible] and $15 to $25 a month for being test subjects for untried drugs.

Work at Night

The artistic temperament must be indulged, even in prison, and cell monitors allow the elitist painter group to work after the lights out order is given.

"I turn out my best stuff at night," Adams said.

Jahemelick works as a prison typist during the day. "I trip a lot at night—not drugs—I mean I think a lot," he said. "Night is when my imagination gets going, but I have to stay away from painting too much of my imagination. It gets me in the mood—I have to be in the mood to paint."

John Calvert, 48, Crescent City, Calif., shares the eight-foot-by-eight-foot barbershop-studio with Matthews. He was convicted of strongarm robbery.

"I have a lot of years facing me," he said. "This helps to beat the time. It's a heck of an escape."

Matthews waved his hand at paintings cluttering the brick walls in their little studio. "It's the first time I've ever become totally involved in anything," he said. "I did this when I was here in the early 60s. I hope to do it again."

Twenty-five per cent of the sale price of paintings is poured back into the prison's welfare fund. Ten per cent of the handicraft sales are given to the fund. The inmates may keep the rest.

Vacaville sponsors two handicraft fairs a year, drawing 10,000 to 14,000 visitors each day of the event. Pereira said that is when most of the inmates' work is sold.

But a hobby shop just inside the prison gates is operated seven days a week by a trusty. Leather goods and paintings in particular are beginning to move more frequently.

Word of the availability of the paintings is spreading among art dealers and private collectors.

"How many places can you buy an original oil painting complete with frame for $35?" Pereira said.

"Art dealers from as far away as New York City know this and they send buyers around on a regular basis to purchase the finer works for resale," he said.

At Spring Flower Show . . .

Many Breathtaking Arrangements

Mention flower arranging to some people, and they think of sticking some flowers in a vase.

But flower arranging is actually an art, and can be seen at its best during the Mass. Horticultural Society's Spring Garden & Flower Show, March 17-25, at Commonwealth Armory in Boston.

One of the most popular highlights is always the breathtaking arrangements created by Boston Chapter 17 of Ikebana International.

More than just flowers and containers, these artistic arrangements represent more than 13 centuries of study by Ikebana followers in Japan and the world over.

The Ikebana experts even attribute certain human qualities to different plants, and give special importance to certain flowers for the different months.

Although there are many different styles and schools, the basic concept behind Ikebana is that the arranger cuts flowers, and then recreates nature with individual creativity.

At the Flower Show, the Ikebana experts will use a series of seven latticed cages with live birds to accent the exotic flower sculptures.

Beautiful arrangements by the Garden Club Federation of Massachusetts will be in the form of a floral salute to Arthur Fiedler, the famed conductor.

Entitled "Bouquet to Fiedler" this exciting arrangement will portray Boston's own "Mr. Pops" by skilled and creative flower specialists.

Throughout the week of the show, eighty arrangers will create arrangements to interpret such themes as "Overture on the Esplanade," "Sinafonetta," and "Fire, Fire."

Objective of these floral settings will be to capture the spirit of an evening at the "Pops" including music stands, red carpeting, podiums and Boston Ferns.

The arrangements will be changed four times throughout the nine days of this Spring festival, to insure fresh flowers for all show visitors.

Another unique section will show how flower arrangements can be an integral part of room design and interior decoration. In this, Jack Davis Florist of Chestnut Hill will use room settings, including beautiful antiques, to demonstrate how different flowers can be used in a man's den, living room or dining room.

The Flower Show is always a mecca of information for the amateur gardener, with different exhibits showing everything from backyard design to care of houseplants.

The Horticultural Society is also planning a unique learning center so that show visitors can know on the spot African Violets, Begonias, Bonsai, growing plants under artificial lights and many other subjects.

The Society has also made a special effort this year to increase the facilities available for the Fower Show visitor, including enlarged restaurant and more rest room facilities.

In addition, a special shuttle bus will travel from the Boston Common underground garage to the Armory throughout the weekend hours of the show, and during the evenings on weekdays.

Admission to this mammoth floral festival, covering 2½ acres, is $2.75, and show hours are: Saturday, March 17 — noon to 10 p.m.; Sunday, March 18 — 1 to 10 p.m.; Monday, March 19, through Saturday, March 24 — 10 a.m. to 10 p.m., and Sunday, March 25 — 1 to 8 p.m.

MAPC Opposes Cuts in Housing, Human Services

The executive committee of the Metropolitan Area Planning Council has voiced unanimous opposition to the cutback in the federal rent subsidy program and the scheduled freeze in federal assistance to urban renewal programs and all aid to public housing.

Council Executive Director Richard M. Doherty of Westwood who will be in Washington, D. C., this week to discuss the cutback and funding freeze with the Massachusetts Congregational Delegation and representatives of the President, expressed the council's serious concern with the housing policy of the Administration. "The MAPC," he said, "as the officially designated regional planning agency for the 101 communities of the Boston region, is vitally concerned and involved with the orderly growth and development of the metropolitan area. The current administration's avowed de-emphasis on human service programs is a threat to such growth and development."

The formal resolution unanimously endorsed by the Executive Committee stated that "Human and social services for a vast amount of Americans today are not being met, especially in the area of decent housing. The Metropolitan Area Planning Council is vitally concerned with providing a decent home for every family in its region, and our hopes are to do so by the use of federally subsidized rent and mortgage programs as well as other means. Let it therefore be resolved that the MAPC executive committee and the technical advisory committees on Housing and Land Use and Zoning be recorded in opposition to the cutback in the federal rent subsidy program and federal funding that seems to be the policy of the present National Administration."

"Be it further resolved that the MAPC requests our Massachusetts Senators and our total Congressional Delegation to fight to reverse the present de-emphasis on human services."

MEDICAL EDUCATION

SAN JUAN (UPI) — The medical sciences campus of the University of Puerto Rico conducts education programs in 47 different disciplines, the university reports. The medical student body is close to 2,000 students, 400 of whom are working toward a degree in medicine. The school graduates about 500 health professionals every year.

Scholarships By Grand Lodge

A minimum of fifteen scholarship awards at a maximum of three hundred and fifty dollars ($350.00) each, will be granted by the Grand Lodge of Massachusetts, Order of Sons of Italy in America, to properly qualified students who anticipate entering college this fall.

The scholarship awards are limited to members of the senior class of any secondary school in the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, or of a state within the jurisdiction of the Grand Lodge of Massachusetts.

One principal award will be made to a properly qualified art student and one to a properly qualified music student, both of whom intend to pursue their education in a recognized and accredited school of art or music. One principal award will be granted to a properly qualified student planning to pursue his or her education in a recognized and accredited vocational or technical school.

Two scholarship awards, one to a boy and one to a girl, will be granted to properly qualified students of race, creed or national origin and residents of a state within the jurisdiction of the Grand Lodge of Massachusetts. (Maine and New Hampshire)

The applicants must be: (1) members in good standing of the Junior Division or of the Grand Lodge for at least one year or: (2) Children of members in good standing of said Grand Lodge of Massachusetts for at least one year. In either case, they must be members of the organization at the time the award is granted. (With exception of two to be granted to a boy and to a girl regardless of race, creed or national origin.)

Applications may be obtained by calling 227-4838 or by writing to the Grand Lodge of Massachusetts, Order of Sons of Italy in America, 24 Province Street, Boston 02108, and must be filed before April 30, together with:

Two (2) letters of recommendation.

Official transcript of grades for the four years at high school, mailed by the school if possible, postmarked not later than April 30, 1973.

A letter from the student stating the reasons for applying for a scholarship.

Applications will not be considered unless transcript is received. Students should check with the guidance councilor or principal to be sure that transcript is not delayed because of the April vacation.

Across The Kitchen Counter

Ruth Lenson

"The sea hath fish for every man" is an old adage but true . . . the oceans are still a great source of food for man. However, as a nation we do not take full advantage of the treasure of the sea.

This problem has always concerned nutritionists; for some the answer is that many homemakers prepare fish exactly the same way every time and unfortunately, even the best fish can become tiresome if it is served in the same old way week in and week out.

Broiled, baked, fried, steamed — the preparation methods are quite varied as are the varieties of fish on the market. Fish is divided into three classifications for the calorie counters: Lean, Medium Fat and Fat. (The fat content remains the same whether fish is fresh, frozen, canned, dried, or smoked.)

In the lean fish category are: flounder, cod, haddock, ocean perch, pike, smelt, pickerel and all shellfish such as shrimp, lobster, clams, and oysters. (An average serving, 3 oz. of flounder supplies the same amount of protein as an average serving of meat.)

Medium fat fish are: rainbow trout, speckled trout, whitefish, and halibut. Fat fish include: tuna, turbot, salmon, mackerel, and lake trout. If you are dieting, avoid fried fish and all rich sauces.

Here are some fish tips: "WHOLE" refers to fish as it comes from the water. DRESSED OR PAN-DRESSED is whole eviscerated and scaled fish — usually the head, tail, and fins are removed. STEAKS: cross-section slices from large dressed fish. FILLETS: side of the fish, cut lengthwise away from the backbone.

How much to buy? A serving of fish is generally one-third to one-half pound of edible fish. Therefore, for whole fish allow about one pound per person. For dressed fish, allow approximately one-half pound per person. HOW TO KNOW GOOD FISH: In selecting whole fresh fish, look for bright, clear, bulging eyes; reddish pink gills; elastic flesh springing back when pressed. Odor, or rather, the absence of it, is another clue to quality in fresh or frozen fish.

One last word in praise of fish — did you know that fish is not only high in protein but also a good source of bone-building calcium and blood-building iron?

DIETER'S SEAFOOD COCKTAIL

1 cup cooked crabmeat, lobster or shrimp
½ cup chili sauce
¼ cup strained lemon juice
1 tablespoon vinegar
1 tablespoon Worcestershire sauce
2 tablespoons finely chopped celery
2 tablespoons finely chopped onion
1 tablespoon chopped parsley
Few drops hot pepper sauce

Flake crabmeat or lobster (leave shrimp whole) and chill thoroughly. Combine remaining ingredients and chill separately. At serving time, divide fish into 6 portions and place in a cocktail glass lined with crisp leaves of lettuce. Top each portion with 2 tablespoons sauce. Serves 6 with 50 calories per serving, including sauce.

OVEN FRIED SMELT

3 pounds pan dressed smelt
½ cup milk
½ teaspoon salt
1½ cups seasoned dry bread crumbs
¼ cup grated parmesan cheese
One-third cup butter or margarine, melted Paprika

Clean, wash and dry fish. Combine milk and salt. Combine crumbs and cheese. Dip fish in milk and roll in crumbs. Place in a single layer in well greased 15x10x1-inch baking pans. Pour butter over fish and sprinkle with paprika. Bake in 500 degree oven for 8-10 minutes or until fish flakes easily with a fork. (This is a good method for preparing any small fish as well as fillets but not for thick fish steaks or large fish as it is likely to dry them out on the surface before they are cooked within.) Serves 6-8.

FISH AND VEGETABLE PILAF

1 cup chopped onion
1 cup chopped celery
2 tablespoons butter or margarine
2 cups chicken broth, made with bouillon cubes
½ cup tomato paste
1 teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon pepper
1 cup uncooked long grain rice
1 cup frozen green peas
1½ pounds flounder fillets
Paprika and chopped parsley

Saute onion and celery in butter until tender but not browned. Add broth, tomato paste, salt and pepper. Heat to boiling. Stir in rice and peas. Pour into buttered 13x9-inch baking dish. Season fish fillets with additional salt and pepper. Arrange on rice mixture. Cover and bake at 350 degrees for 30 minutes or until fish flakes easily and rice is tender. Remove from oven and sprinkle with paprika and chopped parsley. Serves 6 — 252 calories each.

HAWAIIAN FISH FILLETS

1 pound fish fillets (halibut, perch, pollack, sole)
½ cup pineapple tidbits
¼ cup catchup
2 tablespoons honey
1 tablespoon Worcestershire sauce
½ teaspoon salt

Arrange fish in shallow baking dish; top with pineapple. Combine catchup, honey, Worcestershire sauce and salt; pour over fish. Bake uncovered at 350 degrees for 20-25 minutes, until fi[sh] flakes easily. Serves 4-6.

FISH LOAF

1 pound haddock or pol[lock] fillets
1 medium carrot
1 medium onion
1 stalk celery
1 slice green [pepper]
1 teaspoon [salt]
¼ teaspoo[n] pepper
1 egg
½ cup sour cream

Put first five ingredients through a food chopper. Add salt, pepper, beaten egg and sour cream. Mix well and place in greased baking dish. Dot tip with butter or margarine and bake in 350 degree oven 1 hour, until golden. Serves 4-5.

CRISPY FRIED RAINBOW TROUT

6 pan dressed, fresh rainbow trout
12 slices bacon
One-third cup vegetable oil
¼ cup evaporated milk
1½ tea[spoons] salt
⅛ te[aspoon] pepper
½ cup flour
¼ cup yellow cornmeal
1 teaspoon paprika

Clean, wash and dry fish. Fry bacon until crisp. Remove bacon, reserving fat for frying. Add vegetable oil to bacon fat. Combine milk, salt, and pepper. Combine flour, cornmeal and paprika. Dip fish in milk mixture and roll in flour mixture. Fry in hot fat at moderate heat for 4-5 minutes longer or until fish flakes easily when tested with a fork. Drain on absorbent paper and serve with bacon, a fresh tossed salad and hot rolls. Serves 6.

COD FILLETS WITH EGG NOODLES

1 pkg. (8 oz.) med. egg noodles
3 tablespoons margarine
3 tablespoons flour
3 cups milk
1 tablespoon lemon juice
1 teaspoon each, dry mustard, Worcestershire sauce
½ teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon each, pepper and nutmeg
1½ cups shredded sharp cheddar cheese, divided
2 pkgs. (10 oz. ea.) frozen chopped spinach, thawed drained
1½ pounds cod fillets
¼ cup toasted silvered almonds

Cooked noodles as directed on pkg., drain. Meanwhile, melt butter; blend in flour; add milk and stir over medium heat until smooth and thickened. Stir in lemon juice, mustard, Worcestershire, salt, pepper, nutmeg and 1 cup of the cheese. Combine cooked noodles with half the cheese sauce; pour into 2 quart casserole. Top with spinach. Arrange fish fillets on spinach and pour remaining sauce over fish. Sprinkle with remaining cheese and almonds. Bake at 375 degrees for 25 minutes, or until fish is cooked. Serves 6.

WHAT BETTER TREAT than homemade orange palm leaves filled with raisins and tangy orange flavor. For recipe please refer to Information, Please.

Fashionettes

Not long ago every bride wore a bride's necklace to her wedding. This was a graduated, princess length strand of cultured pearls.

When selecting pearls for the wedding the most important thing to consider is the neckline of the gown.

For the high, round neckline on a wedding gown, the multiple strand dog coller of cultured pearls goes best.

When the wedding gown is a scooped neckline gype, a bib of pearls, falling from the base of the throat to the top of the gown's neckline, makes the bride lovely as can be.

High standing collars on wedding gowns call for matinee or opera length pearls. A cameo or simple brooch hung on the strand gives a more striking effect.

The peal necklace for the wedding day can be worn other places besides the throat. The hairdresser can work the pearls into the coiffure. This is an attractive elective for the bride with long hair.

Pearls traditionally are a gift from the bridegroom. When shopping for same, he ought to look for quality. The higher the quality the higher the price.

Ice Cream Colors For Spring

Spell spring with a big "S" and that stands for soft silhouettes, sweaters, shirts, shirtjackets and the shirtdress.

There's no longer any question about the classic theme for spring—clothes available in luscious ice cream colors of your choice. One winning color is pink . . . creamy pinks that deepen to rose and hot pink.

Waistlines will be cinched and shown off, so beware of that second chocolate. Easily worn shirtdresses with their timeless appeal will be available with the familiar convertible collar open at the neck, short or long, full sleeves and skirts that are pleated or gathered and full. You'll probably add at least one of these dresses to your wardrobe because it boasts the '73 signature, the drawsting gathered waistline.

As you shop for warm weather clothes, choose fabrics that go along with today's no-fuss philosophy. There are so many crease-resistant washable fabrics and knits that remain new-looking with pleats that stay in washing after washing because of improvements in fabric technology.

Spring once heralded the return of bright yellows, pinks and blues . . . designers today maintain that clothes and colors have become "season-less." Buildings heated in the winter and air conditioned in the summer allow for clothes to be worn interchangeably year round in "non-seasonal" colors which include beige, apricot, aqua, peach and white.

Latest Paris collections showed many soft shirtdresses in silks printed in solid colors, dots, stripes and interesting floral prints. Delicate butterfly prints fluttered in and out of inverted pleats . . . some shirtdresses had contrasting prints lining the inverted pleats.

Adele Simpson, who has designed for several first ladies, feels that attitudes and values have changed faster than we think and that women are determined that life is meant to be enjoyed—clothes must express and enhance their enjoyment.

Miss Simpson goes on to say, "Spring 1973 marks a break-through in American Fashion! Beauty through reality is the new consciousness of American women."

Evidence of her strong convictions are her happy colors which range from navys combined with zingy yellow and white, champagne by day, as well as strong vital colors of pink, green, and blue. She showers a riot of colorful confetti on travel-loving packable jersey dresses. It's difficult to resist masses of scarlet poppies scattered on her navy jersey shirtdress. Adele's city suits are models of simplicity and refinement in their tone-on-tone checks paired with a soft satin shirt.

Turtlenecks are taking a back seat to sister of the shirtdress, the classic shirt. As you shop for a shirt, pop into the fitting room to make sure your shirt's tailoring is good for you. No reason to spend hours ironing those collars, either, not with all the polyester fabrics that require no touchup at all. Wear your shirt open at the neck, and, if you'll be wearing it under sweaters, choose one without yoke gathers or patch pockets.

Spring is never spring without a suit. The two jacket styles that seem to appear in every collection are the cropped tailored shape that is neither quite a blouson nor quite a battle jacket—also the new soft sweater jacket with a tie front. Both jackets are to be worn over pants or skirts.

Geoffrey Beene is waging a war against "uniformity." He repudiates the "no design" trend which, he feels, results in a look of uniformity and offers instead an individualistic attitude that provides a woman with a choice in expressing her uniqueness through her style of dressing. He has created a greater diversity of clothes that move more easily with the body for women whose lifestyles have become increasingly active and multifaceted.

His choice of fabric, buttery silk and wool jersey, crisp silk and wool flannel, and rich cotton lisle are used extensively through his collection of soft suits and new dirndl culotte dresses.

The fashions of the 20's are being recalled now through the F. Scott Fitzgerald novel soon to be a movie "The Great Gatsby." Adolfo sees the country club look in terms of long hip-length beautiful knit-crochet cardigans worn over sleeveless feather-light sweaters, shirts and skirts or pants.

Ralph Lauren, who designs for Polo relives the Fitzgerald era through his distinctive tailoring; sleeves are high-placed and trim, shoulders are soft and small, waist narrow with slight flare. With his jackets he shows his distinctive pleated trousers as well as bias-flared and pleated skirts. Ready for the regatta are his Regimental striped cotton blazers paired with white silk shauntung pants . . . or the white cricket sweater with tennis stripes.

Dresses of men's shirting fabrics done in the Lauren manner boast men's wear detailing. Also the collarband shirt similiar to those worn by the men of the 20's (with heavily starched collars)—only this time the collars are missing. It's just the little stand-up white band for a collar.

If you're wondering what you'll be able to salvage from last year's wardrobe and still remain in fashion, chances are your cupboard will be far from bare . . . but it's such fun buying something new!

IN T[HE] SPRING — Ralph Lauren shapes the sportive Regime[ntal] blazer in racy navy and burgundy striped wool-and-cotton. A [crisp] shirt and pleated, wide-cuffed trousers in white silk shantu[ng] complete the costume. For her and for him it's a white flannel [blaz]er, cricket sweater, oxford striped shirt and tie worn with a c[ollar] pin.

Question: I am planning a small luncheon (for 8) and would like to serve something unusual . . . preferably fish. Do you have any ideas? Thanks!

Mrs. K. S. Norwood

Answer: Here's a delightful seafood concoction that is piled into individual serving dishes or pretty scallop shells, topped with buttery cracker crumbs and a sprinkle of cheese then broiled to perfection. Serve with a tossed green salad, hot rolls and a light dessert and your luncheon is bound to be a success!

SEAFOOD COQUILLE

¼ cup lemon juice
1¼ cups water
8 tablespoons butter or margarine
2 tablespoons chopped parsley
1 bay leaf
⅛ teaspoon thyme leaves
1 pound scallops, washed and drained
1 pound haddock
½ pound fresh mushrooms, washed, drained, chopped
½ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon ground black pepper
3 tablespoons all purpose flour
4 egg yolks, lightly beaten
1 cup light cream (½ pint)
30 saltine crackers, finely rolled (about 1 cup crumbs)
Parmesan cheese

Bring lemon juice, 1 cup water, 2 tbs. butter or margarine, parsely, bay leaf and thyme to a boil in a large skillet. Add scallops and haddock; cover and simmer gently about 5 minutes, or until fish is cooked. Remove fish from pan; chop and set aside. Discard bay leaf and reserve the liquid. Saute mushrooms in 2 tbs. butter or margarine, ¼ cup water, salt and pepper for 5 minutes. Drain and set aside; add liquid to reserved broth. Melt 2 tbs. butter or margarine; add flour and blend thoroughly. Add reserved liquids slowly, stirring constantly until mixture thickens. Blend beaten egg yolks with cream; add to sauce and heat until mixture is smooth and thickened, stirring constantly. DO NOT BOIL. Add mushrooms and fish; heat gently. Pile into individual serving dishes or scallop shells, placing about two thirds cup mixture in each. Mix cracker crumbs and 2 tbs. melted butter and spread over creamed mixture. Sprinkle with Parmesan cheese. Broil until crumbs are lightly toasted. Serve immediately. Serves 8.

Mrs. J.M., West Roxbury writes: "Hooray, Hooray, I finally did it—I actually baked with yeast and the results were simply fabulous! Now that I've made bread and rolls successfully I'm ready to try individual coffee cake type raised rolls. Thanks to you I'm really in love with yeast-baking and my family is having a ball—they say the house never smelled nicer!

Answer: How else can I respond to such enthusiasm than with a lovely new recipe perfected in the Fleischmann Yeast test kitchen. Here are your coffeecakes:

ORANGE PALM LEAVES

5¾ to 6¼ cups unsifted flour
1½ cups sugar
1½ teaspoons salt
2 pkgs. Active dry yeast
1 cup milk
Two thirds cup water
¼ cup (½ stick) margarine
2eggs at room temperature
Two thirds cup golden raisins
2 tablespoons grated orange peel Melted margarine
One third cup orange juice

In a large bowl thoroughly mix 2 cups flour, ½ cup sugar, salt and undissolved active dry yeast. Combine milk, water and margarine in a saucepan. Heat over low heat until liquids are warm. (Margarine does not need to melt.) Gradually add to dry ingredients and beat for 2 minutes at medium speed of electric mixer, scraping bowl occasionally, Add eggs and ¾ cup flour, or enough flour to make a thick batter. Beat at high speed 2 minutes, scraping bowl occasionally. Stir in enough additional flour to make a soft dough. Turn out onto lightly floured board; knead until smooth and elastic, about 8 to 10 minutes. Cover with plastic wrap, then a towel; let rest for 20 minutes. Meanwhile, mix together remaining 1 cup sugar, raisins and grated orange peel. Punch dough down. Divide dough in half. On a lightly floured board roll each half to a 12-inch square. Brush with melted margarine. Sprinkle each square with one-half the raisin mixture. Roll up tightly as for jelly roll. Pinch seams to seal.

Cut each roll into 8 equal pieces (about 1½ inches wide). Make 2 cuts through each piece, parallel to cut sides and extending to within ½ inch of other side. Turn each leaf on its side and spread the three leaves apart into fan shape. Place on greased baking sheets about 2 inches apart. brush leaves with melted margarine. Cover loosely with waxed paper then top with plastic wrap. Refrigerate 2 to 24 hou[rs].

When ready to bake, remo[ve] from refrigerator. Uncover the [dough] carefully. Let stand uncovered [10] minutes at room temperature. Bake [at] 350 degrees for 25-30 minutes or unti[l] done. Remove from baking sheets and place on wire racks to cool. While warm, frost with confectioners sugar and orange juice blended until smooth. Yield: 16.

Question: When I was a child, my mother always made hamatashen for Purim. Hers, as I recall were made with a raised dough and also a delicate cream cheese dough. I would like to make the cream cheese dough type and bring them to her as a surprise . . . do you have this recipe? With a prune filling? I really would appreciate your assistance. Thanks.

Mrs. Emily F., Newton

Answer: Purim, on March 18th, does call for the delicious tricornered pastries filled with prunes, apricots or poppy seeds. Here is the recipe you requested—happy baking!

PRUNE HAMATASHEN WITH CREAM CHEESE PASTRY

½ pound butter (or margarine)
½ pound cream cheese
2 cups all purpose flour
confectioners' sugar

Have butter (or margarine) at room temperature. Cream both ingredients until light and fluffy. Stir in flour, mix to blend. Wrap in plastic or foil and chill for 3 hours. Divide dough into thirds (refrigerate unused portions until ready). Roll out on board that is sprinkled with confectioners' sugar. Cut into 3-inch circles. Fill and shape quickly.

PRUNE FILLING

1 pkg. (12 oz.) pitted prunes
½ cup chopped almonds
½ cup orange marmalade
½ teaspoon cinnamon
2 tablespoons lemon juice

Snip prunes. Combine with remaining ingredients and cook over low heat a few minutes, just until thickened.

TO SHAPE HAMANTASHEN: Place a spoonful of filling in center of each circle of dough. Fold dough over from both sides and pinch together in point at base. Fold two top corners to form triangle with filling at center. Place on greased cookie sheet and bake at 375 degrees for about 30 minutes until golden brown. Makes 36.

BREAKFAST TIP: Would you like to make a diet breakfast drink called an Orange Energizer? The American Dairy Association suggests the following: In a mixing bowl or blender combine 2 eggs, ¼ cup frozen concentrated orange juice, and 1 tablespoon sugar. Gradually add 1¼ cups milk and blend well. Yield: 2 cups or 2 servings packed with protein power plus Vitamin C.

WORK POSSIBILITIES

Q. I am terribly interested in Astrology and would like to ask you what field of work I am best suited. I was born in Boston on Oct. 14, 1954 at 6 a.m. S.C.

S. C.

A. The chart calculated for the above data is indicative of considerable natural talent for the creative arts such as painting, drawing, music, dancing or literature. One or more of these if properly developed through training, study and education could prove an excellent medium of expression for your keen sense of the beautiful.

Your devotion to ideals and search for perfection may attract some folks who are unreliable or who may try to take advantage of you. Your feelings and intellect are frequently in conflict with each other making it difficult to be logical. Follow your splendid intellect which is usually a much better guide than your emotions.

Control an inclination to speak too much or tell everything you know by developing your reserve.

There are likely to be occasions when you may be tempted, because of an opportunity to experience excitement or a thrill, that you may cast caution aside and do that which you know you should not do. Your chart cautions against ignoring conventions since to do so can bring you no lasting happiness no matter how attractive conditions may appear at the time.

The last three years or so you have been developing a greater awareness of many things and have been going through considerable inner changes.

You are and have been under an aspect indicating romantic stimulations, strong creative possibilities and urges to do as you please as an individual.

Is Your Grandpa Liberated?

Virginia Payette says:

They're not broadcasting it all over town, you understand, but just about the fastest liberation movement around these days belongs to, of all people, the Grandpas.

Let Granny get out there and protest for fatter paychecks if she's a mind to (and she is!). Old Gramps is going the other way; he's quitting earlier and earlier.

Time was when the little woman in her 50s was content to sit home while her husband ran the rat race to the 65-year finish line. And lots of them didn't even quit then.

But that was 20 years ago. Since then the proportion of men over 65 who are still holding down regular jobs has dropped from 46 per cent to 26. The old boys are taking the gold watch and running.

However, it's in the 55-to-64 age brackets where the Grandpa Liberation is really crashing through. More and more, Grandma is going back to work—and Gramps is going fishing.

Back in 1950, for instance, middle-aged male workers made up around 87 per cent of the labor force. Then somebody invented early retirement and pension plans got fatter and by 1971 the percentage of working men had dropped to 82 per cent.

Meanwhile, back at the empty nest, the number of working women in the 55-to-64 age group went up. Way up. From 27 per cent in 1950 to 43 per cent by 1971.

And if you get the feeling there just might be a connection in there somewhere, you're probably right. Gloria and Betty can think if they want to that it's because the sisters have thrown off the shackles. But the prospect of having the old man around the house all day from 55 on could be driving more than one housewife straight to the employment agency.

So here we have Gramps, in his double-knit bell bottoms and modish white sideburns, liberated from the alarm clock, and the daily pressures of trying to make it in the marketplace.

For the first time in history, he has that leisure time on his hands that sociologists have been talking about for years. And, in many cases, money isn't a big problem.

The next question is: What's he going to do with himself until he reaches his three-score-and-ten? Able-bodied 55-year-olds can do just so much rocking-chair time, you know.

It's not that there aren't folks willing to help him enjoy his liberation. Travel agencies . . . resort owners . . . sporting goods manufacturers . . . and promoters of retirement villages are full of dandy suggestions on how he can spend his "sunset years." Not to mention, of course, his money.

Churches, hospitals and youth groups are ready with brochures to lure him into "meaningful volunteer work." Colleges are adjusting their programs to interest him in "continuing education." And Granny can probably think up a few repair jobs to keep him out of trouble while she's away at work.

If the philosophers are right when they tell us the measure of a society is in the way we spend our leisure time, what Gramps decides to do with his new freedom is something that's going to bear watching.

The SLIM Gourmet

Calorie-Conscious Cooking

By BARBARA GIBBONS

Who says calorie watching has to be a drag! With a little imagination it's easy to put together a diet-wise dinner that reads like a page from the fanciest French menu. For example:

French Onion Soup
Ceasar Salad with Croutons
Wine-Poached Sole au Gratin
Green Beans Amandine

And all this can be accompanied with a glass of Chablis or other dry white table wine. The total tab? Under 500 calories.

And your Slim Gourmet dinner is equally thrifty in cost and effort as well. Onion soup for four is as easy as opening two cans and heating them. Top each serving with two teaspoons of grated Parmesan cheese. Onion soup is such a calorie bargain you can afford the flavorful flourish!

The rest of the menu is equally easy. Wine-poached fish with a zesty cheese topping is a breeze with this simplified Slim Gourmet recipe:

EASY WINE—POACHED FISH AU GRATIN

1 pound frozen fillets of flounder or sole
½ cup dry white wine
1 tablespoon onion flakes
½ cup sweet red or green pepper, in strips
3 ounces sliced or shredded American cheese (processed)
2 tablespoons bread crumbs

Spread fillets in a 12-inch pie pan or other shallow oven-proof dish just large enough to hold them. Sprinkle on onion flakes and pepper strips. Pour on white wine. Cover dish with aluminum foil and place in a hot 450-degree oven. Bake 15 to 20 minutes, until fish turns opaque-white and is cooked through.

Remove from oven and pour off all liquid. Cover the top of the fish with cheese. Sprinkle the crumbs evenly over the surface. Return to oven and bake or broil, uncovered, until cheese is just melted and browned.

Makes four servings, 189 calories each.

QUICK CAESAR SALAD—Combine 1 head of torn romaine lettuce, ½ small sliced onion, 4 tablespoons low calorie bottled Caesar salad dressing. Toast 2 slices of protein bread and cut into small cubes. Toss lightly with salad.

GREEN BEANS AMANDINE—Prepare French-style frozen green beans according to package directions. Season with butter-flavored salt. Top each half-cup serving with 1 teaspoon toasted almonds. (Toast almonds on a cookie sheet and in a hot oven until lightly browned.)

The Insecurity Of Security

What with all the heavy security at the airports to prevent skyjacking — sometimes there are more armed guards than there are ticket takers and stewardesses — passengers generally have to walk through a "Friskem" or other metal gateway that's electronically geared to detect metal.

daytime TV show (Marie used to work with me at the Old New York World-Telegram before she became a TV star), Mel went to LaGuardia Airport and placed his bag of burglar tools on the table for the guard to inspect. A heavy, 24-inch crowbar stuck out.

The guard pulled out the crowbar, hefted it for a moment

Today's Story

by norton mockridge

Well, I recently walked through one at San Francisco, carrying my portable typewriter and tape recorder, and the lights flashed and flashed.

This time the guy made me empty my pockets. I laid out my keys and key chain, my metal pen and pencil, my wrist watch, even my nail file. I walked through the third time, and still the lights flashed.

"You ever have an operation?" asked the guard. "You got a steel plate like in your hip or your head?"

Then it dawned on me. "No," I said, "but I have a couple of bad discs in my back and when I'm traveling I wear a sort of corset with steel bars."

"Oh," said the guard, with a laugh. "Well, you can take your stuff and go." I put everything back into my pockets, picked up the typewriter and brief case and boarded the plane.

Now, the point is — while the guard looked into both the typewriter and brief case, he never once checked to see whether I really WAS wearing a steel corset! Nor did he check to see whether there was any dangerous weapon hidden beneath the corset.

I easily could place a flat automatic against my slightly bulging belly and then strap the corset around it. You'd never know it was there!

Now I hear from Mel Mandell, author of the book, "Being Safe," which tells you how to protect yourself from thieves and burglars, both at home and on the street. Mel is working with my old pal, Col. Tom Ellington, in promoting "Operation Identification — system of marking things so indelibly that it discourages thievery.

Anyway, Mel travels around the country, lecturing and appearing on TV shows. To make his presentation more effective, he carries a bag of burglar tools. He shows audiences how the crooks use them and tells what can be done to make them less effective.

En route to Pittsburgh, to appear on Marie Torre's or so, and then asked one of the airline officials: "Is it okay to take this on the plane?"

The official looked at it and said: "Yeah. Just so long as it isn't a knife of a gun."

Mel put the crowbar back into the bag with the other burglar tools and walked up the steps of the plane. At the door he was met by a flight attendant who stared at the bag, fingered the projecting crowbar, and asked:

"Is that a crowbar?"

"Yes," said Mel.

"Well, okay, I guess," said the attendant, and let him on board.

Mel appeared on Marie's show, exhibited his dangerous devices, and then returned to the airport for the trip back to New York.

"Hey," said the armed guard, inspecting the black bag, "I see you got your burglar tools with you."

"Yes," said Mel.

"Ha!" laughed the guard. He turned to an Alleghany County trooper who was standing there and said: "This guy's got a bag of burglar tools. And look at that crowbar!"

The trooper shrugged, and the guard laughed again.

"You guys kill me," he said. And he waved Mel through the gate.

This time the flight attendant on the plane said nothing about the crowbar, but she cautioned: "Just be sure, sir, that that bag goes under your seat."

So much for security!

BY THE BOOK

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (UPI) — Dr. Robert Long, director of the University of Louisville's new division of human sexuality, a part of the medical school, has directed publication of a book released by the American Medical Association.

Long says the book is designed to aid doctors in dealing with marital and sexual counseling. "Most physicians do not feel competent to engage in sexual and marital-sexual counseling," he said.

Sloppy Language

by Amy Vanderbilt

Dear Miss Vanderbilt: I am writing in response to your column on bad pronunciation. As an English teacher, I can understand your concern about 'correct' English and pronunciation, but who is to say what is 'correct'? We have no academy as the French have to dictate what is to be considered correct and what is incorrect.

"It is time that we quit perpetuating the myth of 'correct' English and imposing absurd standards for accepting people or not accepting them based on their adherence to these standards. I think we should respect everyone's language and use some other standard to measure him, if indeed we have to measure him.

"I am quoting below the statement on language which was adapted by the executive committee of the Conference on College Composition and Communication, a branch of the National Council of Teachers of English, at their annual meeting in Boston last March.

"We affirm the student's right to his own language — the dialect of his nurture in which he finds his idnetity and style. Any claim that only one dialect is acceptable should be viewed as attempts of one social group to exert its dominance over another, not as either true or sound advice to speakers and writers, nor as moral advice to human beings.

"A nation which is proud of its diverse heritage and of its cultural and racial variety ought to perserve its heritage of dialects. We affirm strongly the need for teachers to have such training as will enable them to support this goal of diversity and this right of the student to his own language.

"A person's language is a part of that person. If we do not accept his language, we do not accept him. It is certainly unfortunate when we pass unfavorable judgment on others merely because they happen to speak a variety of English that is different from our own. — J. D., Nashville, Tenn."

This is a very interesting observation. I have always liked dialects and feel, too, that they should be respected. Have you ever noticed that radio and television announcers for the most part all speak exactly alike because they have been trained in special schools to erase regional accents?

I have traveled and written about people of the mountains of Tennessee where at one time Elizabethan English was spoken, although I suppose the newer generation has been taught to abandon such words as "poppet" for "doll."

As a result of our all listening to national radio and television, we will increasingly tend to speak somewhat alike.

I was not really speaking about dialect, but about sloppy and careless English, bad grammar, cliches, ugly slang. I see no reason why every sentence should begin with "Man" or "Like" or why every sentence has to end with ". . . you know." The use of "gonna" for "going to" is not a matter of dialect but of laziness, carelessness, inexactitude.

There are blacks who speak beautiful, well-enunciated English in liquid, mobile tones. There are young whites who have picked up the language of the drug culture and presumably can't speak any other way despite their own strong cultural roots. What I decry is the poverty of language, the inability of so many people to express their thoughts clearly and precisely without mumbling, slurring and misusing words.

Every morning on the radio news I hear a word that does not exist — "reportedly." Then the commercials, supposedly spoken by trained announcers, spill horrid mispronunciations into the American mind — example "nine-dy," "seventy," "rekanize," for "ninety," "seventy" and "recognize."

A University of Chicago professor back in 1967 identified approximately 30 features of our speech that have clear social significance in every part of the nation.

Prof. Raven L. McDavid, an authority on regional dialects as well as on social ones, indicate that certain words and phrases betray the speaker as "uneducated and as of low social status" and recommended that English teachers should be concentrating on these rather than on some things he considers of little importance.

He cites as an important variation from standard usage the omission of "s" from the third singular of present tense verbs, as in "he do" or "she" say." Other words or phrases in the same class are listed as substitution of "them for those as in them books," the omission of plural "s" or the possessive, as "two boy" and "that Mr. Brown hat."

He also cited "hisn" and "hern" for his and hers, along with "hisself" or "theirselves" instead of "himself" or "themselves." The use of compound demonstratives, "these here dogs and them there cats," are beyond the pale.

The substitution of "been," "done" or "been done" for "have" as in "they been finished or they done gone" is an indication of poor education. And to be avoided always is the double comparison, such as "the most ugliest man" for the ugliest man," despite Shakespeare's "most unkindest cut of all."

There are many more examples, but another giveaway is the use of "d" for "th" as in "dese, dem, and dose" and the emphasis on the wrong part of two-syllable words, for example: "HO-tel," "PO-lice" and "GUI-tar," which he described as "strikingly diagnostic of lower-class speech."

He might have added the common "whatchu" for "what are you . . ."

Well, it isn't all as discouraging as it seems. Bright children properly approached can be made to care about their language. Some of the rest of us will learn to listen not only to what we are saying but to what others are saying. This is the way to acquire clarity and beauty of speech and to communicate effectively.

To overcome the poverty of language, the paucity of grammar, a lean vocabulary, is to grow intellectually. So many who are capable of this don't realize that all they need to do it try.

The American who can speak his language well and write a decent sentence has an enormous advantage.

G.O.P. Senators Caution Bush

Republican National Chairman George Bush is quietly reassuring suspicious conservatives that he won't reopen the intraparty fight over 1976 convention delegate allotments nor favor any George McGovern - style quotas for minority groups.

Eight Republican Senators — Nebraska's Carl Curtis and Roman Hruska, Wallace Bennett of Utah, Morris Cotton of New Hampshire, Milton Young of North Dakota, Hiram Fong of Hawaii, Clifford Hansen of Wyoming, and Jesse Helms of North Carolina — sent Bush a round - robin letter expressing their "shock" over his appointment of youthful Wisconsin Congressman William Steiger to head a party reform commission.

Only too well they remembered Steiger's floor fight at Miami Beach last August in the unsuccessful attempt to give the large Northern states a bigger share of the 1976 convention delegates — a formula which "would have worked to the profound disadvantage of Southern, Western and small states."

Noting that the convention rejected Steiger's stand by a two - to - one margin, the senators told Bush they hoped his choice of Steiger did not indicate a desire to reopen the delegate fight or "to follow the path of Senator George McGovern and his associates who have done so much to destroy the Democratic party."

"We believe," they said, "that President Nixon's overwhelming victory in November is proof that the people of the United States will not buy the kind of reforms the McGovernites have advocated nor will the American voter, who each election becomes more sophisticated and accepts reforms which seem constructive but which have as a practical consequence the same effect as the McGovern - style changes."

The Senators' sharp warning reflected the conservatives' widespread fear that, in his eagerness to bring more young people and minority group voters into the Republican party, as directed by the President, the new chairman would move to the left in the general directions of McGovern - style delegate quotas.

Although he is an oil millionaire and a former Texas Congressman, right - wing Republicans also recall that Bush is a native New Englander, son of the late Connecticut Sam Prescott Bush, and former ambassador to the United Nations — sure signs of incipient Eastern liberalism.

Bush smoothed the protesting senators' ruffled feathers by assuring them that neither he nor Bill Steiger had any intention of reopening the delegate question, which the Miami Beach convention had decided.

"As chairman, I respect and will support the will of the convention," he wrote. "I can assure you that I will not be a party to permitting — to say nothing of leading — our party down the so - called McGovern course."

In his efforts to elect more Republican members of Congress, the chairman said, he favors welcoming many new voters but "not on a quota basis."

Defending Steiger as "a fair, decent man who will do this job with dedication and maximum integrity," Bush promised that the reform commission would be "broad - based and balanced." He vowed that he would lead the party neither to the left nor to the right. His aim, he said, was "to make our party the majority party for the first time in ages."

City Charter Designed For Women

More than 100 officers of suburban women's groups from Newton and 20 other communities went to Boston in style recently.

The day of shopping, dining, theater and touring was an introduction to a new Boston program designed to promote interest in the city.

The plan, called the City Charter, will be open as an activity to women's groups in all of suburban Boston.

The plan is simple.

A group planning the day-long outing simply calls the City Charter and gives information on the number of people in the group, the approximate date of the trip and what activities other than shopping the ladies would like to sample. Suggestions are luncheons, lectures, plays, concerts or movies.

Driving in-town is not a problem. Once the arrangements are made, City Charter selects a place where the group can meet the charter bus. Once in downtown Boston, the group will be given three hours of shopping time. Locked storage compartments will be available in the bus and purchases can be left there while the group goes on to lunch or the theatre or etc.

Each group gets to determine its own time of departure.

The program, admittedly, is aimed at creating interest in downtown Boston, but is set up to provide a novel activity for women's groups too.

The City Charter is a private program funded through grants made by downtown merchants.

Any group interested can contact Mrs. Eileen Bianchi at 723-1604.

CITY CHARTER — Boston Mayor Kevin H. White was on hand recently to initiate a new shopping program called the City Charter for suburban women. Among those who were wined, dined and escorted through the Prudential Center to acquaint them with the program were: Mrs. Leo Waters and Mrs. Taricano of the Guild of St. Francis; Mrs. Gail Triff and Mrs. Margarite Daly of the Newton Art Association; Mrs. Norman Rosenberg of the Hadassah; Mrs. Joseph Morog and Mrs. Henry Lambert of the Waban Women's Club and Mrs. Cosmo Camoscio and Mrs. James Fitzgerald of St. Philip Neri Guild.

Library Plans Expansion

Films are free and fun at the Boys' and Girls' Library and at children's rooms throughout the city when the library expands its young people's film programs to include screenings at ten different locations.

Newton youngsters can enjoy such films as "The Pigeon That Worked a Miracle" at Auburndale branch Wednesday, Mar. 7 at 3 p.m.; and at Newton Centre on Thursday, Mar. 8 at 3:30 p.m.

Also on Thursday, Mar. 8 at 3:45 at West Newton boys and girls can view "Slides of Ireland", "Tales of Hiawatha," "Masks," "Loon's Necklace," and "The Vanishing Prairie."

"Tales of the Groundhog's Shadow," "Dick Whittington," and "Crayon" are the three films scheduled for viewing at Newtonville, Wednesday, Mar. 14 at 3 p.m., and at Newton Lower Falls branch on Thursday, Mar. 15 at 3:30 p.m.

The Newton Free Library's Family Film Program, scheduled for Thursday, Mar. 15 at 7 p.m. at the Main Library features "Toccata For Toy Trains," "Railroader," a Buster Keaton film, and "Shades Of Puffing Billy," a miniature railroad system supported and operated by young amateurs in the mountain country of Australia.

At Upper Falls, youngsters can view "Tales of Hiawatha," "Masks," "Loon's Necklace" and "The Vanishing Prairie" on Thursday, Mar. 22 at 3:30 p.m.

Newton boys and girls can find still more free films by traveling to Waban branch, Wednesday, Mar. 28 at 3 p.m. to view "My Dog Is Lost," "Nature Boy," and "Mike Mulligan" and "His Steamshovel." These three films will also be screened at Highlands branch Thursday, Mar. 29 at 3:30 p.m.

The film programs last about one hour and are but one aspect of the library's programming for children, organized by Mrs. Beryl Beatley, supervisor of Children's Services, with the cooperation of Newton Free Library children's librarians.

Other programs for boys and girls include regularly scheduled pre-school story hours and varied creativity programs.

Pick up a copy of the Newton Free Library Bulletin (formerly Library Lowdown) at your nearest library for specific dates and times.

Sons Of Italy Offer Scholarships

A minimum of 15 scholarship awards at a maximum of $350 each, will be granted by the Grand Lodge of Massachusetts, Order of Sons of Italy in America, to properly qualified students who anticipate entering college next fall.

The scholarship awards are limited to members of the senior class of any secondary school in the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, or of a state within the jurisdiction of the Grand Lodge of Massachusetts.

One principal award will be made to a qualified art student and one to a qualified music student, both of whom must plan to attend a recognized and accredited school of art or music. An award will also be granted to a qualified student planning to attend a recognized and accredited vocational or technical school.

Awards will be granted to a boy and girl, regardless of their race, creed or national origin.

The applicants must be members in good standing of the junior division or of the Grand Lodge for at least one year or children of members in good standing of said Grand Lodge for at least one year.

In either case they must be members of the organization at the time the award is granted with the exception of the boy and girl who will be granted an award without regard to race, creed or national origin.

Applications may be obtained by calling 227-4838 or by writing to the Grand Lodge of Massachusetts, Order of Sons of Italy in America, 24 Province St., Boston, 02108. They must be filed before Apr. 30 together with two letters of recommendation, an official transcript of grades for the four high school years and a personal letter from the student stating reasons for applying.

Applications will not be considered unless a transcript is received. Students should check with their principals or guidance councilor to be sure that their transcript is not delayed because of the April vacation.

Video Tape Aids Emotional Growth

The Newton Community Service Centers, Inc. has announced a new offering, The Creative Studio, a video-tape dramatics workship for children aged four to ten.

Beginning Apr. 6 at the Community Center building, 429 Cherry St., West Newton, the workship will combine one-hour lessons in creative dramatics with the regular use of a video tape recorder. Most of the classes will be for four and five year olds, with one class denoted to older children. All classes will be held on Fridays.

Lessons will be in improvisation, poetry and story dramatization, creative movement and puppetry as well as construction with large, geometric props. Teaching will be Diane Ripstein, former professional dancer in Canada's National Folk Dance Ensemble, supervisor of dramatics workshops in both Montreal and Great Boston.

Miss Ripstein performed on the Ed Sullivan Show in 1969, and played the leading role in a touring children's theatre company in 1971. She is presently teaching creative dramatics at Lexington's Creative Studio, which opened in September. She will continue teaching at both locations of the workshop.

"The purpose of the workshop," said Joyce Meschan, the program's director, "is to provide children with activities that promote verbal and physical expression; then, to reinforce feelings of self-awareness through videotaping and playback at the end of each lesson."

The creative dramatics activities of the once-a-week, twelve-week series will comprise 45 minutes of the class period. The last 15 minutes of the hour will be devoted to playing back videotape segments of the day's activities, stopping and starting the tape according to what the children want to see on the TV monitor.

"The child seeing himself on TV can help him become aware of his creative potential," Miss Meschan said. "Feelings of pleasure and pride in verbal and physical expression, no matter how much either is expressed, can lead to feelings of confidence."

Miss Meschan graduated from Stephens College in Missouri and earned her Master's Degree in mass communications from Emerson College. She formerly directed the Reynolda Woods Summer Playschool in North Carolina, where she first began to notice the regards of taping children's voices on a tape recorder and playing them back to the children.

She studied child development and educational television at Stephens and "did not forget" the results she attained from the tape recorder. After completing her master's thesis at Emerson, consisting of a series of five children's TV marionette plays, she began working on her concept that "adding the realm of video to the taping of children could help provide each child with a sense of self and a freedom to express his imagination."

"In an atmosphere where he can pretend," said Miss Ripstein, "the child learns to express feelings and ideas that rarely come out. When he is encouraged to be free with his emotions and movements, he can feel comfortable with his body."

"The result," said Miss Meschan, "is a step toward awareness and sensitivity, both of which the child can learn to verbalize." She said that the "immediacy of the video playback enables the child to get the full impact of his expression."

At the workshop, a great emphasis is placed on role playing with puppets. Many of the puppets are parental and guidance figures, through which the children verbalize.

"Children often begin to express themselves through another medium," Miss Ripstein said. The children make many of their own puppets at the workshop out of socks felt and other materials," she added.

The workshops will be on Fridays at the Community Center building, 429 Cherry St., West Newton from April 6 to June 22. For further information or a registration form call 628-4964

Homestead Maintains Heritage

The Jackson Homestead, a community museum in Newton, will be offering workshops for older teens and adults beginning Mar. 12.

The Homestead was built in 1809, and is now maintained to keep alive the heritage of Newton.

Appropriately then, the five courses to be given all relate to early America: an Indian crafts workshop: a study of early American poetry: a survey of American folk music: a drawing class and a workshop in off-loom weaving.

The deadline for registration is Mar. 9. The cost for the eight-week workshop ranges form $22-$25.

Additional information may be obtained by calling 332-3920.

MARC Rides For Substantial Goal

Thousands of teachers, students, and other interested groups will participate in the Second Annual Ride a Bike for the Retarded to be held in dozens of cities and towns in Massachusetts on Sunday, April 29, to raise money for the Massachusetts Association for Retarded Citizens (MARC).

John A. M. Dow Jr., of Marblehead, president of the Massachusetts Teachers Association (MTA), chairman of the 1973 Ride a Bike for the Retarded, and Kathleen R. Roberts of Raynham, MTA past president and 1973 State Chairman for MARC, are coordinating bike rides in communities across the state.

Last year, local teachers organizations, joined by the Jaycees, students and others raised $134,000 for MARC. The 1973 goal is $200,000 the money to be used to stimulate provision of community programs, equal education, and employment opportunities for the state's 165,000 retarded citizens.

"Retarded people can lead happy, productive lives," explained Dow, "if we help them. That's what the Ride A Bike for the Retarded event is all about—to raise money to help these people and to let the public know about the wonderful work being done in the field of retardation."

David Decelles, 8, of Billerica, a student at the Dr. Solomon Hajjar School in Billerica, is serving as MARC Poster Boy for 1973.

Parent Night At Mt. Ida Nursery

Longfellow Nursery School of Mount Ida Junior College, Newton Centre, will hold a parent meeting on Tuesday, Mar. 6 at 8 p.m.

Mrs. Barbara Marder, Oak Hill Park parent, announces that Dr. Audrey Jones, clinical psychologist, and Mrs. Ruth Brenner, psychiatric social worker, will discuss questions and issues of interest to parents.

The topics will include children's questions on death and sex, children and violence, and visits with other children. Both speakers are from the Newton Guidance Clinic.

All parents associated with Longfellow Nursery School are invited to join in what promises to be a provocative and enlightening discussion.

Wellesley Volkswagen Showing Complete Line

The 412 models are available with a four speed manual transmission in two-door models and a three-speed automatic in four doors and station wagons.

Automatic in Bus-Like Wagons

For the first time, VW's bus-shaped wagons will be available with an automatic transmission as an option to the regular 4-speed manual gear box. In addition, the front end of the cars is restyled with turn signals mounted high, next to the fresh air intake grille. Fresh air and heater outlets have been relocated and enlarged for more comfort and better defrosting, while heater controls are simplified. The wiper-washer switch, mounted on the steering column, has provision for intermittent wiping, a convenience in misty weather when the wipers need not operate all the time.

Two familiary VW models that remain comparatively unchanged for 1973 are the classic Karmann Ghia and the Type 3 series of sedans and Squarebacks.

The slick two-seat Chias, available as coupes or convertibles, share some of the improvements found in '73 Super Beetles. The Type 3 sedan and Squareback models continue to be available with manual or automatic transmissions. Priced just above the Super Beetle, the Type 3 Basic Compact and the more expensive. Type 3 sedans and Squarebacks offer budget-minded families VW quality and economy along with increased interior space.

An Informative, sparkling column on national and international affairs

Although Laos signed a peace pact on February 21, able new Central Intelligence Agency Director James Schlesinger has informed President Nixon that further perils endanger our vital bases in Thailand. In fact, Mr. Schlesinger finds startlingly little change in the regional perils since the cease-fire in Vietnam and Laos.

Our Thailand bases are indispensable, of course, in guarding these Vietnam-Laos truces. Even presidential campaigner George McGovern's insistence on "immediate withdrawal from Vietnam" became "I would leave residual force in Thailand" when corned on his proposal. And Thailand is utterly unique in the region.

It has always been fiercely independent. Thailand is the only nation in the area that never has been ruled by a foreign power.

The Siamese call their country Muang Thai, meaning Land of the Free People, and the name Siam is a foreign corruption as untelligible to the Thais as "China" is in China.

Thailand borders on Burma which, in turn, has a wild, mountainous 1,200-mile frontier — a third as long as our Canadian border — with Red China. And Mr. Schlesinger reported to President Nixon that the Thai army has now intercepted armed Red infiltrators crossing into Thailand's Sisaket and Surin Provinces, 250 miles northeast of Bangkok.

Mr. Schlesinger concludes that to the Reds, in Thailand our Vietnam truce merely means: my peace, yes; your peace, no.

Gen. Prapas Charusathien commands the Thai army. He lists an impressive number of "divisions" — that elastic term of military measurement so often quoted in self-deception. But Mr. Schlesinger said the Thai army has now only 141,500 men to protect our vital U. S. bases and stop this armed, organized infiltration into a country the size of France.

Thailand extends down most of the tapering Malay Peninsula that wanders off toward Singapore, which joined (1963) with Malaya, Sarawak and Sabah to form the Federation of Malaysia.

Britain's Far East Fleet steamed past Singapore in a farewell review on Oct. 31, 1971. The historic British Asian Command was replaced by an integrated force of British, Australian and New Zealand ships to defend Singapore and Malaysia after President Nixon quietly refused to have the United States take over Britain's 150-year responsibility. And a sense of new nationhood is emerging.

A full 76 per cent of Singapore's population is Chinese. And today Singapore is the true focal point for Southeast Asia's non-Communist Chinese life — much more so than either Hong Kong or Formosa.

This teeming city — a peninsula-connected island about three times the size of the District of Columbia — is trying to create a city-state serving as a marketplace for the whole of Southeast Asia. Its daytime life is in the Chinese counting houses. By night its neon lighting gives the city and sky a reddish glow, almost lurid.

To achieve their hope Singapore's merchant leade try to avoid alignments wit either Mao Tse-tung's dogma or Western free-enterprise dogma.

Plenty of them, using the usual bewildering financial smoke screens to conceal real ownership, want to retain their bulging portfolios of capitalism's stocks and bonds. But at the same time they celebrate with firecrackers each strategic victory of the Peking Politburo.

Thailand also borders on U. S. taxpayer-supported Cambodia. We are providing Cambodia more than $170 million a year in military aid and $100 million more in economic aid — $270 million annually poured into Cambodia, a country only the size of Oklahoma.

Red-wing Prince Norodom Sihanouk, ruling as chief of state since 1960, was ousted in March 1970, by pro-Western Marshal Lon Nol (now President) and sought refuge in Peking. But the Cambodians had known only French control and Prince Sihanouk's authoritarianism, and today the country is so mired in political-military quicksand that its future is now totally in default except for the United States.

The Cambodian army has only 35,000 men. But more than 60,000 Red guerrilla and organized Sihanouk followers are there — still fighting. Phonm Penh, the capital, its population refugee-swollen to 600,000, remains cut off except for a single uncertain road. The Reds have now finished fortifying even fabulous Angkor Wat and completely control Tonle Sap, the great lake of Cambodia.

Meanwhile, President Lon Nol's government and Prince Sihanouk's followers still deny each other's legality. Nor was Vice-President Spiro Agnew able to effectively resolve this on his visit a few weeks ago to Phnom Penh.

Health For All

UNSAFE BEFORE BIRTH

A mother's womb is not always the safe spot it should be.

In an experiment with pregnant rats, cigarette smoke was blown toward the animals five times a day for a daily total of 40 minutes. This exposure simulated, at least in carbon monoxide exposure, the intake of a human mother smoking a pack of cigarettes a day or slightly more. Rats give birth after three weeks; and the day before expected delivery, the fetuses were surgically removed from the womb.

The fetuses from the "smoked" mothers not only weighed less than those in a control group but had smaller brains.

Carbon monoxide is damaging to embryos even if — like chicks — they are protected by eggshells. At Rutgers, Dr. James McGrath, associate professor of environmental physiology, constructed an incubator to test the effect of carbon monoxide on hatching chicken eggs. Into the incubator he pumped air that included a tiny portion, less than a fraction of one per cent, of carbon monoxide.

Of the eggs not exposed to the gas, 79 per cent hatched. Of those exposed, 13 per cent hatched.

The chick embryos found dead in the shell showed the red discoloration, hemorrhaging, and blood clotting associated with carbon monoxide poisoning.

Human mothers cannot be used in experiments like these. But pregnant women who smoke have significantly more still births, spontaneous abortions, and premature births than women who don't smoke. The more an expectant mother smokes, the more carbon monoxide she absorbs into her blood stream. One study indicates that when a pregnant woman smokes two packs a day, it is the equivalent of blocking off 40 per cent of the baby's oxygen supply.

To find out more about carbon monoxide and cigarette smoke, contact your Boston Tuberculosis and Respiratory Disease Association. It's a matter of life and breath.

THE GREEN THUMB

WHEN BIRDS FLY: Every year at this time we get letters, mostly from school children, asking us why do birds fly in formation. Since birds are part of the life every one who grows plants, we're happy to try and explain why birds fly in V-formation. There are many theories but the one I best comes from two specialists in aerodynamics from the California Institute of Technology.

They say the V-formation flying of big migratory birds, like the Canadian geese, is a help-each-other act.

Their studies show that each bird flies in a position which gives him maximum help from his boost. If a bird gets ahead or lags behind it immediately senses the difference and moves back into line. The researchers say this formation flying increases the birds' range by as much as 70 per cent.

And while whales have little to do with gardening, did you know that whales actually sing?

Dr. R. S. Payne, research scientist at Rockefeller University, has recorded the "song" of the nearly extinct humpback whale. Those who have heard it say it is "strangely melodius" and has a "peculiar beauty."

Getting back to gardening, would you like a dandy bulletin on shrubs which attract birds near your home? Send me a self-addressed, stamped envelope and ask for a copy of our guide, "Berried Treasures." It lists some excellent shrubs you can plant this spring, and which you should be thinking about right now.

GROW SOME HERBS: Now that the seed catalogs are in, why not order some basil herbs or seed to start an herb garden? Here are some good ones to order: Sweet basil (try Dark Opal, ornamental as well as useful); Caraway, Catnip, Chives, Coriander, Curled Cress, or Peppergrass, Dill Fennel, Rosemary, Sage, Parsley, Summer Savory, Thyme, to name a few. You can even have an indoor herb garden, and cut a pinch of herbs as is needed. Plants regrow and make a fine item in a bright window or sun porch. Nothing like having fresh parsley all winter.

GREEN THUMB CLINIC: "I have a bird of paradise (Strelitzia) and it has pushed itself three or four inches above the pot rim. Should I divide the plant and repot it?"

Answer: Dividing it would delay flowering. Repot in a larger tub or planter. Replant in a well-drained container, using sandy loam, peatmoss and leafmold. Water well in summer while growth is active, but keep barely moist in winter.

WEDDING MONTHS...

NEW YORK (UPI) — There is still the traditional June bride, but there are almost as many brides in July and August. In fact, the historical concentration on June weddings is a thing of the past.

"Modern Bride" reports that June accounts for only 11.8 per cent of the total. In fact, there are more marriages in the second half of the year, which doesn't include June. The bridal market truly is a market for retail sales 'round the calendar.

INDEPENDENT COUPLES

NEW YORK (UPI) — Today's bride reflects the dramatic change in values and buying habits in American life. A generation ago, newlyweds were likely to move in with parents. Or they started their married life on a modest scale, deferring purchases until the money had been saved.

But young couples today expect to begin married life with a fully furnished and equipped household, according to a Modern Bride marketing survey.

Cinema Review

THE EFFECT OF GAMMA RAYS ON MAN—IN—THE—MOON MARIGOLDS is a sophisticated handling of a story which won a Pulitzer Prize on the stage. The title is allegorical and concerns what happens to families exposed to outside forces. Under gamma rays, some flowers may flourish while others may wither, and people also bloom or fade depending on extraneous influences.

Handsome Paul Newman, catnip to so many feminine admirers, occasionally likes to forego appearing before the cameras in order to stay behind them. He won New York critic's awards for his direction of "Rachel, Rachel" and in this new film he directs the same star, his real-life wife, Joanne Woodward.

Made up into a nearly ugly woman, Joanne Woodward gives a remarkable performance as a woman yearning for pie - in - the - sky success.

The cast is perfect, from the Newman's own daughter, Nell, to Roberta Wallach, daughter of Eli Wallach and Anne Jackson, to Judith Lowry, who plays the same role of the wordless nanny on the stage. Through their own artistry and through the skilled understanding of Paul Newman, each characterization in this fine film stands out as real and three - dimensional

A BRIGHT FUTURE WITH GOOD PAY!

Isn't that what we're all seeking?

We'll pay you a starting salary of $150-$170 to learn our business and provide a good fringe package and raises as fast as you can earn them.

When you are promoted to Manager 12-24 months from now, you will be earning $200-$250 a week immediately with prospects for more as soon as you show us you can build business and control costs.

We have many Managers making $300-$400 a week and they aren't working 70 hours per week to do it. But, they have complete responsibility for making our business successful and that's why they are paid so well. Candidates must be over 21, have high school diploma and transportation.

Give us a call or drop us a line and we'll arrange an interview to discuss how you can be a Friendly success story, too.

No Mod Wedding, But Very Unusual

By PATRICIA McCORMACK
UPI Family News Editor

NEW YORK (UPI) — When it came time for the recessional at the wedding of Neal Love and his bride Carole one Valentine Day past, the organist swung out with—"There's No Business Like Show Business."

It happened in an old Episcopal church in Fairfield, Conn. The bride and brideroom wore shoes and all the formal trappings. This was no wedding with mod overtones.

The Loves—and shouldn't they have been married on Valentine Day with a name like that?—had throughout their wedding music from hit musicals, including "The Sound of Music." Love himself, a composer who has a musical opening in London next fall, wrote one of the pieces.

The wedding cake wasn't usual either. It was white-iced fruitcake. And no bride and bridegroom statues atop it. Instead, there was a toy piano with a toy musician playing it. A coy, toy gal, with her knees crossed, sat on the piano and flirted with the musician.

The Loves had what is becoming increasingly popular —a theme wedding. "Our theme," Mrs. Love said in an interview, "was composing—which is what my husband does and wants to do more than anything."

They live in Crownspoint, Md., now but are on the road a lot as is demanded by their company, Wedgewood Productions, designers and producers of conventions. In between, he composes.

Mrs. Love, a native of Hampton, Iowa, said she and her husband of Goshen, Conn., in the last year staged conventions in Hawaii, Bermuda, Dallas, New York, Las Vegas, Houston, San Francisco and many other places. She said they used some of that convention know-how to stage their theme wedding—and also to do it on what today is a shoestring budget—$2,000, including reception for 150 persons, dresses and suit rentals, and plane fare to Connecticut for members of Mrs. Love's family.

Love Song

The song Love wrote for the wedding is called "The Moment of Love." It starts: "You hear a voice, you see a smile, you try to speak as though you're versatile, but you wind up acting juvenile, but it's real." (Copyright 1970 by C. R. Love III).

Between convention plannings he called from Washington, where his office is, and sang it to me. It sounded nice and romantic. At the same time, Love told me Robert Rounseville is going to play the lead in his musical, "A Magnificent Thing To Be," when it opens in London in November.

How to stretch the wedding dollar is what Mrs. Love talked about. The "theme" helped. So did friends. And relatives. The wedding hall for the reception came free. It was in a remodeled barn, the home of a Love relative in Fairfield. It was decorated with simple touches—woodsy boughs and inexpensive ribbons. Mrs. Love made her own gown; bridemaids made theirs, too.

A friend who is a photographer donated the pictures, cutting a lot off the wedding bill. There was a three-piece band. More friends. Low cost.

From their convention experience the Loves knew they could shave a lot off expenses by having a buffet party instead of a formally served sitdown feast at the reception. People helped themselves and that saved a bundle, according to Mrs. Love.

"Besides," she said, "I think a better time was had by all who attended. They were participating more in the reception since they had no one to wait on them.

"It really turned into a fun party."

Their going-away car was decorated with pine boughs, keeping with the tone of simplicity and naturalness that blended events of the day.

How did Mrs. Love feel about the way everything worked out? Spoken in response to that question were the words most any bride would use in answer:

"To tell you the truth," she said, "it's all one big blur. The whole day."

Along Broadway

By JACK GAVER
UPI Drama Editor

NEW YORK (UPI) — Broadway productions—and those who created and interpreted them—eligible for the 1973 Tony Awards will be shows presented between April 3, 1972, and March 11, 1973.

This will be the 27th year for the Tonys, which were established in 1947 by the American Theater Wing as a memorial to its founding president, director Antoinette Perry, and sponsored in recent years by the League of New York Theaters.

As has been the case for the past seven years, the presentation ceremonies will constitute a television special supervised by Broadway producer Alexander H. Cohen. ABC-TV will broadcast the elaborate production from a Broadway theater on Sunday evening, March 25.

Cohen has dubbed this year's production "The Wide World of Broadway," the theme being the impact that New York stage shows have on theater throughout the world.

Because of this, for the first time there will be some taped sequences laced into the otherwise live telecast to show performances in various foreign productions of Broadway originals. The bulk of the entertainment will consist of presentation of key numbers from current New York musicals.

Producer David Merrick, who has been unusually quiet for a couple of years—he did get "Sugar" on last season—hopes he has a new musical project for 1973-74.

He has purchased stage rights to a current best-selling novel, "Semi-Tough," by Dan Jenkins. This is a first-person tale by a fictional star pro football halfback of the New York Giants before, during and after a Super Bowl championship game between the Giants and the New York Jets.

---

"Shubert Alley" is an original musical comedy project of producer Michael Abbott for next season.

The title comes from that famous mid-block private thoroughfare belonging to the Shubert organization that provides a short cut for anyone going from West 44th Street to West 45th Street, and vice versa, between Broadway and Eighth Avenue.

Many have wanted to use the title for a show during the 65-year regime of the Shuberts, but permission has always been refused until now.

Abbott has comissioned novelist-playwright Jerome Weidman, who has Broadway musicals "Fiorello!" and "I Can Get It for You Wholesale" to his credit, to provide a libretto for the project. Naturally, it will be a show biz story.

The screen rights to the current Broadway success, "That Championship Season," have been acquired by Playboy Productions and Max L. Raab Productions.

The screenplay will be written by Jason Miller, author of the drama that was chosen by the New York Drama Critics' Circle as the best play of the 1971-72 season.

GUEST APPEARANCE

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Michael Parks, who once starred in his own series (Then Came Bronson) will appear in a guest shot with Gary Merrill and Stefanie Powers in "Medical Center."

A TRUNKFUL

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Sea World of San Diego is attempting to train a 14-month-old Asian elephant to waterski at the amusement park.

---

REPLACEMENT

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Sarah Miles replaced Candy Bergen in MGM's "The Man Who Loved Cat Dancing."

---

FAR-OUT

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Michael Chrichton will direct "Westworld," a far-out adventure story from his own original screenplay.

Are you a hazard to your wealth?

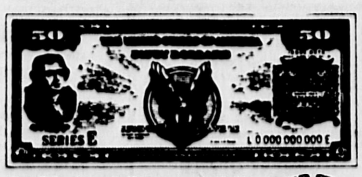
Everytime you hold your paycheck in your hot little hand, you promise yourself to salt something away. But man is weak. And what you want today seems a lot more important than worrying about what you'll need tomorrow.

Quit kidding yourself.

Join the Payroll Savings Plan where you work. It's easy. Just specify an amount you want set aside from your paycheck. Then that money is used to buy U.S. Savings Bonds. You never see the money, so the temptation to spend it is removed. And with every paycheck, your money grows. So when you need it, you'll find you've got a sizeable amount stashed away. Enough to help out with what tomorrow may bring.

If you can't trust yourself, trust U.S. Savings Bonds. Then you'll have a fund in your future.



Now E Bonds pay 5½% interest when held to maturity of 5 years, 10 months (4% the first year). Bonds are replaced if lost, stolen, or destroyed. When needed they can be cashed at your bank. Interest is not subject to state or local income taxes, and federal tax may be deferred until redemption.

Popular Radio

NEW YORK (UPI) — One of the world's most listened-to and powerful radio stations operates not from a great urban center but from the tranquil Caribbean island of Bonaire, Netherlands Antilles, where pink flamingos still outnumber people.

The 500,000-watt station is the voice of Trans World Radio, an organization with headquarters in Chatham, N.J., that broadcasts low-key religious programming on a worldwide basis.

The Bonaire station offers varied programming ranging from Latin American, classical and sacred music to Biblical allegories and inspirational messages, as well as information and entertainment selections.

Heard at 800 on the AM radio dial, the missionary station broadcasts in five languages, including English, Spanish, Portuguion and entertainment selections.

Broadcast facilities on Bonaire are centered around an antenna field consisting of more than 30 towers, a modern studio which represents a marvel of advanced electronic technology, and an administrative building.

Erection of the antenna system was performed by the Trans World Radio staff. Supervision was given by a team of experts who were found after completing a particularly difficult assignment in the Far East. All other work on the studio and office, including technical installation, was done by Trans World Radio missionaries.

Guided tours through the modern broadcasting facilities are among the island's most popular tourist attractions.

Thousands of Letters

Trans World Radio's programming has a wide following. As many as 300,000 letters are received yearly expressing appreciation for the programs which Trans World Radio broadcasts both from Bonaire and from Monte Carlo, Monaco. A special installation, manned by a multilingual staff, is maintained to sort the letters according to language and locality for reply. The organization, which is interdenominational, receives financial assistance from a wide variety of religious groups both in the United States and abroad.

Trans World Radio, founded in 1954 by Dr. Paul E. Freed, a businessman turned missionary and the son of missionary parents, established its station in Bonaire after an extensive search for a suitable Western Hemisphere site.

Players Cast "Gabriel Ghost"

The Newton Country Players have selected nine juveniles for their annual children's show, a musical ghost story entitled "Gabriel Ghost."

The original and new musical melodrama for youngsters of elementary school level has a book by Peggy Simon and Sue Lawless, with lyrics by Peggy Simon and music by Phil Gilbert. The entire production is being staged and directed by Daniel Kosow of Chestnut Hill.

A limited number of dates remain open for programming to sponsor groups and theatre parties interested in fund raising. Weekend bookings are available from April 8 through May 6, either as a "road show" or performances at Pomroy House, 84 Eldredge St., Newton. Seating capacity is approximately 175.

"Gabriel Ghost" floats through one hour of spoof and spookery — and more surprises than one can find in a witch's brew. Locale of the play is the super-natural, super-musical land of Scarum, and it relates the tale of a young ghost's first assignment to haunt a house.

Two principals from last season's award-winning children's show, "Sam Stiller, Private Eye", have again been cast in leading roles, Victoria Floyd of Newton and Tracey Pellows of Chestnut Hill.

Twelve-year-old Miss Floyd, an eighth grade student at Bigelow JHS, will portray Winona Witch. Last season, she appeared as Abagail Boomerfield in "Sam Stiller," later performing in the New England Theatre Conference Drama Festival. In current school plays, she has essayed the role of Gloria Upsen in "Mame" and worked in the chorus of "Damn Yankees." She also acted as Grandfather in "Rose Cure" and in "Howdy Cowboy" for the Newton YMCA Musical Theatre.

Double-cast as Winona Witch is 16-year-old Miss Pellows, a sophomore at Newton North HS. Last season she played the role of Olivia Stiller, later also appearing in the NETC Drama Festival. She worked as an apprentice in "Miracle Worker" with the Ravencroft Theatre, N.H., last summer.

With the Boston Children's Theatre, The Merrie Masquers and the Newtonville Players, Miss Pellows was featured as Goldie in "Fiddler on the Roof," a christian in "Androcles and the Lion," a tourist and a lady of the court in different productions of "The Mouse That Roared" and in "Lessons."

Doubling in the title role of this year's musicfest are two 12-year-olds, Peter Levine of Newton Highlands, a seventh grader at Meadowbrook JHS, and Drew Tick of Chestnut Hill, a sixth grade student at Maimonidies School. Peter is currently cast as Winthrop in his school's production of "The Music Man" and previously appeared as Algernon in "Four Letters from Algernon" for Pomroy House and guest-appeared in Newton South's version of "Antigone."

"Gabriel" marks Drew's second stage outing, having previously executed the role of a newsboy in "Redhead."

Dual cast in the part of Petunia Witch are two Bigelow JHS students, 13-year old Jennifer Levey of Chestnut Hill and Claire Whoriskey of Newton, eighth and ninth grade students respectively. For Miss Whoriskey, it marks her stage debut, while for Miss Levey, her more notable performances include the roles of Stepmother in "Cinderella" for the Ward School and Betsy Ross in "A Needle Fights for Freedom."

Seventeen-year-old Tim Thorman of Newton, a Newton North HS senior, has been co-cast in the role of Count Chive Oregano, the master magician. In previous outings, he appeared as Joe Scales in "Cheaper By The Dozen" and Ferrovious in "Androcles and the Lion" for The Merrie Masquers. In high school plays, he enacted the roles of Glad Hand in "West Side Story" and a customs officer in "Cabaret", doubling in the latter as musical director. He also worked as musical director for "Sam Stiller" last spring.

Tapped for supporting roles were 13-year old Howard Cohen of Newton, an eighth grader at Bigelow JHS, and 14-year old Ian Tick of Chestnut Hill, a ninth grade student at Maimonidies School. Howard's camp show credits include Mr. Sowerberry in "Oliver," Baby John in "West Side Story" and the title role in "Charlie Brown," as well as the Prince in "Cinderella" for the Ward School.

Ian previously "tred the boards" as a newsboy in "Redhead," Boxer in "Animal Farm," and for the B-B-N Community Center, as Misha in "Jews of Silence."

President of the Players, Mrs. Sandra Deming of Newton Highlands, announced that there are still openings in the technical and backstage areas of the production. Those interested are requested to phone 969-3993 or to come directly to the rehearsal hall at Pomroy House week nights from 7-9:30 p.m. For further data regarding theatre party sponsorship, call 969-2665 or write to P.O. Box 9, Newton Centre, 02159.

Plays for children previously produced by the Players include "The Sleeping Princess," "Mr. Popper's Penguin," "The Tale of the Donkey" and last season's award-winning "Sam Stiller, Private Eye."

Now in their 17th year of community theater activity, the Newton Country Players are a non-profit, philanthropic association comprised of local residents, who, as an avocation, are actively engaged in the development, expansion and assistance of theatre activity on community and educational levels.

Sculptors In Exhibit

There are four Newton artists among exhibitors in "New England Sculpture Today," a show marking the 25th anniversary of the New England Sculptors' Association.

They are: Polly Egelson, Nathan L. Fineberg, Marcia Shohet Zonis and Richard Wetterer, sculpton-in-residence at Mt. Ida Junior College.

The exhibition can be seen at the First National Bank of Boston, 100 Federal street, through March 23, Monday-Friday, from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m.

More than 50 works by New England sculptors are on view.

The group showing is designed to demonstrate the diversity of sculptural interests represented by the New England Sculptors' Association, an organization founded in 1948 to promote public interest in contemporary sculpture. Its membership extends into the six New England States and includes well-established sculptors and new, young talent.

This exhibit contains works ranging from welded steel to foam rubber. Stone, and wood carvings, reliefs, welded and brazed metals, stained glass, plastic constructions and castings, mixed media works and large and small bronzes are among the many works displayed.

Tevye Of Cambridge?

AS the culmination of their annual charity drive, students of the Belmont Hill School are presenting an orginal musical production, written and directed by Andrew Cadiff, 10 The Ledges Rd., Newton Centre.

Cadiff, a senior at Belmont Hill, explained that the school had never produced an original musical as part of its fund drive and "thought it would be a good idea."

Entitled "Poison Ivy," the musical tells the story of a young man's dilemma in chossing between Harvard and Princeton Universities.

The ensuing troubles with admissions counselors and a father dead set on his own alma mater, "Fair Harvard," were emphatically denied as autobiographical by the young author, although he is currently deliberating on whether to major in drama or psychology at either of the two schools used in his plot.

Cadiff has had about five years acting experience at Belmont Hill and summer camp, but this is his first effort from the opposite side of the footlights.

The transition appeared to be relatively smooth as he enthusiastically described rewriting the lyrics of hit Broadway showtunes to fit his own musical and although Zero Mostel never sang "If I Were In Cambridge," he'd certainly recognize the tune.

Kenneth Victor, 115 Devonshire Rd., Waban, plays a lead role in his classmate's musical, and several seventh graders from Belmont Hill were recruited to play juvenile roles. Among the younger members of the cast are Keith Moscow of Dudley Rd., Newton Centre, Ethan Golding, 65 Sterling St., West Newton, and Craig Bloom, 19 Hayden Rd., Waban.

Cadiff added that the proceeds from his show will go to the Comm. of Responsibility for aid to war-injured South Veitnamese children, as will the funds from the entire charity drive.

Mrs. Eliose Houghton, 152 Chestnut St., Newton Centre, spokesman for the Committee of Responsibility, thanked the students by saying, "When young people continue to show sensitivity, intelligence and persistence in developing their own skills and insights in order to help those who have been victimized by the horrible actions of our time, hope continues."

"Poison Ivy," written and directed by Andrew Cardiffwith music by Leonard Bernstein, Harold Arlen, Frank Leosser and others, may be seen and appreciated at the Old Gym at Belmont Hill School, 350 Prospect St., Belmont, on Mar. 9 and 10 at 8 p.m.

Tickets will be sold at the door. Adults will be asked to pay $2 and students, $1.

Artist Competition Opens

The American Mothers Committee, Inc. announces major art awards of $1,000 first prize and $500 second prize to young mothers who are actively engaged in painting, sculpture, needlework and jewelry. The donor, Mrs. Gertrude Fogelson of New York, a sculptress, art patron and trustee of the Jewish Museum of New York, feels that these prizes will encourage artists to continue their careers in the arts as well as provide a cultural environment for their children.

In the field of painting, entries may include oils, water color and charcoal, and sculpture may be in the media of bronze, metal, stone and wood. In crafts, entries may be needlework and hand-crafted jewelry. All art entries with applications attached must be received by March 29, to be judged by the state jury. The best entries in each state will be sent to Denver, Col., for exhibition and judging by the national jury during the Annual Convention of the American Mothers Committee, Inc., Brown Palace Hotel, May 7-11, 1973.

The 1972 Massachusetts Mother of the Year is Vera Shaw of Newton. Dale Evans Rogers is Honorary Chairman of the Young Mothers Council Service. Members of the Massachusetts State Jury are: Anne Adamson, insturctor of crewel embroidery at the Belmont Public Library, sponsored by Belmont Arts and Crafts; Dorothea Browne, art teacher at Lexington Christian Academy, Elizabeth Gilligan, Art Director of the Boston Public Schools, Mildred Kingsbury, oil painting instructor in the adult classes of the Brookline and Newton Public Schools, Aulikki Olson of Lincoln, and Selma H. Stone, lecturer and co-author of UNDERSTANDING MODERN ART.

The Massachusetts State Exhibit will be held in the Belmont Memorial Library, 336 Concord avenue, Belmont on April 27.

Requests for contest entry blanks may be secured by writing Mildred Kingsbury, 32 Barbara road, West Newton 02165 or Anne Adamson, 36 Brookside avenue, Belmont 02178.

Slide Show Planned

"Winning Slides of The Year," a special slide show complete with commentary, organized by the New England Camera Club Council, will be shown at the Newton Free Library Camera Club's meeting Monday, Mar. 12 at 7:30 p.m. at Nonantum branch, 126 Bridge St.

For this program, club president Phil Coyne of Newton announces that the Newton Free Library Camera Club will host the Colonial Camera Club of Acton, the F.77 Camera Club of Belmont, and the Waltham Recreation Camera Club.

On Monday Mar. 26 at 7:30 p.m., results of the Camera Club's second competition will be announced.

The Newton Free Library Camera Club meets on the second and fourth Monday of the month at Nonantum branch. Beginning and experienced photographers of all ages are invited to participate.

FOR THE BRIDE

NEW YORK (UPI) — It is traditional for the bridegroom to give his bride a special gift to wear on her wedding day. A small diamond pin or pendant, diamond earrings, a strand of pearls, a gold and diamond watch are among suitable gifts.

Late Winter Dramatics Scheduled

The Nonesuch Players along with Dana Hall and Beaver Country Day School girls will present two productions on Mar. 9 and 10 at 8 a.m. in the Bardwell Auditorium of the Dana Hall School, Wellesley.

"The Anatomist" by Edward Ravenscroft, diredted by M.T. Martin Jr., and "The Blind Men" by Michel de Chelderode, directed by Joseph Ruffino, are the two dramas being offered. Jack Leist of Newton is a member of the casts.

Ticket reservations may be made by calling 235-9300. Tickets for adults are $1.50 each and for students, $1 each.

Library Reception Set For Artist Esther Geller

Artist Esther Geller and Harold Shapero, professor of Music at Brandeis University, and the husband of Ms. Geller, will be guests at a reception at the Newton Free Library, 414 Centre St., Newton Corner, Wednesday evening, March 14 at 7 p.m., when friends of the library and the artist join in an informal reception in honor of Esther Geller's Newton exhibit, "Intaglio Prints and Encaustic Paintings."

Ms. Geller's miniature abstract encaustics are tiny gems, evidence of her technical proficiency in the difficult medium of encaustic, a method where melted wax and pigment flow to make new color variations, textures, patterns, and design which stir the viewer's imagination.

Abstract lines that weave and coil, or flow and dance freely, give a wonderful sense of movement, while themes of light and color are interwoven in the configurations of line.

Several paintings reflect great bursts of color, while others are more subtle. All strive for perfection and show great attention to detail.

Esther Geller, born in Boston and a graduate of the School of the Boston Museum of Fine Arts has exhibited widely including shows at the Boris Mirski Gallery, the Addison Gallery, Worcester Museum, Brandeis University, San Francisco Museum of Art, the Institute of Contemporary Art, the DeCordova, at the American Academy in Rome and in Copenhagen.

Ms. Geller's work is in the collection of the Boston Museum of Fine Arts, the Addison Gallery, and in many private collections.

During the reception, Shapero, director of the Electronic Music Studios at Brandeis University, will add to the festivities with a program of electronic music, including some of his own compositions.

Mrs. Virginia A. Tashjian, Director of the Newton Free Library, cordially invites all interested members of the community to the reception, and to view the exhibit which continues through the end of the month.

Center Expands Study Offerings

The Newton Community Center will be offering a variety of courses for children, teens and adults beginning Mar. 12.

The center will be expanding its program to include courses such as modern dance, karate, and a natural foods cooking workshop entitled "You are What You Eat."

Registration for the workshops. ends Mar. 9. They will be held at the Pomroy House, 84 Eldrege st. and the cost is $22 for an eight-week workshop. A three dollar registration fee is required. For further information call 969-5906.

Newton Centennial 1873 - 1973

VOL. 103 NO. 11 NEWTON, MASSACHUSETTS, THURSDAY, MARCH 15, 1973 PRICE FIFTEEN CENTS

Brown, Temperley On Their Way Home

The happy, excited families of two Newton men have been spending the last few days close to a television set.

And if all goes well, they may have the chance to watch Air Force Major Russell Temperly and Marine Captain Paul G. Brown return to American soil this weekend.

And what's even better, a reunion is in the air.

Maj. Temperly, 37, and Capt. Brown, 29, were flown from Hanoi, North Vietnam, to Clark Air Force Base in the Phillipines Wednesday.

The captain's mother, Mrs. Mildred Brown of Newton, said Tuesday she still was not quite sure what the final arrangements for her son would entail. She said she has been informed by the Marine Corps that her son will more than likely be sent to St. Alban's, N.Y. Marine Hospital which she says is in the borough of Queens in New York City.

She also said she was expecting him to arrive at the end of this week and hoped the Marines might change their minds and send him to Chelsea Naval Hospital here in Boston.

Maj. Temperly was born and raised in Newton and lived on Gibbs street before going to Vietnam. His mother, Sarah Temperley Hopf, remarried during the time he was a prisoner and moved to Falmouth.

His cousin, Mrs. Carol Martin of Newton Centre, perhaps one of the major's greatest fans, recounted Tuesday that she learned of Maj. Temperley's release Monday and had promptly gone out to tell her neighbors and up to the school to inform her children.

The Temperleys' plans too, are uncertain. Mrs. Martin said the Air Force will send the major to Andrews Air Force Base.

His mother, Mrs. Hopf, will see him before any other members of the family and will let the rest of the relations know when Russ is ready to see them.

"Then we'll just pick up and go," Mrs. Martin said.

Capt. Brown, a marine was shot down over North Vietnam in July, 1968. When captured, he held the rank of lieutenant. He was listed as missing in action from July, 1968 to late 1969 when a wire service transmitted a photo taken of him in Hanoi.

The family saw picutres of him again in 1970 when a Canadian correspondent was allowed to film outside of Hanoi at the prison camp. Mrs. Brown says she watched the film at that time and caught a glimpse of her son.

Capt. Brown joined the Marines in 1966 after graduating from Boston University. His father, Thomas G. Brown, died shortly after he was captured.

Maj. Temperley was shot down over North Vietnam in October, 1967.

Last summer, his family and friends gathered at a camp in New Hampshire, where he had spent summers, and held a day of events tagged "Russ Temperley Day." At that time, Mrs. Martin commented perhaps Russ will be able to attend "Russ Temperley Day" in 1973

JAZZY SALES — The first purchase of tickets for the Newton Centennial Jazz Jubilee was made by the manager of the beverage department of a Waban supermarket from Mrs. Benjamin Spelfogel, volunteer ticket salesperson (center). Mrs. Sidney Harmon (left) is the coordinator for supermarket ticket sales. The Jazz Jubilee, to be held Saturday, May 12, at Boston College, will feature Dizzy Gillespie, Thelonius Monk, Bobby Hackett, the Preservation Hall Band of New Orleans and George Wein's Newport Jazz All Stars. Tickets for the event are on sale at all Newton Fire Stations.

Ward 4 Casualty Of Redistricting

By CYNTHIA BLACK

A Needham precinct will join Newton in one of four new legislative districts and Ward 4 precincts will be divided among three districts, according to a plan made by the House Redistricting Committee.

Redistricting is being conducted in order to provide single member districts, and it will give Newton four one-member districts to replace the current 12th and 13th Middlesex districts served by two state representatives in each.

Concern over the plan centers mainly on the split in the fourth ward.

Ward 4 Alderman Richard J. McGrath said Tuesday he had met with State Representative George Keverian, chairman of the Redistricting Committee, and discussed changing the proposal.

McGrath, saying the split-up "depersonalizes" the whole ward, indicated Keverian will not reconsider the plan unless Newton's representatives return with another complete plan. Keverian gave him a week.

The proposal places precincts one and four of Ward 4 in Rep. Paul H. Guzzi's district; precinct three in Rep. Lois Pine's district; and precinct two in Rep. David Mofenson's district.

"Ties that ordinarily make a district are non-existent under this proposal," McGrath said. "Ward 4 is not an entity anymore."

The alderman said he hopes to hold a meeting with the four representatives and the Ward 4 Committee within the next few days.

"They (the representatives) have tried to explain to me why this was done," McGrath said, "but I'm really more concerned about the voters. I hope I can get our representatives to reconsider"

Nwton, under the new system, will also be joined by one Needham's Precinct H, to be placed in Representative David J. Mofenson's district.

Employment Express Line Action Sought

Newton State Representative David J. Mefenson and Alderman David Cohen filed a resolution this week calling on the MBTA to restore its "employment express" bus line.

The resolution will be assigned to an aldermanic committee at the boards's next meeting.

The discontinued line ran from Dudley Street in Roxbury in Rt. 128 in Needham. It was stopped at the end of last year because of the allegedly excessive costs involved in its operation, Cohen said.

The resolution which has the backing of the Newton-Needham Chamber of Commerce, is the product of a series of meetings between its sponsors, citizens groups and members of the business community.

Ald. Cohen explained the purpose of the express bus service "is to make available to residents of the inner city jobs in the suburbs."

"Many qualified people are unable to find work in the city

School Board Backs Metropolitan Plan

The Newton School Committee endorsed the concept of metropolitan area planning in education despite widespread dissatisfaction among members over the relative merit of the written document containing the collaborative project.

School Committeeman Alvin Mandel led off discussion at the Committee's regular meeting with a jab at the document he said was "replete with semantics and gobbledygook educators have been feeding us in the past. I'm not impressed with the proposal as it is written."

Committeewoman Eleanor Rosenbloom countered for the opposition by stating that the proposal in front of the committee did not pretend to be the definitive study but "we must act now on a voluntary basis instead of on a crisis basis later when forced to do so by state legislation."

The document, entitled "Metropolitan Collaboration: An Omnibus Proposal for Greater Boston," would have Newton join with 72 other Greater Boston communities in eliminating "racial isolation

Hike Along Charles

Aldermen, Conservators and interested bystanders will have an opportunity Sunday to hike through a section of Charles riverbank land at Riverside.

Walkers will meet at the Recreation Road bridge off of the northbound lane of Route 128. State Representative Lois G. Pines, Alderman David B. Cohen, Howard Geller of Newton South High School and Mrs. Helen A. Heyn of the Newton Conservation Commission will be there. Everyone is welcome to join them.

The Conservation Commission unanimously supports H. 3393, a bill filed by Rep. David J. Mofenson to authorize and direct the MDC to acquire for park purposes all of the Thomas W. Gilligan property in this area

Incinerator Walkout Averted

The combined efforts of Newton legislators, city officials and state officials have in all probability averted a threatened walk-out at the Newton incinerator set for Monday (March 19).

Men working at the incinerator, claiming they were promised during collective bargaining last year efforts would be made to have them included under a Heart-Lung law, decided last week they had waited long enough.

According to State Representatives Peter F. Harrington, the law, which now covers policemen and firefighters, increases the amount of disability paid to men when they are disabled due to job related heart or lung problems.

Mayor Theodore D. Mann Tuesday indicated he had transmitted a recommendation to the Board of Aldermen saying he supports their requests.

According to Harrington, the State Legislature needs the approval of both the mayor and the Board of Aldermen before it will consider granting coverage to the men in Local 800.

Mann said he was "sympathetic in terms of the working conditions" to the Local 800 request and noted he told the union last week he would give the matter his immediate attention.

Harrington and fellow Representative Paul H Guzzi, in turn, have kept in contact with the legislative Public Service Committee on this matter. It will go to this committee when approved by the Board of Aldermen.

Harrington said he had "Urged the men (in Local 800) not to be too hasty," and told them it may take some time to get the matter through the General Court. He also said the chairman of the Public Service Committee, at the request of Guzzi, paid an unannounced visit to the Rumford Avenue incinerator last Friday and

Housing Projects Funded

City and housing officials were expected to sign a contract Wednesday night for financial assistance from the state for two housing projects.

According to Housing Authority Executive Director Frank Quinn, the Department of Community Affairs (DCA) has agreed to provide state funds for the 50 units of elderly housing proposed at the Thurston Road site in Newton Upper Falls and for 20 units of low income family housing on Beaconswood Road in Newton Highlands.

Quinn said the actual amount of money "in dollars and cents" had not been determined.

Notice of funding for the Thurston Road project came last week from outgoing DCA Commissioner Miles Mahoney. At that time, it was suggested further approval might be forthcoming.

The Newton Housing Authority turned to the state for assistance after an announced cutback in funding from the Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) was made by President Richard M. Nixon.

Since that time, local officials have received conflicting reports on whether or not HUD would grant funds to their projects or not. Quinn said they decided to ask the state for money and agreed to "go with" whoever came through with funding.

Preliminary plans for the elderly housing project were submitted to the Newton Board of Aldermen.

The Housing Authority still must purchase both parcels of land.

Quinn said "everyone is happy" about the prospects of finally receiving money for housing. None has been built during the past five years.

Mayor Theodore D. Mann, who was to sign the contract Wednesday night, also indicated his support of the plan Tuesday.

HAROLD AND MARIAN — "The Music Man" will be staged Friday, Saturday and Sunday at Meadowbrook Junior High School in Newton Centre. William Green and Tobi Plilavin star in the show as Harold Hull and Marian Paroo. Wendy Belcher, Larry Sloan, Frances Rudnick, Andy Lustig and Peter Levine have the supporting roles of Mrs. Paroo, Mayor Shinn, Eulalie Shinn, Marcellus Washburn and Winthrop. Curtain will be at 8 p.m. on March 16 and 17 and at 1:30 p.m. for the Sunday, March 18, performance. Tickets can be purchased at the door. Last year, Meadowbrook students staged "The Boy Friend."

Foreign Students Appraise Their Experiences In Newton

By EVAN COHEN
Newton South Correspondent

The American Field Service is an agency which allows American students to live a year aboard with selected foreign families and for the students of participating countries to come here.

Over the past year Sverker Littorin from Sweden and Naboru Konno from Japan, have been living in Newton with the Gubermans and Baruches, respoectively.

Both AFS'ers are attending Newton South High School as seniors. However, neither Sverker nor Naboru will be able to receive credit for his scholastic work here because the educational committees from their native lands do not think that the curriculum they are taking is academically rigorous enough to warrant it.

It should be noted that Sverker is taking five majors with three electives and Naboru, four majors with two electives; which is considered a full load for an American student. A usual year in their native countries would be made up of 14 courses with seven majors, including four languages.

NOBORU KONNO

This seemingly huge educational schism can be explained through detailing parts of the educational systems normally followed in Sweden and in Japan.

After the ninth grade, Sverker explained a student has several choices in Sweden. He may prepare for skilled labor or undergo technical training at special high schools or, upon passing difficult tests, go on to theacademic 'gymnasium", a college preparatory school. Here he must major in one of five "lines" economy, technical science, natural science, social science, or humanities.

Sverker, in one of the most difficult gymnasiums, has chosen the social sciences. Therefore he must take a number of languages and social studies courses. In Japan a similiar situation exists although the state does not pay for college tuition.

Since there are no standardized admission tests for college in Japan (such as our CEEB program)and one must take many tests, as well as face a stiff competition, Naboru opted to gain admission to a university affiliated private school. His admission to the college is guaranteed, and to ensure his having a strong background in language, history, and science, his courses are mandatory.

SVERKER LITTORIN

One reaction an American might have in defining our curriculum is that we take less subjects, but pursue them in greater depth.

Sverker explained this to be partially true, and said he prefers the greater variety of courses anyway.

The school hours in Japan and Sweden are longer than our hours, running from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. (with no outside work over the weekend in Sweden).

Naboru commented that "the curriculum is very active here, for example in English we discuss a book, not just listen."

It appears that in Newton we have a less rigorous schedule of courses, yet individual work

Community Centers Conduct Annual Election Of Officers

The annual meeting of the Newton Community Service Centers, Inc. held on a Sunday for the first time in the 66-year history of the agency, was well attended and resulted in a most positive ending to a year of outstanding community service.

The schedule of events for the day included a meeting of the corporation, convened by Paul Burke, president. Highlights of the meeting was a report from the nominating committee headed by Mrs. Manuel Taylor. Those elected to fill vacancies on the Board of Directors included: Rep. David Mofenson, William Chisholm, Mrs. Joseph Daniele, Kenneth DiNisco, Jonathan Hacker, Mrs. David Mofenson, James Ryan, Mrs. Mark Warshaw, and Oscar Wasserman.

Mrs. Robert Carleo was elected as clerk of the corporation and Robert Jackson as treasurer.

At the meeting of the board of directors, Paul Burke was re-elected as president of the agency for 1973; and in addition Sister Margaret Gorman, first vice president; Samual Turner, second vice president; Mrs. Robert Carleo, recording secretary; Mrs. John Coleman, corresponding secretary and Mrs. John Taplin, assistant treasurer.

Following the two business meetings, a reception coordinated by Mr. and Mrs. Seymour McLean was enjoyed by all. Mrs. Edward Landy, Mrs. John Taplin and Mrs. Richard Morse coordinated reservations, while Mrs. Robert Carleo, Mrs. David Cooper, David Cooper, Sister Margaret Gorman, Anthony Medaglia, Mrs. Maxwell Schleifer, and Mrs. Keith Willoughby served as hostesses and hosts.

Mr. & Mrs. Augustus Castoldi and Mrs. Manuel Taylor assisted the McLeans with the refreshments.

A program meeting convened by overall coordinator of the event, Mr. Arthur Martin, featured addresses by President Paul Burke, a message from Mayor Theodore Mann, and a major presentation by Congressman Robert Drinan.

Mr. Burke thanked all for their support and paid tribute to the dedicated staff headed by Anthony J. Bibbo, executive director. He also noted the presence of Edward Kovan, representing Dr. Demone of UCS; Alderman Richard McGrath; School Committeeman Herbert Regal and former Alderman William Carmen.

In his comments, the Mayor referred to the excellent working relationship between the NCSC, Inc., and the City of Newton.

Congressman Drinan in his presentation spoke of balancing the budget, the crisis in the current national debt, and concerns of the future for programs such as Headstart, day care, and needs of the elderly. A question and answer period including responses from both the Congressman and Mayor, followed the presentation.

Travels From Newton

Hong Kong: Hold On To Your Wallet

By DICK GLOVSKY

(SECOND IN A SERIES)

To understand Hong Kong Jean and I needed a short geography lesson.

Hong Kong itself is a bustling builr-up island, but the British lease also includes Kowloon, just as bustling and built-up, and a couple hundred square miles called the New Territories. Hong Kong Island is situated across Victoria Harbor from Kowloon. The latter adjoins the New Territories, both being part of mainland China.

Whether in Kowloon or Hong Kong (omitting for a moment the New Territories), the key descriptive word is hustle. There is a hustle (and a bustle) of activity. And everyone hastles for a living.

Somethimes they hustle, they usually being Chinese shopkeepers, with an odd abandon, almost defying you to leave your money. For example, my brother had requested a Konica 52 milimeter camera with a 1.4 aperture, which, of course, he had to inscribe for me. He also wanted a clip for the flash attachment and a doubler. After comparing prices at about 20 stores on both sides of the harbor, I was ready to buy.

At one shop I liked the price of the camera, so asked about the clip and doubler, having found elsewhere that they cost about $4 and $12, respectively. The salesman insisted, however, on selling a $65 doubler, although admitting he had one for $12.

"Look," I said, 'I want the

camera. "I'll take it if you'll take it if you'll sell me the $12 doubler."

"No deal," he said, "without the $65 one."

So I left. Fortunately, there are so many camera shops in greater Hong Kong that I easily found another where I made the purchase.

While some shopkeepers spit on your money, other covet it with gusto. At breakfast one morning, we requested only juice, toast, and coffee from a set menu also including eggs and bacon. Our waiter nodded affirmatively that we could order part of the set menu, the sort of which was $5 HK (five Hong Kong dollars or about 90 cents). When he later presented the bill, it read $4.80 HK.

I less than politely asked him why. He summoned the manager who explained that they had served us the fresh orange juice rather than the powdered one they serve with the fixed menu. Couldn't we now understand the prize?

More clever than the techniques which bamboozled as at that breakfast were the two used on us while going to and being at one of the famed floating restaurants at Aberdeen. A seven mile bus or taxi ride from the central business dirtrict of Hong Kong Island, Aberdeen sits on a bay swarming with sampans, where the water people live. The water people eat, sleep, shop and recreate on their boats, rarely stepping on terra firma. When they do, they get land sick.

The brightly lit floating restaurants linger in the center of the bay anchored to its bottom. To reach one, it is necessary to hire a sampan from one of the ladies gesturing, shouting, and-or pulling you toward her tiny vessel. Like a float, she maneuvers the sampan with a keel. Having been warned by one of my travel guides to settle a price for the ride in advance, the sampan lady and I had agreed to a fare of $2 HK (about 35 cents). When I drew a $10 HK note, her eyes glimmered. In the middle of the bay she had no change. I should have realized.

On the restaurant-barge, we ascended stairs lined with autographed pictures of celebrities reaching an expansive second story hall filled with chattering Chinese diners. Everyone sat at the same large sized round tables. At some, 16 people kept up 11 conversations. The two of us felt a bit in-secure trying to surround our King Arthur-like round table.

Our waiter suggested the fixed price meal for two. With nothing to make us suspect our English spaking recommender, we agreed and ordered the set menu, highlighted unquestionably by a lobster dish. After eating several dishes brought one at a time, we awaited the piece die resistance, the lobster dish. Waiter, what's holding up the lobster dish?

"What lobster dish?"

"The one on the fixed menu."

"See that pork dish?"

"Yes."

"We substituted that for the lobster."

"Wait a minute."

Suddenly the waiter could no longer speak English; could not understand what we were trying to tell him. When he cleared off our dishes and found nothing else on the tablecloth, he probably understood better.

We quickly became wary of Hong Kong. Nevertheless, we tried to see its sights, the most apparent of which was the harbor, Only after a steep cablecar ride to the top of Victoria Peak can one appreciate its immensity. Scores of frigates, barges, and battleships stretch endlessly on the blue floor below.

There were also the New Territories, where we wandered through a sad maze-ike 1000 year old walled village called Kam Tin, outside of which its matrons in black sit in constant conversation, peered over the border into Chou En Lai's domain, an area surrounded by duck farms (I timidly said that I had never seen so many quacks before), and visited one of many government constructed apartment complexes housing some of the thousands of squalored refugees from the north.

Shopping, of course, is also an attraction. Large and small stores and shops saturate both the Kowloon and Hong Kong Island sides of the harbor. Signs extend horizontally, not vertically, from storefronts and there are so many that looking down a street one only sees an interstitching of advertisements. We discovered the best bargains to be in jewelry and porcelain at the Communist Chinese emporium at the Ocean Terminal. Chairman Mao watches over shoppers, who may read some of his many messages strategically plaquedon the walls.

Although we purchased some mementos and gifts at better than bargain rates, Hong Kong's best buy was without a doubt the ferry ride across Victoria Harbor. A one-way trip costs 1.7 cents. A splurge on first class goes for three cents. Ferries run about every ten minutes.

For us, Hong Kong was summed up by that ferry ride. It was inexpensive, but signs posted all over the ferries warned "BEWARE OF PICK-POCKETS."

Mann Plugs City In D.C. Sessions

Mayor Theodore D. Mann recently attended a two day meeting of congressional leaders and administration officials during the Seventh Annual Congressional City Conference held in Washington, D.C.

He participated in the sessions as treasurer of the Massachusetts Mayors' Association at the invitation of the United States Conference of Mayors.

Mayor Mann's chief aim in attending the conference was to enlist support for the funding of Newton's housing programs currently planned by the Housing and Redevelopment Authorities.

In a meeting with the Secretary of Housing and Urban Development, James T. Lynn, Mann informed that President Nixon would, within a few weeks, announce the institution of a program to get housing programs on the track again.

In discussions with Senators Kennedy and Brooke, the Mayor was assured of their continued support in obtaining the necessary funding from HUD. Mayor Mann stated that "the help of our two senators would be effective in getting federal agencies to honor their moral committments previously made but now deferred."

Senators Kennedy and Brooke were also informed by the Mayor of Newton's willingness to defer an Environmental Protection Act grant in order to schedule a more realistic time sequence.

Mayor Mann also met with the state's House delegation under the auspices of Congressmen Thomas P. O'Neill Jr. and Tobert McDonald. In the meeting the Mayor emphasized his concern for the proposed cutbacks in funds that had previously aided in providing city services.

Democrats Meet In Ward Six

A meeting of the Ward Six Democratic Committee will take place on Tuesday, Mar. 20, 8 p.m. at the Lutheran Church, 1310 Centre St. (corner of Cypress St.), Newton Centre.

The program will feature talks by Representatives Lois Pines and David Mofenson. The public is invited.

Senior Citizens Will Hear Leff

Senior Citizens from Newton, Wellesley, and Weston will meet in the Memorial Auditorium of Newton City Hall Friday, April 6, at 2 p.m. to hear Jack Leff, secretary of the Department of Elder affairs.

Secretary Leff will discuss the proposed reorganization of the Department of Elder affairs. He will talk about that department's efforts to provide better health, welfare, and housing programs for senior citizens as well as the plans to develop a home care program. Following the presentation, a panel representing the broad concerns of the elderly from the three communities will discuss the reorganization proposal.

All interested senior citizens from the three communities are invited to attend the meeting which is being sponsored by the Newton Council on Aging, the Wellesley Council on Aging, the Weston Senior Citizens Club, and the Newton Community Service Center. Mrs. Edward Landy from the Community Service Center is coordinating the event.

Newton senior citizens desiring transportation to City Hall for the meeting should contact the office of the Newton Council on Aging at 244-4700, extension 266 before Monday, April 2.

Committee Suggests Moratorium On Granting Cable TV Licenses

A moratorium on any granting of a cable television license in Newton has been recommended by the Mayor's Advisory Committee on CATV.

The group, submitting its report this week, said a license should not be granted until a permanent Newton Cable Commission had been established.

Mayor Theodore D. Mann in commending the committee stated the CATV report "clearly focuses the areas for further investigation within the realm of cable television for the City of Newton."

Mann commented that the recommendations of the CATV committee will be reviewed within the context of a set of CATV regulations due to be established within the next few weeks.

At a recent meeting of the Massachusetts Community Antenna Television Commission, Mayor Mann was invited to discuss the purposed regulations pertaining to the CATV licensing procedure.

The mayor noted with favor that the regulations in line with his committee report called for citizen participation in determing the role of CATV within the community.

Atty. Burton Kreindel, chairman of the committee said that the report recommended a permanent commission should be charged with the responsibility for planning for the city's participation in cable communications, preparing franchise and license documentation, conducting public hearings, considering cable policy and recommending appropriate cable decisions to the mayor and the Board of Aldermen.

The committee recommended the permanent commission sponsor a series of public meetings concerning cable communications and the public be encouraged to participate in the planning for the development of a Newton Cable Communications System.

The report maintained "the establishment of citizen control through community supervision of cable communications in Newton is perhaps the most significant step which could be taken to assure the achievement of the cable's potential and the exploitation of its developing technology for the benefit of the city."

The committee was formed by Mann as an advisory group charged with the responsibility to investigate cable television as a communications medium and to evaluate the role it might play in serving the Newton community, both public and private.

The committee members included: Melvin Wintman, Jeffrey Forbes, David Whiting, James A. Robinson, Alexander Tanger, Michael B. Shane, Theodore Singer, Andrew P. Brilliant, James H. Shane, Geoffrey R. Stoughton, and Rev. T. C. Whitehouse. Edith Litel served as secretary to the committee.

In conducting its study of cable communications, the committee met periodically with members of the Aldermanic Cable TV Study Committee chaired by Alderman Edward L Richmond and the two groups have maintained close liason. The committee also met with many city officials, department and organization heads, citizen groups and interested citizens in gathering data concerning Newton's requirements for cable communications services, the technical characteristics of a cable system to meet the forecasted requirements and the financial, management and ownership alternatives available for system implementation of Newton.

In his letter transmitting the report to Mann, Chairman Kreindel pointed out that "the committee feels that this report can not be the definitive last work on the approach Newton should take on cable communications but should rather be the basis for the beginning of a dialogue among its citizens concerning the cable, its implications for the city, and the complex choices which must be made."

Bowen Sets Kindergarten Registration

The Bowen School will conduct registration for its kindergarten on Tuesday, Apr. 3, and Tuesday, Apr. 10, from 1 p.m. to 2:30 p.m.

All children who will be five-years-old on or before Jan. 1, 1974, are eligible to register.

Parents wishing to register a child should bring their birth certificate and immunization records.

A Visit To Pearl Buck

By JEAN-MICHEL VALETTE

(Editor's Note: Jean-Michel Valette, 12, an eighth grade student at Bigelow Junior High School, wrote his interview with author Pearl S. Buck in September 1972, while working toward his merit badge in journalism in Troop 12. After hearing of the author's death last week, he submitted it for publication.)

Pearl Buck has retired and now lives in Danby, a little town in Vermont near Rutland. There she owns a small "General Store" which sells penny candy, all sorts of grains, nuts and flours, old postcards, stocking menders, assorted things with special smells, a few antiques and last, but not least, her books with her autograph on the title page. She also has three antique shops which she rents out to different antique agencies. If you ever go to Danby, you can recognize her buildings because they are all painted white with brick-red trim. Her house is just around the corner from the four shops.

On a warm sunny Saturday afternoon this September, my cousin Francois (from Paris) and I were in Danby and decided to pay Pearl Buck a visit. We went to the "General Store" and my cousin bought a copy of "L'Exilee" in a pocketbook edition. (This is the French translation of "The Exile", a novel she had written about her mother.)

We then asked a pleasant lady in the store whether we could visit Pearl Buck. This lady, probably in her thirties, turned out to be her secretary. She said that she didn't think so because lately Pearl Buck had been sick and was not allowed to have any visitors. The secretary said she would telephone and ask anyway and surprisingly we were to be allowed in for three minutes.

The secretary led us around the antique stores to Pearl Buck's house. We walked in without knocking. Pearl Buck, a lady in her eighties, with white hair, was sitting in a chair next to a Chinese scroll. We had expected an invalid, but found ourselves in the company of a lady who seemed alert and well. She was wearing a pink, knee-length skirt with a matching top. We shook hands and sat down. There was another man in the room with her, a man in his thirties wearing a print shirt and mustard-colored slacks. He was introduced as Mr. Harrison and we learned that it was he who had written her life story.

Pearl Buck's house is very colorful inside. We sat around a rectangular coffee table next to a brick fireplace that was built into the wall at about waist level. The curtains were drawn shut so that passers-by would not look in.

Francois and I asked her about her life. She told us how she was brought up in China during the Chinese Revolution and how most of her family was killed because they were intelligent and that the Chinese government did not want so many smart people in China. After these events, she moved to the United States and started writing books. She wrote all of her books except one for pleasure. "The Blue Dragon" had been written for money and that was the only book that Pearl Buck disliked. Unfortunately, that was also the only one my cousin had read. We then asked her which of her books she would recommend us to read. She told us that after she wrote a book she would forget about it and so she could not tell us which one to read.

By this time the three minutes were up. My cousin hd his book, "L'Exilee," personally autographed. Mr. Harrison gave him an autographed copy of the French translation of his biography of Pearl Buck and then we left. The secretary took us back to the store, where we once again looked at some of Pearl Buck's books. As we studied photographs of her taken many years ago, we could recognize in them the woman we had just met. She has grown older but looks very much the same. As a person she is open and warm. She has brought new life to Danby.

As we walked home to my grandparents' house for supper, Francois and I talked about our visit to Pearl Buck. A week later, we learned that she had been hospitalized again. We hope that she will soon return to Danby to receive other visitors.

Ward School Kindergarten Registration

John Ward School in Newton Centre will hold its second registration day for kindergarten in Sept. 1973, on Tuesday, March 20, from 1-3 p.m.

Children must be 5 years old before Jan. 1, 1974, to be eligible. The parent must bring the child's birth certificate and immunization records when coming to register.

Chief Institutes 911 Letter Box

Chief William F. Quinn has announced his intention to adopt the "911" letter plan he feels has proven successful in other cities.

Quinn said he has arranged for a Box 911 at the West Newton Post Office for citizens who wish to write to him personlally. All letters, he said, will be opened and read only by him and will be kept in strict confidence.

Every complaint will be investigated, he said. Anyone may write and letters may be left unsigned.

The chief did ask that complaints be legitimate and any statements contain as much fact as possible.

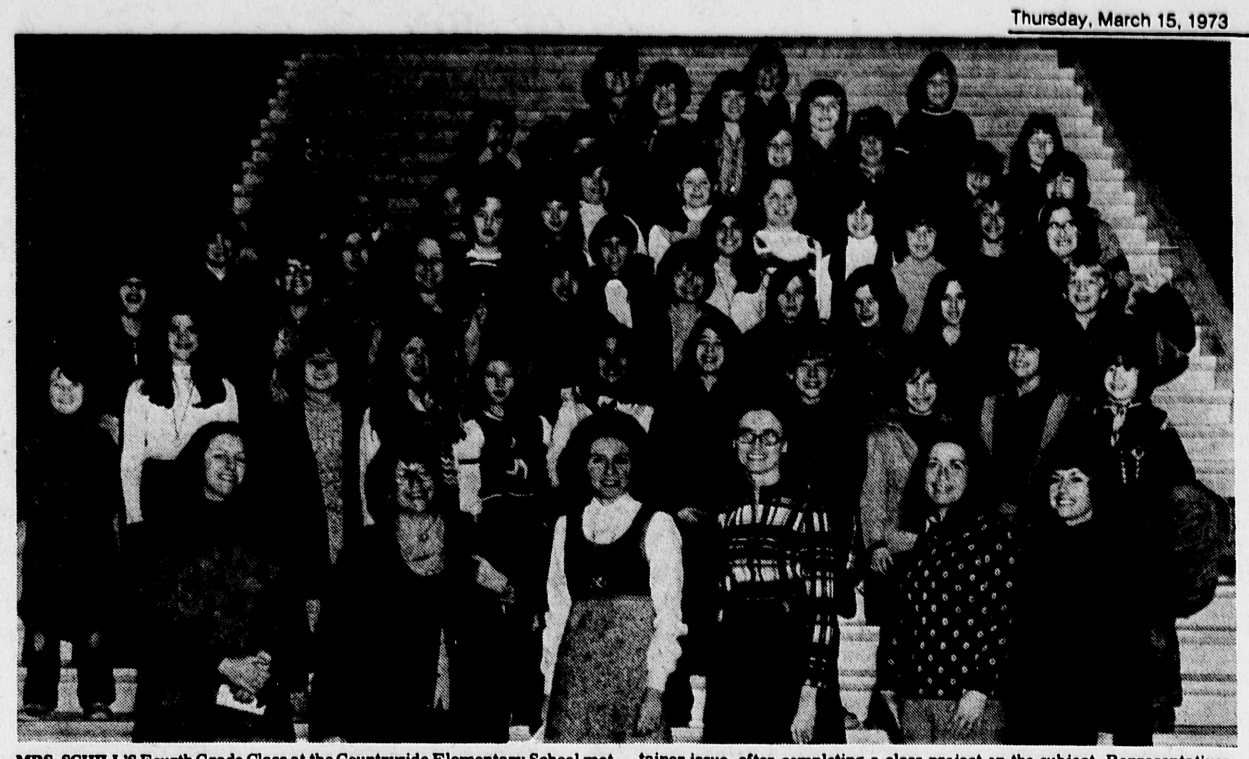
"People sometimes feel uncomfortable calling or visiting a police station," Quinn said, "and as a result, many times these citizens, who may have valuable information vital to the protection of our community, fail to communicate what they know."

Quinn went on to say, "We have been engaged in a program of citizen awareness and partnership encouraging our citizens to call in crimes with our "crime check" program. This has been considerably successful in the apprehension of burglars.

"Our 'Operation Identification' continues with more than 1,000 householders and 1,200 bicyclists enrolled and it has contributed to an improved crime picture."

Quinn said the Newton Police Department was "gratified by the interest our citizens are showing in our mission of protecting the lives and property of our neighbors and law enforcement generally."

Along the same lines, he said, he now urges people to take advantage of the 911 post office box as a means of communication with him.



MRS. SCHILL'S Fourth Grade Class at the Countryside Elementary School met with State Representative Lois Pines on Wednesday, Feb. 28. They attended Commerce and Labor Committee hearings on the returnable beverage container issue, after completing a class project on the subject. Representatives Pines and Peter Harrington have co-sponsored a bill to require a deposit and refund on beverage containers. Both are Democratic legislators from Newton.

Budget Review Saturday

The full Newton Board of Aldermen will begin going over the $88 million 18-month Newton budget Saturday morning (March 17).

Deliberations and reports and recommendations from committees will begin at 9 a.m.

If extra time is needed, a similar session will also be held Saturday, March 24.

Mann Backs Two Bills

Mayor Theodore D. Mann has announced his support of two bills before committees of the Massachusetts House of Representatives, Hr 3447 and Hr 3564 both dealing with State reimbursement to cities and towns.

House Bill 3447 would provide for state reimbursement to cities and towns for costs for services required by the State School Lunch Program. This would cover costs and expenses for constructing any school facility which would prepare food for school children.

Mayor Mann stated that there is "no question in his mind" the School Lunch Program is important and necessary for the school children of Newton and the rest of the Commonwealth. However, he added, the cities and towns are already faced with a local property tax which has been strained and extended beyond the point of fairness for the citizens who must pay that tax. Therefore they must look to the Commonwealth for fiscal responsibilities for the programs which it requires the local governmental level to adopt, he said.

The second bill the mayor spoke in favor of, House Bill 3564 would require State reimbursement to the Cities and Towns for costs which they expend for the remodeling, reconstructing or the making of extraordinary repairs to local public buildings and facilities. Mayor Mann stated he agreed that the establishment of standards for the upgrading of local public facilities is important and is a vital interest of the State and local Governmental authorities, as well as the citizens of all cities and towns.

However, the mayor stated that the concept of the Commonwealth absorbing part of the costs for facilities and standards which the state has imposed upon municipalities should be adopted.

Mayor Mann was co-sponsor of the two bills.

Testimony Given On Divorce, MBTA, Rates

State Representative Lois G. Pines last week testified in support of legislation to require the state to assume costs of operating the MBTA, to eliminate the defense of recrimination in divorce actions, and to establish a peoples rate counsel.

On the recurring legislation to have the state takeover the MBTA costs, Mss Pines said her concern was with a transit systems, effect on the "economic well-being of Metropolitan Boston"

"An efficiently run MBTA," she said, "is directly related to the healthy business climate of the entire state."

She also advocated the development of regional transit authorities with the state assuming costs in the same manner as with the MBTA.

Appearing before the Judiciary Committee last week, Rep. Pines told the committee it was "absurd" to deny a husband and wife a divorce if both parties are equally guilty.

"The effect of such a law," she said, "is to promote the disruption of family life, sponsor clandestine asociations and illicit relationships with third parties, and create an unwholesome atmosphere for children."

The Newton attorney advised the committee that other states have discarded or modified the doctrine of recrimination.

"The elimination of recrimination as a defense will have a positive effect on decreasing unhappiness among all parties, allow for remarriage and the future respectability for a parent and a new and happier surrounding for a child," she said.

The creation of the office of peoples rate counsel, she said, is necessary "to restore the necessary balance between the private and public interests in the state."

The counsel, she explained, would act as advocate for the Consumers Council before all courts, commissions and hearings on any matter affecting the rights of the Massachusetts consumer.

The bill provides for funding through a special franchise tax on the utility involved in an investigation or litigation at the time of the proceedings.

It would cover the gas, electric and telephone companies.

"My bill," she said," would place gas and electric companies in the same position as the telephone company by giving the Department of Public Utilities the power to suspend rate increases for 10 months pending an investigation and require the company file supportive evidence within 30 days.

It would also require utilities to file evidence in support of rate increases at the time the request was made, giving the consumers a chance to prepare their case. At the present time, she noted, the Dept. of Public Utilities must prove the increase is not justified.

Dogs Beware!

Citv ordinance requires that all dogs be licensed and kept on a leash when off their own premises or they will be picked up by officers of the department of animal control and placed in the City pound.

The pound is operated by the Schofield Animal Hospital which merely houses and cares for the dogs which are released according to rules set up by the department. Hospital employees do not pick up any dogs.

The pound fee is two dollars per day for dogs kept there. When an owner is notified his dog has been impounded, he is given 24 hours after the next working day to retrieve it.

If a dog is not retrieved within the specified time period, an owner will be charged the regular boarding fee. All charges must be paid when the dog is picked up.

All inquiries regarding stray dogs must be addressed to the Department of Animal Control at Police Headquarters. The department keeps all records of lost and found dogs.

When advised by the department that a dog has been picked up, an owner will be given an animal control assigned number to facilitate in identifying and obtaining the dog. The owner is required to bring this number with him to the pound along with the dog license if it is not already on the dog.

Variances to this rule will not be granted.

High School Athletics A Psychological Question Mark?

By LEN BATEMAN

Introducing herself as the type of person that naturally looks for flaws, School Committee Member Eleanor Rosenbloom recently criticized what she considers the major weakness in Newton's school athletic program.

Participating in an open discussion sponsored by the Newton Citizens for Education, Mrs. Rosenbloom questioned the "psychological messages" being delivered to Newton youngsters through an athletic department that only allocates 15 per cent of its interscholastic budget for Newton North High to girls.

At Newton South, according to Mrs. Rosenbloom, the record is even more dismal. There, girls are only allotted 11 per cent of the interscholastic budget.

In monetary figures, boys' sports at Newton North will receive a total of $69,900 in 1973, while the girls will receive $11,676. At Newton South, the figure is $53,437 for boys and $6,732 for girls.

"What about allocation of space?" asked Mrs. Rosenbloom, who proceeded to answer her own question by stating, "it is apparent even to a casual observer that high school girls' teams are more likely than boys' to be shipped out and shooed off the best field or gym practice space."

Citing several examples of several instances of gym teachers inviting boys into their all-girl classes and making them captains of teams, the school committeewoman from Ward 2 also attacked constant segregation of girls from sports boys are allowed as a matter of course to play.

"We separate them at an early age without even thinking of what we are doing to them," stated Mrs. Rosenbloom who insisted that such segregation was the result of a myth centering around man's physical superiority.

"What we are battling is not specifically Newton's weakness, but a cultural development which is turning girls off to things they might normally be interested in," exclaimed Mrs. Rosenbloom, who insisted that girls should be given a chance to compete with boys in at least non-contact sports such as baseball, sailing, tennis, golf, swimming and even track.

Toward the close of her speech, Mrs. Rosenbloom raised a question which School Committeeman Alvin Mandell appeared to answer in the affirmative.

Mrs. Rosenbloom asked the audience if the school department spent too much proportionately on sports for both boys and girls, than what it spent on other extra-curricular activities.

Mandell, while agreeing with representatives of the athletic department that competition was necessary in order to build mental discipline and physical fitness, drew comparisons between the money to be spent on sports throughout the school system and money allocated for other programs.

Citing an allocation of $5,500 for music in the schools, and $2,200 for the Big Brother and Big Sister programs, Mandell stated, "for the relatively few dollars available for extra-curricular activities, more than a fair share seems to be going to the athletic programs."

Mandell also voiced reservations over the importance of contact sports, such as football, on the high school level.

"It may not be the most healthy of sports for young bodies to participate in, especially at the seventh and eighth grade levels," explained Mandell who had previously regaled the audience with tales of his exploits on the lacrosse field.

Although the meeting at Newton College's Barry Auditorium was scheduled to discuss the relative merits of competition in school sports, most avid audience participation revolved around Mrs. Rosenbloom's comments concerning the integration of boys and girls on the playing fields.

One Newton North High football coach appeared to agree with the school committeewoman when he stated, "I have five daughters, and am concerned about the amount of sport's instruction they will receive."

Anoher male participant thanked Mrs. Rosebbloom for showing him the light of "women's power."

Reiterating her stand on the importance of equally sharing available resources and facilities with boys and girls, Mrs. Rosenbloom concluded her remarks by stating that in the light of current male-female relationships "separate but equal" may be a more feasible goal than total integration.

DR. STANLEY M. BLOOM, 89 Gordon road, Newton, has been appointed assistant vice president of Polaroid Corporation according to an announcement by Dr. Edwin H. Land, president and director of research of the company. Additionally, Dr. Bloom has been named assistant to the director in photographic science. His principal activity will be his continued work with Dr. Land and Howard Rogers, vice president, senior research fellow, in the field of photographic science.

Lincoln Dinner Set For Mar. 28

Donald P. Quinn, president of the Newton Republican Club, recently listed local and state dignitaries who will join Governor Francis W. Sargent and William I. Cowin, the Commonwealth's Secretary of Finance and Administration, at the head table of Newton's Thirteenth Lincoln Day Dinner.

The event will take place Wednesday evening, Mar. 28 at the Marriott Motor Hotel in Newton.

Secretary Cowin will be principal speaker at the dinner. Joining him and the Governor at the head table are a number of invited guests, among them, Mayor Theodore D. Mann, who will bring greetings from the City of Newton; Sheriff John J. Buckley; Mrs. William L. Bruce, the area's Republican state committeewoman and vice-chairman of the Republican State Committee; Representative Francis W. Hatch, House Republican Leader; Julius L. Masow, chairman, Newton Republican City Committee; Charles Miller, president, Newton Young Republicans; Robert Semonian, Republican State Committeeman; Francis Tambascio, president, Newton Italian-American Republican Club; Donald P. Quinn, president, Newton Republican Club; Miss Charlotte R. Thornbury, president, Newton Women's Republican Club; and Otto Wahlrab, chairman, Massachusetts Republican State Committee.

Also announced are additions to a growing list of patrons subscribing for tables, among them, Mr. and Mrs. Dino DiCarlo, Robert Corbett, chairman, Ward Five Committee; Martin Stocklan, chairman, Ward Seven Committee; Francis Tambascio, and Mr. and Mrs. Robert L. Tennant.

Mrs. Edward C. Becherer, Mrs. Robert Tennant, and Miss Charlotte R. Thornbury head the Patrons' Committee.

Ticket and reservation chairman is John L. DiSabato, assisted by Mrs. G. M. Swift, co-chairman.

Mrs. Herman Smerling and Henry J. Wilson are co-chairmen of the general committee on arrangements for the dinner which is sponsored by the combined Republican groups of the city.

Cross Speaks On March 22

The Senior VISTA Volunteer Program will be discussed in a special meeting for all interested Newton Senior Citizens on Thursday, March 22, at 2 p.m. in the Memorial Auditorium of Neton City Hall. Mr. Walter Cross, supervisor of the Senior VISTA Program and vice president of the Massachusetts Association for Older Americans, will be the guest speaker.

There are presently 85 Senior VISTA Volunteers working in Massachusetts and Cross will describe how the volunteers are trained and how they have helped senior citizens throughout the state. He will also discuss the paramedical program that VISTA is developing. Mrs. Esther Costello Rea and Mrs. Anne E. McGrath, both VISTA workers in this area, will also participate in the program.

The Newton Council for the Aging will provide free bus transportation to the meeting. Any senior citizens desiring transportation should call the Council office at 244-4700, extension 266 before Tuesday, March 20. 1973.

Prison Command

It is ironic that the man who kept violence at an all time minimum in the maximum security prison at Walpole was forced to leave his job.

And forced is the correct word according to associates.

That's how it appears in the case of Raymond E. Porelle who departed suddenly as superintendent of the Walpole prison. Porelle left the scene without any official explanation or formal resignation. He just walked out and said, in effect, "I've had it."

Porelle's departure followed a four week lockup of inmates and a successful search and collection of contraband.

Last year there were 12 murders and 30 stabbings behind the prison walls according to one official intimately connected with Walpole and Norfolk.

That was until Porelle took over near the end of the year. Under Porelle there were no killings and, we are told, no stabbings. That is quite an accomplishment for a new superintendent who took the job with the promise that he would be the man in charge at Walpole.

But, we are told, Correction Commissioner John O. Boone didn't like the Porelle method and began changing the Walpole rules and regulations. Boone had the backing of the prisoners themselves for they made known their dislike of Porelle's law and order.

So it appears the prisoners won out. Isn't that what some of the old time crime writers have been saying all along? That prisoners control prisons and no one else.

That's not what Mr. Boone told Porelle when he took the job.

It's reported that Porelle was told he was the man in charge when he took the job. He soon found out differently.

If Mr. Boone is really in charge as the Governor says he is then does he have a plan for prison improvement? To date he certainly hasn't given one. Every time he is faced with a situation that fails to conform the Commissioner puts the blame elsewhere such as the on guards, or the system, or the conditions.

That's no answer. It is an excuse. If Boone can't run the institutions then maybe his only boss, Governor Sargent, should say so. And soon.

A Summer Place

"For Sale," the ad says, "The summer home of President Kennedy."

Price: $340,000.00.

The first puff of warm weather brings out the vacation planning in most of us. And if you favor buying or renting a place on Cape Cod you just might hear of the for sale listing of the vacation retreat used by President Kennedy and his family.

The agency selling the home today knows how to grab one's attention. That's probably why the darker print in the ad leads off with the Kennedy name.

It's no simple cozy cottage and you wouldn't expect that with a price tag of $340,000. It's really a 10 acre estate on Squaw Island in Hyannisport.

In a strict sense it was not President Kennedy's home. He rented it. The estate overlooking Nantucket Sound offered more seclusion than did the nearby Kennedy compound used by the other members of his family.

The home being sold now really belonged to singer Morton Downey. His daughter, who married nobility, has no use for the place so it went on the market.

The Morton holdings being sold include a seven bedroom home, described as "traditional Cape" and an additional four bedroom building on the 10 acre property.

Both buildings are included in the sale price. And they will be sold furnished. There is also a swimming pool, tennis courts and deeded beach rights.

The home has been on the market for over a month. The real estate agency handling the sale says there has been quite a bit of interest. More showings are scheduled this week.

No matter who buys it, and the price is by no means sky high for the Cape, it will always be known as "Downey's house." The Kennedy name has other attachments.

STOP SIGN

POLITICAL HIGHLIGHTS

By JAMES G. COLBERT

Gambling On Sports Events Probably Will Be Legalized

It appears that Massachusetts shortly will go into the gambling business on a much wider scale.

Most of the forms of gambling now conducted by bookies in violation of the law probably will soon be legalized.

Boston will not yet have the Vegas-type gambling rooms with card games and slot machines, but betting will be sanctioned on baseball, football, basketball and possibly hockey games.

Passage of the bill expanding legalized gambling in Massachusetts seems virtually certain as a result of the scanty objection expressed to the measure at a legislative hearing.

The clergy was almost totally silent on the matter. Only one clergyman appeared in opposition to the bill.

The only real objection came from spokesmen for professional sports. Their concern is that large-scale betting on football, basketball and baseball games will lead to fixed games and point spreads.

That, of course, could dull and even kill public interest in sports as almost happened to baseball a little over a half century ago when it was disclosed that members of the Chicago White Sox had thrown a World Series to the Cincinnati Reds.

Baseball was run with an iron fist in the 20s, and Babe Ruth was credited with saving the game.

Professional gamblers have been known to bribe college basketball players. The likelihood of their doing the same thing in professional sports is far from remote.

But these warnings have made little impression or impact upon the legislators who point to the success of the state lottery and the revenue it is producing in a "painless" manner.

Wealthy GOP Chief Fears Wife's Ire Over 2nd Boat

Miami Beach Mayor Chuck Hall apparently knew what he was doing when he persuaded George Bush, the wealthy Texan who recently was elected chairman of the Republican National Committee, to visit the boat show in his city.

Bush saw a boat he liked and paid a $20,000 deposit on it.

"My wife will kill me," Bush remarked to Mayor Hall, explaining that he already had one boat in Maine.

Some Out-Of-State Imports By Sarge Have Been Lemons

Senator Lewis has called Governor Sargent's attention to the fact that Massachusetts has some of the outstanding colleges and universities in the world, whose faculty members frequently are drawn to Washington to serve in national administrations.

State Senator Arthur J. Lewis, Jr., of Jamaica Plain thinks a provision should be written into the law requiring Governor Sargent to pick Massachusetts residents when appointing his cabinet members and other state officials.

Lewis points out that Sarge conducts a nation-wide search just about every time he has an important job to fill and has come up with some real lemons in importing highly paid office-holders from other states.

Not only does the out-of-state import draw a big salary himself, Senator Lewis adds, but he often brings a collection of out-of-state lackeys into Massachusetts with him.

The Jamaica Plain Senator is naive enough to think Governor Sargent should concern himself more with the unemployment problem here in Massachusetts and less with providing high-paying jobs for deserving residents of Ohio and Pennsylvania.

So he is sponsoring a bill which would provide that a 10-year residency in Massachusetts is necessary for cabinet secretaries, commissioners and other statutory officers.

Lewis is not likely to get far because it is now considered parochial to insist that Massachusetts jobs should be filled by Massachusetts residents. But it certainly is not unreasonable to argue that Governor Sargent's out-of-state appointees should possess a higher degree of competence than some of them have displayed.

Margaret M. Heckler Seen Possible 1976 Veep Choice

It will only be a relatively short period of time before a woman will be nominated by one of the two major political parties as its candidate for the Vice Presidency of the United States.

That could happen in 1976, and the party, which breaks precedent and makes the move, probably will win the election.

The women voters outnumber the men and hold the balance of power in most of the key states.

They're about ready to flex their political muscles. They're not wedded to either political party to the same degree the men are, and they might well jump in potent numbers to the support of the first national ticket to include a woman.

The top feminine prospect on the Republican side of the political fence is our own Congresswoman Margaret M. Heckler of Wellesley.

Whether Mrs. Heckler would accept the GOP nomination for Vice President is a question this writer is unable to answer.

But the Republican brass and strategy-planners would do well to give her a long, hard look when they're thinking in terms of selecting their party's ticket for the next Presidential election.

With the defeat of former U.S. Senator Margaret Chase Smith of Maine last November, Congresswoman Margaret Heckler became the most prominent woman public leader in the United States.

Republican chieftains talk privately about backing Mrs. Heckler for the U.S. Senate in 1976 in the event Senator Edward M. Kennedy is the next Democratic nominee for President. This writer belongs to the minority who believe that Ted Kennedy will not be a candidate for the Presidency in '76.

Ted neither acts nor talks like a candidate for President. We find it difficult to believe that he will give up a safe seat in the U.S. Senate in 1976 to gamble on winning the Presidency and risk the danger of an assassin's bullet in the process.

Contrary to the opinions expressed by some highly respected political writers, we also doubt that former Texas Governor John Connally will be nominated as either the Democratic or Republican candidate for President in 1976. Surprisingly, Connally has been mentioned recently for both Presidential nominations and for possible appointment as the next Secretary of State.

It seems highly improbable that the Democrats would nominate a candidate for President who supported Richard M. Nixon last year. If Connally campaigs for and helps Republican Congressmen and Senators in 1974, he might strengthen his chances in the GOP. But there still would be strong resistance within the Republican party to any bid he might make for its nomination for President.

Connally probably will be able to continue in his role of kingmaker, but he's not likely to be able to make himself king.

However, regardless of who the Presidential adversaries may be in 1976, both parties will be looking for the votes of the women, and that brings us back to Congresswoman Margaret Heckler.

Mrs. Heckler is attractive and has great charisma. She is an excellent campaigner, an attorney, a mother, a liberal and a Catholic.

At the Republican National Convention last August she stood out as an exponent of woman's rights. She would be a tremendous asset to any Republican nominee for President as his Vice Presidential running mate.

Hanoi Residents Came Out To Watch Our Bombs Falling

It would seem that Ramsey Clark, Jane Fonda and the other critics of the December bombing of North Vietnam were not completely truthful in what they told the American people.

Deputy Assistant Secretary of Defense Dennis Doolin testified recently before the House Armed Services Committee in Washington that the bombing was so precisely accurate that residents of Hanoi felt it was safe to watch the bombs dropping on military targets.

He declared that the B-52s were able to hit within 1000 to 3000 feet of a target and asserted that the Bach Mai hospital, which was hit by stray bombs, was about 3000 feet from a military airfield.

The massive bombing cost $25 million a day, and the U.S. lost 28 planes, including 16 B-52s.

Inmates Brazenly Running State Prison in Walpole

Governor Francis W. Sargent has allowed an incredible situation to develop at the Walpole State Prison. If he does stand for reelection next year, it should be a powerful campaign issue any down-to-earth opponent could use effectively against him.

It has been known for a long time that the inmates were running the prison, but recent happenings have brought out forcibly the extent to which that is true.

State Correction Commissioner John O. Boone also is partly responsible for the fact that some of the Walpole prison inmates have been literally getting away with murder — unsolved murders.

Boone is another out-of-stater imported into Massachusetts by Mr. Sargent who at times seems unaware that there are competent people in the state which he supposedly serves as Governor.

Spokesmen for the prisoners at Walpole make no secret of the fact that they consider they forced the resignation of former prison Superintendent Raymond E. Porelle.

Of course, they had some effective help from politicians who disrupted any vestige of discipline which might have remained at the prison by going there late at night and listening to the complaints and grievances of the inmates when the latter should have been locked in their cells.

After Porelle's resignation, three spokesmen for the inmates held a press conference and had the consummate gall and effrontery to announce what they would be willing to do now that they had forced Porelle to quit.

They would negotiate in good faith with Commissioner Boone, would clean up their food-splattered cellblock and would return to their jobs in the prison kitchen.

This, of course, was very decent and considerate of them and quite possibly caused Governor Sargent and Commissioner Boone to order some good conduct medals struck off for them.

One of the spokesmen for the prisoners was Robert Delello who was convicted of murdering a police officer. He is referred to by the prison guards and officers as "Superintendent Delello."

Discipline has virtually vanished at the prison as a result of orders by Boone that inmates be allowed to have visitors between 7 and 9 at night and that civilian groups could enter the institution after 10 p.m. when the inmates are supposed to be locked in their cells for the night.

Some of the prison officers obviously had to be involved in a conspiracy with leaders of the inmates in order to sanction things which have happened at the institution such as a flourishing prostitution racket.

Amazing as it may seem, there are some honest guards and officers at the prison trying to perform their duties in a proper manner, but the system is against them.

The musical comedy setup at Walpole State Prison, which Porelle tried to change, would be laughable if it were not so dangerous and fraught with such peril.

These are not harmless pranksters the guards and officers are trying to deal with at Walpole. Some of them are murderers and extremely dangerous men.

If they snuff out any more lives, a share of the responsibility will rest squarely with Governor Sargent and Commissioner Boone, under whom a bad situation has become worse.

A statement from the Governor's office that he is "watching the situation" inspires little confidence. Boone is his man, and if Boone can't do the job, he should be replaced by somebody who can and will. The public safety should be the first consideration here.

Hub Councillor Carries Gun In Order To Defend Himself

Boston City Councillor Albert L. (Dapper) O'Neil of Roslindale is numbered among the public officials who carry revolvers in order to defend themselves in the event of an attack.

O'Neil's duties frequently keep him out late at night and take him into all sections of the city.

He is an outspoken Councillor who gives expression to strong opinions, and he is often the target of threats.

So he obtained a permit to carry a revolver and rarely goes out without it in his possession.

Geo. Wallace Still Trying To Pay Off Campaign Debts

Alabama Governor George C. Wallace, who was paralyzed for life by the bullet from the gun of a would-be assassin while campaigning in Maryland last spring, is still struggling to pay off $225,000 in debts left from his unsuccessful campaign for the Presidency last year.

This would not have been a monumental undertaking for Wallace if he had finished the Presidential Primary campaign in good health and had returned to his job as Governor of Alabama.

But Wallace has undergone several operations and is being called upon by critics to resign from the Governorship on the ground that he is physically unable to perform the duties of the office.

The contributions to his campaign fell off as soon as it was apparent that the attempted assassination had ended his bid to become President.

Realistically, Wallace and his advisers must have realized in advance of his campaign that he had no chance of winning the Democratic Presidential nomination.

However, Wallace was like many persons bitten by the political bug who spend their life savings on losing campaigns and roll up debts which take years to pay off.

A Congressman disclosed the other day that it took him six years after his first winning campaign to pay off the bills he incurred in that election effort. A losing candidate, of course, has much more difficulty raising funds after an election.

This is one of the less glamorous sides of politics. Unfortunately, too many politically ambitious persons run up bills they really can't afford.

McGovern Buys Wife Mink Coat On Installment Plan

An examination of last November's election statistics disclosed that except for George S. McGovern, Democratic candidates did well in South Dakota.

While the favorite son candidate for President was going down the drain in his home state, Democratic candidates in South Dakota won the Governorship, a seat in the U.S. Senate and control of the State Legislature.

Senator McGovern, incidentally, appears to have changed his position not only on aid to North Vietnam but also on the question of amnesty for the draft-dodgers who fled to Sweden, Canada and other countries rather than serve in the armed forces.

While McGovern proved a great fund-raiser in last fall's Presidential campaign, a national publication reported the other day that he recently bought a mink coat for his wife and is paying for it on the installment plan.

McGovern these days is more concerned about the programs which provide money for the farmers of South Dakota than about such matters as amnesty and helping North Vietnam.

Another cuff note: Father Phillip Berrigan, in commenting on the return of the POWs, declared: "One must be very much aware that these men have been destroyers." That cheerful observation has been pretty much overlooked by those welcoming home the prisoners of war.

Viet Veterans Should Get Same Benefits As In Past

The war in Vietnam was probably the most unpopular in which the United States was ever involved.

But that certainly is no reason for not treating the veterans of the Vietnam fighting as generously and fairly as the veterans of other wars.

The prisoners of war are being welcomed home in the manner they should be. Just about everything possible is being done to compensate for the ordeals they suffered while being held captive.

However, that does not seem to be the case with other veterans, whose lives were interrupted by their service in Vietnam, some of whom bear grievious wounds and lost arms or legs or both.

Many veterans home from Vietnam feel they are not being as well treated as the veterans of World War 2, and the facts seem to support their contention.

Most of these men did not choose to serve in Vietnam. The vast majority of them were drafted, inducted into the armed forces, taken away from their homes and families and ordered to fight in Vietnam.

They should not suffer in any way because so many people turned against the war in which they fought. Congress should not allow any cuts in the Veterans Administration budget which would deprive the Vietnam veterans of benefits which were granted to the veterans of other wars.

Fiscal Autonomy?

Editor, Newton Graphic:

Fiscal autonomy — the right of local school committees to appropriate municipal funds for educational purposes without interference from mayors, city councils, selectmen or town meetings — is coming under heavier attack than perhaps at any time in history.

Arguments put forward by opponents of fiscal autonomy generally zero in on the claim that school committees, too remote from the taxpayers, are unresponsive to taxpayer desires, and ought to have their wings clipped.

During the past few weeks hearings have been conducted at the State Houe on a number of bills designed to exercise some kind of control over school boards. Most of these bills are based on the conviction that soaring educational costs are the major cause of local tax problems.

Therefore, taxpayer representatives should be granted the power to cut back on school committee appropriations.

Opponents of autonomy are seeking the solution to local tax problems in the wrong place. Perhaps nothing illustrates this better than the fact that Massachusetts is the 9th wealthiest state, yet ranks 17th in per pupil expenditure, and 48th in state support of education. These statistics hardly give credence to charges of unrestrained spending sprees by school committee members.

The Constitution of Massachusetts spells out very clearly that public education is the responsibility of the state. The Legislature delegated its power many years ago to locally elected school committees, a doctrine the courts have upheld repeatedly whenever a case challenging this principle is brought before them.

Delegation of the state's power was granted for two reasons — to prevent interference by officials outside of school committees from tampering with school budgets and to keep schools as free as possible from political meddling.

Abolishing fiscal autonomy would endanger our system of public education, exposing schools to indiscriminate budget cutting by an office holder intent on impressing his constituents with his "sound" fiscal policies or by other individuals who care more for economy than they do for the welfare of children.

The real culprit of local fiscal chaos is not autonomy; it is our unbalanced tax structure. It is the fact that our public schools are largely financed by local property taxes which are 40 percent above the national average.

A whole new system of financing public education is long overdue. If the Supreme Court rules favorably on cases now pending concerned with school finance, every state will be compelled to reform its entire educational tax structure.

In the meantime we have a responsibility to guard the independence of school committees. School committee members are usually individuals who have developed a special competence because they work throughout the year on school budgets. To permit a cut in a school program by officials other than school committee members who do not possess complete data or understanding could set education back severely.

Recognizing the crisis proportions of the state's financial condition, the Massachusetts Teachers Association is proposing a major tax reform package and asks the opponents of fiscal autonomy to join with the MTA rather than continuing their fight to crush a sound educational principle.

On The Subject Of Revaluation . . .

Editor, Newton Graphic;

On the subject of revaluation.

Section 38 Chapter 59 of the General Laws reads: "The assessors of each city and town at the time appointed therefore shall make a fair cash valuation of all the estate, real and personal, subject to taxation therein . . ."

Section 52 of said chapter reads: "The assessors, or other persons authorized to assess taxes shall, at the end of said valuation list, subscribe the following statement: We the assessors, (or other persons so authorized, as the case may be), do severally state that the foregoing list is a full and true list of the names of all persons known to us who are liable to taxation in (here insert the name of the city or town) during the present year, and that the real and personal estate contained in said list, and assessed upon each person in said list, is a full and accurate assessment upon all property of each person, liable to taxation, at its full and fair cash value, according to our best knowledge and belief. This statement is made under the penalities of perjury."

Note that this statement specifies full and fair cash value. So it is the law that the assessed valuations, that is, the valuations for assessment purposes, should be at 100 per cent of market value, that is, what you could sell the property for under ordinary circumstances.

And while there is pretty general agreement that reassessment is necessary, the amount of enthusiasm for the program varies. The houses in Newton built after World War II are generally assessed at a higher percentage of market value than the rest, and are selling at a higher figure than the rest.

Generally, they are the homes owned by the richer people. And so these homes will be raised a smaller percentage than the older ones occupied and owned by the poorer people.

It has been the policy of the assessors of all towns (an inexcusable policy, in my opinion) to assess new construction after the war at a higher percentage than the old, and as a result, we have this inequality in assessments which necessitates revaluation.

Once again, it is the struggle between the rich and the poor and your position, or enthusiasm for compliance with the law, depends on how you fit financially.

Is the mayor's enthusiasm due to his desire to make the rich richer and let the poor make out the best they can? His veto of the pay for aldermen indicates that he does not care whether a poor man can serve on the board.

It has been said by the enthusiasts that there are provisions in the law to take care of the poor who may suffer from this revaluation.

Clause 18 of section five of the aforementioned Chapter 59 says that any portion of the estates of persons who, by reason of age, infirmity and poverty are in the judgment of the assessors unable to contribute fully towards the public charges shall be exempt from taxation.

It seems that this is what the city fathers have in mind when they minimize the disadvantage to be borne by the poor. But this section 18 has been on the books for a long time and I wonder if it has been used to assist the person in financial difficulty. Will the assessors reveal how often it was used in 1972? If they mean the person who will be disqualified because 100 per cent valuation will make his whole estate, real and personal, in excess of $40,000, then clause 18 is clearly inapplicable.

I'm not worth forty grand — how about giving me a hardship abatement?

Students-

and especially creative work is stressed.

In support of this, Swedish and Japanese students have a set group of classmates with which they take classes year after year.

When asked what happens when learning abilities at students diverge in different subjects, Sverker answered "theoretically everyone in one line has the same advanced ability in that area."

An advantage Sverker and Naboru feel their systems have is that by constantly being with the same students, one really gets to know them and make a number of close friends. As to grade competition, both of them have it and think it is beneficial since it pushes the class forward.

Both Sverker and Naboru agree that American teachers are much less reserved than their Swedish and Japanese counterparts. For example, American teachers fraternize with the students, chew gum, and allow a level of talking in their classes, they pointed out.

Over the next several years, changes are expected to occur in Japan where some student unions are pressing for optional classics and history courses, and in Swedish schools where a more lenient grading system will come into use.

During this interview, I could not resist a question to Sverker regarding Swedish sexual morality.

He wryly answered, "no, girls do not run naked in the street with polar bears, and they are not all blond."

On a more serious note, he continued." as to the liberalization of thought on sex, VD clinics etc., in Americe. it's very good yet it happened 10 years ago in Sweden. Swedes are moremature in their attitude towards sex."

Naboru said Japan and America are beconing "more and more alike."

"Both contain stubborn people and both countries are becoming completely industrialized."

As to any concern over the recognition of mainland China, he said he thinks the U.S. and Japan will ultimately see it as a new market.

Before coming to the U.S., the only misconception he said he had was advice from a friend who had just returned from Texaa and forewarned him of "huge prairies."

Sverker had a more definite image of Americans prior to his trip. He expected them to be "big, loud, materialistic, naive, and easily entertained (ie. the hamburger eating type

"He now finds us to be "very open enotionally" and to be "ill-mannered in certain instances." Also he believes the majority of Americans to reach Europe are well-to-do and the generalization of rich Americans arises from this.

Naboru and Sverker are enjoying this year in Newton tremendously and think it is a great experience not only in terms of experiencing another culture and language, but in building one's independence.

Library Reaches Out To All

Branch libraries in Newton are reaching out with varied programs aimed at the interests of their patrons.

At Waban Branch of the Newton Free Library, Thursday, Mar. 22 at 10:30 a.m., Mrs. Henrietta Aladjem, author of "The Sun Is My Enemy" will discuss her book and describe her successful fight against lupus, usually a fatal disease.

Since the publication of her book, Mrs. Aladjem, a former Newton resident now living in Wellesley, has appeared on several TV and radio programs. Recently she spoke at the arthritis and lupus clinic at Brooklyn City Hospital, New York.

Miss Arlene Lynde, Waban branch librarian invites citizens to come for coffee at 10 and remain for the program at 10:30 a.m.

Also at Waban, paintings by Mrs. Nancy Campbell of Newton Lower Falls are on view through the end of the month.

At Oak Hill Park, the third in a series of free films is scheduled for Wednesday, March 21 at 7. "Mark Twain's America" and "Mr. Dickens of London" will be screened.

Auburndale branch librarian Marie Simpson invites residents to a coffee hour and slide trip through Iceland with Miss Lillian Birrell Wednesday, Mar. 28, at 10:30 a.m.

The fifth Newton Free Library branching out takes place at Auburndale where Mrs. Guna Oster of Weston is showing oils and watercolors through the end of the month.

All Newton Free Library programs are free and open to the public.

First Aid Instructors Are Needed

As statistics prove, the home is the most common scene of all accidents.

Through first aid courses, the Newton Chapter of the American Red Cross has trained local 484 people in the past year to be able to handle medical emergencies until professional help arrives.

After completing standard and advanced first aid course, the volunteer instructors course may be taken. With the growing demand for first aid training in the community, more qualified instructors are needed. Call the Newton chapter, 527-6000 for further information.

MARK GOULSTON (left) of Newton listens intently as Newton YMCA instructor Bob Gahtan teaches him one of the finer points to playing the folk guitar. Gahtan, who has taught for many years at the "Y" and is a local performer, conducts courses for both beginning and intermediate adults and children.

YMCA Continues Spring Classes

The Newton YMCA announces that a lifesaving course will be among over 30 programs offered this spring with registration for all spring session adult classes now underway, while youth registration begins Mar. 21.

Junior and senior lifesaver certification is earned on the successful completion of the annual lifesaving course. The class, which is coed, is open to those with advanced swimmer credentials.

The adult physical program will also feature tennis lessons with professional Edward Lamb, who has taught at the "Y" a number of years. The lessons are scheduled for mornings and evenings, Monday through Thursday.

With warm weather approaching, the popular men's executive fitness program will move outside to use the "Y" 's running track and field area. The program, which meets at 7:15 a.m. three days weekly, is based on the T.K. Cureton system of cardiovascular health. Jogging and calisthenics, with an instructor, are the basis of the course.

There are also exercise classes for women available four times each week. The professionally supervised sessions are on Tuesday and Thursday mornings, and evenings.

Other physical offierings include coed karate, judo, badminton, and swimming; squash, handball and volleyball for men and women; and a businessman's health club.

Adult educational classes include seven arts and crafts courses, one of which is in the art of leaded glass. Mrs. Linda Martinez teaches students to design, cut and lead or foil figures of lead chanel into finished works. Cathedral, or stained glass is also used to make articles suitable for window display.

With the summer resort season only a few months away, skills in bridge and dancing could well be useful. Joseph Vass, who has taught all over Greater Boston, once again offers bridge courses for beginners and more advanced players. Beginners learn the Goren system, with instruction and guided play used to teach the fundamentals of bidding, responses and strategy. Those with some experience will learn tricks such as ruffing, finessing and establishing long cards in the suit.

Bill Riley, a long-time instructor at the "Y", has scheduled a ballroom dancing course in the Fox Trot and Waltz. The class is instructional, but those with some dancing experience will also enjoy the class' recreational aspects.

A unique course in fly tying will help anglers get ready for the fishing season. Robert Kopacz, who has tied flies for numerous local fishermen, will cover the use of tools and materials for the construction of streamers, wet flies, nymphs and dry flies.

Television personality Shri T. R. Khanna's popular yoga class will again be offered to men and women. Raja and Hatha yoga, Kriyas or magnetism, life-force or Pranayama, concentration and relaxation are the principles stressed for better health and increased vitality.

Other educational and recreational courses include drawing, painting, flower arranging, ceramics, enameling, stitchery, modern dance, cooking, folk guitar, dressmaking, sewing, investment and driver education.

Classes begin the first week in April. For more information, drop by the "Y" at 276 Church St. in Newton Corner, or call 244-6050.

Envisions Bike-Hike Pathway

The Newton Conservation Commission voted unanimously recently to support the implementation of the Aqueduct-Loop Pathway as described in the 1969 Recreation Open Space Plan for the City.

Charles Thomas, senior planner for Newton, was present at the recent commission meeting to evaluate the preliminaary draft of the commission's Open Space Plan and to describe the pathway.

According to Thomas, the plan calls for a bike-hike pathway along the Sudbury and Cochituate aqueducts extending from the Charles River on the west to the Webster conservation area (Hammond Woods) on the east and then looping back to the river through Brookline and the southern part of the City.

The Planning Department, at the request of the City Planning Commission, is going ahead with detailed work on the pathway. Thomas estimated that the work should be completed in two or three months.

Commission members agreed it might request some minor changes in certain areas of the plan, but the concept of a pathway linking the major publicly held open spaces in Newton was an imaginative one capable of being realized at a relatively low cost to the City.

Mason-Rice Kindergarten Registration

The Mason-Rice Elementary School kindergarten registration is scheduled to be held March 27 from 1-3 p.m.

To qualify, a child must be 5 years old by January 1. Parents wishing to register children should bring the child's birth or baptismal certificate and immunization records.

Katz Crowned In Chess Competition

Allan Katz, 14, of Warren Junior High, West Newton, beat Joe Russo, 16, of Waltham High School in a final round game to win the 33-player scholastic section of Novice Chess Competition No. 8, March 3 at the Newton YMCA.

Katz, a student in Grade 8, finished with a score of 5-0. Russo's score of 4-1 was good enough to win the top high school trophy.

Karl Mini, 9, of Cabot School, Newton, also finished with 4-1 and received the elementary school trophy. David Corwin, 11, of Spaulding School, Newton, won the honorable mention award.

David Lipton of Arlington won the top adult trophy. Edward Katz, father of Alan, won the second adult trophy. Guy Van Duser of Newton was third adult in the 17-player section.

Joe Wink, 11, of Billerica won a special eight-player amateur round robin section.

Stephen Dann of Worcester and Andrew Schmidt of Newton directed the event for the Chess Organizers of New England (CONE).

There were 51 new Massachusetts Chess Association members enrolled at the tournament, making the total enrolled in 1973 exactly 450.

CONE novice and amateur chess tournaments will be held in Worcester on Mar. 10; Boston on Mar. 17 and in Sturbridge on Mar. 24.

Full Planning Council Slates Discussions

A meeting of the full Metropolitan Area Planning Council (MAPC) will be held Mar. 21 at the Marriott Motor Hotel, Newton, MAPC President John J. McCarthy announced today.

Among items to be discussed at the meeting will be: proposed regional solid waste legislation to establish a $100 million program for the planning and construction of district solid waste facilities throughout the state; "Open Space Law Report—1972 Supplement," a report on recent changes and-or additions to existing Massachusetts and federal laws pertaining to the environment; "Boston Harbor Islands Comprehensive Plan," a program to develop the 30 islands in Boston Harbor for conservation and recreation purposes.

The public meeting is scheduled to begin at 7:45 p.m.

The MAPC, consisting of 101 cities and towns within a 25-mile radius of downtown Boston, is the area's official regional planning agency. It is comprised of representatives from each of its member municipalities, 21 gubernatotorial appointees, and the heads of 11 public service agencies.

Created 10 years ago, the council has more than doubled in the number of its member communities and is today the regional center for the identification and solution of problems in transportation, housing, solid waste disposal, health planning, open space and recreation.

Winners of Grand Prizes In Roche Bros. Contest

With the delightful spring appeal of Roche Bros. Flower Shop of the Westwood Store, the grand prize winners of the recent Olympic Contest, met for picture-taking and to exchange views on the impact the news of prize-winning has meant to them, and the lively suggestions their children had on the subject.

Faced with a choice of sports equipment from Lechmere Sales, or meat for the freezer from Roche Bros., all three young mothers voiced much the same reaction. In each family there were immediate lists of wants and wishes, exciting young homemakers of meat for the freezer. All winners were determined that at least part of the prize provided the bicycle they have wanted, they never would have allowed themselves.

Mrs. Joanna Bakas of Allenwood street, West Roxbury reports that with three active boys, Steve, 15 years of age, Jimmie, 12 and Michael 4, her wishes are pretty much outvoted by their hobbies which include: fishing, tennis, badminton and a chance to have a punching bag set-up. Like the other mothers, her first wish was for the bicycle she has always wanted. Mrs. Bakas was the first winner with a $500 prize, and though her son's hockey team offered suggestions, she has serious thinking to do about her options.

Mrs. Jayne Shanning of Pond Plain road, Westwood surprisingly enough, had almost the identical family sports in spite of the fact that her children are all girls, Denise, 11 years old, Dale 8 and Stacey a lively 3-year old youngster. Jayne, second winner with $300 to ponder, also is determined to have a bike which she has wished for. Family hobbies range from ping-pong to fishing. Mrs. Shanning also pointed out how tempting the thought of roasts and steaks from Roche Bros. Meat Department would be.

Mrs. Margaret Diamond, of Robinwood road, Dedham, was the third runner-up winner with $200 and the mother of two, Jackie, 11 and Jayne, 9 years old. Again, Mrs. Diamond put her bicycle first on the list. Skiing, (both water and winter style) tennis and fishing as family interests. Like the others, she finds the decision a a pleasant but difficult one.

All winners have reported a wonderful week of visiting Lechmere's sport shop and family discussions on what the prizes can mean to them.

Previous weekly winners throughout the contest who will have a year of dreaming of sudden wealth were: Mrs. Bartlett, Birch street, Roslindale; Claire Morrison, 6th street, in Norwood; Mrs. Doyle, South street, Roslindale; Dorothy Rowean, Haven street, Dover, L.G. Sullivan, Greenlodge street, Dedham; BridgitO'Rourke, Centre street, West Roxbury; Catherine Smith, Basile street, Roslindale.

Also Mrs. MacDonald, Geaufort avenue, Needham; Elaine DiGrazio, Jefferson drive, Norwood; Mrs. Charles Mangine, Thorpe road, Needham; Thomas Hennigan, Woodley avenue, West Roxbury; Mrs. Donald McKinnon, Birch street, Roslindale; Mrs. Edward Horowitz, 14 Rodgers avenue, Dedham; Mrs. Louise Mulligan, West Roxbury parkway; Mrs. Grace Rawlings, Robinwood avenue, Needham; and Mrs. Marjorie Parent, LaGrange street, West Roxbury.

All-Irish Mass In Honor of St. Patrick

Tax Questions And Answers

Q. On my 1970 return, I took a deduction for a bad debt. At that time, I thought there was no hope of recovering the amount I had loaned to an acquaintance, since he was financially insolvent. In 1972, however, he reapid the loan. What should I do?

A. You should include the amount of the recovery, which you had previously deducted as a bad debt, in gross income on your 1972 tax return.

Q. Under what conditions are moving expenses deductible?

A. Expenses incurred when you move to a new residence because you went to work for a new employer or you transferred to a new place of work are deductible if you meet certain distance and time requirements.

1. The distance between your new place of work and your old residence must be at least 50 miles farther than the distance from your old residence to your old place of work.

2. During the 12 month period immediately after your arrival in the general area of your new place of work, you must be employed full time for at least 39 weeks. If you are a self-employed individual, you must work 78 weeks out of the 24 months after your move to the new area and not less than 39 weeks must occur during the 12 month period immediately after your arrival at the new place of work.

Q. I just purchased stock for the first time. How long must I hold the stock before I can treat profits on the sale as a long term capital gain?

A. Stock or other capital assets held more than six months are treated as long term capital gains when sold at a profit.

Q. We spent over $900. to repair damage caused by termites which infested our home. Can I claim this amount as a casualty loss?

A. No, under the law, a casualty is defined as the complete or partial destruction of property resulting from an unidentifable event of a sudden, unexpected, or unusual nature. A casalty loss for termite damage is not allowed because the "suddeness" test is not met. Damage from termites is a gradual and progressive erosion of property occuring over a number of years.

Q. What is the minimum income tax?

A. Beginning after 1969, a minimum tax applies to a number of items that are considered to be of a tax preference nature. The tax is computed by first totalling all of the items of tax preference, then reducing this amount by a specific exemption of $30,000. ($15,000 in the case of married persons filing separate returns)

The excess is further reduced by your regular tax (minus the foreign tax credit and retirement income credit), and then a flat 10 per cent rate is applied against the balance. Some of the tax preference items are:

1. Capital gains.
2. Accelerated depreciation on real property.
3. Stock options.
4. Depletion.
5. Excess investment interest.

Form 4625, Computation of Minimum Tax, should be used and attached to the tax return.

Q. I have a question concerning medicare deductions from my Social Security check. I wish to claim the retirement income credit and the Social Security checks I receive have medicare deducted. What amount do I put down on Schedule R? Do I use the amount I actually received or what I would have received without the medicare deduction?

A. The gross amount before the deduction must be shown. For example, if you were entitled to $100. per month for 12 months, but received only $96. each month, you would still have to report $1200. when computing the Retirement Income Credit. The amount deducted for medicare may be claimed as a medical expense on Schedule A. if you itemize your deductions.

Q. I am a single retired woman. I am 76 years old, own no property and have no dependents. My total income is $2160. in bank interest and $1550. in Social Security benefits. Do I have to file a tax return?

A. No. If you are age 65 or over as of December 31, 1972, you do not have to file a federal tax return unless you have taxable income of $2800. or more. Since you have taxable income of less than $2800., you do not have to file. Social Security benefits are not taxable and are not a factor in determining taxable income.

Q. I am considering accepting a position with my employer which will require me to be in foreign countries periodically. I heard that this income is tax exempt. Is this correct?

A. Generally, a U.S. citizen working in a foreign country must pay U.S. income tax. However, there are a number of exceptions to this rule, depending upon residence status in the foreign country and your length of stay there. These rules are discussed in Publication 54, Tax Guide for U.S. Citizens Abroad, available free at your local IRS office.

Q. Whenever there is a big payoff at a race track, the IRS is given the information and identity of the winner. Why?

A. The law requires that the track identify the person and obtain his Social Security number, the same as it requires the payers of dividends and interest to do. The winner is required to identify himself to the track. The information obtained is compared to what the winner reports on his return. Race track winnings are taxable income.

He Caters With A Personal Touch

By JEANNE LESEM
UPI Food Editor

NEW YORK (UPI) — If caterer Donald Bruce White's wedding receptions sound theatrical, it's only natural. He gave up acting to become a chef.

The change led to his own catering business. His client list of celebrities and celebrated institutions includes actress Diana Merrill, designers Anne Fogarty, Mollie Parnis and Scaasi, socialities, and, in the art world, the Frick Collection and the Solomon R. Guggenheim Museum.

Even White's catering equipment looks like stage props. In an interview, he said a barrel-shaped antique chestnut roaster was used for a winter wedding in suburban Greenwich, Conn. He served hot roasted chestnuts and champagne to the bridal party as it approached the house where the reception was held.

The bride was French and the groom Russian, so White planned a Franco-Russian menu. Lunch for 50 guests began with cognac—fish-filled pastry—went on to chicken Kiev and beet salad. White said he uses lingonberries, chopped ham and tarragon for the stuffed, fried chicken cutlets instead of the traditional butter filling.

He deplored the present tendency to serve a variety of the same dishes at buffet receptions but added:

"It's what people want. They'll ask, 'what if someone desn't like chocolate mousse? Shouldn't we have orange and lemon mousse, too?'"

White said he draws heavily on his cookbook collection for menu ideas to augment a list of more than 160 different dishes for every course from hors d'oeuvre to dessert. His six different mousse flavors include unusual ones such as apricot and pear.

Unlike most caterers, he has no printed menu to show clients. He prefers instead to develop each one to fit the party-giver's life-style or—in the case of wedding receptions—the life-style of the bride and bridegroom.

Not Mother's Wedding

"I wish mothers would realize that they're planning their daughters' weddings instead of their own," he said, adding that a reception and its menu should suit the newlyweds' generation.

"One of the most old-hat extravagances is wedding cake boxes. They can run about $2.25 each."

Individual boxes traditionally are used for slices of cake for each guest to take home. Cake remains traditional at receptions, but it's mostly the young people who actually eat it, said White. He prefers to serve a light desert such as mousse or fruit ice before the cake cutting ceremony.

He had this advice about cakes in general:

"Decorate with fresh flowers instead of corny bride and groom figures and make sure the baker desn't use hard fondant icing. It can be embarrassing. We had one that needed a blowtorch to cut."

He prefers to use lucite serving trays in contemporary homes where he thinks silver doesn't look right.

"I try to get clients to use as much of their own equipment as they can, both for the personal look of it as well as the expense," he added.

"If you want to save money, plan the time of the wedding so you don't find yourself in an hour range where you have to serve a fixed meal. You can serve sandwiches, tea, cake and champagne in the late afternoon but if the wedding's at 11, you darn well have to serve lunch."

White said elaborate weddings and receptions are losing ground to simple ones and sit-down meals, to buffets and tea receptions, both because of the economy and the attitudes of young people who feel self-conscious about all the fuss.

Donald Bruce White's pear mousse makes a light ending to a wedding reception menu.

Drain a 28-ounce can of pears, reserving 1 cup of the syrup. Puree fruit in blender. Soften 1 package of unflavored gelatin in the reserve syrup, then heat until gelatin has dissolved completely. Let cool slightly, stir a few spoonfuls of the syrup into 4 lightly beaten egg yolks in top of double boiler. Then stir yolk mixture into remaining syrup mixture and cook over simmering water, beating constantly with a wire whisk, until mixture thickens and forms a ribbon as it drops from the whisk. Chill until mixture is almost set, stir in 3 tablespoons of pear brandy and fold in 1 cup of heavy, or whipping cream, whipped. Chill until set. Serve with chocolate sauce. Makes 8 servings.

"Women's" Photo Exhibit

A photography exhibit designed to make people "reflect on the reality of woman" will be on display from March 12 to 30 in Boston University's George Sherman Union Gallery (755 Commonwealth avenue, second floor.)

The exhibition entitled "Women . . . a presentation of images of the American contemporary woman," is co-sponsored by the Boston Women's Collective, Inc., and the program resource office of Boston University under a grant from the Massachusetts Council on Arts and humanities. It was developed by Rosalyn Gerstein, a teacher in the department of photography at the Massachusetts College of Arts, and consists of 55 photographs by 34 photographers, 16 of whom are women.

Local groups interested in showing the photographs following their Boston University display should contact Ms. Gerstein at 263 Washington street, Newton 02158.

MR. AND MRS. JAMES M. G. PRENDERGAST

Irene Applebaum Weds James M. G. Prendergast

Wearing a pearl timmed peau de soie gown that was her mother's, Miss Irene Ellen Applebaum became the bride of James Michael George Prendergast on Feb. 11 at the Chestnut Hill County Club. Justice of the Peace, Edward English officiated the double ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Applebaum, Pond Brook road, Chestnut Hill. She is the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Applebaum and Mrs. Harry Parritz, all of Newton.

Parents of the groom are Mr. and Mrs. Donald Prendergast, Fort Meadow drive, Hudson, Mass. Grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. James Allbright, Utica, N.Y.

The bride carried a bouquet of baby orchids and roses. She wore a veil of illusion net attached to a seed pearl tiara.

Maid of honor was Teresa Marie Prendergast of Hudson, sister of the groom. Brother of the bride, Paul F. Applebaum of Jamaica Plain was best man.

Following a reception at the Chestnut Hill Country Club, the couple left for a wedding trip to Vermont.

They will reside in Newton Centre. (Ciro's Photo)

Mrs. Freeman Heads Local Fund Raising

Mrs. Herbert I. Freeman, Cynthia Road, Newton Centre, who is the head of fund-raising activities for Wellesley College in the Newton area, will be a leader in helping the college in Wellesley, Mass. to raise $70.7 million in a ten-year centennial development program, it was announced by Wellesley President Barbara W. Newell on Thursday, March 8. This is the largest goal ever sought by a college of this size.

In opposition to the growing trend toward coeducation on the part of leading private colleges and universities, Wellesley has decided to continue to award degrees only to women. The liberal arts college will celebrate its centennial in 1975.

Mrs. Newell said that $45 million of the total will be used for support of faculty, student, and academic programs, and $25.7 million for a construction program to provide additions to the library, a new interdisciplinary science complex, and major remodeling of three academic buildings.

A Son

Education Exhibits Mark Homestead's Celebration

The second in a series of special exhibitions marking Newton's Centennial will remain on display at the Jackson Homestead for the next ten weeks, it was announced recently by Mrs. William H. Cannard, director-curator of the city-owned museum.

The exhibits depicting "Newton's Pioneers in the Founding of Schools and Other Educational Projects" were first presented at a recent open house.

The Jackson Homestead, located at 527 Washington St. in Newton, may be visited from 2 to 4 p.m. daily, Monday through Friday, with no charge made for admission.

Mrs. Orin E. Skinner who has devoted many hours of research to the preparation of the exhibits notes that, "Characteristic of the time, many of our Newton schools were named for our early settlers and their descendants and the stories of their lives and activities makes for fascinating reading."

Visitors to the Homestead will find that Mrs. Skinner, assisted by Mrs. John D. Fox, has assembled an impressive exhibition of record books, photographs, and other material illustrating what education in Newton was like in its earlier days.

In conjunction with the Centennial exhibit, the Homestead is publishing a manuscript about the Newton Schools since 1700, written by Francis Foster of Newton.

At the open house when the special exhibits were first introduced, hostesses were Mrs. William E. Conners, Mrs. Francis L. Maynard, Mrs. Ross L. Trenholm, Mrs. Whelan Vinnicombe of the Newton Centre Woman's Club, Mrs. Robert W. Fichen, Mrs. R. Lanning Humphrey, Mrs. Henry S. Kendall, Mrs. John D. Quackenbos, of the Waban Woman's Club, Mrs. Howard N. Atwood, Jr., Mrs. Guernsey Camp, Jr., Mrs. Robert P. T. Coffin, Mrs. F. Payson LeBaron, Mrs. Alex R. Miller, Miss Margaret K. Murphy, Mrs. E. B. Patterson and Mrs. Edward Wagenknecht of the Friends of the Jackson Homestead.

Flower arrangements were by members of the Temple Shalom Garden Club, Mrs. Monroe S. Glick, chairman, Mrs. Joseph Denis, Mrs. Melvin Silin, and Mrs. Lester A. Steinberg.

Members of the Open House Arrangements Committee were Mrs. Lester A. Steinberg, chairman of the Board of Trustees, Jackson Homestead; Mrs. Richard A. Winslow, president of the Homestead's Friends; Mrs. Donald M. Budge and Mrs. William M. Sanders, vice-presidents; Mrs. Beatrice Holland, Mrs. Harry Walen, Mrs. Robert F. Lally, Mrs. Charles S. Butler, Miss Betsy Allen, Mrs. William H. Cannard and Mrs. Ruth W. Bassett.

OILS, WATER COLORS, PASTELS and "papier tole" creations by Newton artist Dorothy Adelman are admired by Katherine Crowley, Helena Campton and Lois Frady at the Hebrew Rehabilitation Center for the Aged in West Roxbury.

Newton Hosts Drug Parley

Attorney General Robert H. Quinn announced today that he will co-sponsor with the Massachusetts Narcotics Enforcement Officers Association a three-day conference on drug abuse at the Marriott Hotel, Newton, on Apr. 4, 5, and 6.

The conference will encompass all facets of the drug problem including enforcement, medical, judicial, social and educational.

Panel discussion in the conference will include: rehabilitation modalities for the drug dependent person; drug education efforts in Massachusetts; a survey of the Massachusetts Controlled Substances Act; the goals and purposes of the Massachusetts Narcotics Enforcement Officers Association; cooperation among law enforcement agencies and methods of intelligence sharing; problems of the law enforcement officer in the small town, large city, statewide; the role of the defense attorney in a drug case.

John Ingersoll, director of the Federal Bureau of Narcotics and Dangerous Drugs, and Massachusetts Attorney General Robert H. Quinn will be among the guest speakers.

Among the panel members will be Dr. Matthew P. Dumont, assistant commissioner, Division of Drug Rehabilitation, Massachusetts Department of Mental Health; Charles Rogovin, teaching fellow, Kennedy School, Harvard University; and Attorney Joseph Oteri.

Educators, therapists, lawyers, social workers, doctors, nurses, legislators, probation officers and law enforcement personnel are invited to attend.

The conference is partially funded by a grant received by Quinn's office from the Governor's Committee on Law Enforcement.

There will be a registration fee of $25, which will cover daily coffee breaks, three lunches, and a final banquet. The fee will be collected at 9 a.m. on Apr. 4 before the program begins.

Hotel accommodations should be made directly through the Marriott Motor Hotel, Newton. Rooms are available at a cost of $24 per day for a single and $29 for a double.

Institute Invites Tufts Professor

He specializes in child psychology and is a former director of child guidance at the New England Medical Center.

Mayor White To Be Honored

Mayor Kevin H. White is to be honored as the "First Friend for Life" of the National Jewish Theatre at a Soiree and late supper scheduled for the Oval and Venetian rooms of the Copley Plaza Hotel, Saturday, March 31.

The black tie function, called for 9 p.m., is co-chaired by Mrs. Marvin Milton and Mrs. Sidney Fruman, both Newton residents.

The purpose fo Friends for Life is fundraising for the new non-profit, Equity, Boston based company. Each couple attending the soiree will donate $150.00 to the NJT thus helping to assure a financially sound company. Persons interested in becoming a Friend for Life should contact The National Jewish Theatre at 536-9715.

PUBLIC SERVICE

NEW YORK (UPI) — While there are more than 1,000 neighborhood performing arts groups in New York City, including theater, dance and opera companies, six of these were chosen as typical for presentation in a unique public service film, "Hometown," now being shown in schools and to arts councils throughout the country.

Produced by the Arts and Business Council of the New York board of Trade under a grant from the Exxon Corporation, "Hometown" is spearheading a nationwide drive to stimulate interest in community cultural programs—the kinds of participatory arts organized by and for the general public.

TV CENTER

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (UPI) — More than 2,500 showings of television programs and series filmed at the University of Michigan Television Center were aired by 12 Michigan stations during 1971.

Church Council Selects Director

After an intensive eight-month search, the Board of Directors of the Massachusetts Council of Churches has elected the Rev. C. Joseph Sprague of Cincinnati, Ohio, as general secretary.

The Massachusetts Council of Churches is the cooperative ecumenical agency through which 16 Protestant denominations unite for planning and service. Some 1700 local congregations hold membership in the denominations represented in the council.

Mr. Sprague, an ordained clergyman of the United Methodist Church, is presently executive director of the Metropolitan Area Religious Coalition of Cincinnati, a post he has held since 1968. He will assume his new position with the Massachusetts Council of Churches on April 2.

He will succeed the Rev. Arthur E. Walmsley, who served the council as general secretary from 1969 to 1972. The Rev. Robert C. Dodds has served as acting director since last September.

The Rev. Gene Bartlett, former council president and pastor of the First Baptist Church, Newton Centre; L. Lincoln Eldredge and the Rev. Walter A. Telfer of the Andover Newton Theological School were members of the search committee which carried on the intensive search for the Rev. Sprague.

Bowen PTA Gourmets Ready Culinary Delights

Bowen School P.T.A. presents its annual International Buffet this Thursday, Mar. 15, in the gym, beginning at 6:30 p.m.

The International Buffet has become a social tradition at Bowen, popular with teachers and parents alike. Menu items are prepared by parents, each contributing as the only price of admission, a dish prepared from a favorite ethnic, international, or family recipe. This method invariably produces a table groaning with gourmet fare, pleasing to the most discerning, and ample for one and all.

During the evening, parents will have an opportunity to browse through the Book Fair, which is being held this week through Thursday evening to coincide with the International Buffet. In addition to a good variety of books for children, the Book Fair will feature a selection of paperbacks for adults, including hobby and craft books, and some recent best-sellers. An assortment of posters, and "mini-lab" kits will also be on sale.

An added attraction will be a table of handicraft items made by members of the Bowen community. Creations in needlework, knitting, crocheting, woodwork, leather, beaded flowers, etc.- many not available for sale elsewhere - will be on display.

After the meal, parents and teachers will be invited to join in a game of military whist with prizes for all. This exciting game promises fun for everyone, with little or no card experience necessary.

This annual evening sponsored by the P.T.A. at Bowen provides parents and teachers with an opportunity to spend an entirely social evening together on an informal basis.

Consumerism Unit Topic

The Boston B'nai B'rith Coed Unit is featuring a "truth in labeling" consumersim night at its next meeting, Wednesday, March 21, 7:30 p.m. at the Brookline-Brighton-Newton Jewish Community Center in Brookline.

Dr. George Michael, head of the state food and drug department is the guest speaker.

Innovations In Sound

You've probably never thought of your car as an ideal stereo listening studio. Well, it is! The minute you sit in your stereo equipped auto, you're blanketed in thrilling sound. You'll witness an entirely new perspective in stereo listening; a richness in stereophony and realism of sound reproduction that has never before been possible. Now, with stereo tape cartridges, whether you listen in your car, home, boat, plane or trailer you enjoy an unparallelled sound sensation . . . crisp clarity and maximum fidelity, superior craftsmanship . . . and a wealth of music for every taste from Broadway to The Beatles, from current hits to classical.

Stereo cartridges are carefully engineered to afford maximum reliability and convenience of operation.

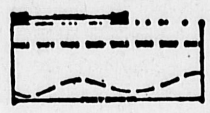
1. You never have to thread or even touch the tape.

2. You may change from one stereo program to another with the press of a button.

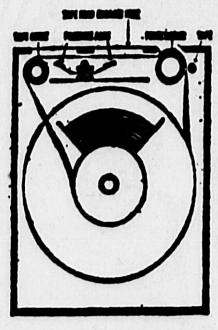
3. Tapes are continuous and never need rewinding.

4. With a minimum of care, the playing life of the tape is practically unlimited.

What is four-track and eight-track stereo tape? Within the ¼-inch tape width, music is recorded on four or eight parallel tracks which run the length of the tape. Two tracks play simultaneously and produce true stereo sound. Standard tapes provide up to 40 minutes of continuous music. Twin cartridges up to 80 minutes.



How does a tape cartridge work Stereo cartridges contain a tape in a continuous loop, which simply means that the tape runs from the center of the spool and is returned to the outer lap of the reel. Thus, never needs rewinding. Inserting the cartridge into the tape playback unit is probably as easy as replacing your cigarette lighter in the dash.



Seeing is believing, however, and perhaps the least expensive method for you to experience the unusual convenience engineered into a stereo tape is to visit a dealer and ask for a demonstration.

Realizing that stereo tapes are here to stay, Lechmere Sales of Cambridge and Dedham is now compiling substantial stocks. This forsighted record dealer and department store devoted exclusively to providing the consumer with even a larger and more complete musical selection than previously realized with the more traditional record album departments.

Long recognized as a retailing leader and innovator, Lechmere now features perhaps the largest selection of stereo tape cartridges in New England. It's a certainty that a visit to either Lechmere in Cambridge or Dedham will prove a most rewarding musical experience.

Newton Jr. Speakers Cop Prizes

Members of the Newton Junior College Speech Club won distinction recently at the Southern Connecticut State College Forensic Tournament held at New Haven, Conn. on Mar. 2 and 3.

Among the 43 colleges competing were the University of Maine, Hunter, the United States Military Academy (West Point), New York University, Bowdoin, and Hofstra.

Michael Dathe, a second-year student, defeated 64 competitors to win the first place trophy in persuasive speaking. Mr. Dathe is a resident of Newton.

Miss Mary Jo Deppisch of Newton, a first-year student, placed 14th in a field of 102 competitors in oral interpretation, with a first place in one round.

Robert Maher, a second-year student, took a first place in a round in after dinner speaking, as did Walter Donohue, a first year student.

Steven Wolpe, a second-year student, took a first place in a round of impromptu speaking, with Steven Wightman, a second-year student, in second place.

The Newton Junior College Speech Club has participated in forensic tournaments for the past six years. During that time it has competed successfully by placing in winning rounds in many categories, and although it has frequently been in the minority representation of two-year colleges, its record of achievement has brought honor to the college and the Newton community.

The Speech Club is under the direction of Mrs. Cynthia Lawton, instructor in speech. Mrs. Lawton participated as a judge in this Southern Connecticut State College Forensic Tournament.

Red Cross Conducting Fund Drive

The Newton Chapter of the American Red Cross is conducting a supplemental fund drive during March, Red Cross Month.

The organization is wholly supported by donations given through the United Fund or directly to the chapter to carry on its program in the community.

This year, the Massachusetts Bay United Fund was able to provide 70 per cent of funds needed to continue the free services offered by the Newton Red Cross.

"If programs including first aid, water safety, service to military families and blood collection and distribution are to be continued, the balance of monies needed must start coming from the residents of Newton," John Taplin, chairman, stated.

Donations can be sent to the Newton Red Cross, 21 Foster St., Newtonville.

Catholics Consolidate Schools

Formal approval by Humberto Cardinal Medeiros, Archbishop of Boston, and the formation of a school board are the latest in a series of steps leading to the operation of the Newton Catholic School.

The school was established recently through the cooperation of clergy and laity of four Catholic parishes of Newton, the Sisters of St. Joseph and the Boston Archdiocesan School Board.

In a letter to the four parishes involved, Cardinal Medeiros wrote, "The Archdiocesan School Board has recommended that four Newton parishes be given permission to operate a consolidated school at the present site of Our Lady's School. They also recommend that the name of the consolidated school should be Newton Catholic School."

The Cardinal continued, "I am very happy to approve these recommendations. I wish to commend you, and all the clergy, sisters, and laity of the parishes involved, for the hard work and dedication to Catholic education which the establishment of this school represents."

"I thank you for your efforts and wish Newton Catholic School every success," concluded Medeiros.

The four participating Newton parishes are Our Lady Help of Christians, Mary Immaculate of Lourdes, Corpus Christi and Sacred Heart.

The Newton Catholic School Board, elected by representatives of the four parishes, is composed of the following members: the Rev. Msgr. Daniel F. Riordan of Mary Immaculate of Lourdes; the Rev. Msgr. John J. McManmon of Our Lady Help of Christians; the Rev. Msgr. William A. Granville of Sacred Heart; the Rev. Joseph F. McGlone of Corpus Christi; the Rev. John W. Corcoran of Sacred Heart, administrator pro tempore; Sister Anna Vincent, high school principal; Sister Simon, elementary school principal; Sister Teresa Higgins, Congregation of the Sister of St. Joseph of Boston; Paul Murphy, faculty representative; Sister Marie Keough, alternate faculty representative; Dom Dougherty, educator, Corpus Christi; Joseph Chevarley, lawyer, Our Lady Help of Christians; James Waters, lawyer, Sacred Heart; William King, accountant, Our Lady Help of Christians; and Joseph Baranosky, accountant, Mary Immaculate of Lourdes.

The following parents are also members of the new school board; Mrs. Mary Coletti, Our Lady Help of Christians, and Mrs. Alice O'Halloran, Mary Immaculate of Lourdes, for the high school; William Nealon, Sacred Heart, and John Murphy, Corpus Christi, for the elementary school.

The first meeting of the school board will be held Tuesday, Mar. 20, at 8 p.m. in the Pope John Room of Our Lady Help of Christians Parish Center, 573 Washington St.

Participating parishes have agreed to subsidize members of their parishes who attend the Newton Catholic School by paying the difference between tuition paid by the student and the total actual cost of educating the student.

The Newton Catholic School will use the facilities of the present Our Lady Help of Christian elementary, junior high and high schools.

Enrollment for the 1973-1974 school year is expected to be about 750 students.

Junior Aid Sponsors Luncheon Fashion Show

Brae Burn Country Club will be the setting of a luncheon-fashion show on Thursday, March 29, given by the Newton-Wellesley Junior Aid Association. Proceeds will go toward the purchase of six incubators for the delivery room and nursery at the hospital.

Ann Starr, Inc. of Wellesley will present the fashion show and Mrs. D.J. Bailey of Wellesley will be the commentator. Members and friends will model spring fashions.

Reservations, limited because of space, can be made by calling Mrs. Vincent Leahy of Newton.

A drawing will be held at the luncheon for a "Trip for Two" to the destination of your choice within $500. Chances are being sold by members of the Junior Aid.

Richard Holmes of 69 Kaposia street, Newton, has been awarded the Cyril Norman Weiser Memorial Scholarship at an award breakfast at Sydney Hill Country Club on Mar. 4. Holmes is a second year student at the Massachusetts College of Pharmacy.

The scholarship was presented by the Alpha Chapter and Alumni Chapter of the Rho Pi Phi Fraternity. The fraternity, now nationwide was established at the Massachusetts College of Pharmacy in 1934.

Movies at The Aquarium

The New England Aquarium, Central Wharf, Boston, presents a movie of the week, shown weekdays at 2:30 p.m. in the Lecture Room, free of charge to visitors. Movies for the remainder of March are:

March 15 and 16 — Venomous Animals of the Seas.

March 19-23 — The River Must Live.

March 26-30 — Survival Factor.

Along with its educational programming, the Aquarium is also a popular recreational resource, not only to tourists, but for local people. Since opening its doors in June 1969, the Aquarium has had more than 2½ million visitors.

Each visitor has his favorite exhibit, but the focus of attention seems to be the 200,000 gallon giant ocean tank, which contains 50 species of marine life including sharks, turtles, groupers and moray eels.

The Aquarium is open seven days a week; 9-5 weekdays, 10-6 Saturdays, Sundays and holidays. Admission is $2.00 for adults, $1.00 for children ages 5 through 14, and children under 5 are admitted free. Senior citizens and servicemen with I.D. cards are admitted for $1.00.

Professor Paul L. Nyhus, dean of students at Bowdoin College, announced recently tha the following Newton residents have been named to the dean's list on the basis of their scholastic achievements during the first semester of the 1972-1973 academic year:

Schedule Set For City's Bus

Using a new bus purchased by the City of Newton, the Newton Council on Aging is offering a series of short excursion trips for Newton senior citizens.

For each trip reservations will be limited to the first forty people who call the council office at 244-4700, extension 266. There will be no transportation charge for any of the trips.

The following is an outline of the first seven trips scheduled by the Council on Aging.

On Wednesday, Apr. 4, a trip to the Natick Shopping Mall is planned. The bus will leave Newton at 10 a.m. and will return at 3:30 p.m. Participants will make their own lunch arrangements at the shopping center.

On Friday, Apr. 13, there will be a gallery tour of the Museum of Fine Arts. Participants will leave Newton at 12 p.m.

On Friday, Apr. 27, there will be a visit to the Museum of Science and Hayden Planetarium. The bus will leave Newton at 9:30 a.m. A planetarium show and tour of the museum is planned. There will be a nominal cost for this trip.

On Thursday, May 3, there will be a trip to the Busch-Reisinger Museum and the Fogg Art Museum at Harvard University. This will include a special organ concert at 12:15 p.m. in the German Museum. Participants will bring their own lunches to City Hall at 11 a.m.

On Wednesday, May 9, there will be a trip to the New England Aquarium. Participants will leave Newton at 12 p.m. and this trip will cost $1.

On Wednesday, May 16, there will be a visit to the Decordova Museum in Lincoln. This will begin at 12 p.m.

On Wednesday, May 23, the Harvard Museums will be visited beginning at 12:30 p.m. This tour will emphasize the famous glass flower collection at the Peobody Museum.

Further information and reservations for these trips can be made at the Council on Aging Office at Newton City Hall, telephone 244-4700, ext. 266.

Psychiatrist Leads PTA In Discussion Of Teens

Dr. Maurice Vanderpol, assistant professor of psychiatry at the Harvard Medical School will be the featured speaker at the PTA meeting at Weeks Junior High School on Thursday, Mar. 22, at 8 p.m. sharp.

The topic of the evening will be "The Nature of Adolescence" and Dr. Vanderpol's brief talk will provide a frame of reference for a series of group meetings which will be held immediately after his speech in classrooms at the school.

Dr. Vanderpol has a great deal of experience in dealing with adolescents. He is psychiatric consultant to the public schools of Arlington, Concord, and Needham, in addition to his role as associate psychiatrist at McLean Hospital in Belmont.

Each discussion group will be chaired by a group leader skilled in group techniques. Each group may focus its deliberations on adolescence along whatever lines the parent and teacher participants choose. A recorder will be assigned to each group to summarize the thoughts and concerns of each group. It is hoped that these summaries, and the interest of the parent participants will lead to future meetings to help parents understand and more effectively deal with their teenagers.

Group leaders will include the following psychiatrists, psychologists, and social workers: Dr. Anton Kris, Dr. John Reichard, Dr. Sylvia Krkow, Dr. Frederick Ehrlich, Mrs. Shelley Ehrlich, Mrs. Shayna Gochberg, Dr. Howard Corwin, Mrs. Ann Arndt and Dr. Richard Kahn.

Parents of children attending Weeks, and parents of children attending the feeder schools to Weeks-Beehoven, Bowen, Claflin, Hyde and Mason-Rice-are invited to attend this informative meeting.

Counseling Service Includes Testing

Family Counseling Service (Region West) has begun a new program of vocational and educational testing and counseling.

This program will be offered for the next few months at a minimal cost to residents of the nine towns served by Region West, including Newton. If the response indicates community interest in such a service, it may be continued as a regular part of the agency's counseling services.

The testing program is designed as an aid in career planning for people faced with vocational and educational decisions. This includes high school and college students, those who have interrupted their education, working people considering an occupational change and women with lessening child-rearing responsibilities who contemplate entering the labor market. The procedure is based on an individualized battery of tests usually consisting of measures of ability, aptitude, interests and personality.

Further information about this program can be obtained from Family Counseling Service at 527-7680. The Newton office is located at 74 Walnut Park, near Newton Corner.

C-Notes

A weekly column of information about the Newton Centennial Celebration

If the members of the Centennial Tree Planting and Beautification Committee have their way, the entire world will know that Newton is the Garden City.

Mrs. Rolce Payne has marshalled on her committee a cadre of landscaping specialists who have volunteered to advise any groups in the community who wish to undertake a "green program", every garden club in the city is cooperating with special beautification projects and each of the 31 schools have been invited to submit plans for flower or tree planting and general landscaping.

Although the committee's program has been focused on the Centennial Tree Planting Ceremony which will take place on the mall at City Hall, Sunday, May 6, as part of the Centennial opening day festivities, workshops on beautification have already been conducted. Among the ambitious projects scheduled by the committee are establishment of the Commonwealth Avenue Arboretum and the removal of overhead wires along Commonwealth Avenue.

According to Mrs. Payne, the Boston Edison Company has already made a tentative commitment to the City and to the Beautification Committee to conceal the wires from Lowell Avenue to Chestnut Street. When the Master Plan for the Commonwealth Avenue Arboretum is completed, citizens will be given the opportunity to purchase seedling trees for planting, with their donations recorded at City Hall.

"I am certain that many, many citizens of all ages will avail themselves of the opportunity to help beautify the City of Newton by supporting this unique landscaping plan," said Mrs. Payne.

"I know that those who take pride in Newton will want to contribute funds for the memorialization or commemoration of solemn occasions, or for the celebration of such happy occasions and events as birthdays, weddings, anniversaries and the like. The name of each person in whose honor or memory a tree is planted will become a permanent part of our city's archives. Most importantly, the donor and those generations who follow will be able to enjoy the beauty of the area."

The Tree Planning Committee has established a $50 landscaping grant to each of the public schools and may have already submitted plans for beautification. Additionally, the services of landscaping specialists will be available for school personnel and parent teachers associations for consultation.

Serving with Mrs. Payne are Mrs. Virginia Palen, Dr. H. Garrison Wilkes, Mrs. Jean Hickey and Mrs. Esther Steinberg. Landscaping consultants who have volunteered for committee service include Mrs. Barbara Kaplan, Mrs. Phillis B. Kays, Mrs. Jane McKinnell, Mrs. Alice Sherman, Ms. Helene Peters, Mrs. June Tower, Mrs. Bonnie Ulin, Mrs. Judith Wolf, Mrs. Marcia Sabbath and Mrs. Dorritt Senior. Mrs. Kaplan was responsible for the first school landscape workshop held this week.

The committee also intends to enlist business area merchants in the landscaping program and is scheduling beautification programs at the Norumbega Gardens, Horace Mann, Jackson Gardens and Parker House senior citizen housing developments.

If all goes well according to plan, Newton residents during the city's next century of progress will have as their theme song "In the Shade of the Old Apple Tree."

Films Focus On Pupil Disability

The Newton Chapter of the Association for Children with Learning Disabilities (NACLD) will hold its third meeting of the year on Wednesday, Mar. 21st, at 8 p.m. at the Newton Corner Elks Hall.

Parents, teachers and interested members of the community are invited to see two California-made films focussed on the problems of the learning disabilities child. Opportunity for discussion of the films will follow the screening.

"If The Can't Learn the Way We Teach, We'd Better Teach the Way They Can Learn" reveals the problems of an adolescent with learning disabilities must face and the professional and lay efforts made to help him. The movie covers identification of problems, testing, remediation and follow-through.

The second film, "A Walk in Another Pair of Shoes," draws attention to the strengths as well as problems of an elementary-school learning disabilities child. (Dean, the subject of the film, composed some of its music, for instance.) The film is of particular interest because it enables children who do not have learning disabilities to develop tolerance for those who do.

Mrs. George Peck, president of the Needham chapterof ACLD) for many years, describes the two documentary-style films as "Fabulous, outstanding!"

Learning disabilities (sometimes called "perceptual handicaps" or "dyslexia") affect as many as eight million school children nationwide. These children suffer in varying degrees an inability to deal with letters and numbers as symbols, but they usually have normal or superior intelligence.

ACLD is a group of parents and professionals working to help understand and solve the problems a learning disabilities child faces at home, in school and in the community.

The Newton Corner Elks Hall is located at 347 Centre St., Newton Corner, across from the main library. Parking is available behind the building.

Coffee and refreshments will follow the meeting.

Parents Get Invite To Cardiac Study

Parents of seventh graders enrolled in Bigelow Junior High School are invited to attend an orientation program concerning the risk factor screening program that will soon involve all of Newton's seventh grade students.

The program will be held on Tuesday, Mar. 20 at 7:45 p.m. in the Bigelow Junior High School auditorium. The program will be presented by Dr. Arthur A. Sasahara, president of the Greater Boston Heart Association and Dr. Robert Kilburn, science coordinator of the Newton Public Schools.

The risk factor screening program is being sponsored by the Greater Boston Heart Association, the Newton School Department, the Newton Health Department and Newton Wellesley Hospital. The major focus of the program is on educating young people to the risk factors of heart disease — smoking, overweight, a diet high in cholesterol and saturated fats, lack of exercise, high blood pressure and tension.

Studies have shown that these and other factors lead to premature heart attack and stroke. Many cardiovascular experts believe that people have a better chance of avoiding premature heart disease by eliminating these factors early in life.

All seventh graders will study the risk factors of heart disease in their science classrooms. The actual screening will test the students for blood pressure and blood serum cholesterol. The screening is voluntary and requires parental consent.

One half of the seventh grade class at Warren Junior High School underwent the first phase of the screening last week and 93 per cent of the students participated. It is hoped that parents of the other seventh graders in Newton will encourage their children's participation.

At the orientation program on Mar. 20, Dr. Sasahara, chief of the cardiology lab at the West Roxbury Veteran's Administration Hospital, will discuss the prevention of heart disease and the importance of establishing good "heart health habits" early in life. Dr. Sasahara has been instrumental in the planning and organizational stages of the program in the past few years.

Dr. Kilburn will review the new risk factor educational unit which will become a part of the seventh grade science curriculum. The discussion will be followed by a question and answer period.

Parent orientation programs will also be held on Mar. 27 at the Day Junior High School. Mar. 29 at Meadowbrook Junior High School and Apr. 3 at Weeks Junior High School. Parents of seventh graders are welcome to attend any of these programs.

For further information about the Newton Risk Factor Screening Program, contact the Greater Boston Heart Association at 267-4400.

Temple Hosts Scout Family Dinner

The 23rd Annual Scout Family Supper will be held on Wednesday, Mar. 21, at 6:15 p.m. in the Community Hall of Temple Emanuel at 385 Ward street.

Cub Pack 217 will join with Troop 225 in sponsoring this event.

This year the Scout Family Supper Committee will dedicate the program to our youth. Awards will be given to qualified Scouts and Cub Scouts. Adult Leaders and Den Leaders will be given awards for their outstanding contribution to the scouting program.

This year the committee has arranged an unusual program for the scout family. Mr. Herbert B. Downs, one of New England's foremost magicians, will provide the entertainment.

A family supper will be served with a charge of $2.25 for children and $2.75 for adults.

Invited guests include Rabbi Samuel Chiel, Rabbi Alan Turetz and Cantor Hochberg of Temple Emanuel; Lawrence Suttenberg, chairman of the board of trustees; Morris Finkelstein, president of Temple Emanuel; Malcolm Flash, chairman of youth activities; Chester Rubin, youth activities director; Dr. Leon Ginsburg, president of the Brotherhood; Kenneth Dana, executive director; Adolph Anderson, scout executive of Norumbega Council and Ralph Brison, scout executive.

The following are serving on the Scout Supper Committee: Marvin Berkowitz, Harry Weiner, Joseph Winer, Hyman Goldberg, Melvin Clayton and Chester Rubin of Troop 225. For Cub Pack 217; Gerald Malloy, Richard Klayman, David Alberts, Mrs. B. Pettitti, Mrs. Dorothy Jacobs, Melvin Jacobs, E. Michael Turner and John Bradley.

Morris Danovitch, Temple Emanuel institutional representative and C. Benjamin Lofchie of Troop 225 are co-chairmen. Harry Weiner is in charge of reservations.

Will you serve cocktails and mixed drinks at the reception after a champagne toast to the bride and groom? Figure on 13 to 17 (1 ½ to 2-ounce) drinks from each fifth of liquor, or 16 to 21 drinks from each quart, says the Women's Division of Licensed Beverage Industries, Inc. One hundred ice cubes, or an 8-10-ounce bag of commercially made ones, supplies enough cooling for 30 to 35 drinks. But a large block of ice chills punch best.

Tree Planters Urge More Public Schools Participate

The Newton public schools have been invited to participate in a beautification campaign by the Centennial Tree Planting Committee.

Each of the schools has been invited to submit plans for flower or tree planting and general landscaping.

"Many schools have already submitted plans for beautification," stated committee chairman Mrs. Rolce Payne, "but we would like to have total involvement and urge those schools who have not as yet submitted proposals to do so as soon as possible so that Newton will truly live up to its name as the Garden City."

The Tree Planting Committee, under the auspices of the Newton Centennial Commission, has established a $50 landscaping incentive grant to each of the public schools, upon approval of their proposed beautification plan.

Should a school desire assistance in formulating plans, the services of landscaping specialists are available for consultation for school personnel and Parent Teacher Associations.

To obtain the names of these volunteers, who have trained at the Radcliffe Institute Landscape Design Seminars, contact Mrs. Payne at 244-9020 or the chairman of the school beautification program, Ms. Barbara Kaplan at 527-4436.

High Costs Got You Down?

"Consumer Protection: How to Cope with Rising Food Bills, Insurance Frauds and Everyday Consumer Problems—Bring Yours to Discuss!" will be the topic of a lecture and discussion series to be held at the Memorial Community School on Thursday, Mar. 15, at 8 p.m.

Ira Magaziner, a member of the National Council of Consumer Affairs under two presidents, will be the guest speaker. Magaziner is also editor of the "Brockton Times," manager of the Brockton Cooperative Store, and was a Rhodes Scholar.

The public is invited to attend the series to be held at the Memorial School, Stein Circle, Oak Hill Park, Newton.

Sorority Slates New Members Introduction

Members of Tau Beta Beta and their guests will meet at the Church of the Redeemer, Chestnut Hill, on Mar. 20.

A reception will be held before the meeting to welcome the following new members: Mrs. Edward P. Barry, Brookline; Mrs. Calvin A. Hill, Mrs. Edwin L. Prien, and Mrs. Ralph I. Schoonmaker all from Waban; Mrs. F Broughton Lever, Weston; and Mrs. Charles A. Palioca and Mrs. Harold D. Talbot, Jr. from Wellesley.

Mrs. Arthur J. Lockhart, a Tau Beta Beta member and instructor in crewel and canvas embroidery, together with Mrs. H. Holton Wood, regional chairman, National Cathedral Association, will present "The Story of the Symbolic Kneelers at the National Cathedral."

Concert and Musical Workshop

The Paulist Center, 5 Park street, Boston, announces two events of special interest to church musicians and religious educators. The events, a concert and an all-day workshop, will feature three nationally known composers and performers — Jack Miffleton, Skipp Sanders and Ken Meltz.

On Friday evening, March 16, the three will appear in concert in the Paulist Center Chapel, beginning at 8 p.m. The concert will combine popular and religious folk music in an evening of song and celebration.

On Saturday, March 17, Miffleton, Sanders and Meltz will present a workshop from noon to 5 p.m. on the varied uses of music in contemporary worship. During this workshop, at which materials will be provided, many original compositions will be presented, including selections from "Come Out," Jack Miffleton's popular catechetical program for children in kindergarten through the third grade.

Jack Miffleton is one of the most popular names in the area of contemporary Christian worship. Hardly a church in the country has failed to sway to the rhythmic sounds of his "Alle! Alle!" or be moved by the social insight of "But Then Comes the Morning. Two best-selling LPs, "With Skins and Steel" and "Some Young Carpenter," published by the World Library of Sacred Music, have established Jack as perhaps the most versatile composer today.

Skipp Sanders has been involved in contemporary liturgical music for almost a decade. He began his career in his native Baltimore as a song leader and cantor in an experimental inner city ministry. In 1966, his first album appeared, "Joy Of Our Youth," published by the World Library of Sacred Music. This led to Skipp's being featured vocalist on three more World Library recordings including Jac Miffleton's two albums.

At present he is getting ready to go to Nashville to help Jack record his second album of children's songs to be entitled "Even A Worm." During the year, Skipp is a graduate student in education at the University of Pennsylvania, but during the summers he is an ongoing member of the World Library Liturgical Faculty.

Rounding off the program is Ken Meltz, a young Paulist on the staff of the Paulist Center in Boston. A native New Yorker, Ken came to Boston in the Fall of 1971 to take up duties as music director at the popular downtown Paulist chapel. He has been involved in the liturgical music field since 1968 when he began leading workshops and performing in concert on college campuses across the nation.

Tickets for the concert are $2.50 and may be ordered in advance from the Paulist Center. People can also register in advance for the workshop by sending checks for $5 a person to the Paulist Center, 5 Park street, Boston, Ma. 02108, attention: Ken Meltz.

To Welcome Spring At The Museum

Charles Hayden Planetarium is offering visitors to Boston's Museum of Science a unique way to welcome spring, which officially arrives at 1:13 p.m. (EST) Tuesday, March 20.

On this first day of spring a 45-minute Planetarium program, "Stars of Spring," opens to the public and will be presented daily through March 26. Devoted almost entirely to stargazing, the program features an explanation of the vernal equinox as well as the celestial objects and events visible during the season.

The first moment of spring occurs when the sun crosses the equator from south to north at the vernal equinox. Since at this time of year the sun's direct rays strike the earth on the equator, day and night are equal length everywhere on the globe.

During autumn and winter our northern half of the earth is tilted away from the sun. Sunlight strikes this hemisphere at a slant, and days are shorter.

Since the beginning of winter the sun has been climbing higher in the New England sky. At the vernal equinox it has reached the midpoint in its journey from southernmost to northernmost position. The summer solstice marks the sun's highest position in our sky.

"Stars of Spring" explains the astronomy behind the change of seasons and, through the audio-visual power of the Planetarium, offers a preview of the New England sky as it appears in spring.

From March 20 to 26 the program will be presented as follows: Tues.-Sat., 11 a.m. and 2:45 p.m.; Fri. at 8 p.m.; Sun., 12:15 and 2:45 p.m.; Mon., 11 a.m. only. The fee is 50c above Museum admission.

Magician And Artist . . . Same Person

LONDON (UPI) — A man stopped by Chananel Mifalew's table in the sandwich bar in which he holds court Sundays to ask whether he knew he resembled a magician whose television act was a nationwide talking point a few years ago.

"You mean that chap, Chan Canasta?"

"That's the name," said the man.

People are always asking Mifalew, an artist with a growing reputation and a unique way of using his materials, whether he is Canasta who was just as much an innovator when he dazzles laymen and magician alike with his new technique.

Of course, they are the same person. It would take more than a change of name and dress — Mifalew affects a dramatic, broad-brimmed black arists's hat—to make people forget the bony face and intense eyes they saw so often on the stage or on television.

Canasta still surfaces every now and then in a theater or club with an act that magicians say is very different because success is not built into every trick. There is always a margin for failure—which sometimes happens. It depends on how well he reads the character of his subjects, an art he learned as an intelligence officer, specializing in interrogation, in Israel.

Good Show

Mifalew has just staged another successful one-man exhibition of his work at a gallery off Grosvenor Square. His pictures are hard to categorize. He paints fanciful ships on oceans that never were, flowers that nature may get around to some day, street scenes and the interiors of houses that represent his very own view of these things.

The word "paints" is a bit misleading. Mifalew has developed a method of using crayons so that the finish on the board base on which he works is diamond-hard without losing the brilliance of the original colors. He commands prices around the $500 and up mark and some of London's more astute collectors are (he says) stockpiling for the future.

Barbo's is deeply moved.

We have to leave Dedham. And in all sincerity, it's an emotionally wrenching situation for us. We've had this store for over 14 years, and have formed many lasting relationships with the people in this area. We've truly enjoyed doing business here, and we'd like to thank all our customers for making our stay so pleasant.

In addition to being emotionally "moved", we're also moved in a physical sense. We've taken everything from the Dedham store and put it in our Stoneham store (and we've got an enormous selection). We're going to keep right on selling the finest quality furniture from the Stoneham store. When you're looking for furniture, remember to come see us. Let us know you're from Dedham or South Shore area. We'll give you extra special attention (of course that will still include free home delivery). Because after all, if you're willing to go out of your way to see us, we'll only be too glad to go out of our way for you.

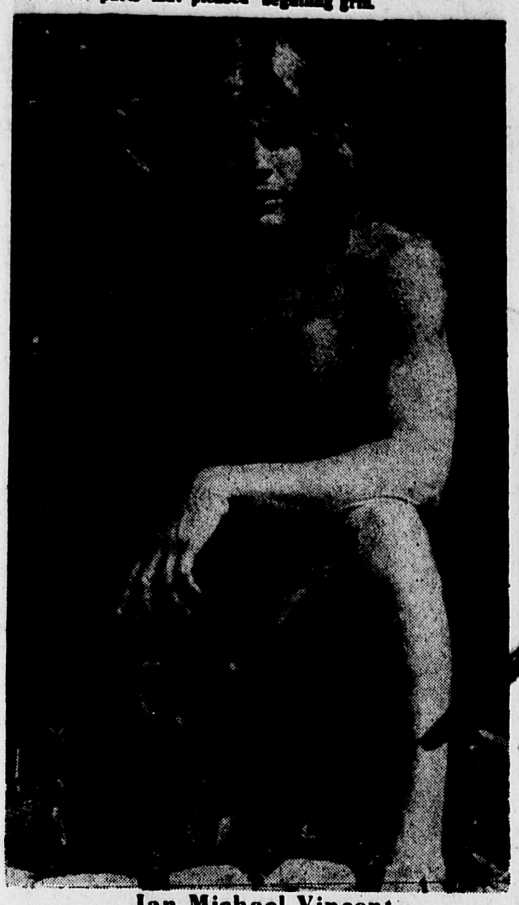
'World's Greatest Athlete' Was Also Cast As Killer

He looks as guileless and as honest as you'd expect a Disney hero to be. He refuses to pretend an interest in arty pictures and he won't be lured into discussions of Shakespearean roles nor far-left characterizations. He is 27 years old and appears much younger. Not a trace of dissatisfaction, dissolution or worse in his face, not a trace of all-night brawls in the fleshpots of Rome, Paris or Manhattan.

But attractive Jan-Michael Vincent, who plays the title role in "The World's Greatest Athlete" for the Disney studios, admits that two of the parts he depicted in previous films, and two of the parts that pleased him most, were that of a rapist and a killer. He thinks this was good casting. "I like the contrast between the way I look and what I did," said Vincent with a beguiling grin.



Jan Michael Vincent

He smiles with nostalgic pleasure about the rapist bit which he did in a film with his favorite star, Robert Mitchum.

It was called "Going Home," and his big scene was committed in a barn filled with fighting roosters. The camera would switch from Jan's forcible love-making to the cages of the savage fighting cocks. "Great," said the young actor.

And he was a killer with another actor he likes, Charles Bronson, in "The Mechanic."

Since then Jan has appeared on television as well as other films, and among his more important roles were appearances in "Tribes" and "Gunsmoke."

But it was his role in "The Survivors" which won him a following of enthusiastic fans. Maybe it was those broad shoulders, the blonde hair and the blue eyes, the one inch less than six feet—but Vincent became an idol among the younger generation. No wonder he isn't on the artsy-craftsy side, since it was his clean-cut appeal that first attracted the teenagers.

He is married—his wife's name is Bonnie—and obviously the Disney publicity men have told him not to emphasize his marital state. Just "Yes" and "no."

To Vincent, the city of Boston meant two weeks at a police station. True he was here making a TV film, and all th[e] action took place in and a[round] the station and at a [fil]led underground newsp[aper] which he was suppos[ed] to own in the film.

Actual[ly] he didn't see any of Boston's well known underground publications. Between scenes he practiced yoga-like breathing exercises. This habit of controlled breathing helped get him through some of the difficult and gruelling action sequences in "The World's Greatest Athlete."

"The day I had to run the 440 race eight times before the camera I needed something to keep going," he said. "So I retired to my dressing room and went through the breathing exercises—letting every muscle relax. And after that I was ready for the next race."

Jan-Michael was born in Denver, Colorado, where his father, Lt. Lloyd Vincent, was a pilot for the U.S. Army. The actor dropped his first name, Jan, when he made his first pictures.

In "The World's Greatest Athlete," Vincent is cast as Nanu, a jungle boy [who] becomes a one-man t[eam] on an Americ[an] campus. He wins eve[nt] in which he appe[ars] and has his own pet ti[ger]. Yet instead of going out for athletics in real life, the young man majored in art at Ventura City College. After three semesters of college, Jan and an Australian friend decided to lead an ideal no-work life in Mexico. At San Blas, on the coast, they lived for $2 a day and earned their fish dinners helping fishermen.

"At San Blas we were free from tensions and had no desire for material things. It was an experience free from prejudice. But it had to end when I received my 'greetings' from the President."

"I had become interested in working for an advertising agency while I was in the Army," Vincent recalled, "and in the course of looking for a job doing commercials, I met Dick Clayton, the artist's agent who handled James Dean, Jane Fonda and Burt Reynolds. He suggested that I might be good at acting in feature films. And so I was sent back to Mexico to make my first film, "Los Banditos," with Robert Conrad.

"Then came a contract with Universal, and a half-year at Universal's acting school on the lot. My first film there was "Journey to Shiloh."

"But I decided the Jan with a hyphen after it looked a lot more like an actor's name—although I didn't use it until after I made "Tribes" and was beginning to get proud of my profession."

Jan and his wife Bonnie like to grow things and their home is in Topanga Canyon, close to the Pacific Ocean. When they go on a vacation they make tracks for Mexico, also near the sea. While the actor is not a great athlete in real life, as he is in the film, he is an expert swimmer and surfer.

Sunburn reactions can range from a mild skin redness to serious illness.

WAREHOUSE POWER.

You've either got it,
or you don't.
We've got it.
Tons of it. Warehouse power. Inventory power.
Each of the 10,000 brand name items you see displayed in our showrooms is stocked by the hundreds in our vast, on premise warehouse. Which means we're almost never out of stock.
You can have what you want right now.
No waiting around while somebody hunts for something "tucked away someplace or maybe it's out back somewhere."
And that's just for openers.
What else?
Speed. Speed power.
You can pick up your merchandise on the spot in less than six minutes. We're automated. computerized and ready for action.
And what else?
There's more. Dollar power.
More for your dollar, lots more. You save up to 50% below average retail price on over 10,000 brand name items 365 days a year.
Brand names? Companies you know.
In jewelry, for example, names like Waltham, Ronson, Harry Winston and Lucien Piccard. In photography: Kodak, Bell & Howell, Polaroid. In sound: GE, Panasonic, Hitachi.
In luggage: Skyway, Samsonite, American Tourister.
Sporting goods by Rawlings, Spalding, Wilson. To mention just a few.
We could go on and on, but the proof is in the pudding.
And the only way you'll ever believe it, is to come right on in to one of our Best Buy Catalog Showrooms. . . Where you can look around unhounded by high-pressure salesmen, compare prices, ask questions, think about what you're buying.
When you're ready, just fill out your order and bring it to the sales desk.
Warehouse power takes it from there.
And it pays off here.
Best Buy Catalog Showrooms. Where you save the difference.
And then some.

Newton High Girl Gymnasts Win State Title; Sensational Junior Margie Magraw Steals Show

There is one high school girls' gymnastics team which stands out above all others in Massachusetts. There is also one female gymnast who is the best in her sport at the high school level in this state. Both of these exist at Newton High School.

The State Team Meet was held at Concord-Carlisle High School on Friday, March 9. Newton High was there to defend their 1972 State Championship and to represent the Suburban League in this year's competition. The city of Newton was further represented by Newton South High School's presence at the Meet. The other ten teams vieing for the State Crown were Auburn, Braintree, Framingham North, Lexington, Minnechaug Regional, North Reading, Wakefield, West Springfield, Weymouth South, and Lincoln-Sudbury. Three girls from each school would compete in each of the four events: floor exercise, vaulting, balance beam, and uneven parallel bars. The total of each team's twelve scores would determine the winner.

MAGRAW STEALS SHOW

Framingham North High School was the scene for the State Individual Meet the following day. Over 131 students competed in the Meet for medals awarded to the first three finishers in the four events and the best all-around scores. Newton's junior co-captain Margie Magraw stole the show. She placed first on the balance beam, uneven parallel bars, and floor exercise. Her all-around score of 31.6 was two and a half points better than the second place finisher. Another Newton gymnast, Julie Myers, finished second in two events, and sixth all-around. Other Tiger gymnasts who were invited to the Individuals, but did not place were Jenny Barber, Gail Whoriskey, and Ann Hurwitz.

The Team Meet could also have been called "The Margie Magraw Show." "She electrified the crowd," said NHS coach Mrs. Joanne Randall. Newton High School won the Meet by less than half a point over Braintree. "It was altogether a team thing," said Mrs. Randall. "All the girls did real well. There was also great support from the crowd. We had more support than any other team. It had a great deal to do with our winning."

MAGRAW AGAIN

During the team competition four events were going on at the same time. When Margie Magraw was performing the whole crowd's attention focused on her. When she only received a 7.5 for her uneven parallel bars performance the whole gymnasium sighed. When she fell off the balance beam the whole room gasped. After she had leaped and tumbled her way through a heart-stopping floor exercise she received a standing ovation. "It's such a great thrill," she said, "to do something you're not expected to do. I can't believe we won. It's something I'll always remember."

Jenny Barber, Julie Myers, Co-captain Joanne Green, Gail Blauer, Gail Whoriskey, Mary Pendergast, Ann Hurwitz, and Margie Magraw made up the team which won the State Championship. "I also think Nancy Brunswick deserves a lot of recognition for the fine job she did in competition during the season, and helping me during the Meets," added Mrs. Randall.

Joanne Green and Nancy Brunswick are the only seniors on the team. "We'll definitely be in contention next year," said Mrs. Randall, "whether it be in our league or in the state. I'm looking forward to another successful season."

Rec. Department Notes

A Softball Clinic for women and girls will be held at the Hawthorn Playground Field House on Wednesday, March 21st, from 7:00 to 9:00 p.m. According to Recreation Supervisor Fran Towle the Clinic, for gals, 18 and over, will be conducted by Mr. Hank Henry on March 21, 28 and April 4 and 11.

All Newton women and girls over 18 who wish to attend should bring a glove and softball.

The Newton Swim Team completes the Winter Season on March 15th with a splash party for team members and their parents at the Brighton YMCA Pool.

Miss Towle, who directs the team, announces that the outdoor season will begin when the Gath Memorial Pool at the Albemarle Playground opens the first part of June.

American Basketball League Director William J. Barry reports that the A Division Playoffs are now in the semi-finals.

In the first game the pennant winning Silver Lake Electronics pulled out a last second 69 to 68 win over Centre Pizza and in the second game George's Cafe downed the Waban Wonders, last year's champs, 81 to 48.

The finals will be held the week of March 19 at Warren Junior High Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday nights beginning at 7:00.

The B Division of the American League is in its final week of regular season play and the Newton Boys' Club is still out in front with a 9 and 1 record. Oakley Spa has moved up to second spot with a record of 9 and 2 while the Bucks and Stumblebums are tied for third with 8 wins and two losses each. The Lovemen dropped two games last week and now stand at 7 and 4.

The playoffs will be held at Bigelow Junior High beginning the week of March 19. Games will be held Mondays, Tuesday and Wednesdays at 7:00 and 8:00.

Saturday night recreation opportunities for young people in West Newton are being well received according to Mr. Barry. Last Saturday night the Coffee House at the First Unitarian Church drew 180 teenagers while the gym program at the Warren Junior High School attracted another 60 boys and girls.

Bill Barry announces that a Softball organizational meeting will be held at the Recreation Department Headquarters, 70 Crescent st., Auburndale, Tuesday, March 20 at 7:00 p.m. Barry will conduct the meeting, the initial activity in the coming Softball season.

Another indication of Spring is Bill's announcement that plans for another season of Mini-Biking are being made by the Course Director, Paul Patriacca and the Safety Officer, Detective Bob Braceland of the Newton Police Department.

Weather permitting it is hoped to open the three-track facility off Winchester Street in Newton Highlands, early in April.

Newton residents with Mini-Bikes may use the facilities on Saturday afternoons and may register at the track. The registration fee for each bike is $5 and each operator must also pay an operator's fee of $1.00. These fees entitle riders the use of the track for the entire season from April to November.

Recreation Supervisor Robert E. Doherty reports the Pony League Playoffs are being held this week at Warren Junior High School, Tuesday and Thursday nights, and Friday night if necessary. Game time 7:00 p.m.

In play on March 6 the Boys' Club won over Hawthorn and Warren topped Sacred Heart. Subsequently, Boys' Club defeated Hawthorn for their second win and Sacred Heart won to tie at one win apiece with Warren.

Final standings in the Pony Basketball League regular season plan are: Newton Boys Club, 9-1; Warren, 7-3; Sacred Heart, 6-4; Hawthorn, 5-5; Newton Centre, 3-7; and the Beginnings, 0-10.

In the National League Austin Moore, League Director, reports the Hawthorn Lakers defeated the Brewers for the League championship. The Lakers won the first game over the Brewers, 56-42.

Austin also reports that the Bicycle Program held its first meeting of the year at Newton South High School and will get underway as soon as weather permits.

He says that the Planning Department has laid out the bicycle riding routes and they will all be tested before the season begins.

DeNucci Loses In France

Joe DeNucci put out a game, but futile effort after being staggered in the fifth round of his scheduled 10-round bout with French middleweight Jean-Claude Bouttier, and suffered his third consecutive boxing defeat in Lyons, France.

Newtonite DeNucci, who weighed in at 164 pounds, lost on a technical knockout in the ninth round after Bouttier, who fought at 159¾, had completely closed DeNucci's left eye with punches.

The 34-year-old court officer in the Massachusetts Legislature, was frequently warned for hitting low and had to abandon his fight plan of going after Bouttier with body punches.

The spectre of Bouttier's last major fight, with former middleweight titlist Emile Griffith, hung over DeNucci. Griffith had been disqualified in that fight for hitting low in the seventh round.

DeNucci, who returned to the ring after a lengthy retirement, was beaten by Griffith twice this fall in Boston.

During his comeback he won nine consecutive bouts, but now, after facing the top two contenders, he does not appear to have a legitimate shot at the world crown, worn by Carlos Monzon of Argentina, and reports indicate that DeNucci may retire for good.

HIGH SCORING

MILWAUKEE (UPI) — Not many spectators at the Green Bay-Detroit NFL clash here in 1945 left their seats early in the second quarter to avoid the halftime concession stand crush. There was too much action. The two teams ripped off a total of 41 points in the second period of the game, finally won by the Packers, 57-21.

Private School Sports

It wasn't very long ago that the St. Sebastian's basketball team was cruising along with a 14-3 record, looking a trifle invincible and certainly powerful enough to hang onto first place in the Private School League's Southern Division and win a place in the State Private School tournament.

What happened is what the team must be contemplating about now. The Arrows came totally unglued, fell out of first place in the league, made the tourney by the skin of their teeth, and then got beaten in the opening round. The final result was a 15-8 mark - six losses over the last seven games.

In a concise, all-knowing sentence, what happened is that St. Sebastian's, never an explosive offensive team, just couldn't pull out its last games with the exceptional defense it played all year. The defense stayed strong, but the offense got worse.

The season hit one of its low points in the final regular season game against St. Paul's of Concord, New Hampshire. Needing a victory to be assured of a tourney berth, the Arrows came out shooting like they had their eyes blindfolded and scored two points in the first quarter. After a surge in the second stanza of 13 points, the Arrows continued their month-long cold streak and were bombed, 60-34. Center Phil Coleman's eight points was tops for the losers.

Despite the loss the team qualified for the tournament, chiefly on the strength of its 10-3 league mark, a mark which read 10-0 only a short time earlier.

The tournament didn't turn out to be much of a thrill. St. Mark's, the champion of the Private School League's Northern Division, pummeled the Arrows, 68-30.

Cold streaks were again the Arrows' undoing. With the score 18-13, St. Mark's, St. Sebastian's retired from the game of offense and watched as St. Mark's sank 21 straight points to blow the game open. Later, the victors put together a run of 15 straight markers.

St. Mark's 6-8 center, Lee Grundberg fired in 18 points and grabbed 12 rebounds to pace the winners and Coleman tallied nine points to lead the Arrows. It was the Arrows' lowest total of the year offensively.

Well, there's plenty of time to wonder what went wrong.

The Arrow picksters closed out their season in similar style, falling 10-4 to St. George's.

It was 4-3 after two periods, but St. George's went wild in the third period, blasting six goals, including four in a row after St. Sebastian's pulled back to 6-4.

Greg Hamand put the Arrows on the board first after being set up by Kevin White and Dave Gately at 3:52 of the first period and Bill Eagan made it 2-1 St. Sebastian's later before St. George's took command. Mark Canavan and Mike LeDoux assisted on Eagan's score.

LeDoux, from Bob Devaney and Steve Maskell, notched the only Arrow goal in the second period, and Maskell, from Jim White, tallied in the third period.

St. Sebastian's finished its season with an 8-15-2 record.

Steve Maskell, the club's leading point-getter with 20 goals and 18 assists, was elected as captain of next year's contingent.

Sophomore Devaney was runner-up in team scoring with 16 goals and 20 assists. He was followed by Gately, six goals, 14 assists for 20 points, and Eagan, seven goals, 13 assists, also for 20 points.

Our Lady's of Newton, which finished its regular season by capturing 12 of its last 15 games for a 12-8 record, was upended, 58-56, by Rockport, in the first round of the Class D Bay State Tournament.

Rockport led after one quarter, 16-12, and after three periods, 49-48, after Our Lady's inched back to a 32-32 halftime score.

Our Lady's had a chance to pull the contest out in the final six seconds when it got the ball trailing by one point. However, a Lancer pass went awry and Rockport took over.

Gary Bearfield and Joe Welch were the Lancers' high point men with 15 points each and Peter Sullivan chipped in with 10 points.

Rockport's Bill Elwell took game honors with 24 points.

South Wrestling Roundup

It's kind of hard to believe that this year's Newton South wrestling team which went 10-3-2, had the school's worst record in about 200 years in the sport.

For once, when coach Aredis Kojoyian said that he didn't know what to expect this year because he had so many green troops, it was okay to believe him. The Lions were just not as strong as they have been in recent years.

Being not as strong as recently, though, is no disgrace. There are just a lot of spoiled fans. It was clear that the Lions did not enjoy the depth they had in the past few years and although the squad scored well in the Eastern Sectionals, it was not really a threat for the title.

Teamwise, the team lost to Milford, and Stoughton in close matches and were beaten pretty throughly by Wayland (as usual). Two of the surprises were ties, both 27-27 with Brookline, a Suburban League power this year, and Ashland, always a good team.

The most satisfying dual match victory came over Newton High in a revenge match. South crushed the Tigers, 36-16, after being upset for one of its two losses the year before.

South's strengths were spread around pretty well. Paul Linn, who wrestled at 100 pounds 13 times and at 107 once, was unbeaten. Mike Shockett, who started poorly, came on strong to finish 9-5-1 at 107 and 114.

Sophomore Pete Nathanson, who manned the 128 - pound category by his lonesome all year, finished 9-6.

Rich Hyman tore through the season undefeated up until the season's final match when he was topped. He finished 12-1.

Dave Berkowitz, who earned a third place in the states as a junior and improved to second this year, completed his season with a 12-3 mark. He wrestled at 147.

Mike McDonald, a hard - nosed senior who wrestled at 167 pounds, compiled a 13-1 record.

And finally, heavyweight John Staulo came through continuous for the Lions this year. Staulo zipped through the dual matches with a 15-0 mark, won the Sectionals, and placed second in the state.

South's overall weight class marks were as follows: 100 pounds: 15-0. 107 pounds: 10-4-1. 114 pounds: 4-11. 121 pounds: 1-14. 128 pounds: 9-6. 134 pounds: 12-2-1. 140 pounds: 6-9. 147 pounds: 12-3. 157 pounds: 6-7-2. 167 pounds: 13-2. 177 pounds: 10-5. 187 pounds: 5-9-1. Heavyweight: 15-0.

Newton South Hockey Resume

By LEWIS H. FREEDMAN
Asst. Sports Editor

Like last year, this was not a very good year for the Newton South High hockey team. Unfortunately, it seems that the pattern will continue next year.

"It's going to be a few years until we reap the benefits of the new hockey rinks being built in Newton," said coach Neil McPhee. "You can't blame the players. It's not their fault. They just don't have the opportunity to skate. But we're going to continue having troubles with the schools in the cities which have extensive pee wee participation and places with more rinks."

That's not a cheery outlook, and McPhee, by his own admission, is basically an optimistic person. "I'm always optimistic when the season starts," he said. "If the kids hustle and play their position we can knock off some of those bigger schools." Fair enough.

So much for generalization about the next few years. This year's edition of the Lion picksters compiled a record of 4-10-2. It was a trifle worse than 1971-72 team's 4-8-2 record.

"Overall," said McPhee, "it was slightly better from what I expected from the start of the season. After six or seven games, though, I thought we would be better than what we did over the second half of the season. We didn't win games we should have. Just looking over the roster at the start, I didn't think we's win four games."

The Lions topped Westwood, Maynard, and Weston twice this year, and earned ties versus Westwood and Bedford.

Senior Jimmy Caruso was the backbone of the defense in goal and played in about 75 percent of the available playing time. His sometime replacement was sophomore Dave Satter, a player McPhee is very high on.

"I feel that Dave Satter could be one of the better goalies in high school hockey," noted McPhee. "He's got the potential to be excellent. He's got everything a good goalie needs. He just needs more playing time."

The defense corps was solid at times, but had trouble coping with some of the league's stronger teams. Captain Steve Owens, however, didn't have any troubles. He was the mainstay of the blue line crew and spent as much time on the ice as Bobby Orr does with the Bruins. His loss will hurt.

Even with the loss of Owens, though, McPhee feels that defense will be one of his club's stronger suits next year.

"Joe Donlan and Mark Cooper are coming back," he said, "and they gained a lot of experience this year. Donlon has the most ability on the team. He's not a big kid, but nobody in the league is any rougher. He's aggressive and he looks for the contact. He's excellent in the corners.

"Cooper," he continues, "is the opposite. He's more conservative. He uses his head more than his body. He improved tremendously this year. He only played occasionally at the start, but by the halfway mark he was taking a regular shift. He looks like he's going to be a real good defenseman."

This year and every year since the school's only tourney team in 1967-68, the Lions have had trouble putting the puck in the net.

The team collected just 25 goals in 16 games this year, and average of only 1.5 per contest. And unless a team's goalie is notching shutout after shutout that's not going to be enough goals to win in any league.

Again, McPhee is faced with the same problem he has met the last few years. A few top players graduate each year and younger players have to be worked into the lineup slowly. The players, because of their lack of early experience just don't develop, in many cases, until they are seniors.

Next winter McPhee will be counting on Steve Tresca and Paul Tormey, two players who saw spot action as starters, Ken Bianco, a regular, plus Brian Cain and Jimmy Hart, who played very sporadically, to spearhead his offense. Clearly, the experience is lacking.

McPhee is also high on twin brothers Ken and Bob Schmidlein, who played up front for the jayvees this year. "They did a good job on the jayvees," said McPhee. "They'll be the two players to help us the most from them.

"It looks like it will be the same picture next year as this year. It'll be a question of replacing people. We'll still be short of depth," concluded McPhee.

So, chalk up another year, and hope for a super crop from the junior highs to help out South hockey next year.

Newton Nurses Join Staff Of Middlesex County Hospital

David Nawrocki, 40 Newtonville avenue, and Victoria Makrides, 17 Prince street, have joined the nursing department staff at Middlesex County Hospital, Waltham.

Middlesex is a multi-level community oriented hospital with specialty units for rehabilitation and chronic care, alcohol detoxification and rehabilitiation, a half-way house for former drug users and a residence for young adults with spinal cord injuries attending college or working in the community.

The hospital's volunteer department is seeking individuals who would like to befriend a particular patient and visit with him for an hour or so a week, or groups interested in giving teas or providing musical entertainment for those hospitalized.

Service Centers Start Membership Drive

The Newton Community Service Centers, Inc., Sustaining Membership Drive is now underway.

Heading the drive this year is Mrs. John Taplin of 15 Sewall St. in West Newton, assisted by Mrs. Edward Landy of 67 Wyman St. in West Newton, and members of the Board of Directors.

This year, the agency has set a goal of $10,000 to help defray the costs of its program. The funds raised are generally utilized to help meet scholarship expense, program materials, and a wide variety of needs necessitated in the operation of the Newton Community Service Centers, Inc.

In 1972, 3,066 persons availed themselves to this agency's program services and over 3,000 utilized the facilities. Activities for all ages are conducted by the agency in addition to administering: Nursery School, Headstart, Day Care, Job Bank, Adolescent Project, Youth Center Project, RSVP, Senior Citizens Drop-In Program, and summer camp activity.

Last year over 250 individuals responded to the agency's plea for support. Hopefully, the number will be increased with the current drive to assist with the increased needs of the agency. For additional information on the drive and activities of the agency, please contact Mrs. Taplin or Mrs. Landy at 969-5906.

Little League Begins With Sign-Up Night

Newton Central Little League announces that registration night for the coming season will be held on Thursday, Mar. 15, at 7:30 p.m. at the Peirce School.

Each boy, on registration night, must present a birth certificate (or photocopy) to be kept on file by the league. Boys who registered last year and have already submitted a birth certificate need not present one at this time.

A contribution of $15 per child and $25 maximum per family is required. This donation is tax deductible for federal income tax purposes.

Each boy must be accompanied by a parent. Registration blanks will be distributed to elementary and junior high schools within the N.C.L.L. boundary. Any boy who will attain the age of 9 years before Aug. 1, and who will not attain the age of 13 years before Aug. 1, will be eligible to try out.

Tryout dates have been set for 1 p.m. on each of the following dates: Mar. 24, 12-year-olds; Mar. 25, 11-year-olds; Mar. 31, 10-year-olds; Apr. 1, 9-year-olds. Only those boys, who for a ligitimate reason, cannot try out on the date designated for their particular age group will be allowed to try out on any of the other dates listed above.

All boys who wish to play this spring, including boys who are already team members, must register.

Ecology Film Depicts Community In Action

A new film has recently been released depicting the positive actions taken by four communities in their attempts to come to grips with the environmental effects of road salting operations.

"A Tale of Four Towns-Community Action For The Environment is a 10-minute color film that examines the salting issue as it affected the Massachusetts communities of Burlington, Winchester, Concord and Needham.

In each town, local study groups were formed. These committees examined all aspects of salting and its environmental impact. The Salt Institute, (producers), said the film will show other communities how throughtful study can lead to improvements in local salting programs.

"A Tale of Four Towns" features the people who took part in the salting studies: a League of Women Voters' president; a police chief; a public works director; a newspaper editor and selectman.

The film is available for civic groups, town meetings, conservation commissions, voters' organizations and other groups interested in environmental matters.

The film is sponsored by the Salt Institute and is available for free loan from Modern Talking Picture Service Inc., 230 Boylston St., Chestnut Hill, Massachusetts 02167.

A HEALING CHURCH SERVICE.

Going to church can do more than comfort you.

Church can be an energizing, healing experience in which fear and sin begin to fade, and new views of God and man appear.

At our services, your love of the Bible grows. Your understanding of God increases. And often, as a result, mental and physical problems are permanently healed.

A Christian Science church service is more than uplifting – it's healing.

Won't you come soon?

Minorities Succeed Through Newton Student's Initiative

I've always dreamed of becoming a nurse, but never thought I would have a chance," declared a Spanish-speaking pupil at the Cambridge High and Latin School. "Now, this program has made me believe I might make it."

The program she referred to is designed to help Spanish-speaking girl students in Cambridge High and Latin who otherwise could not afford a college education. It was originated and set into motion by 18-year-old Jane Roy of 36 Fairmont Avenue, Newton.

Jane, in cooperation with school officials and such major Boston firms as Prudential Life Insurance, Boston Edison, Peter Bent Brigham Hospital and the New England Merchants National Bank, has given these girls an opportunity to see first-hand the workings of Boston-based businesses.

Each week a representative from a participating firm visits Cambridge High and Latin and conducts a seminar on his or her particular firm. On other days,

Jane Roy

Jane and her group visit a different company in Boston.

The girls are given a thorough tour and are told of the educational and employment benefits available to the employees of each firm.

On her own, Jane convinced several presidents, vice presidents, and personnel managers of firms that her program could greatly aid young members of minority groups. "It was really wonderful meeting with people in business," said Jane, who added, "they have really listened and have helped in every way."

Besides initiating this program, Jane has also found jobs for minority group members in different businesses and hospitals. She feels these jobs will eventually offer their holders a chance at higher education.

Jane is excited about the fact that Prudential Insurance Company is offering her group practice job interviews during March and April at the Prudential Tower in Boston. She considers this phase of the program of prime importance.

"All the girls need is a little practice," she stated. "they do an excellent job and just need a little confidence."

Jane is an outstanding high school senior at the Windsor School in Boston. Despite the demands of a full school program, she has met repeatedly with business and school officials to keep her program running smoothly, even receiving an "A" recently in an advanced college placement course.

Cambridge High and Latin is even adopting Jane's program as a full time part of its curriculum for minority students next fall.

State Solons Attend Lobbyist Open House

Legislators from all over the Commonwealth will attend the annual legislative open house on Mar. 20 at Doric Hall in the State House from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m., sponsored by the Massachusetts Association for Retarded Citizens (GBARC), Presidents Charlotte Aladjem of Lexington (MARC) and Morris Gordon II of Brighton (GBARC), announced recently.

Representatives from MARC's 29 local associations, including GBARC, will meet with their representatives to discuss key legislation which will benefit retarded citizens. Also participating in this year's open house will be members of the Youth Massachusetts Association for Retarded Citizens, a statewide group of young people working to benefit the retarded citizens in Massachusetts, and sponsored by MARC. A multi-media exhibit is planned.

Along with state senators and representatives, the invitation list also includes other such distinguished officials as Governor Francis Sargent, Lieutenant Governor Donald R. Dwight, Secretary of the Commonwealth John F. X. Davoren, and Attorney General Robert H. Quinn.

MARC is a statewide, private, non-profit organization with 29 local affiliates serving as advocates for all retarded citizens in the Commonwealth.

A symposium will be held on "Effects of Chronic Diseases in Adolescents and Young Adults", dealing with challenges and problems faced by older patients living with life-threatening disorders.

Principal Of South High To Resign

Newton South High School Principal William D. Geer Jr. officially notified the Newton School Committee of his intention to resign from his position in a letter read to committee members by the superintendent of schools at a meeting last Monday evening.

Geer informed the committee he had accepted a position in Chicago as principal of the Francis W. Parker School, an institution encompassing a totally integrated educational system from kindergarten to the twelfth grade.

He has been principal of Newton South High School since 1965 during a time Superintendent of Schools Aaron Fink labeled "the most difficult in American secondary education," while commending the departing principal for his dedication to the youth of Newton.

While at Newton, Geer was chairman of the Education Policy Committee of the Massachusetts Education Commission, a selectman on the Braitmayer Committee, a private educational organization, and a member of the Massachusetts Principals Association and the National Association of Secondary School Principals.

He also served on the Governor's Council for Vocational Education.

Geer, his wife, Martha, and their four daughters have resided at 20 Berkshire Rd., Newton.

When the Program of Work is accepted by the Board of Directors, it will then become Chamber policy and be published. Copies will be made available to all Chamber members and others on request.

Real Estate HAPPENINGS

BY JACK SOHMER

Keep your house in tip top condition by putting it on a time schedule. Every four years, the experts tell us, interior walls should be painted, the outside painted, and lawns improved or replanted. Every five years some attention should be given to hot water heater, lawns, and plantings, plumbing, roof and drains. Every six years attention should be given to the heating unit. But even with all this work, the joys of owning one's own home make it all worthwhile. There is no better privacy or security anywhere!

Switchboard Action Slated For Later Date

Aldermen have decided to hold off final action on a School Committee request for moving the administration switchboard until further possibilities are considered.

Finance Committee Chairman Ald. Sidney T. Small reported to the Board of Aldermen Monday possibilities of combining the school switchboard with the city switchboard are being discussed.

The School Administration has requested an appropriation of about $6,000 to move the switchboard to the old F. A. Day Junior High School, destined to become its new headquarters in the fall.

The request was originally denied by the Finance Committee and approved by the Public Buildings Committee.

Famous Temple

Satl Lake City — The great Mormon temple in Salt Lake City required 40 years to build. It was started in 1853 and completed in 1893 at a cost of $4 million.

COLEMAN L. BORNSTEIN was recently reappointed to the Massachusetts Group Insurance Commission of which he is Chairman by Governor Francis W. Sargent. This is Mr. Bornstein's sixth, three-year appointment to the unpaid commission which supervises the state employees' health and accident and life insurance. Attorney Bornstein lives in Newton with his wife, Eleanor, and two children.

Doctor Wins Award Of Overseas Study

William Upjohn Shipley, M.D., has been awarded a Moseley Traveling Fellowship for 1973-1974 by the Committee on Fellowships in the Harvard University Medical School to pursue his studies in radiation therapy and his research in tumor cell kinetics, abroad.

A member of the school's class of 1966, Dr. Shipley will begin work on July 1, with Dr. M. J. Peckham, Department of Radiation Therapy, Royal Marsen Hospital, Sutton, London, England.

He plans to divide his efforts between the hospital's clinical radiotherapy services and a project in solid tumor cell kinetics in Dr. L.F. Lamerton's department at the adjoining Institute of Cancer Research.

A bequest in 1912 by Julia M. Moseley makes possible the grants to deserving graduates of the Harvard Medical School for the purpose of broadening their knowledge and experience in distinguished scientific centers in other parts of the world.

Among the many prominent medical personalities who have received the Moseley Fellowship in the past are Dr. Paul Dudley White, Dr. Sidney Farber, and the late Dr. Edward D. Churchill and Dr. Samuel A. Levine.

Dr. and Mrs. Shipley live in West Newton and are the parents of three children.

New Service For Lost Pets

A new broadcast service airmed at helping lost pets find their way home again has been inaugurated locally by the Animal Rescue League of Boston and radio station WCOP(1150AM).

PET PATROL," a nationwide network of radio stations broadcasting lost and found pet information, will be aired daily on WCOP between 6 to 7 a.m., 1 to 2 p.m., and 6 to 7 p.m.

To have an announcement broadcast, anyone who has lost or found a pet should call the Animal Rescue League at 426-9170.

In announcing this new service for pet-owners, Dr. Carlton E. Buttrick, president of the A.R.L. of Boston, noted that "thousands of pet dogs and cats are lost in the Greater Boston area each year. Pet Patrol is one way to increase the percentage of those returned to their homes, but we urge owners to do their part by making sure their animals are licensed."

"Pet Patrol" is sponsored nationally by the American Humane Association, of which the Animal Rescue League is an affiliate.

Several Students Make Who's Who

Six Newton Junior College students have been nominated and approved for inclusion in Who's Who Among Students in American Junior Colleges.

This is the eighth year Newton Junior College students have been selected for this honor on the basis of their high academic record and their outstanding contributions to the college.

The students are Ernest Howard Roberts, Craig Winston Sweet, and Denise Ann Taplin of Newton, as well as Rose Marie Mason, Janice Louise Brooks, and William Irvin Bankert.

Roberts has contributed to the welfare of the college by tutoring students in Mathematics and by special tutoring to foreign students. He has also assisted in publications.. A veteran of the armed services, he is a graduate of Newton High School.

Sweet, a graduate of Newton High School and a veteran of the armed services, has contributed much of his time and effort to the college. He has volunteered in the organization and administration of the Keller Plan in the social science program at the college, has assisted at the computer center, and has demonstrated leadership in students activities.

Denise Taplin, a student in the nursing program, has assisted in the Newton Junior College Players production and has shown initiative and leadership in student activities.

Miss Mason has assisted in fund-raising projects, admissions, publication of the student newspaper and college hospitality. She has also volunteered as a tutor for foreign students and has demonstrated high standards of citizenship in numerous student and faculty-student activities.

Mr. Bankert, Chief Warrant Officer in the U.S. Army, is being sent to Newton Junior College by the Army. He has volunteered his time to the college library and has tutored students in business subjects.

Certificates of membership in who's Who Among Students in American Junior Colleges will be distribute to these students at the college Awards Day Convocation to be held in the spring.

Scouts Plan Bruins Nite

The second annual evening with the Boston Bruins will be presented by the Explorer Division of Norumbega Council, Boy Scouts of America, on Wednesday, Mar. 21 at 7:30 p.m. at the West Suburban Skating Arena in Natick.

The Bruins in attendance will be star defenseman Don Awrey, hustling Don Marcotte and rookie Fred O'Donnell. The Bruins will be up against 10 high school all-stars from Newton, Wellesley, Weston and Natick.

The master of ceremonies for the evening will be Fred Cusick, T.V. 38's famous "Voice of the Boston Bruins."

Tickets are now on sale at the West Suburban Skating Arena in Natick and at Norumbega Council Service Center, 2044 Beacon St, Waban, telephone 332-2220. Ticket Cost is $2.

Due to the huge success of last year's Bruins Nite, tickets are expected to sell quickly, so don't delay.

Coffee Day Set For Handicapped

Chief William F. Quinn of the Newton Police Department will be chairman of Coffee Day for Crippled children and their Easter Seal appeal in Newton.

Coffee Day to be held Thursday, Apr. 19 throughout Massachusetts is an annual event of the Easter Seal Society. It is a two-week project that starts on Thursday, Apr. 5. On that day small red buttons will go on sale in restaurants, coffee shops and snack bars to benefit physically handicapped childlren served by Easter Seals.

Buttons are sold for $1 and on Thursday, Apr. 19, persons having a button may drink free coffee in any of the participating establishments.

The Massachusetts Restaurant and the Massachusetts Hotel-Motel Associations endorse the event.

Proceeds of Coffee Day will go toward the Easter Seal Society's on-going programs of direct therapy services; recreation and camping for the disabled of all ages, and projects to secure improved housing, better transportation and greater educational opportunities for the physically handicapped regardless of the cause of crippling.

Five Aid Tufts Dental Alumni

Tufts University School of Dental Medicine (TUSDM) will sponsor an All-Alumni Reunion in Boston Apr. 3.

The dinner-dance at the Copley Plaza Hotel will occur on the eve of the TUSDM Alumni Association Annual Meeting on Apr. 4, and in conjunction with the dedication of the school's new dental health sciences building.

Dr. Joseph G. DiStasio of Melrose, a 1946 graduate of TUSDM and an associate clinical professor in orthodontics, is the General Reunion Chairman.

Aiding Dr. DiStasio are Dr. Harry Biederman, 22 West Boulveard Rd., Newton Center, for the Class of 1938; Dr. Thomas J. Ford, 37 Chase Avenue, West Newton, for the Class of 1943; Dr. Leonard A. Cushner, 4 Lyman St., Newton Center, Dr. Saul M. Hirshberg, 54 Clements Rd., Newton, and Dr. Henry E. Snell, 187 Sargent St., Newton, for the class of 1948.

Casualty-

Kevarian said Tuesday no communications had been received from Needham on the switch.

He explained the addition was necessary because, by law, each district must contain approximately the same number of people, 23,000 per district in Newton's case. The only other alternative was to cut Newton back to three districts, Keverian said.

Rep. Harrington said Tuesday it was the northern portion of Newton, the 12th Middlesex District, that was originally short of people. He said an addition had to be made and the representatives suggested it come from Newton rather than from Waltham of Watertown.

He and Guzzi, he said, recommended keeping the 12th Middlesex District intact and adding two precincts from Auburndale.

"The proper thing to do in this situation is to try and keep the entire City of Newton represented by Newton people."

Under the proposal these districts will be formed:

Guzzi: Precincts two and four of Ward 2, Ward 3, and precincts one and four of Ward 4.

Harrington: Ward 1, precincts one and three of Ward 2, precincts two and three of Ward 7.

Pines: Precinct three of Ward 4, precinct three in Ward 5, precincts one and four in Ward 6, precincts one and four in Ward 7, precincts one and two in Ward 8.

Mofenson: Precinct two in Ward 4, precincts one, two and four in Ward 5, precincts two and three in Ward 6, precincts three and four in Ward 8, precinct H in Needham.

DAVID R. BUCKLEY of Needham was recently appointed Innkeeper of the Holiday Inn of Newton. Prior to assuming management of the 200 room facility, Buckley served as Innkeeper of the Holiday Inn of Framingham. He graduated from Needham High School and received his B.A. from Hartwick College, Oneonta, N.Y. An active member of the Massachusetts Hotel-Motel Association, he was recently appointed to the membership committee of that group.

Harvard Appoints Goldman

The appointment, by the President and Fellows of Harvard University, of Peter Goldman, M.D., as Professor of Clinical Pharmacology for the Longwood Medical Area, was announced recently by Robert H. Ebert, M. D., Dean of the Faculty of Medicine.

Dr. Goldman's unit, which is located at the Beth Israel Hospital, serves the Children's Hospital Medical Center, Peter Bent Brigham Hospital, Boston Hospital for Women and the Robert B. Brigham Hospital.

A dedicated clinician who combines the disciplines of enzymology, microbiology and organic chemistry in the studies of pharmacologic problems in man, Dr Goldman joined the Faculty of Medicine at Harvard on July 1, 1972. Since 1963 he had been senior investigator, Arthritis and Rheumatism Branch, National Institutes of Health, Bethesda, Md.

Born in New York City on May 23, 1929, Dr. Goldman received the bachelor's degree in engineering physics from Cornell University in 1952. the M.A. degree in physics from Harvard in 1953, and the M. D. degree from Johns Hopkins University in 1957.

He is a member of Phi Beta Kappa and the medical honorary society, Alpha Omega Alpha. His internship and residency in medicine were served at the Presbyterian Hospital, New York. In 1967-1968, Dr. Goldman served as lecturer in the department of chemistry, Georgetown University.

Dr. Goldman, his wife, Margaret, and daughters Mary, 10, and Ruth, 12, reside in Newton Centre.

Across The Kitchen Counter

Ruth Lenson

You don't have to be Irish to enjoy St. Patrick's Day! Join the fun, if not with the wearin' of the green in honor of Ireland's beloved patron Saint, but with Irish cuisine.

It's true that on many holidays there is a nostalgic return of traditional foods which often call for old fashioned methods of preparation. This too is fun, however, there is no harm in taking favorites such as corned beef and cabbage, soda bread and stew and giving them today's touch with fresh new flavor.

For example, a corned brisket that simmers happily in zesty grapefruit juice . . . narrow wedges of cabbage flavored with onion and cooked crisp tender . . . warm crusty soda bread bursting with plump dark raisins and seasoned with fresh orange juice.

Corned beef brisket has long been a lure to the shrewd shopper . . . a relatively inexpensive cut of meat, when simmered with special seasonings the dish is quite memorable.

In purchasing, consider cost per serving rather than cost per pound for the best measure of value — figure about 6-8 servings from a 4-pounder.

"Cead mile failte", the Gaelic greeting for "a thousand welcomes" will be heard again and again this Saturday, March 17, when families gather to celebrate the joys of St. Patrick's Day.

CORNED BEEF IN GRAPEFRUIT JUICE

4 to 5 pounds corned brisket of beef
Water
6 cups grapefruit juice
2 large onions
12 whole cloves
8 peppercorns
1 celery rib with leaves, cut in thirds
1 bay leaf
1 tablespoon caraway seeds
1 green pepper, sliced
10 carrots, pared and halved
8 small white onions
4 large potatoes, pared and halved
1 cabbage (3 lb.) cut in quarters

Place corned beef in a heavy kettle. Add water to cover. Bring to a boil and cover tightly. Reduce heat and simmer for 1 hour. Pour off all water and add grapefruit juice plus water to cover, onion studded with cloves, peppercorns, celery, bay leaf, caraway seeds and green pepper. Bring to a boil, reduce heat and simmer covered for 2 hours. Add carrots, onions and potatoes; cook 30 minutes. Then add cabbage and cook 20 minutes longer. Serve meat with vegetables. (Note: Or, you could prepare cabbage in the following manner.

NEW STYLE CABBAGE

Remove outside tough leaves from cabbage and cut in wedges about 1½ inches wide at the outside. Trim off some of core. Soak the cabbage for 1 hour in water to cover, to which 2 tablespoons of sugar have been added. Place 2 or more tablespoons of butter in a large skillet with 1 small onion, thinly sliced. Saute the onion until tender but not brown. Drain the cabbage thoroughly and place in the skillet. Season with salt, pepper and a little nutmeg. Cover and cook over medium heat until cabbage begins to steam. Continue cooking over low heat, shaking the skillet from time to time. Cook about 25 minutes or until cabbage is crisp-tender and can be pierced with a fork.

ORANGE SODA BREAD

4 cups all purpose flour
1 teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon sugar
1 teaspoon baking soda
1 cup buttermilk
⅓ cup fresh orange juice
1 egg
1¼ cups raisins
2 tablespoons grated orange rind

Sift flour, salt, sugar and baking soda into a bowl. Make a hollow in the center and pour in buttermilk and orange juice. Mix well. Add egg, raisins, orange rind and beat until smooth (dough will be sticky). Turn dough out on well filloured board and knead lightly for about 3-5 minutes. Shape into a round loaf and cut an "X" across the top. Place in a well-greased 9-inch layer cake pan. Bake in 350 degree oven for 40 minutes or until cake tester inserted in center comes out clean. Serve warm or cooled with butter.

LAMB NOODLE DINNER

2 pounds boneless lamb shoulder cut in 1½ inch cubes
2 tablespoons shortening
2 teaspoons salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
¼ teaspoon basil
1 bay leaf
1 can (1 lb. 12 oz.) tomatoes
1 cup finely chopped onion
1 cup chopped celery
6 oz. uncooked medium noodles

Heat shortening in heavy skillet. Over low heat, brown lamb cubes slowly, pour off fat. Season meat with salt, pepper and basil. Add bay leaf, tomatoes, onion and celery. Cover tightly and simmer for 1 hour. Discard bay leaf. Add noodles; continue cooking 30 minutes, stirring occasionally, until meat is tender and noodles are done. Serves 6.

ST. PATRICK'S DAY SALAD

3 or 4 grapefruit (4 cups sections)
3 envelopes unflavored gelatine
½ cup sugar
1½ teaspoons salt
1½ cups cold water
6 tablespoons white vinegar
6 tablespoons lime juice
Green food coloring
1 cup shredded cabbage
1 cup chopped celery
½ cup chopped nuts
1 pkg. (3 oz) cream cheese
12 pecan halves

To section grapefruit, cut slice from top, then cut off peel in strips from top to bottom, cutting deep enough to remove white membrane, then cut slice from bottom. Or cut off peel round and round spiral fashion. Go over fruit again, removing any remaining white membrane. Cut along side of each dividing membrane from outside to middle of core. Remove section by section over bowl to retain juice from fruit. Drain sections; add additional grapefruit juice to make 2¼ cups; reserve. Mix gelatine, sugar, salt in saucepan; stir in cold water. Place over low heat and stir until gelatine is dissolved. Add 2¼ cups grapefruit juice, vinegar and lime juice. Add a few drops green food coloring. Pour 3 cups of this mixture into 15x10x1-inch jelly roll pan. Chill until firm. Place remaining gelatine mixture in refrigerator and chill until consistency of unbeaten egg white. Fold in grapefruit sections, cabbage, celery and chopped nuts. Pour into 12 muffin tins, 2 inches deep. Chill until firm. Remove pan of gelatine from refrigerator. Cut into 3-inch circles. Remove with spatula and place on individual salad plates to form base of hat. Remove gelatine from muffin tins; place on top of circle to form top hat. Decorate base with softened cream cheese to make band of hat (use pastry tube); use pecan half for buckle. Garnish with additional grapefruit sections if desired. Serve with mayonnaise. Yield: 12 individual salads.

A DELIGHTFUL SALAD for St. Patrick's Day — gala Irish hats that contain the crispy crunch of cabbage, Celery, nuts and the charm of a dozen leprechauns.

Fashionettes

3For spring, costume jewelrs is uncluttered, uncomplicated and casual. The Jewelry Industry Council says the new costume jewelry takes personality and poise to show it off.

Hair swinging shorter liberates ears and neck. Calling attention to ears are button earrings in paint-box colors. Also for the ears are beaded earrings that range down to the collarbone.

Bracelets of spring are grand clusters of bangles occupying the arm to the elbow—where the sleeve takes over.

The entire antique era in jewelry this spring appeals to the teen-age girl. And no wonder. She can find at least a hundred different versions of gold-filled lockets alone: plain and fancy, heart-shaped, encrusted with precious and semi-precious stones, initialed, polished, textured, any and every size from dainty to instantly impressive.

Teen-age girls go in for crosses — familiar, well-loved and different to be worn with anything, anywhere, says the Jewelry Industry Council. Lacy, delicate, importantly polished and textured, whether hanging from a chain or a neck-wire, gold filled crosses will be a girl's constant spring fashion accessory.

More than 30 per cent of the meat on a chicken is on the legs, or drumsticks plus thighs. The breast with ribs makes up the second meatiest portion, at 28.9 per cent.

Uncooked chicken can be stored safely at average freezer temperature for a year.

Whole frozen chickens that weight three pounds or less defrost in about 12 hours at refrigerator temperature. To thaw at room temperature, allow 2 to 3 hours per pound for whole chicken, or 1 ½ to 2 hours per pound for smaller parts.

Menswear For Spring '73

There's something very familiar about men's clothes this Spring, the trend will continue to be one of elegant and refined looks with a strong emphasis on "classic" styling (there goes that word again!).

Colors will be more subtle than strident with the quiet neutrals leading the way through the entire spectrum of grays — browns that encompass every shade from ecru to chocolate. Greens will be seen more in '73 than in past years, especially a rich bottle green.

Fabrics which will dominate are seersucker, ginghams, plaids, polyester blended with linen and silk, doubleknits in restrained plaids and colors. Watch for a return of gabardine and a continuation of the soft brushed fashions in cotton and denim.

Suits have a styling reminiscent of European tailoring — clean-lined, completely gimmick-free. Natural, unconstructed, the suit silhouette is single-breasted, wide lapelled — a two button model that is subtly shaped with a single or double-vented back and good style. All that jogging will pay off with the nipped waists and body skimming jackets. Some jackets will boast the deep slash of side or center vents.

Oscar de la Renta's designer collection for After Six inclines towards the classics, elegantly revisited. Sportcoat standouts for Spring include a lush pearl-gray imported wool sport jacket with a dashing red-and-navy line plaid, and matching gray slacks, plus a handsome wool crepe sportcoat in classic navy that boasts a striking caramel-and-cream windowpane design and is worn with navy slacks.

Once men enjoy the ease of wearing knits, they turn to knits again and again. Today's knit suits and sportcoats are spectacular because of their interesting woven designs, such as a nautical knit blazer in navy polyester with white stitching worn with white knit slacks top stitched in navy.

Another important knit outfit, a cinnamon and gray windowpane plaid sportcoat coordinating with gray slacks. The new linen blends are ideal for warm weather wear. Cool and lightweight, the polyester linen suitings appear in a natural bamboo-textured shade, plus an eye-catching wool-linen sportcoat in a city block motif of earth, straw and charcoal.

Shirts this Spring have wovens leading with dress shirts in an array of clear bright colors. The choice is limitless from down-to-earth ginghams and old fashioned chambrays to new sophisticated satin stripes and richly ornate textures. Though you will find contrasting collar and cuff treatment, the more popular shirt is the one designed to wear with or without a tie.

Sportswear has included the unconstructed suit for a few years now. Don't think of these suits as carelessly fitting outfits — they fit equally as well as their more formally tailored counterparts. You will be seeing safari, jean and shirt-suits that look handsome enough to make a 9-5 appearance at the office.

Casual wear will again feature Western detailing and tailoring done this Spring in an array of muted and pastel woven fabrics with a lot of attention given to consideration of all-in-one coordination. Layers, yes, but done carefully with more matching than mixing of colors.

No men's wearing apparel forecast is complete without a word or two on jeans — you'll be seeing jeans cut in almost every fabric, and when they're napped, nautical and button like their navy issue counterpart, they're sure to be a hit!

Another jeans look is to wear them with the bottoms-up, exposing clogs, patterned socks and argyle socks. Some jeans boast free-floating flap patch pockets with wide tunnel loops.

Ties are beginning to slim down this Spring — though silk knits and stripes head the cravat class, the quiet butterfly bow tie is staging a comeback.

Spring's showers will bring out the trench coat which still reigns supreme in both single and double breasted closures. Many men will appreciate the return of the comfortable raglan sleeved coat which allows for comfort when worn over a suit or sweater.

The coming season heralds a galaxy of formal events, and as with other men's fashions, there has been much updating in men's formal wear. That old tux covered with moth balls will never do this year.

Leader in men's formal attire, After Six's Spring collection is a profusion of color . . . from pastels to bright patterns and handsome plaids. Textured knits are loved for their eye-catching surface interest while boasting the very best ratings in comfort and wrinkle-proof wearing. Highlighting this group, an intriguing raised ripple design and a herringbone pattern available in pastels (and white)—from sunny yellow, pink, tangerine, orchid, mint and champagne. (Yes, the groom will wear pink!)

Men's shoes are really "going" places . . . like up-up-up. Layered soles and stacked heels sometimes reach as high as four inches. And colors!!! Wild mixtures of colors that often make one think the wearer is sporting miss-matched shoes. Disturbed about this bit of flamboyance? Not at all, it is predicted that young men will be turning their pants bottoms up to show off the riot of rainbow shoes and colorful patterned socks.

Despite the shoe madness, this Spring does hold a promise of general understated elegance in men's fashions.

AFTER SIX — Oscar de la Renta for After Six weaves a two-part story for spring featuring luxe silk fabrics in sport coats and suitings. Left: de la Renta's imported silk sportcoat in tartan plaid — navy and red on cream — coordinates with navy 'basketweave' slacks. At right is the designer's imported silk 'basketweave' suit in a rich cream shade. Both are two button styles with broad notch lapels and flap pockets.

Information Please

Ruth Lenson

This is the reader's column. If you have a question or a recipe to share with other readers, please write to: Information, Please, Transcript Newspapers, 420 Washington street, Dedham, Mass. 02026.

Question: Do you have a recipe for German Cole Slaw, please? Thank you. — Mrs. V. R., Newton

Answer: Couldn't find a German cole slaw, but this one is claimed by the Pennsylvania Dutch people, many of whom are of German ancestory — hope it's the one you are looking for.

CABBAGE SLAW

4 cups finely shredded cabbage
1 tablespoon butter or margarine
1 teaspoon instant minced onion
2 tablespoons vinegar
¼ teaspoon dry mustard
½ teaspoon salt

Cook cabbage in a small amount of boiling water over moderate heat for 8-10 minutes. Drain. Mix butter, onion, vinegar, mustard, and salt. Heat. Stir into cabbage and serve hot. Serves four.

Question: Recently our supermarket had a sale on tiny cornish game hens and I thought they were really gourmet fare, so I popped them into my freezer and am saving them for entertaining. Do you have a party type method of preparation? I have six birds to stuff. Many thanks. — Mrs. G. J., Waban

Answer: These little birds really can make a festive occasion out of any meal, holiday or no. There is enough stuffing in this recipe to fill the birds and some left over to place directly under the hens to catch all the delicious juices while roasting. (You can use this stuffing for other birds — turkey, goose, chicken, capon or duck.)

STUFFED CORNISH HENS

6 (1 lb. ea.) cornish game hens
Salt and pepper
Two-thirds cup margarine
2 cups finely chopped onion
1 to 2 cups finely chopped green pepper
1 cup finely chopped celery
12 cups enriched white bread cubes, cut ½ inch thick
½ cup finely chopped parsley
¼ cup toasted sesame seeds
1 jar (2 oz.) pimientos, drained, chopped
1 teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon coarsely ground black pepper
½ teaspoon crushed tarragon
¼ teaspoon crushed rosemary
1 egg, beaten
Melted butter or margarine

Rinse hens with cold water, drain and pat dry. Season with salt and pepper. Melt two-thirds cup margarine in large skillet. Add onion, green pepper and celery; cook until tender. In large bowl mix together bread and next seven ingredients. Salt the cooked onion mixture. Mix well. Blend in egg. Loosely stuff about ½ cup in cavity of each hen. Fasten opening with food picks; tie drumsticks together. Place remaining stuffing in greased 9x13-inch baking pan or 10x14-inch roasting pan. Set hens on stuffing. Roast in 375 degree oven 1¼ to 1½ hours, or until done. Baste often with additional melted margarine. Makes six servings.

From Mrs. T. H., Dedham, a lovely letter, in which she says, "I found a recipe for easy-to-make cookies called "Russian Tea Cakes" and I would like to share them with readers." Here is the recipe — and they really should be called "Meltaways" because they do!

RUSSIAN TEA CAKES

1 cup soft butter
½ cup confectioners' sugar, sifted
1 teaspoon vanilla
2½ cups sifted all purpose flour
¼ teaspoon salt
Three-quarter cup finely chopped nuts

Beat butter until fluffy. Add confectioners' sugar and vanilla. Sift flour and salt and stir into butter mixture. Add nuts. Chill dough for one hour. By hand, roll chilled dough into 1-inch balls. Place on ungreased baking sheet and bake in preheated 400 degree oven for about 10 minutes or until done, but not brown. While still warm, roll in confectioners' sugar. Makes four dozen cookies.

Question: My daughter is nine years old and has been asking for easy recipes so that she can help prepare the dinner meal. Do you suppose you could print one or two for her? Her name is Penny. — Mrs. M. M., Roslindale

Answer: Penny, these are just for you! Have fun!

TASTY TUNA CASSEROLE

Set out: Potato chips, butter, 1 can cream of mushroom soup, salt, milk, 1 can (7 oz. tuna fish). Also 1½ quart casserole dish, small mixing bowl, measuring spoons and cups, rolling pin, pot holder.

1. Turn on oven and set at 350 degrees. ¼. Crush enough potato chips to measure three-quarters of a cup. Put potato chips in plastic or paper bag and crush with rolling pin. 3. Butter the inside of your casserole dish. 4. In small bowl, mix can of mushroom soup and ½ teaspoon salt with ½ cup milk. Blend well. 5. Drain tuna and arrange in bottom of casserole dish. Pour the soup mixture over the tuna. 6. Sprinkle crushed potato chips over the top. 7. Bake at 350 degrees for 25 minutes. Serve hot. Makes 4-5 servings.

HUMPTY-DUMPTY EGGS

Set out: 4 eggs, milk, salt, butter. Also medium-size mixing bowl, egg beater or electric mixer, measuring spoons and cup, double boiler.

1. Put water in bottom pan of double boiler. Heat to boiling. 2. Break 4 eggs+ into mixing bowl. Beat until light and foamy. 3. Add 1 cup milk and ½ teaspoon salt to the eggs and beat. 4. Add 1 tablespoon butter and pour mixture into top of double boiler. 5. Put top of double boiler in place over boiling water. Cook 20 minutes or until firm.

Stir lightly in the last minute of cooking. Serves 3-4.

+ Always break eggs one at a time into a cup before adding to the recipe. Bits of shell which might break off can be removed easily from the small cup using a teaspoon.

Thank you, thank you to Mrs. F. L., Newton Highlands for sending in a recipe she made several times during the Christmas season. She calls these bars:

TRIPLE TREAT BARS

½ cup butter or margarine
1 pkg. (3 oz.) cream cheese
½ cup brown sugar
1 cup whole wheat flour
One-third cup wheat germ
1 pkg. (6 oz.) semi-sweet chocolate pieces
Honey topping (recipe follows)

Cream butter, cheese and sugar together until light. Add flour and wheat germ and mix until smooth. Turn into greased pan, 9x13x2-inches. Spread evenly. Bake at 375 degrees about 10 minutes, until edges are very lightly browned and top is firm. Remove from oven and sprinkle with chocolate. Let stand about five minutes until chocolate softens, then spread evenly over baked layer. Prepare Honey Topping and spoon over chocolate. Return to oven and bake about 20 minutes longer, until top is set. Cool in pan, then cut into bars or diamonds. Makes 3 dozen bars (1¼ x 2-inches).

HONEY TOPPING

2 eggs
½ cup honey
One-third cup whole wheat flour
One-third cup nonfat dry milk
¼ teaspoon EACH: mace, cinnamon and salt
1¼ cups chopped walnuts

Combine eggs and honey and beat until well blended. Add flour, dry milk and spices. Stir in walnuts and use as previously directed.

and social and economic inequities that have historically characterized the educational environment of metropolitan Boston."

It was written by the Greater Boston Regional Education Center under the auspices of the state Department of Education for submission to the United States Office of Education. If accepted by the federal government none of the communities involved would be required to fund the planning stages of the collaborative effort seeking eventual sharing of educational resources, facilities and personnel among member communities.

Committeewoman Rosenbloom agreed that the proposal was a "poorly written document, but we should get in on the beginning."

Superintendent of Schools Aaron Fink asked the committee if they were willing to sit back and allow other communities to do the planning for a project which Newton might eventually have to join anyway.

"It's chances for survival are practically nil without our support," he added.

Fink then asked the committee to support the concept of collaborative sharing itself without endorsing the written document, indicating that a school system can withdraw from the program at any time during the planning stages.

"If we join now," stated Fink, "we will have a voice in drafting a proposal for the federal government that meets our approval."

Recently, the MDC purchased the riverbed owned by Gilligan and a narrow strip of land at the edge of the river. Gilligan still owns the remainder of the wooded riverbank.

Co-sponsors of the house bill are Rep. Pines, Rep. Paul H. Guzzi, State Senator Irving Fishman, Rep. Edward M. Dickson of Weston and Rep. Richard Landry of Waltham.

The bill will have its public hearing before the Committee on Urban Affairs Tuesday April 3, at 10:30 a.m. in Room 473A of the State House.

---

Mrs. Rosenbloom moved that the committee endorse the principal and intent of the proposal and her motion was carried on a voice vote with Mandel the lone dissenter.

The committee also authorized Superintendent Fink and its Vice Chairman Richard Douglas to attend a meeting of metropolitan communities to be held later this week at the Marriott Motor Hotel in Newton.

Before going into excutive session at its regular meeting the school committee also voted to allow Superintendent of Schools Fink to seek a waiver for the early release of Newton North High students in June for the purpose of moving into the new high school.

Fink will ask the state Department of Education for permission to hold the last full school day on Wednesday, June 13, instead of the now required, Tuesday, June 19.

Health Administrators Choose Joseph Vilimas

Joseph Vilimas Jr. of Newton, widely known in the field of health care and social service, has been elected a member in the first step toward becoming a Fellow of the American College of Nursing Home Administrators.

Announcement was made by James J. Brennan of Hampden, New England governor of the college.

The college is a professional society for men and women who administer facilities for long-term health care, and facilities designed to promote, preserve and sustain the well-being of the aged.

Membership is awarded to licensed nursing home administrators who meet stringent educational and experience requirements.

Vilimas is a member of the American Society of Public Administrators, National Association for Community Development, National Conference on Social Welfare, National Association of Housing and Redevelopment Officials, American Management Society, Massachusetts Public Health Association, Greater Boston Chamber of Commerce and Massachusetts Conference on Social Welfare.

He is a member of the editorial advisory board of the Urban and Social Change Review, a trustee of Vitacare Centers, vice-chairman of the Advisory Committee for Comprehensive Educational Planning, Boston School Department; a member of the Newton Community Relations Commission; lecturer, Summer Language Arts Institute, Boston School Department and the Board of Directors, Upward Bound, Boston College.

Vilimas is owner-administrator of the 104-bed Bayside Nursing Home, South Boston.

He is a graduate of DePaul University where he received his A.B. degree in economics and philosophy.

and are unable to obtain a job with a suburban firm because there is no transportation to the suburbs. Cohen went on to say. "The employment express provided that transportation and that is why we want it restored."

Karen Rikhoff, president of the Needham League of Women Voters, said if companies along Rte. 128 will offer jobs, the service could be restored. She said she was informed in a letter from Brian J Cudahy, director of community affuirs and marketing for the MBTA, that the service averaged only four passengers per trip and, therefore, was curtailed.

The Needham League assisted in the establishment of the route in 1968 through the Jobs Opportunity in Needham organization. She said the line was mostly valuable in establishing initial job contact. Employees who used the line eventually brought cars or joined carpools.

She said restoration of the service, however, would serve a great social benefit.

Mrs. Rikhoff added that the possibility of industrial subsidization of the line was raised. But, she said, employers were reluctant to pay for their employees' transportation.

A spokesman for the MBTA said Monday the company "always tries to be responsive to the wishes of the people" and will now reassess the employment express bus situation.

He also said MBTA officials feel the sytem was given an adequate trail.

When instituted in 1968, he said, the MBTA estimted the buses would lose $60,000 per year minimum traveling at full capacity.

"We never even reached full capacity," the spokesman said.

He pointed out one of the inner city routes is still running.

Rep Mofenson indicated he was hopeful the "broad based support for restoration of service" would persuade MBTA officials to reinstate the line.

Mofenson charged that "it was misleading for the MBTA to claim the reason for discontinuing service was the loss of money on the line."

'All surface lines which the MBTA runs lose money," he said. "This loss must be measured against the social benefits of the line. The employment express has made available several hundred jobs which otherwise would have been for closed to residents of the inner city."

Death Reports . . . That's Her Business

By BARBARA DRUCK

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Mrs. June Schulberg reads the death reports while other wives in her neighborhood enjoy the society pages in their morning newspaper.

As chief deputy coroner of Allegheny County, the morbid business of death is very much part of her business.

"When Cyril Wecht (coroner for metropolitan Pittsburgh) offered me the job, I didn't know what it meant," said the attractive brunette. "I didn't know the workings of the coroner's office, but I really got excited about it when the news media did."

As chief administrator of Wecht's 57-man office, Mrs. Schulberg reads the daily death reports, serves as general liaison representative for the agency in its dealings with other government and community agencies, funeral directors and surviving relatives. She also conducts arraignments and inquests, and finds time to maintain a private law practice dealing mainly with personal injury suits.

She herself does not perform autopsies and doesn't want to, but only because she lacks the medical qualifications.

"I could never in a million years be able to do the job of coroner," said the divorced mother of two. She received her law degree from Duquesne University at the age of 40. "A coroner should have very specialized medical training, and I would only think of going back to medical school if I were 10 years younger."

No Discrimination

When appointed by Wecht, Mrs. Schulberg was serving as the first woman attorney for the National Labor Relations Board in heavily industrialized western Pennsylvania. Then, as now, she felt unaware of any discrimination because of her sex.

"I have never been aware of discrimination against me as a female out in the professional world," she said. "If you are prepared and know what you are doing, I think men are more gracious. I think they enjoy doing favors and kindnesses for a woman who is not pushing them around and not using feminine wiles on them."

But she recalled a brief instance of sex discrimination as a law student.

"At that time, Duquesne had only one legal fraternity which took everyone in law school but women," said Mrs. Schulberg. "I was going to protest on the grounds of the Civil Rights Amendment, but I was too busy to file a lawsuit."

But the story also had a happy ending.

"About a year and a half ago," she said, "the president of the fraternity called me and asked me to be the group's first honorary female member."

Lord's and Lady's Salon For Complete Hair Care

Lord's and Lady's — as its name implies — is a salon devoted to the complete hair care needs of men and women. The "unisex" approach is just beginning to emerge in the large, metropolitan cities, and, according to Michael Barsamian, proprietor of the salon "Within 10 years, my salon will no longer be unique—as it is today."

Since privacy and client's needs are of prime concern, separate facilities are maintaine for both salons and separate entrances are provided. The women's salon is tastefully decorated, and one feels quite at home with the vivid blues and plaids contrasted by the soft white walls. The modern plexiglass chairs in the setting and comb-out area are comfortable as well as good looking.

The equipment at Lord's and Lady's is of the most up-to-date design with the installation of an Ayuda Toura Automatic Shampoo Lounge—the only one of its kind in the area. This Lounge is an automatic shampoo unit where pressure of the water is adjusted to the client's preference, giving two shampoos, a thorough rinse,—and all done automatically. Of course, ifa client prefers a regular shampoo given by anoperator, this is available also.

Now let's talk a bit about the staff at Lord's and Lady's. Michael, a native of West Roxbury, has practiced his profession in Boston for nearly 10 years and has studied at schools in New York and California for advanced hair cutting and styling. According to Michael, "We specialize in all phases of hair care, but without the proper cut—specifically, the scissor cut — there is no 'base' for good styling."

Miss Louella Cardos, like Michael, was born and raised in West Roxbury. She is an expert in the area of colors and tints. She really enjoys working on what she calls the "special occasion styling" with lots of curls and very highly coiffed.

Miss Kaye, formerly of Great britain, owner of her own salon on the continent, brings to Lord's and Lady's the newest cut and "Blow dry" method, which originated in London.

So whether your taste leans toward casual, or sophisticated, traditional or mod, the staff is well experienced and will be able to assist and advise.

As mentioned previously, the entrance to the men's area is separate. The salon is done in black and white with subtle touches of grey and burgundy. In his Commonwealth Avenue salon Michael became very involved with hair pieces for professional entertainers and local business executives. "If a man requires a hair piece, he should not be embarrassed to seek out professional help," says Michael. I'm sure you've all seen ill-fitting hair pieces—either the wrong color, or texture or thickness. "I will not fit nor sell a hair piece that I myself would not personally wear. When a man finally decides to purchase a hair piece, he wants it to be as natural and comfortable as possible."

Michael told this writer he would be glad to advise anyone contemplating the purchase ofa hair piece.

The new hair styles for men require professional care. No longer acceptable is shoulder length hair . . . so "at our salon, the emphasis is the cut."

The salon has been opened since the first of the year and the response has been "just great," according to Michael.

Lord's and Lady's is conveniently located at 450 Belgrade avenue, West Roxbury, and there is ample free parking in their own parking lot adjacent to the salon. The salon is open Tuesday through Saturday, and Wednesday and Thursday evenings.

Area Planning Council To Meet on Wednesday

A meeting of the full Metropolitan Area Council will be held March 21 at the Marriott MOTOR Hotel, Newton, MAPC President John J. McCarthy announced today.

Among items to be discussed at the meeting will be:

+Propsed regional solid waste legislation to establish a $100 million program for the planning and construction of district solid waste facilities throughout the state;

+"Open Space Law Report—1972 Supplement," a report on recent changes and-or additions to existing Massachusetts and federal laws pertaining to the environment;

+"Boston Harbor Islands Comprehensive Plan," a program to develop the 30 islands in Boston Harbor for conservation and recreation purposes.

The public meeting is scheduled to begin at 7:45 p.m.

The MAPC, consisting of 101 cities and towns within a 25-mile radius of downtown Boston, is the area's official regional planning agency. It is comprised of representatives from each of its member municipalities, 21 gubernatorial appointees, and the heads of 11 public service agencies.

Created 10 years ago, the Council has since that time more than doubled in the number of its member communities and is today the regional center for the identification and solution of problems in transportation, housing, solid waste disposal, health planning and open space and recreation.

Professionals Despite Blindness

Every two months some 20 to 30 men and women gather at one or another of the better restaurants in downtown Boston for dinner and a serious program meeting. All are college graduates and all hold professional positions. What makes this group unique is the other factor its members have in common: they all are blind.

The Blind Professionals Society is an outgrowth of an informal gathering started in the early 1960's by a blind attorney, Philip E. Pofcher of Roslindale Square. In the course of his law practice, Lions Club membership and various other activities in the Greater Boston area, he met a few other blind professional presons and was disturbed by the fact that they had virtually no communication with each other—no organized, regular opportunity to share ideas, new information, employment leads, or problems of blindness and their solution.

From random beginnings has evolved the present Society which has an annual paid-up membership of about 45 persons—plus the prestige of counting as its only honorary member musician George Shearing. The progressive jazz composer and performer makes his home in California but meets with the Society whenever his local playing engagements coincide with the BPS dinners.

Occupations of today's Society members range from Pofcher and four others who have law degrees to social workers and rehabilitation counselors, teachers in public and private schools and universities, computer experts, personnel executives in the banking and insurance fields, a co-owner and business manager of an electronics manufacturing firm (who also is a supper club pianist), a client recruiter for a leading guide dog school, a chiropractor, a concert pianist, a psychiatrist deeply involved in helping drug addicts, and an Internal Revenue Service representative.

In addition to representing a broad spectrum of professional occupations, Society members are from Eastern Seaboard cities as far south as Miami (home of an air lines computer specialist) and west to the Chicago area (location of a teacher at Hadley School for the Blind, a unique institution offering only correspondence courses).

Each bi - monthly meeting is arranged by a different member of the Society, responsible for selection of the speaker, meeting place, menu and other details. The only sighted person regularly involved in the group is the volunteer secretary - treasurer who maintains the mailing list, sends out meeting notices — both in Braille and in large type — and minutes of each program, and collects dues which are a nominal $2 a year. Attendance by college students is encouraged, and their dues are only $1 annually.

Roslindale Square has always been home territory for Phil Pofcher, whose law firm of Pofcher and DiSciullo is in the same space where his father long ago operated a tailor shop. As a youngster, Phil helped in the shop until an automobile accident while he was in high school caused the injuries which eventually resulted in his total blindness. He is a graduate of the University of Illinois, Harvard Graduate School, and Boston College Law School. He and his German shephard guide dog, Betsy, are familiar figures not only in their home community but in court and at meetings of a variety of organizations.

Phil Pofcher is past president of the Boston Parkway Lions Club and currently chairman of its Bank Pocket Braille Writer Committee; a Shriner; a national officer of the American Blind Lawyers' Association; and a member of the local, state and national bar and trial lawyers' associations.

Sharing his busy professional life is his wife, Dorothy, whose insurance, income tax and public accounting business is integrated with her husband's law practice.

Another resident of this area who is active in the Blind Professionals Society is Dr. Kenneth Ingham of Newton Centre. Blinded in a chemistry experiment accident which also cost him a hand, Dr. Ingham, then still a teen-ager, enrolled in the intensive four-month program at St. Paul's Rehabilitation Center for newly-blinded persons, then continued his academic education. He now holds two degrees from Boston University plus his doctorate from Brandeis University. A former faculty member and still a research affiliate of Massachusetts of Technology, he currently is a consultant in electrical engineering and computer science and heads the ARTS-1 program sponsored by the Protestant Guild for the Blind and the MIT Research Laboratory of Electronics.

Under Dr. Ingham's direction, ARTS — which stands for Audio Response Time-Shared System — is providing vocational and educational aid through the use of computerized sensors and electro-mechanical devices. A blind person working or studying in his home or school uses a standard telephone to communicate with the computer, which can respond in the form of recorded speech or a Braille print-out.

As a leader in a number of computer technology organizations, including special groups for blind persons in this field, Dr. Ingham lectures widely at national meetings of a wide range of professional associations. He also is president of the Rudolph Steiner Library, a collection of philosophical writings available in Braille and recorded form as well as in ink-print.

Parents of three children, Dr. Ingham and his college-graduate wife met while both were students at St. Paul's Rehabilitation Center. They lived in France early in their marriage, while Joanne Ingham studied at the Sorbonne as the holder of a coveted Fulbright Scholarship.

One of the youngest and newest members of the Blind Professionals Society is 22-year-old Alan Downing, whose family home is on Pine Grove street in Needham. Currently living in a Cambridge apartment, Alan is a systems programmer with Honeywell Information Systems who further describes himself as a ham radio operator and a "stereo fanatic."

Alan received his education at MIT where he graduated last June with a major in aerospace engineering and a grade average of 4.6 out of a possible 5.0 points. On the basis of his outstanding academic record, he applied for and won one of the three annual awards offered by Recording for the Blind to college seniors throughout the nation. The $500 prize was presented to Alan and the other two winners by Tricia Nixon Cox in the Rose Garden of the White House.

More recently, Alan spent the first two weeks of February in San Francisco taking intensive training in the use of the Opticon, a newly-developed reading device for people who can not see. As a small camera scans printed or handwritten material, the blind reader uses his fingertips to "read" 144 tiny vibrators which produce a succession of raised images matching those of the printed material. With this device, Alan will be able to read any printed matter, from labels on cans and personal correspondence to technical journals not available in Braille or recorded form — all without the usual assistance of a sighted reader.

The Opticon was demonstrated at a recent meeting of the Blind Professionals Society, as one of a number of new reading and traveling aids introduced to the group at various meetings. Other after-dinner programs have featured heads of most of the public and private agencies for the blind in Massachusetts, Society members talking about their own professional jobs and research projects, and an occasional informal "show and tell" session sharing gadget and technique information to help blind persons work, travel, keep house and lead lnormal lives.

Piccadilly II Plans Ready For Reality

The development of Piccadilly II has recently been announced by David Zussman, president of Development Group, developers of Piccadilly Square, at Newton Centre.

Piccadilly II is at the corner of Beacon and Centre Street, approximately two minutes from Route 9 and three minutes from Route 128 and the Massachusetts Turnpike.

State Street Bank and Trust have granted a $600,000 construction loan and it is estimated the property will have a completed value of almost $100,000.

Boutiques and specialty shops are planned for the ground anf first floor levels and offices for the second floor. Robert Price, development group director stated, "Piccadilly II, the heart of Newton Centre's vibrant, active shopping area, will be created to radiate the same excitement of Piccadilly Square Phase I."

Irving Salsberg Associates are doing the architectural drawing and David Berg Associates are doing the structural plans.

Development group director of marketing Mike Perry tells us he already has some space under negotiation with shops that will compliment Piccadilly Square Phase I plus help generate a high traffic pattern for the entire area. He expects the space to rent very rapidly, especially because of its highly desirable location. Inquiries regarding leasing may be made to Mike Perry of Development Group at 93 Union Street, Newton Centre, or your broker.

As the top man in the Boston office, he was awarded the agency plaque, and he also was named to the Key Man Club, the company's top honor group, and to the Monarch Millionaires Club.

Mr. Kaplan resides at 86 Athelstane Rd. He is a member of the Boston agency , which is directed by J. Joseph Reese, CLU, general agent.

Hospital Employees Retire

Two Newton area residents retired last month from the nursing service department of the Newton-Wellesley Hospital after a combined total of almost 42 years of service at the hospital.

Mrs. Catherine Hoover, Auburndale and Mrs. Doris Saunders, Newtonville, left the hospital's employ after 18 and 24 years respectively.

Initially employed in the hospital's central supply department, Mrs. Hoover spent 14 years as a clerk on the sixth floor of the hospital's north wing.

Mrs. Saunders joined the hospital's central supply department on Valentines Day, 1949, and after working there for 17 years, transferred to the nursing service department where she spent three years as an assistant floor administrator and four years as a secretary in the nursing service office.

Both were honored at a reception hosted by the nursing service department prior to their retirement.

Grossman's Grows West

Mike Grossman, president of Evans Products Company of which Grossman's is a division, and Wesley Hubbard, president of Hubbard & Johnson, have announced that Evans has completed acquisition of Hubbard & Johnson Lumber Co., a San Francisco Bay area retailer of building materials.

Hubbard & Johnson had 1972 sales of $17.6 million. It operates retail building materials stores in Palo Alto, Mountain View and San Jose, a contractor service yard at Redwood City, and a roof truss plant in Fremont, California.

Terms of the transaction, which was for Evans' common stock, were not revealed.

Grossman said Evans has selected sites and plans to open five additional retail stores in northern California this year, adding that further rapid expansion is anticipated for the retail group's western operation.

The group currently operates 187 stores, primarily in New England, the Mid-Atlantic and Midwestern states.

Wesley Hubbard, president and Chester Johnson, vice president, will continue to direct the business under the spervision of Jospeh E. Vaeth, regional vice president of Evans Retail Group.

Evans Products Company (NYSE and PCSE) with headquarters in Portland, Ore., is a leading retailer of building materials and a producer of precut homes. It is also a manufacturer and wholesaler of building products for use in conventional mobile home construction, and a manufacturer of metal specialty products.

Odler Heads Research Group

GBYSO To Hold 15th Anniversary On Mar. 25

The Fifteenth Anniversary of the Greater Boston Youth Symphony Orchestras will be celebrated by a concert in Symphony Hall on March 25 at 7:30 p.m.

GBYSO has grown from an orchestra of 80 to 300 members participating in 3 orchestras. The three organizations will take part in a special Anniversary performance.

A special feature of the concert will be the premiere performance of Galactic Rounds by Richard Felciano, currently composer in residence to the city of Boston under the Contemporary Music Project. The Greater Boston Youth Symphony Orchestra is one of five sponsoring organizations cooperating in this Ford Foundation project.

The work was commissioned by Walter Eisenberg and written for the Greater Boston Youth Symphony Orchestra. It was completed in 1972. Galactic Rounds expresses the composer's concept of the motions of celestial bodies and combines modern electronic sounds with live instruments employed in new and unusual ways.

The concert will begin with the GBYSO Repertoire Orchestra conducted by Jeff Holland Cook. Included in the program will be Symphony No 8 by Dvorak. Walter Eisberg will conduct the Greater Boston Youth Symphony Orchestra in works by Berlioz, Felciano and Respighi. The GBYSO Wind Orchestra under the direction of Richard Summers will perform works by Gabrieli, Copland and Bennett.

Ticket prices are from $2 to $5 and may be reserved by calling 429-5354 or 353-3348. They may also be purchased at the Symphony Hall Box office.

Students from this area who are members of the GBYSO Orchestras are:

The Skiing Scene

By PAUL J. MASSEY

This has been the biggest season in history for ski touring and cross-country skiing here in the U.S. and especially here in New England.

As someone pointed out the world's first ski report came not from Lowell Thomas or Roxby Rothafel but from the Sage of Nor in the Aeneid of Virgil who was writing about ski running or cross-country skiing.

Although cross-country (X-C), Nordic or Ski Touring as a sport is over 5000 years old, it's just coming of age here.

The three ski mountains of Bromley, Stratton, and Magic, are among those that carefully evaluating the impact of this sport, recognizing the stark contrast between it and Alpine or downhill skiing: one is dramatic and fast; the other more placid and leisurely paced.

Closer to home, the owners of the Scandinavian in Medfield, Red Sears and Per A. Holst, have put together some questions and answers on cross country skiing that underscore how this fast growing sport has such a broad appeal. Here's what they have to say:

Is it necessary to buy new skis? No, not as long as you have a pair of old wooden skis of the pre-down hill variety that you can still use. As long as you can fit on them a comfortable pair of boots, for instance hiking boots, you can ski on those old ones. Of course, you can always rent skis and boots and try it out that way.

Is rental expensive? Not really. Most sporting goods stores will rent you a decent pair of cross country skis, with bindings, boots, and poles for $6 - $8 for a weekend. Usually a deposit is required.

Where do you ski here locally? There are so many places to start. Just think of all the open areas in your particular home town.

If you've never skied before - how do you get going? Start on a flat ground with at least 2-3 inches of snow. Don't use poles to begin with, but just shuffle yourself forward with your skis. Get the "feel" for how the skis glide easily forward, but don't slide back so that you can slide on one ski while you use the other for pushing. After a while you can increase your stride gradually, and by adding the pushing with the poles get a very easy and even glide.

Then - how do you turn and stop? The basic turns used in cross country skiing is the familiar plow turn and the stem Christie we know from downhill skiing. In addition, an often used turn is the step turn, which is actually just a short series of small steps in which each step changes the direction towards where you want to go. To stop, well, then the plow or stem Christie is mostly used.

What kind of clothes should I wear? You could use what you have on - a warm pant suit may be all you need in our climate. Most often people think that if they don't have the latest Bonnie Bell outfit they can't go skiing, but that is not true yet in cross country. Any outfit that is free and comfortable, can be used. A light sweater or cardigan, maybe with a light windbreaker over, a pair of solid pants, that's all you'll need.

How do you put the wax on the skis? The hard waxes that come in a small can-like container you rub onto the ski soles. Peel off a strip the can like ¼ inch wide and rub the wax up and down the ski soles. Don't get it into the center groove - it's difficult to get it out. Don't worry about if the wax comes on a little unevenly - that will smoothen out as soon as you start skiing.

What about the Klisters? Klister comes in tubes like toothpaste, and is spread onto the skis using a plastic spreader piece. If it's cold outside you're better off putting wax or klister on your skis indoors.

Why are cross country skis so long? Cross country skis are fitted to your height in the old way - to reach your forward-bent wrist when you stretch your arm high above your head. The reason for this length is to give you a large enough surface area for your weight and at the same time provide a "stable" foundation for your body.

Is skiing really a lot of work? That depends on what you call a lot of work. Someone recently published some facts about cross country skiing in comparison with snow shoeing and regular hiking, and found that skiing is a third of the work of hiking for a given distance, and requires only 15-20 percent of the energy needed for snow shoeing over the same distance.

How far can you go when you're new at it? Most people will easily ski a couple of miles without feeling exhausted, even if they haven't been out skiing before that year, or are real beginners. The ski glide takes so little effort (like shuffling around in your slippers) that you don't notice it. What taxes most is when you are breaking a new trail and have to push your skis through a few inches of new, soft snow. This may be the case if you are the first one out on the trail after a snow storm, or if you want to go where nobody has gone before. Switch with the others in your party - take turns breaking the trail and following in the tracks

What about children - how old can they be for starting skiing? It all depends on their physical abilities. We've seen many examples of kids that move easily on skis when they are only 3 years old, even less. Other kids get bored quicker or don't find the natural "rhythmic" motion. Most children will ski good from the age of 5 on.

Why do you use Lignostone edges on cross country skis? Lignostone is a trade name for compressed beech wood, and it is used as a very good substitute for steel as edges on the skis. For most tour skiing you don't need Lginostone edges, the regular Hickory wood in the ski soles is pretty hard and stands up well to long time wear. But for those who like to do some down hill skiing with their cross country skis, which you can very well do, the hard edges provided by Lignostone give a substantially better "bite" into hard, crusty snow and ice than even Hickory. If you plan to buy new skis, and think you will be skiing at least half-a-dozen times each year, then perhaps from a wear-and-tear point of view the Lignostone edges will be worth the extra cost.

How much more do Lignostone edges cost? For most top quality skis such as the Rustad's from Norway, Lignostone edges amount to $8 - $9 more per ski pair.

What do you think of the new no-wax skis? The concept of a no-wax ski is one with many sides. A lot of people in the ski industry are pondering this problem, and wondering whether there will be a complete replacement of the wooden skis with synthetic materials. So far most have adopted a wait and see attitude. The no-wax bottoms are here to stay though, it seems. There will always be some people who would not want to wax their skis or do anything to them for that matter. For these people the fish-scale or elephant-track bottoms should be good. The fact that you can't wax the, however, also means that you can't always get the best glide - only that you can climb hills well, if that's what you want to do.

NMHA Add Two Professionals

The Norfolk Mental Health Association announces the addition of two professionals to serve troubled families of the 11-town area of the association through the Leslie B. Cutler Clinic in Norwood and the Norfolk Mental Health Center in Needham. In a partnership arrangement, all professional salaries are paid by the Mass. Dept. of Mental Health with all other expenses borned by the association administering town tax funds.

Andrea L. Wong, psychiatric social worker, and Dr. David W. Havens, psychiatrist, will be working half-time under the Director of the Clinics, Dr. Roy Korwin.

Miss Wong received her B.A. degree in 1943 from the University of Hawaii, her M.S. in Social work at Simmons College and Advanced Diploma in Social Work at Smith College in 1952, during which time she had educational leave to study in Nottingham, England, where she did two days of practical work in a child guidance clinic and traveled throughout England observing other clinics, homes and residential schools for maladjusted children. In 1945-1946 she was a medical social worker at Beth Israel Hospital, after which she spent 3 years in Honolulu in the Hawaii Dept. of Health, Bureau of Crippled Children and Maternal Child Health doing casework, with the Child Welfare Dept. working with orphans and half-orphans, and also in the Hawaii Dept. of Public Instruction as pupil guidance worker, and in the Bureau of Mental Hygiene of the Honolulu Dept. of Health dealing in direct services to children and their parents. Also in Honolulu she dealt with child placing agencies for the Salvation Army Facilities for Children.

Other experience includes research at Boston State Hospital under the B.U. School of Medicine and in the Brockton Hospital Alcoholic Clinic dealing with alcoholics and their families. From 1966 to the present she was with the Brookline Mental Health Center.

Dr. Havens graduated from Harvard Medical School in 1964 and did one year of internship at Mt. Auburn Hospital in Cambridge and completed a 3-year residency program in general psychiatry at the Mass. Mental Health Center in Boston in June 1968. He spent one day a week for a year working in individual and group psychotherapy at Norfolk Prison, and for a year did weekend coverage of psychiatric emergencies at Cambridge City Hospital. He also spent one year working with private out-patients at Faulkner Hospital, and two years in the U.S.A.F. as Chief Psychiatrist at the Riverside, California Air Force Base. From 1970 to the present he has been teaching residents of Harvard Medical School as Clinical Instructor in Psychiatry for two days a week. He also does private practice, concentrating on long term, insight-oriented psychotherapy of adults, with special interest in the late adolescent to early-adult age range.

SOCCER TALK

By PAUL ELDRIDGE JR.

Joe Dente, President of the Mass. Soccer Assoc., announced recently that the M.S.A.'s spring season will open on April 14 with the 1st and 2nd divisions. The 3rd and 4th divisions will swing into action the following weekend. Rescheduled games from the Fall season will be made up the week of April 1 - 9.

There are eight teams still left in the M.S.A. Knock-Out Cup. The quarter finals will be played on May 5 and 6 with the semi-finals and championship games being played in June.

The way the teams line up going into the second half of the 72-73 season are as follows:

1st Div: Boston Internationals, Lowell Blues, Boston S.C., M.I.T., A.C.I. Italica, Salmona, Worcester Scans, E. Boston.

2nd Div: St. John, Sons of Italy, Portuguese Americans, PeabodyCLC, Stoughton, Polish Eagles, G.E. Jets, Worcester Olympia.

3rd Div: Hudson, Norwood Kickers, Somerville, Armens, Melrose, Roslindale, Everett, Colombian S.C. Westwood (Boston) United, St. Catherines.

4th Div: Fairlense, Weymouth, Cambridge Portugese, Framingham, Peabody Ac. "B", Honduras, Gloucester, F.C. Peabody, Costa Rica and Watertown.

When the season ends in June, the bottom two teams in Divsions 1, 2, and 3 will be relegated to the next lower division, while the top two in Divisions 2, 3, and 4 will be promoted. THE M.S.A. will hold their final pre-season meeting on March 18 at 1:30 p.m. at the Azione Cattolica Club on 12 North St., Boston (North End).

Fr. Hal Furblur tells me that his Boston International team is currently working out each week at Brandeis. International passed up the Knock-out Cup this year so they could concentrate on winning the championship of the M.S.A.'s first division. Good Luck to you and your team, Father.

For the second time in as many years the Midwest Region Colleges and Universities produced more players selected in the NASL Collegiate Draft than any of the other five NCAA designated regions. The Midwest selections totaled fifteen or more than one-third of the forty-three players drafted and a record five of the fifteen played for NCAA Champion St. Louis University. In the first-ever NASL Draft in 1972, eleven of the thirty-five players drafted were from Midwest Region schools.

Ten of this year's draft selections hail from New York Region teams compared to six of thirty-five last year. The total of seven players chosen from the Pennsylvania, New Jersey - Delaware Region this year was identical to the number drafted in 1972. The South Region had six selections compared to five last year; the Far West Region had three selections each year and the New England Region dropped from three in 1972 to two this year.

Nearly two-thirds (26) of the forty-three players drafted this year played for independent teams. The Ivy League has proven to be the most productive league with four of its players selected in each year. The Mid-Atlantic League had three selections while the SUNY Athletic Conference of New York, the Southern California ISA and the Pennsylvania Conference each had two selections.

St. Louis University's five selections was a new record for the two-year old draft, surpassing Harvard University's three selections last year. Three schools, Southern Illinois (Edwardsville), the NCAA College Division Champion, Quincy College and the University of South Florida each boasted three players drafted. The University of Missouri (St. Louis), East Stroudsburg, Howard Univ., Cornell Univ., and N.Y.U., each had two players drafted.

Al Miller, who compiled an impressive record of 64 wins, 12 losses and two ties while with National contenders Hartwick College in New York, has been named the coach of the new Philadelphia franchise. Philadelphia has announced that it will play its home games at Veterans Stadium which is also the home of the Phillies and Eagles. Both Veterans Stadium and the new adjacent Indoor arena, the Spectrum, were built by Tom McCloskey, the owner of the NASL entry.

Philadelphia purchased Pennsylvaia All-American Forward Stan Startzell from New York.

New York purchased U.S. Olympic and Harvard All-American Goalkeeper Shep Messing from Montreal.

Toronto signed 1972 2nd team All-League Defender Brian Rowan and Portuguese Midfielder Fernando Pinto formerly of Sporting F.C. of Lison.

The Connecticut Wildcats of the American Soccer League have signed two players recently. They are Rick Scott, a fullback from Harvard and goalie John Scheffner, who is an assistant soccer coach at Easter Connecticut State College. Scott was named to the New England. All-Star team, as well as All-New England, All-Ivy and All-East teams.

New Enlistment Program by Coast Guard

The Coast Guard initiated a new enlisted program recently in an effort to keep up with the demand for qualified petty officers in the aviation rates.

This new program enables graduates of FAA certified aviation maintenance technician schools with an FAA mechanics certificate to be directly advanced to third class petty officers upon satisfactory completion of recruit training.

As a third class petty officer, your starting salary would be $355 a month, $55 flight pay, plus a quarters allowance, not to mention other service benefits such as medical and dental care.

All interested young men should call the toll free number, 800-424-8883 for the location of their nearest Coast Guard representative.

COMMONWEALTH OF MASSACHUSETTS
LAND COURT
Middlesex, ss.

To the Honorable the Judges of the Land Court for the Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

Respectfully represent Peter J. Menconeri and Catherine G. Menconeri of Newton, in the County of Middlesex and said Commonwealth; that they are owners of a certain lot of land with the buildings thereon, situate in said Newton, in the County of Middlesex and said Commonwealth, shown on a plan of land in Newtonville, dated June 14, 1929, E.S. Smilie, Surveyor and recorded with Middlesex Southern District Deeds, Book No. 5372, Page No. 538. Said parcel is bounded and described as follows: Northwesterly by said Lothrop Street in two courses measuring respectively twenty-six and 77-100 (26.77) feet and forty-eight and 23-100 (48.23) feet; Southwesterly by land now or late of Bertha S. Stratton one hundred nineteen and 70-100 (119.70) feet. Southeasterly by land now or late of Judkins seventy-five (75) feet; and Northeasterly by land of Trusell one hundred twenty-three and 81-100 (123.81) feet.

That the record title to said lot of land is clouded by a mortgage given by Jennie Guberman, to Nathan Weiss dated April 30, 1930, and duly recorded Book 5458, Page 1, purporting to secure a note for $1,500, payable in quarterly installments of $93.00 in or within four years from date with interest annually, which mortgage appears to be undischarged, unassigned and unforeclosed on and by the record.

That for more than twenty years after the expiration of the time limited for the full performance of said condition no payment has been made and no other act done in recognition of said mortgage; and

That the mortgagor named in said mortgage and those claiming under have been in uninterrupted possession of said land for more than twenty years after the expiration of time limited in said mortgage for the full performance of the condition thereof.

WHEREFORE your petitioner pray that after appropriate notices a decree may be entered on the foregoing allegations as authorized by Section 15, Chapter 240 of the General Laws as amended by Chapter 20, of the Acts of 1924.

Peter J. Menconeri
Catherine G. Menconeri

On this 2nd day of January 1973, personally appeared before me the within named Catherine G. Menconeri, Peter J. Menconeri known to me to be the signer of the foregoing petition, and made oath, that the statements therein contained so far as made of own knowledge are true and so far as made upon information and belief that believe them to be true.

PROBATE COURT

To Enrico J. Petrucci of Newton, and Goldstar Wholesale Nursery of Lexington in the County of Middlesex, Suffolk Franklin Savings Bank, Division Employment Security, and Crystal Coal & Oil all of Boston in the County of Suffolk, and Grossman Sons, Inc. of Braintree in the County of Norfolk and to all other persons interested.

A petition has been presented to said Court by Elia V. Petrucci of Newton in the County of Middlesex representing that she holds as tenant in common one undivided half part or share of certain land lying in Newton in said County Middlesex and briefly described as follows:

(1) A certain parcel of land now known as 121-123 Warren Street in Newton, Middlesex County, and being shown on a plan of land by E.S. Smilie, Surveyor, dated August 13, 1925, recorded Middlesex South District Deeds at end of Book 4890, and bounded and described as follows: SOUTHWESTERLY by Warren Street, seventy (70) feet; EASTERLY by land now or formerly of Della H. Willien, one hundred fifty (150) feet; NORTHERLY by land now or formerly of Della H. Willien, seventy (70) feet; and WESTERLY by land now or formerly of Alexander Montgomery, one hundred fifty (150) feet. Containing 10,500 square feet of land according to said plan. Being the same premises convey to Enrico and Elia Petrucci by Anthony W. Orlandella, M.D. and Elinor Rose Orlandella dated January 18, 1960, recorded in Middlesex South District Deeds Book 9540, Page 172.

(2) A certain parcel of land being the same shown as Lot 1 on a plan entitled "plan of Land in Newton Centre, Massachusetts, dated September 7, 1951, Everett M. Brooks, Co., Civil Engineers" and bounded and described as follows: SOUTHEASTERLY by land now of Enrico and Elia Petrucci seventy (70) feet; EASTERLY by land now or formerly of Sara S. Sigel and Horold H. Sigel one hundred thirty three and 5-10 feet (133.5 feet); NORTHERLY by land of Boston & Albany Railroad Co. seventy and 26-100 (70.26) feet; WESTERLY by land now or formerly of Alexander Montgomery one hundred twenty eight and 83-100 (128.83) feet. Containing 9228 square feet of land, more or less.

Setting forth that she desires that all of said land may be sold at private sale for not less than thirty-eight thousand dollars, and praying that partition may be made of all the land aforesaid according to law, and to that end that a commissioner be appointed to make such partition and be ordered to make sale and conveyance of all, or any part of said land which the Court finds cannot be advantageously divided either at private sale or public auction, and be ordered to distribute the net proceeds thereof.

If you desire to object thereto you or your attorney should file a written appearance in said Court at Cambridge before ten o'clock in the forenoon on the ninth day of Apirl 1973, the return day of this citation.

Witness William E. Hays, Esquire, First Judge of said Court, this sixth day of March 1973.

OLD TIME ST. PATRICK'S DAY

Boston College Sports Notes

Boston College's flying hockey team ripped past New Hampshire, 4-2, and Pennsylvania, 5-3, before bowing to Cornell, 3-2, in the finals of the ECAC Hockey Championships.

BC, 21-6-1 on the year, by virtue of its second-place finish in the East, advances to the NCAA championships, which begin today at the Boston Garden.

The Big Red from Cornell scored the only goal of the third period to turn back the Eagle charge and claim its fifth eastern title in the last seven years.

The game was knotted, 1-1 after the first period. Cornell broke a scoreless deadlock halfway through the stanza and held that margin almost till the end of the period when BC's Mike Powers blasted the equalizer after being set up by Harvey Bennett and Jimmy Doyle.

BC managed a brief lead at 16:17 of the second period when Richie Smith bagged a goal. Captain Bob Reardon got an assist.

Cornell, however, came back and 48 seconds later tied it up again on a score by Doug Marrett. That left it at 2-2 after two.

The Big Red's Bob Murray got the game winner at 7:38 of the last period on a power play, and BC spent the rest of the game trying to tie it.

The Eagles' goalie, Ned Yetten, had a fantastic tournament, and against Cornell made 49 saves.

The Eagles built a 2-1 lead against New Hampshire in the quarterfinals at McHugh Forum before moving to the Garden, but had to play superb defense to survive an upset.

Jimmy Doyle scored in the first period and Joe Fidler, who had a red-hot playoff series, stunned UNH with a blast at 17 seconds of the second stanza for BC's first two scores.

Ed Kenty, a burly, 6-4 wing, tallied at 18:17 of the third period to give BC an insurance goal and then came back at 19:34 when UNH had inched to within one again, to net the 76th goal of his BC career and tie a school record.

Yetten made 31 saves.

BC faced Penn in the semi-finals, a team which had stunned defending national champion Boston University in the quarterfinals.

But Penn's string had been played out, and although the Quakers played well and forechecked exceptionally, BC's slick passing attack and explosiveness up front took over for a 5-3 decision

It was 1-1 and then 3-1 BC when Penn let down and left goalie Tim McQuiston without much protection. McQuiston, who was great, made some incredible sprawling saves, but the Eagles kept getting opportunities.

Penn rallied to tie it at 3-3, but with 3:27 remaining in the second period, just as Penn netted the tying goal, Yetten was cracked into and cut.

At first it appeared as though his backup, Neil Higgins, would be inserted, but Penn coach Bob Crocker agreed to a request by Eagle mentor Len Ceglarski to play the remaining time at the start of the third period.

During the break Yetten was stitched up and Penn lost its momentum.

When the game resumed, BC scored almost immediately. Fidler notched his second goal of the game at 17:22 and at 19:57 former Needham High All-Scholastic Chuck Lambert iced the contest.

Earlier in the period Smith scored a goal to make it 2-1 and it went to 3-1 on Kenty's record-breaking 77th score.

\+ + +

There was no post-season action for Boston College's mediocre basketball team this season, but the Eagle hoopsters completed their regular season with a 78-76 overtime decision over Seton Hall.

Freshman Wilfred Morrison exploded for 28 points and scored the winning basket in the extra session, to propel the Eagles. Another freshman, Bobby Carrington, pumped in 18 points, and Dave Freitag tallied 14.

The erratic Eagles finished 12-14. — LEWIS FREEDMAN

Cinema Review: Sleuth

SLEUTH is distinguished and stylish, and it demands an audience which is appreciative, attentive and somewhat sophisticated. Sir Laurence Olivier and just plain Michael Caine are close to perfection under the direction of Joseph L. Mankiewicz in the British made film version of one of the decade's most successful stage plays.

There is constant, intense drama, a fascinating interplay of comedy and suspense, characterization which is handled with deft touches. Both Olivier and Caine play together so surely and proficiently that they might be pieces fitting in a jigsaw puzzle. It would be useless to contrast them.

On the surface, the plot is astoundingly simple. A famous and very conceited author of mystern stories (Olivier) invited his wife's lover (Caine) to come to his home for a conference. Both men are devoted to practical and cruel jokes. The jokes turn into tragedy, but not before both men score briefly and expose their own deficiencies.

To make the picture all the more intriguing, you learn quite a lot about the author's wife and his own mistress, but they don't appear on the screen.

Nuns Celebrate 100th Birthday

The Sisters of St. Joseph of Our Lady Help of Christians Parish, Newton, will commemorate the 100th anniversary of their congregation's founding in the Archdiocese of Boston with a special concelebrated liturgy in Our Lady's Church on Monday, Mar. 19, the Feast of St. Joseph, at 7:30 p.m.

A social with refreshments will be held in the parish high school auditorium immediately following the celebration of the Mass.

Special invitations have been extended to all present members of the congregation who have either served in Our Lady's Parish, or who entered the order from the parish, to participate in the program.

Members of the parish and all friends of the sisters have also been invited to join in the festivities.

The liturgy will be concelebrated by the clergy of the parish including the Rev. Msgr. John J. McManmon, the Rev. David G. Bonfiglio, the Rev. Robert Fichtner, the Rev. Leroy Owens and the Rev. Mr. Charles Kehoe, a member of the deacon class at Pope John Seminary, Weston.

The Sisters of St. Joseph have served in Our Lady's Parish since Aug. 20, 1930. Prior to that time, the Sisters of Charity of New Jersey had taught there for nearly 40 years.

At that time the grammar school was a four-story brick structure built in 1893. It has since been torn down and replaced by a modern two-story parish center and school.

The convent, built in 1892, has been enlarged and renovated since the arrival of the Sisters of St. Joseph.

The first group of Sisters of St. Joseph at Our Lady's included Sr. St. Elizabeth, superior; Sr. DePazzi; Sr. Marie Dolorosa; Sr. Genevieve Marie; Sr. Clara Marie; Sr. Francis Gerard; Sr. Francis Aurea; Sr. St. Bertha; Sr. Marie Carmel; Sr. Ignatia; Sr. Philemon; Sr. Althea; Sr. Eugene; Sr. Emma; Sr. Ruth; Sr. Consuelo; Sr. Marylena; Sr. Laura; Sr. Ellenita and Sr. Florina.

Of the nuns presently serving the parish, Sr. Mary Theodorine has been there the longest—35 years. Sister recently celebrated her 50th anniversary as a Sister of St. Joseph.

Bible Society Honors Dabney

The Rev. Dr. Vaughn Dabney of Newton, widely known former president and dean of Andover Newton Theological School, Newton Centre, will be honored for his long service to the Massachusetts Bible Society at its semi-annual luncheon meeting, Monday, Mar. 26, at Bible House, Bromfield St., Boston, beginning at 12:30 p.m.

Lewis M. Foster of Newton Highlands, society president, will make a presentation recognizing Dr. Dabney's long years of leadership. He was first elected to the board of trustees in 1941.

The society, now marking the beginning of its 164th year, is one of the oldest in the world.

Dr. Dabney, who served as president of the Andover Theological School and dean of the Andover Newton Theological School from 1931 until his retirement in 1954, has had a distinguished career as pastor, professor, arthor and administrator.

He received his bachelor's degree from Bethany College, West Virginia, in 1909; his divinity degree from Chicago Seminary in 1912; and completed graduate work at Andover Theological in 1914.

Prior to assuming the leadership at the theological school, Dr. Dabney held pastorates on the West Coast; in Durham, N.H., from 1916 to 1920, and was pastor of the Second Church, Congregational, at Codman Square in Dorchester until 1931.

He has always maintained a keen interest in the distribution of Bibles overseas, especially in Japan, and in 1947 was honored by Japanese Christian leaders who presented him with a certified New Testament which included a citation and hundreds of signatures including those of Emperor Hirohito and General Douglas MacArthur.

He and Mrs. Dabney made a world trip and visited Japan, where they were honored at Doshisha University, founded by Joseph Neesima, an Andover Newton graduate.

Unitarians Study World's Religions

An unusual series of Lenten lectures and presentations will be given at the First Unitarian Society in West Newton on Mar. 23 and 30, Apr. 6 and 13, Friday mornings at 10 a.m.

The parish minister, Reverend Polly Laughland, will lead the programs which will take a look at the background of the great religions of the world.

Emphasis of the series will not be as much on the detailed theological content as on attempting to get a sense of the beauty and universality of each religion. Some history, religious literature, music, poetry, and how significant ideas enhance our own understanding of life's rich diversity will be examined. Hinduism, Budism and Islam will be included, and films will also be used as well as discussion periods.

Rev. Laughland, in initiating this new series noted, "There are times when religion demands that we rectify social injustice, and there are times when religion justifies our need to withdraw, to contemplate, to seek an inner peace. There are times in all our lives when we require of religion an explanation of life's mysteries. As Unitarians, we can - and do - search broadly for answers to these perplexities."

The community at large is cordially invited to participate in this series and inquiries may be made at the church office, LA 7-3203, for further information. Babysitting will be provided upon request.

Pastor Aids Minorities

Dr. Gene Bartlett, pastor of the First Baptist Church in Newton, 848 Beacon street, Newton Centre, is a member of the National Campaign Committee of the Fund of Renewal which met at Valley Forge, Pa., recently.

The Fund of Renewal is a national campaign to support minority causes sponsored jointly by the American Baptist Churches and the Progressive National Baptist Convention.

Dr. Bartlett's committee has general responsibility for policy and operation of the fund, and will perform its duties through the establishment of several sub-committees or task forces.

Drawing Slated

A drawing will be held Wednesday, March 21, at 7:30 p.m. at Temple Emeth in South Brookline, according to an announcement made by Mrs. Murray Schoem of Newton for the B'nai B'rith Women and Men's Councils of Greater Boston.

Proceeds from the sale of tickets will be used to help supoort the B'nai B'rith.

Temple Reyim Hosts Kallah Weekend

The fifth annual Kallah weekend of study at Temple Reyim, Newton, on the theme "The Modern Jew Searches For His Identity", will be held March 30 and 31 and April 1.

Temple Reyim annually recalls the ancient Kallah tradition which, in the Talmudic period, was a time for laymen to gather at the academies to study with leading scholars. The Temple Reyim Kallah entails a full weekend of Shabbat services and three lecture and discussion sessions with a distinguished scholar. This year, the subject of problems and approaches in Jewish identification will be discussed by Dr. Avraham Holtz, dean of Academic Development of the Jewish Theological Seminary of America, and professor of Modern Hebrew Literature at the Seminary. The sessions will be held on Friday evening and Saturday and Sunday mornings of the Kallah weekend.

The Kallah study will be devoted to an in-depth analysis of the significant historical, social and intellectual factors which have radically transformed Jewish life since the eighteenth century, leading to contemporary problems and choices. The resurgent self-awareness and quest for Jewish authenticity among Jewish College youth and in the adult community will be examined. Dr. Holtz, a scholar in contemporary Jewish literature and thought both in the United States and Israel, will discuss the currents which are moving in both of these environments.

A graduate of the Seminary's Rabbinical School, Dr. Holtz was ordained in 1959. He is also a graduate of Brooklyn College of the City University of New York and of the Herzliah Hebrew Teachers Institute, and earned his doctorate in Hebrew Literature at the Jewish Theological Seminary in 1962. Rabbi Holtz has been director of the Israel Summer Seminar of Camp Ramah and, in 1969, as recipient of the Advanced Studies Fellowship of the Hebrew University, studied at the Seminary's Center in Jerusalem.

In previous years the Temple Reyim Kallah themes have dealt with the historical development of Jewish-Christian relationships, the conflict between prophetic and priestly traditions, the beliefs of modern Jews, the humanity of God, and the psychology of the prophet. As well as linking the modern Jew to an ancient tradition, these study weekends have been important contemporary experiences.

Working with Rabbi Philip Kieval, the Kallah committee is chaired by Mrs. Sylvia Apelbaum and includes Mrs. Charlotte Chipman, Mrs. Sally Green, Mrs. Clara Miller, Harry Perlmutter, Mr. and Mrs. Marshall Schneider, Dr. Theodore Singer, Dr. David Stollar and Mrs. Selma Waldstein.

The Kallah weekend is made possible by the sponsorship of Mr. and Mrs. George Chaletsky, Mrs. Lucille Cutler, Mr. and Mrs. Saul Goldweitz, Mr. and Mrs. Saul Kaufman, Mr. and Mrs. Morris Katz, Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Milton, Mr. and Mrs. Perlmuter, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Rosenshine, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Slater and Mr. and Mrs. David Wilson.

SABBATH SERVICE — Temple Emeth Nursery School stresses a program which fosters an awareness of life for 3 and 4-year-olds. The varied curriculum includes a weekly Sabbath party and service with Rabbi Marim D. Charry. Shown participating with the Rabbi (from left) are Adam Decter, Kenneth Devore, Stacey Millender and Joel Harvie.

Youths Tell All!

The Eastern Massachusetts Chapter, Americans for Constitutional Action, will present the Rev. Roe Brooks on Monday, Mar. 19, at 8 p.m. in the Newton Community Center, 429 Cherry street, West Newton.

Rev. Brooks is the New England Director of Campus Crusade for Christ, and will speak on the "Contemporary Student and His Problems."

He will introduce two students, one a former member of S.D.S. and the other an ex-drug user. They will tell of their experiences and how they found a solution to their hangups.

A question period will follow their presentations.

Young people are especially urged to attend and invite their friends.

Temple Readies For Feast Of Purim

Purim will herald in a fantastic weekend for young and old alike at Temple Beth Avodah beginning with the Sabbath service on Mar. 16 prepared by the younger congregants.

The service will be a creative tribute to those who perished in the holocaust. Rabbi Robert Miller will address the congregation with a sermon entitled, "Different Ways of Experiencing God."

Saturday, the Temple's youth group will hold a conclave to include workshops, drama, learning, music and communication. They will serve as hosts to youth groups from Providence, Peabody and Plymouth.

On Saturday evening there will be a Havdalah service to be followed by a reading of the Megillah by Rabbi Miller. Each time the name of Haman is read, the noisemakers will decry his evil ways. Queen Esther and Mordecai, on the other hand, will elicit applause and cheers.

Some of the children will dress in costumes, just to add to the carnival atmosphere. Naturally, hamantashen will be devoured and a good time will be had by all.

Purim is a holiday of fun and good cheer. Never are so many goodies eaten, never a festival so merry, for on this occasion, also called the Feast of Lots, the downfall of a tyrant is applauded as the Megillah-the Scroll of Esther-is read.

Basically the story unravels the triumph of virtue and good over the forces of false pride and evil. The Jewish bride of King Ahasuerus, good Queen Esther, is a neice of Mordecai.

Haman, a member of the king's court, is treated with great deference by all save Mordecai. Because of his irritation with Esther's uncle, Haman engineers a plot to have all the Jews within the kingdom killed.

Queen Esther reveals the plot to the king, Haman is punished, and good and peace prevail. So, from the tiniest child to the oldest person, the holiday of Purim is greeted with plays, mirth, noisemakers, and an extra special pastry made in the shape of the villain's three cornered hat, called "hamantashen."

Emily Kudish Works Displayed

Recent paintings by Emily S. Kudish of Waban are on exhibit at the Community Church Art Center, 565 Boylston Street, Boston, starting Saturday, March 17 and continuing through April 13.

A preview party will be held March 17 from 5 to 8 p.m. and all art lovers are invited to attend.

Mrs. Kudish, whose professional training and career was in the field of mental health had no formal education in the art field until she took it up as a hobby in later life. At that time she studied China Painting and later Non-Objective Painting.

Mrs. Kudish has exhibited with the Copley Art Society, the Cambridge Art Association, Scituate Art Association, and has had one-woman shows at the Cleveland Circle Gallery, in Boston City Hall Concourse Gallery and the Unitarian-Universalist Church in West Newton.

She is a member of the Scituate Art Association, the Boston Museum of Fine Arts, the Cambridge Art Association and the Copley Art Society.

A DIFFERENT LIBRA

Q. I have always read your Astrology column and wanted to write to you to ask about my daughter. She was born on September 28, 1927 at 5:45 p.m. in Brooklyn, New York. I would appreciate your answer much more than I could put into words. — L. S.

A. The horoscope calculated for the birth date supplied indicates one who is inclined to be very independent and likely to resent efforts on the part of others to influence her thinking or actions. Although she would prefer to live her life as she wishes, much depends upon others and their cooperation.

As a youngster she was probably very active, impulsive in action, daring and even at times may have been disrespectful to her elders or those in authority. Unlike many folks born when the Sun was in Libra, she is apt to find herself frequently involved in quarrels and the making of enemies which upset her equilibrium.

She was blessed with much energy but had to learn to control aggressive trends and an occasional display of temper. Cooperation is the keynote to success. Impatience with others or insisting upon having her own way is no way to win friends or influence others.

During the latter part of life there are indications that she could learn self-control. She has a sharp penetrating intellect, a keen desire to learn, to know and is anxious to find out things and experiment for herself.

There is considerable self-confidence and she is apt to take herself and capabilities seriously. Her feelings and instincts frequently influence her judgment which is at its best when she is relaxed and not under pressure or tension.

Rich States, Poor Cities

Virginia Payette says:

Not that it's anything new, but something seems to be slightly cockeyed in those screams of fiscal anguish from state and local officials over President Nixon's proposed cutbacks in social-welfare spending.

In many cases the bellows just don't jibe with the budget balances.

And, for the benefit of us perplexed taxpayers (already confused by the mumbo-jumbo of high government finance), it might be helpful if someone would explain why so many big-city mayors are pushing the panic button when:

(1) A Tax Foundation study projects a potential $13-billion SURPLUS in state and city budgets by 1975.

(2) At least 39 states have enough in their treasuries right now to cover planned spending without any help from new taxes.

(3) Half those states are even talking about reducing taxes.

(4) Thirteen states already have hefty surpluses.

Why, for instance, all this talk about "fiscal chaos" when so many governors, for the first time in many years, have sent budgets to the printers without ordering up any red ink?

California's Ronald Reagan says his state has a surplus "in the neighborhood of $850 million, which is a very nice neighborhood." He's thinking of ways to give some of it back to the taxpayers.

And yet Riverside, a city of 150,000 east of Los Angeles, says it is facing "a financial crisis of major proportions" because of the cutback in Federal funds.

New York, for the first time in many a taxpayer's memory, is expecting to wind up the year with money left over. Maybe as much as $500 million, according to some optimists.

And yet New York City, which had been counting on Federal money for jobs to keep 50,000 ghetto youngsters off the streets this summer, predicts "an absolute disaster" during the tension-filled months.

Other wealthy states (with surpluses from $21 million to $500 million) include Arkansas, New Mexico, Missouri, Mississippi, North Carolina, Utah, Wisconsin, Florida, Colorado and New Hampshire. Even West Virginia is losing its status as one of the poorest; it has a $20-million surplus.

More puzzling is the fact that a third of the governors are talking about reducing property taxes at the very time mayors are complaining that Mr. Nixon's "gigantic double-cross" in cutting back on Federal funds will be the death of city-financed programs.

Connecticut's governor proposed a cut in the sales tax, abolition of taxes on dividends, lower business taxes and property tax relief for elderly homeowners.

In New Jersey, where Newark, its biggest city, is supposed to be "bankrupt," the governor stuck to his no-tax-increase budget as "dramatic evidence that we can get along without a state income tax."

Confidence like this is in line with the Tax Foundation findings that (unless something unexpected happens) the 71,000 different state and local taxing bodies will take in about two and a half times as much money in 1980 as they did in 1970.

In dollars, that's a jump from $131 billion to $329 billion. It should cover the projected 144 per cent rise in spending (from $131 billion in 1970 to $320 billion in 1980), with a tidy nest egg of $9 billion left over.

So far, so good. Now if somebody will just explain to us why the governors are so rich and the mayors so poor . . .

Calorie-Conscious Cooking

By BARBARA GIBBONS

Why is it that the most glamorous skinnies attract fat companions? Salads, for example. A whole cupfull of greenery is less than 10 calories . . . by itself! But along with salads go salad dressings . . . at anywhere from 65 to 100 calories per level tablespoon! And who uses a level tablespoon?

What gives most salad dressings their scandalous calorie count is the high percentage of who-needs-it-oil — at a blubbery thousand calories a cupful! What really hurts is the realization that most salad oils don't have any flavor anyway, and their only function is to provide "pourability." Otherwise, how would you get the real flavor-makers out of the bottle and into your salad bowl!

If you'd like to beat the high cost — calorically — of salad oils, discover yogurt! Not the fattening sugared-up stuff that tries to palm itself off as diet food. (By now let's hope all Slim Gourmet cooks know that sweetened fruit-flavored yogurt is between 260 and 280 calories a cupful, about the same as a chocolate donut!) The yogurt we're speaking of is plain, unflavored yogurt — all the good dairy nutrition of the fattening stuff at less than half the calories!

Plain yogurt can add a special tang to diet-wise dressings. Here's a homemade casino-style salad dressing that's far superior to the bottled kind . . at one-fifth the calories:

CREAMY CASINO FRENCH DRESSING

½ cup bottled chili sauce or catsup
3 tablespoons vinegar
1 teaspoon yellow food coloring (optional)
½ cup plain yogurt
1 teaspoon salt (or garlic salt)

CREAMY ROQUEFORT DRESSING

1 cup plain yogurt
2 tablespoons vinegar
¼ teaspoon coarsely ground pepper
2 ounces Roquefort cheese

TANGY YOGURT "MAYONNAISE"

1 cup plain yogurt
2 hard-cooked eggs, peeled
1 teaspoon celery salt

Acupinch? It Works

We all of us, I suppose, know something about acupuncture. But how many of us know about "acupinch?"

Well, I learned about it through the horseshoe magnet, And John Calder of Laurel, Md., is the man who put me on to "acupinch."

The American Red Cross, however, didn't brush him off. The deputy national director of safety program wrote and said that Mr. Allen's claims had been reviewed with considerable interest by first aid and water safety staff and medical personnel, particularly in connection with aiding people who might get leg cramps while swimming.

"Although we have not found anything in medical literature to substantiate your claim," said the Red Cross letter, "our medical director indicated that muscle impulses may be reflexly interrupted as in the case of pressing a finger firmly beneath the nose to prevent a sneeze reflex."

One doctor in Atlanta has informed Mr. Allen that, using the acupinch method, he four or five times has been able to relieve spasms of the small muscles of the foot. But the rest of the medical profession has offered no encouragement—including the National Institutes of Health (NIH). One NIH member, however, wrote and said that the method has not worked for him, but had for his daughter.

Mr. Allen, in a statement published recently in the Atlanta Journal and Constitution, indicated he is absolutely sure of acupinch, but is well aware that many people think it's sort of nutty. After all, he says, it does seem sort of funny to be grabbing one's nose (although that's not exactly what you do) in order to relieve a leg cramp. But it's no funnier than pressing your finger under your nose to prevent a sneeze.

"However," says Mr. Allen, with a trace of anger, "the procedures are not alike. A sneeze is NOTHING, whereas leg cramps can be agonizing. Why, one lady wrote me that she used to scream with pain when they hit her!". Realizing that Mr. Allen is tolerant of skeptics, Mr. Calder wrote and asked whether if acupinch didn't work, it might be possible to wear magnets in their shoes to prevent foot cramps.

"I wouldn't want to sleep in such shoes," said Mr. Calder, "but I wouldn't mind wearing them out-of-doors if I were sure they wouldn't stick to manhole covers."

He hasn't had an answer from Mr. Allen, as yet.

Today's Story

by norton mockridge

Mr. Calder read my column about the lady doctor in England who found that she could eliminate leg cramps during the night if she slept on a simple magnet. This reminded Mr. Calder that about a year ago somebody put an ad in the Washington Star telling people what to do about leg cramps.

Seems that when you feel the cramp coming on you pinch the skin at the base of your nose and hold on for a while till the cramp, or threat of the cramp, goes away. The man asked, in his ad, whether people would try the method and let him know whether it worked.

Mr. Calder, rummaging in his desk, found the name and address of the advocate of "acupinch," a Milton F. Allen, P.O. Box 789, Decatur, Ga. (a former FBI agent incidentally) and sent him my column about the lady and the horseshoe. Of course, he also asked how Mr. Allen was doing pinching his nose.

"Just fine," wrote Mr. Allen. He says that whenever he feels a cramp coming on—and it's always at night when he's in bed—he applies the acupinch, and all is well. Here's the way he explians his method:

"At the first sign or notice of a leg muscle spasm—upon a change of position, or waking up and stretching, etc.—IMMEDIATELY compress the facial area above the upper lip next to the nose by a SUSTAINED, broad pinch (not painful). For best results, apply this surface pinch promptly with the ball or side of the thumb and the side the best forefinger for a few moments."

This works well for Mr. Allen, and the reason he took the ad in the Star was to find out whether it worked as well for others. The letters he's received from the paper (and from a few notices in other publications, show a 90 percent effectiveness. Ten percent of the responses, says Mr. Allen, were "negative or wishy-washy."

Doctors are not at all enthusiastic about Mr. Allen's acupinch. In fact, they really don't want to hear about it, he indicates. Nobody's told him he's a crank, nobody's told him to go chase himself—but nobody in the field of materia medica wants to witness a demonstration or give an evaluation.

Four Ways To Join Woman's Liberation

by Amy Vanderbilt

"Dear Miss Vanderbilt: I was shaken up recently by an article in Today's Health called Women: How Liberated Do You Truly Want to Be?' A women's liberation survey was included.

The 1st question was : 'Would you be willing to go out in public on a hot summer day without: A. Wearing make-up? B. Wearing stockings? C. Wearing a bra? D. Shaving your legs and underarms?'

"According to the author, Ellen Berman, M.D., you are fully committed to women's liberation if you circle all four.

"Now I don't mind the idea of going without stockings. And I agree with something you wrote that any woman who doesn't need to wear a bra is silly to wear one. As for make-up, I like it, and I know it gives me more self - confidence. And anyone who doesn't have to shave her legs is stupid to do so, but depilatories take off leg hair without too much trouble. As for not shaving under the arms, this is an old European idea. Latin men, in particular, think unshaven women are sexy.

"But the point of the article is that the 'committed woman' says 'My body is me.' 'Although she makes herself attractive,' the article goes on, 'she is not willing to go through uncomfortable beauty rituals for the sake of propriety or to conceal what her body looks like.'

"I don't know if you want to mix into this, but I think it gets into your field. — M.L.W., Hempstead, N.Y."

Let's take these things one by one. I can't see that refusing to wear make - up makes any woman more "committed" to the cause of women's liberation. If any woman has good clear complexion, naturally red lips, lustrous eyes and long eyelashes, she certainly doesn't need many of the cosmetic aids other women lean on. I would like to see less phony blond hair, but the tight make - up usually gives women a pleasant lift. Usually, too, it pleases their husbands (I know this is not supposed to count).

On wearing stockings, this is very much a matter of what one's legs look like. I know a woman who went barelegged all winter long and was covered with goose pimples. She made everybody else feel cold. Women with heavy veins would not only feel better with stockings (probably support) but could spare the public, which I think is rather important.

On wearing a bra, you have quoted me.

On shaving your legs and underarms, many legs that are merely downy could be left alone, but this is a matter of personal taste. Bushy underarms? Well, it just isn't part of the American woman's cultural pattern. Most women here want to conform to this, as it is considered good grooming in America.

It all boils down to this, I think: Are what the author calls "uncomfortable beauty rituals" all that uncomfortable? I think most women look forward to their beauty parlor appointments with pleasure and often relief. They come out feeling rested and more attractive — whether or not they really are more attractive makes no difference.

I think a man, too, who shaves, has his hair trimmed attractively, gives himself a manicure and improves his self - image certainly is more attractive to the general public. Post cards, please.

THE LAST BEER

"Dear Miss Vanderbilt: Every time my sons come home from college for a weekend, I can be sure they will empty the refrigerator of beer. I can be equally sure that if they have borrowed the car they have left it with just enough gas to get it started. And they certainly haven't emptied the ashtrays or had the car washed, although I always keep it in tip - top condition.

"By the time I hzve discovered their sins and omissions, they are several hundred miles away, and it is rather hard to cope with this by mail or phone. I am sure other fathers have the same and additional complaints. — G.D., Dallas, Texas."

We have the same trouble in our house. I find that once the children are out of college and established in their own households, suddenly they seem to understand what we are talking about. They have seen possessions taken care of, and when they get their own they tend to follow their parents' example. After all, by that time it is their money that is involved — and their pride.

(Amy Vanderbilt welcomes your letters and strives to answer all those of general interest in her column. Send your questions and comments to her in care of this paper.)

Nixon Finger Stays On The Bomb Button

President Nixon is keeping his options open, to resume the bombing of strictly military targets in North Vietnam, if its leaders fail to free all American prisoners of war by the March 28 deadline in the Paris peace pact.

Nixon has contingency plans all set, to be carried out at his command, if the North Vietnamese do not complete the prisoner releases as required in exchange for the withdrawal of all U.S. military personnel from South Vietnam.

"We have many plans and we try to stay ahead of the game in this regard," Adm. Thomas H. Moorer, chairman of the Joints Chiefs of Staff, assured House Appropriations Committee members at a recent closed-door hearing.

Moorer came close to confirming the widespread belief in Congress that it was with the relentless bombing of war-making facilities in Hanoi and Haiphong in December that the President finally drove the North Vietnamese back to the peace table for the final settlement in January.

"When the bombings were initiated, they were not negotiating," the admiral said, and he noted that they started talking again soon afterward.

A Republican member of Congress, who is close to the President, also said frankly but "not for attribution":

The December bombing by the B-52s was THE thing that drove Hanoi to the peace agreement. The President made an agonizingly tough decision. I don't think I could have done it. I was against it. But the North Vietnamese thought they could drag out the talks indefinitely and that Nixon had nothing else to do. He showed he had the power and the will to use it, despite the protests from around the world."

Moorer indignantly rejected the oft-repeated attacks upon the President for allegedly causing a heavy toll in civilian lives and damage to non-military targets by the "carpet-bombing" of Hanoi and Haiphong.

The truth is, the Admiral said, that a visitor touring Hanoi's business and housing areas today would see almost no destruction, because the bomb damage was chiefly confined to railroad yards, petroleum supply depots, surface-to-air missile sites, MIG airfields, and other military targets — and most successfully, too.

Eighty per cent of North Vietnam's electrical power capacity was bombed out and about 70 per cent of its petroleum supply.

Moorer estimated it would take a full year to repair all the damage. But he insisted there was "absolutely not" any attack on Hanoi or Haiphong like the indiscriminate World War II raids — for example, 100,000 civilians were killed in Hamburg, Germany, in a single night, whereas the Hanoi government itself claims 1,600 casualties in the December raids.

"This allegation that we are bombing cities is nonsense," Moorer said. "I cannot understand why it is that people in this country are so quick to accuse their own country of taking these kinds of actions, when they simply are not true . . .

"If we had chosen to destroy Hanoi and to carpet-bomb, there would not be any Hanoi today."

The Admiral also revealed that the North Vietnamese have thrown away the lives of 100,000 of their own soldiers in combat that began with their March 30 invasion of South Vietnam. That offensive was stopped cold by Saigon's ground troops with indispensable aid from U.S. air and sea power.

Moorer estimated that about 150,000 troops — about three-fourths of North Vietnam's army — are still in the South, mostly near the DMZ. Although the peace pact does not require them to withdraw, as President Thieu would have wished, Saigon's forces now seem strong enough to cope with them, Moorer indicated.

Guaranteed twice as long as any other economy car.

Every Volkswagen is guaranteed for 24 months or 24,000 miles.*

Most other economy cars are guaranteed only 12 months or 12,000 miles.

But don't take our word for it. Take our words for it:

*If an owner maintains and services his vehicle in accordance with the Volkswagen maintenance schedule any factory part found to be defective in material or workmanship within 24 months or 24,000 miles, whichever comes first (except normal wear and tear on service items) will be repaired or replaced by any U.S. or Canadian Volkswagen Dealer. And this will be done free of charge. See your dealer for details.

*Suggested retail price East Coast P.O.E. Local taxes, delivery charges, if any, extra. Model 111.

DAN BARRETT, right, of Herb Anderson VW presents Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Potter with 200 tickets to The Game. Herb Anderson VW of Route 1, Norwood, offered everyone who would "test drive" the new Volkswagen an opportunity to win 200 tickets to the game. All licensed drivers were eligible. Drawing of the lucky winner took place on Friday, February 28. Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Potter of 40 Walpole street, Norwood were the winners. Incidentally the Potters bought a new 1973 Volkswagen.

Master Mechanics Is On The Move 1980 Style

When you think of auto repairs in the Boston area, the organization you'll be thinking of is Master Mechanics.

The organization boasts of the finest service facilities for the '70s. They believe that treating customers in the gentlemanly manner is not only important, but a down - to - earth necessity. Mr. Gorsky states, "People want just to be treated fairly and honestly." All Master Mechanics personnel are carefully trained to always put the customers' interest first.

The opening sales of Master Mechanics, have amazed automotive men from Maine to California. Master Mechanics, by using the newest equipment in the automotive repair field and the latest concepts in merchandising, have catapulted Master Mechanics onto success and an example for the rest of the industry.

In spite of their tremendous growth, the basic concept of Master Mechanics has not changed one iota since their opening, and according to Arnold Gorsky, president of Master Mechanics, they never will. Quote Arnold Gorsky, "I want every customer to feel that he is important to us, and that everything we do at Master Mechanics is tailored in this direction." The two ingredients that Master Mechanics puts the most empaasis on, is one. . . Attitude toward the car owner. And two. . . Talent and teamwork. No man can do it alone. "I never lose touch with the fact that we are only as good as the talent around us, and as we continue to grow throughout New England, I must always be sure that my people are working effectively as a team."

Master Mechanics is one of the finest examples of individual and team effort in the automotive business today. Master Mechanics in spite of their tremendous growth and the pressures of big business, still finds time to be friendly and personable and has the unique ability to instill this feeling within the people who work for them.

Draft Board Registration To Continue

"Even though draft calls have ended, young men in our state will still have responsibilities under the law. The Selective Service local boards will continue to function," Victor C. Bynoe, Massachusetts State Director of Selective Service, announced today.

Mr. Bynoe said that the Selective Service Act will still require young men to register at age 18 and that local draft boards will continue to process some of these young men in order to have a "readily available pool" in the event of a national emergency. Bynoe added that this standby role for Selective Service becomes effective without the requirement of any new legislative action by Congress.

The State Director said that the standby role for Selective Service would result in a reduced level of operation across the country. Bynoe said that the current year's budget for the System on a national basis would be curtailed by as much as 34 per cent in the upcoming fiscal year. Assuming approval of these funds by Congress, a substantial reduction in the number of paid Selective Service employees will be required.

The total reduction will be from approximately 7,300 employees nationwide to 4,300 employees. "These reductions must be accomplished nationwide by December 31," Mr. Bynoe said, "and the reductions will result in uniformly reduced staffing levels for all states."

College Dramatists Stage New 'Tartuffe'

The Newton College Drama Club will present Richard Wilbur's version of "Tartuffe" by Moliere on Mar. 22 and 23 at 8 p.m.

The dramatic production, to be staged in the Quonset Theatre on the Centre Street campus, is open to the public. General admission will be available at the door.

The well-known French comedy proved to be a popular success when it was first performed at Newton College in 1968.

The central character in the play is a rich bourgeois named Orgon, who in middle age has become a bigot and prude. By affecting sanctity, Tartuffe, a wily opportunist and swindler, gains complete ascendancy over Orgon, who not only turns over his fortune but offers his daughter in marriage to his "spiritual" master. Only when he actually witnesses Tartuffe's attempt to seduce his wife does Orgon come to his senses.

Richard Wilbur, a professor of English at Wesleyan University, has been awarded the Pulitzer Prize, the National Book Award and the Edna St. Vincent Millay Memorial Prize. "Tartuffe" won him a share of the Bollingen Translation Prize in 1963 for the best translation of poetry into English.

Newton College students with featured roles in the production are Shawn McGivern, Elizabeth Regan, Penny Collins, Joanne Capolupo, Cathy Crowley and Ijeoma Onwenu. The play is being produced under the direction of Frank Dolan, instructor in drama at Newton College and president of the Screen actors Guild, New England Local.

Auerbach Speaker

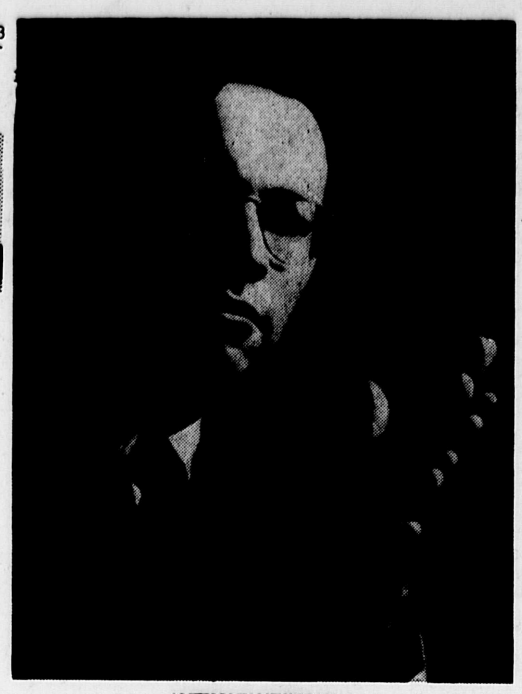
Red Auerbach, general manager of the Boston Celtics, will be the guest speaker at a breakfast of the Beverage Team of the Combined Jewish Philanthropies of Greater Boston Sunday at the Sidney Hill Country Club at 9:15 a.m.



ANTHONY NEWMAN

Bach's Birthday Concert Wednesday

The 288th anniversary of Johann Sebastian Bach's birth will be celebrated with an all-Bach Harpsichord Concert performed by Anthony Newman at Newton College at 8:30 p.m. on March 21.

The public is invited to attend the concert which will be held in the College at 8:30 p.m. on March 21.

The public is invited to attend the concert which will be held in the College Chapel on the Newton College campus at 885 Centre St. Dr. Newman's performance marks the major opening event in a five-day Spring Festival of the Arts at Newton College from March 21-25.

Dr. Newman's program will include Partita in B Minor, The Well-Tempered Clavier, and Chromatic Fantasy and Fugue in D Minor.

The renowned young musician mastered the complete works of Bach before he was twenty, and played them in nine recitals at Newton College between 1965 and 1967. Now 31, he is a member of the faculty at the Juilliard School of Music in New York City, a musician in residence at Dartmouth College and also a member of the staff of SUNY (State University of New York), Purchase Campus.

His gifts as a performer earned him a Columbia Records contract in 1967 and dazzled the New York critics at a recital in 1971 (wrote the Times: "A keyboard technician of staggering facility, on the scale of Horowitz").

Students Perform In Modern Morality Play

The Cambridge School is about to present "Seven Deadly Virtues," a modern morality play about the forces of good and evil by Ronald Duncan.

Students will perform on Wednesday and Thursday, Mar 14 and 15, at 7:30 p.m. This play was first performed at the Criterion Theatre, London, on May 19, 1968.

Performances will take place in the French Gymnasium at the school and admission is $1.50.

Bill Narva of Chestnut Hill will play "Dr. Satan" in the production.

Country Players Complete Casting

The casting of three veteran performers has filled the complement of actors for the Newton Country Players' annual children's show, a merry musical ghost story entitled "Gabriel Ghost."

The mirthful and new suspense melodrama for youngsters of elementary school level, with book by Peggy Simon and Sue Lawless, lyrics by Peggy Simon and music by Phil Gilbert, floats through one hour of spoof and spookery. The entire production is being staged and directed by Daniel Kosow of Chestnut Hill.

A limited number of dates remain open for programming to sponsor groups and theatre parties interested in fund raising. Weekend bookings are available from Apr. 8 through May 6, either as a "road show" or for performances at Pomroy House, 84 Eldredge St., Newton, where seating capacity approximates 175.

A first year member with the Players, Robert Reed of Newton Centre, has already essayed the roles of Moonface in "Anything Goes" and Bob Stein in "And Miss Reardon Drinks a Little." In "Gabriel Ghost," he is co-cast as the master magician, Count Chive Oregano.

Recently, he repeated the part of Moonface as well as directed the Wheelock College production of "Anything Goes." A math instructor at Meadowbrook Junior High School, he directed the school mountings of "The Boyfriend" and "The Music Man."

He received his B.S. in Mathematics at the University of Massachusetts and a masters degree in education at State College of Boston. His impromptu stints at local night clubs of impressions of musical comedy stars are legendary.

A junior at Emerson College, Joe Colella of Newtonville, is co-featured as Sir Gramercy Ghost. In November, he doubled as a reporter-purser in "Anything Goes" and, last spring, as Slick Steve in "Gold in the Hills." He worked also as the Players' set construction chief in "Everything in the Garden."

Previous credits include the roles of Kit Carson in "Time of Your Life" and a teenager in "We Bombed in New Haven," both for Newton Junior College.

Also dual cast as Sir Gramercy Ghost is John Deming of Newton Highlands, fresh from his directoral triumph with the Players' midwinter mounting of "And Miss Reardon Drinks a Little."

Last spring, after a lapse of four years, Deming returned "to the boards" as the villain Richard Murgatroyd in the new nineteenth century musical melodrama "God in the Hills," a character not dissimilar to the one he portrayed in his initial outing as an eighth grader. He acted in or directed approximately 15 plays while an undergraduate at Marietta College, Ohio, where he received a B.A. in public speaking, drama and English in 1966.

He received a master of science degree in speech pathology and audiology at Emerson College last year and, in addition, has taken extension courses at the Universities of Maryland and Vermont.

Deming's ever-varying characterizations include Red Chief in "Ransom of Red Chief," a messenger in Anouilh's "Antigone," the butler in "Importance of Being Earnest," Charlie's aunt in "Charlie's Aunt," Angel Gabriel in "Green Pastures," a member of the wedding in "Blood Wedding" and Gregis Werle in "Wild Duck."

He also essayed the roles of John Proctor in two separate versions of "The Crucible," Father in "Six Characters in Search of an Author," Valentine in "Love for Love," Arnold in "Ghosts," Richard in "Ah Wilderness," W.O. Gant in "Look Homeward Angel," the title role in "Richard III," Bottom in "Midsummer Night's Dream," Young Man in Gertrude Stein's "Brewsie and Willie," Darcy in "Pride and Prejudice," Husband in "Rashomon," Charlie Reader in "The Tender Trap," Ernest in "Impromptu," Truffeldino in "Servant of Two Masters" and Grandma in "The Sandbox."

Among the players he has directed are "Antigone," "Remarkable Incident at Carson Corner," the musical "Sky High," "Ten Little Indians," "12 Angry Men," "Impromptu," "A Trophy for Mr. Heartfelt," "The Marriage Proposal" and "The Lottery."

President of the Players, Mrs. Sandra Deming of Newton Highlands, announced that openings remain in backstage and technical areas of the production. Those interested are requested to phone 969-3993 or meet at Pomroy House week nights from 7-9:30 p.m. For further data regarding theatre party sponsorship, call Jim Sloane at 969-2665 or write to P.O. Box 9, Newton Centre, 02159.

Plays for children previously produced by the Players include "The Sleeping Princess," "Mr. Popper's Penguin," "The Tale of the Donkey" and last season's award-winning "Sam Stiller, Private Eye."

Now in their 17th year of community theatre activity, the Newton Country Players are a non-profit, philanthropic association comprised of local residents, who, as an avocation, are actively engaged in the development, expansion and assistance of theatre activity on community and educational levels.

Kids Stage Two Hits

Claflin School first graders had a very busy week just before school closed for February vacation when they rehearsed and presented two plays in honor of Valentine's Day and Human Relations Week.

Following is the cast of the first play entitled "Court of Hearts" writen by Leslye Diffin: the King, Ivan Zalkind; the Queen, Monica Wing; the princess, Lisa Jones; the Prince of Diamonds, Mark McGonagle; the Prince of Hearts, Noel Zeek; the Knave, Kenneth Haller; ladies in waiting, Ellen Gardener, Stephen O'Brien; the heralds, Robert Mazoff, David Clark; the head cook, Gregory Becker; the fairy godmother, Rebecca Busansky; suitors to the princess, Michael Herlihy, Mark Spin and James Maloney.

The entire class took part in the second play, "Good Neighbors" by Selma Williams Herman.

Prior to Human Relations Week the class was exposed to such great neighbors as Ben Franklin, Martin Luther King and George Washington Carver. The students made peanut butter cookies which they shared with other first graders and children from the kindergarten.

The children sang several songs in connection with their programs including "One Man's Hands," "A Wonderful, Wonderful World," "A Child Is Black," "It's American," and the Coca Cola theme song.

All the parents were actively involved in making the program a success. Some made beautiful costumes, and others made tasty treats, including cherry tarts, for the Valentine's Day party and post - performance celebration.

Mrs. Costa, first grade teacher, expressed sincere thanks to all who contributed to the program.

Creations Exhibited

An exhibition of paintings and "Papier Tole" creations by Dorothy M. Adelman of Newton is currently in progress in the Art Gallery of the Hebrew Rehabilitation Center for the Aged, 1200 Centre Street, Roslindale. The exhibit is free and open to the public daily from 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. and will continue through the month of March.

Mrs. Adelman studied at the Forsythe Art School and with numerous New England artists. She has also been teaching classes in the medium called "Papier Tole" and many of these works are included in the exhibition.

Mrs. Adelman was a volunteer art teacher in Boston Public Schools and is a past president of Oak Hill Chapter of Hadassah. She is married to Henry Adelman, a Boston engineer. They have three children.

All Music School Plans Scholarship Aid Concert

On Friday, Mar. 16, at 8 p.m., Boston Symphony Orchestra principals, Harold Wright, clarinet, and Burton Fine, viola, with Phyllis Moss, piano, will present the first in a three concert series to benefit the All Newton Music School Scholarship fund.

The program will include three pieces from Opus 83 by Bruch, Sonata No. 1 in A Minor by Schumann, and Trio, k. 498 by Mozart.

Series tickets are $12.50 for adults and $10.50 for children. Single tickets are available for $5 and $4 respectively for adults and children. They may be obtained at the door.

A champagne reception for patrons, sponsors and performing artists will be given following the May 6 concert.

For information and reservations please call 527-4553, 527-0102 or 527-6475.

Art Classes Are Free

The Newton Creative Arts Center Saturday morning free art classes for fifth and sixth grade students will begin again at the Murray Road School on Saturday, Mar. 17, and will meet for nine Saturdays.

Activities will consist of drawing, painting, sculpture, printing, and other interesting and worthwhile things. The master teacher will be Kenneth Roberts, teacher at the Mason-Rice School and director of the Newton Creative Arts Center, Summer Session.

He will be asisted by four high school students who are art majors and have special areas of competence.

Class will meet from 9 to 11 a.m. There is no tuition but students are asked to bring a dollar a week to pay for supplies and equipment. There will be field trips to art galleries and museums in addition to regular art classes.

Parents of any fifth or sixth grade student who would profit from these classes should call the Art Department, Division of Program, 969-9810, to reserve a place. The class can accommodate 30 students and priority will be given to those who call first.

Masons Host Needham Guest

The next meeting of the Newton Masonic Club will be Wednesday, March 21 at 1:30 p.m.

Gustav F. Becker of Nehioden Lodge and the Needham Retired Men's Club will be the speaker of the day and present a slide progarm of his motor trip to the Great Plains, Dakota Badlands and the Rockies.

The Masonic Music Men will sing.

On Dean's List

Stephen F. Fusi, son of Mrs. Ellen C. Fusi of 174 Oliver Rd., Waban, has been named to the president's honor list for outstanding academic achievement during the first semester at Wentworth College where he is a mechanical engineering major.

Tickets To Play Now Available

Richard J. McGrath, chairman of the Newton Democratic City Committee's party committee, has announced tickets are available for the April 7 performance of "The Crucible."

The play will be presented in the Spingold Theater at Brandeis University.

Newton Centennial 1873 - 1973

VOL. 103 NO. 12 NEWTON, MASSACHUSETTS, THURSDAY, MARCH 22, 1973 PRICE FIFTEEN CENTS

Taxes Climb Despite Million Dollar Cuts

By CYNTHIA BLACK

Aldermen were near the finish line at 2 a.m. Tuesday when they adjourned hearings on the 1973-74 city budget.

The 18-month $88 million budget originally submitted last month by Mayor Theodore D. Mann has been pared to about $84.7 million through last minute cuts by Mann, the more than $1 million in proposed cuts made by the Aldermanic Finance Committee, and an agreement to bond for the additional $3 million in teachers' salaries that must be paid during the extended fiscal cycle.

Current estimates are for a $8.40 tax rate increase, down from the original estimate of $16 per thousand. The drop can be attributed to an approximate savings of $9 per thousand because of teacher salary bonding.

Budget deliberations began last Saturday at 9 a. m. Aldermen had completed work on accounts numbered 10-0 through 51-0 when they adjourned at 6 p.m. Saturday. Monday, they agreed to meet at 6 p.m.; and by 2 a.m. Tuesday, they had agreed on budgets through number 72-3. A meeting will be held next Monday night (March 26) and it is expected the budget will be approved in its entirety.

The final account number is 80 - 3.

Finance Committee Chairman Ald. Sidney T. Small, presenting his committee's report, noted that the Finance Committee had been helped in many instances with their work by the recommendations of the aldermanic Public Works and Public Buildings Committees and in most cases had agreed to the cuts recommended by the other committee members.

Most of the sizeable deletions were, predictably, made in the Public Works and related departmental budgets.

The other matter causing considerable debate was the merits of bonding for teachers' salaries.

The 18-month budgetary cycle has imposed one additional problem on local units of government, specifically the need to provide teachers' salaries from January, 1973 through August, 1974, or 20 months instead of 18.

According to teachers' contracts, they have the option to be paid on a 12-month or 10-month basis. If they choose the 10-month option, they can collect their summer salaries in June.

In Newton, this means an additional $3 million appropriation, or, approximately $9 on the tax rate.

The State Legislature this month passed a bill allowing cities and towns to bond for the sum of money that falls into this category, and Mann, with School Committee consent, asked that $3 million be deleted from the School Department budget and bonding be used.

Presenting the Finance Committee's affirmative recommendation, Ald. Small said the bond would be for a three-year period at a maximum interest rate of four per cent. He said aldermen had "no choice," either they left the sum in the budget, or they bonded.

"It would be different if this was going to be a recurring situation," Small said. "In this case it makes sense to take advantage of spreading the payments out over three years."

Alderman Peter Harrington charged the question was really "political" because it involved a sizeable tax increase.

"This situation is a one-shot deal," Harrington said. "It seems to me that if we bond, we will be paying in the future for services rendered in the past."

"You can't hit them (the taxpayers) with nine more dollars!" Ald. Edward Uehlein exclaimed. "You'll drive them right out of the city!"

Harrington suggested the $2.9 million surplus the city has from 1972 be used to offset the expense.

Alderman Alan Barkin replied sarcastically, "I think we have to be careful with what we do with the surplus. The likelihood of the 'cherry sheet' doing a fantastic job on this city is a good one."

Board members voted 20-3 in favor of bonding for the $3 million, and approved the School Committee budget.

Aldermen were also reluctant to grant raises to some city department heads, including City Solicitor Melvin J. Dangel and Acting Director of Public Works Richard A. Dudman.

Dangel's raise was approved

—STATE REDISTRICTING PLAN—

Newton Legislative Districts "Obviously Gerrymandered"

Claiming Newton has been carved up into new districts more for the political interests of its four state representatives than for the people that elect them, the city's aldermen voted this week to send their official "objection" to Beacon Hill.

The redistricting is being conducted statewide and in the 1974 election, 38 current representatives will fight among themselves to represent their new districts. Not so in Newton where each current representative, according to the state committee's plan, will avoid political infighting in his or her home city.

Labeling the proposed Newton districts "obviously gerrymandered" aldermen voted 19 to 4 to transmit their opposition in resolution form to the Legislative Redistricting Committee.

At the regular meeting of the Board of Aldermen, sandwiched between two budget deliberation sessions Monday, members of the board voiced their displeasure with the current proposed district lines and indicated there is an alternative plan.

About 30 residents attended a special meeting at the home of Alderman Richard J. McGrath Sunday to go over the redistricting plan, which divides the Ward 4 Auburndale section of Newton among three representatives and various parts of wards 2, 5, 6, 7 and 8 between two representatives.

McGrath indicated Monday that further meetings on this issue would be scheduled so residents and the four state representatives involved could discuss alternatives.

During debate on the resolution Monday night, Ward 4 Alderman-at-large Louis Egelson said he thought Auburndale residents "are aware of the rather unfortunate results" of the redistricting plan.

"I'd like to hear the rationale behind it," Egelson stated. "Was it done strictly so that all of the present legislators could have a piece of the city? Is it in the best interests of the people they represent?"

Calling the plan the product of "rather distinct gerrymandering," Egelson went on to say he thought it was "very unfortunate that any neighborhood should be divided up the way this one has."

"It's a good thing the Supreme Court is working on the abortion question," Alderman Sidney T. Small responded, "because this is the worst abortion I've every seen."

A number of people contend that the new district lines, creating four single member districts to replace two two-member districts, were drawn to accommodate the current four state representatives. Both State Representatives Peter F Harrington and Paul Guzzi live in Ward 2 and State Representatives Lois G. Pines and David Mofenson live in Ward 5.

Harrington and Pines serve as aldermen and state representatives.

Facing is charge during the debate, Harrington said he felt the "prime consideration" in this issue should be "keeping the city of Newton together and preserving the small population variance between districts."

Acknowledging that he and Guzzi live in the same ward, he said this was a consideration when the district lines were drawn.

"There has been no mandate from the people that Paul Guzzi and I must run against each other," Harrington said. "I think this plan is entirely within the confines of morality. The people of the 12th Middlesex

Incinerator Worker Demands Go To Special Aldermanic Session

Striking employees of the city incinerator returned to their jobs Wednesday morning after being told the mayor had called a special meeting of the Board of Aldermen to consider their demands

The men walked off the job last Monday at 8 p.m. demanding inclusion in the state's Heart-Lung Act. The state law increases the disability payments of men with job-related heart or lung disease.

Public Works Commissioner Richard A. Dudman appeared before the stormy meeting of Local 800 to explain the mayor's actions and urge them to place pressure on the aldermen for a vote of approval.

The state legislature needs the approval of both the mayor and aldermen before it will consider granting coverage to the city employees.

Dudman told the men "the mayor is committed to the lung portion of the two-sided legislation, but will not veto aldermanic approval of both the lung and heart provisions."

The workers then voted 13-8 to return to their jobs immediately and await aldermanic action at the special meeting tonight at City Hall. Five of their members were not present to vote.

The union members, claiming they were reassured during collective bargaining last year efforts would be made to have them included under the law, walked off their jobs to request a "mass transfer" to the Auburndale Street city yards where they conducted their vote yesterday.

Robert Hann, vice president of the local told the members he would "pull the whole city out" if the legislation is not approved at the special meeting.

Local President Lou Ruffo then voiced the motion to return to work in such a way as to give the workers a chance to also vote for another walkout if their demand is not met by the aldermen.

He also presented the union membership with a list of home and office telephone numbers for each alderman and told them "to put the pressure on."

The eight men voting not to return to the incinerator offered an alternative "good faith" proposal but were shouted down by their fellow workers.

The proposal would have opened the facility sufficiently to allow the dumping of rubbish but no burning would be allowed.

The workers returned to their jobs as soon as the vote was announced, but not before they were asked by Ruffo to continue to maintain a united front and keep up their faith in his leadership.

Revaluation Bids Come In

Real estate revaluation bids were opened in the office of Assessor Milton Manin last Friday at noon, but selection of a firm will wait until the Board of Aldermen has had an opportunity to examine the bids.

The City is currently under a court injunction forbidding the mailing of any tax bills until all property has been revalued to reflect "full and fair market value."

Judge Henry M Chmielinski of the Middlesex Superior Court imposed the order as the result of a taxpayers' suit against the City.

Bids were received from five of the six firms invited to participate by former Assessor J. Philip Berquist and Manin.

In a memorandum to Mayor Theodore D. Mann, Manin recommended acceptance of the bid submitted by Cole-Layer-Trumble, Inc., of Portland, Maine.

The firm was second lowest bidder for the revaluation project, offering to do the job for $10,000 more than the lowest bidder, Whipple-Magane-Darcey, Inc. of Andover.

In making his recommendation, Manin stated that the low bidder was currently involved with the revaluation program for Worcester.

"I feel there might be a conflict of man power and material detrimental to the interests of our City," wrote Manin, who also indicated that the current injunction could pose some problems in addition to those of attempting to revalue two cities at the same time.

Cole-Layer-Trumble has offered to do the job for $345,000.00. Whipple-Magane-Darcey submitted a bid for $335,000.

Highest bidder was the United Appraisal Company of East Hartford, Connecticut. It topped the list with an estimate of $499,100.

United offered to reduce its price if the City would drop a requirement for photographs of each piece of property and assessment of personal property of individual professionals within the city.

The two remaining bids were for $350,400 from the J.M. Cleminshaw Company, Cleveland, Ohio, and for $365,335 from the Jacobs Company, Inc., Oak Brook, Illinois.

Cleminshaw also stipulated that its bid must be accepted before May 1 of this year.

Police Chief Unhappy on Crime Story

Newton's Police Chief has expressed disappointment over an article published earlier this week in a Boston newspaper, in which an analysis was made of crime in the Garden City during 1972.

Chief William F. Quinn commented that the story, though containing no real factual errors, was significant more for what it omitted than what it contained. He felt that not enough had been mentioned regarding "prominent steps" Newton has taken to curtail criminal activities; instead, the article played up a few statistics.

"I was available for more interviews," said the chief, "either in person or on the telephone." He granted a single interview with one reporter lasting about 15 or 20 minutes, and had been told that further queries would be forthcoming. Instead, the article hit the

Harrington Backs Right To Know Law

State Representatives Peter F. Harrington and Lois G. Pines (D-Newton) have urged the state legislative Committee on Local Affairs to strengthen the right of citizens to public information by further restricting executive sessions.

Pending House Bill 4549 proposes executive sessions shall not be held on any day on which a regular meeting is scheduled and no formal action or vote of any kind shall be taken within 12 hours of the close of any such executive session.

In support of the bill Harrington charged, "In direct violation of the spirit and often the letter of the executive session law, many authorities, administrative and other governmental bodies call their regularly scheduled meetings together and adjourn to executive session for no other reason than to exclude the public. After executive session they announce their votes and close their formal meetings."

"The question here," Harrington added, "is one of 'open' versus 'secret' government. It is a question that concerns the freedom of information about government affairs in a democratic society."

Harrington concluded his remarks before the committee by reiterating his belief that local governmental bodies are depriving citizens of information they are entitled to know.

Mountain Trek Begins And Ends Daily In West Newton

By LEN BATEMAN

How does the "Last Whole Earth Catologue" and the current Jesus movement relate to the story of a black, sharecropper family in Mississippi during the early years of this century?

In the minds of several fourth-grade students they came very close indeed in a book written by the Rev. James Streeter Jr. of West Newton.

"Home Is Over The Mountain-The Journey of Five Black Children" is based on the real life experiences of its author when he was an eleven-year-old boy enveloped by the love of his father, "The Big Preacher," his mother, Tanna, and several brothers and sisters.

It is easy to see love has never left the Rev. Streeter as he graphically portrays his family attempting to eke out an existence on a land barren as the moral sensitivity of their white landlord.

Victimized daily by the growing onslaught of Jim Crowism, the backlash of Reconstruction, the Streeters are sustained by an abiding faith in the Lord and in themselves.

Finally driven to a violence lesser men would have given into much sooner, "The Big Preacher," is forced to take his wife and flee over the mountains into Tennessee. Time and the avenging landlord, Al Hill, would not even permit the taking of their most cherished possessions-five children now forced to fend for themselves.

"The Big Preacher's" only crime was striking out at the man whose advances had been spurned by Tanna.

His punishment was separation from his remaining children. Reality had already forced him to send seven other children to a "more prosperous" brother in Texas.

When Al Hill returned with his henchmen to the cabin where the children were huddled for prayer and warmth, he harassed them to the point where they too took to flight.

The author lead his brothers and sisters on a journey best appreciated through the eyes of fourth-grade children for whom the book was written.

"I felt like I was on the journey with them," stated one student attesting to Rev. Streeter's ability to relate events, even those long past, in a manner both facile and identifiable.

Another student was deeply impressed with the faith of the entire Streeter family, and almost all expressed a feeling of sadness over the physical hardships and almost all expressed a feeling of sadness over the physical hardships and psychological indignities heaped on them during their struggle through the mountains of winter.

But none of the children placed the recounted deprivations in the context of the black experience. They were, instead, interested and drawn to the more basic human conditions of love, faith and closeness to nature.

And, in the simple ways of all children, they expressed the author's truths in the symbols most familiar to them.

The love and faith of the Streeters they also find in the Jesus people. The family's experiences in communion with nature they find, unfortunately, only in the pages of the counter-culture encyclopedia of the earth and its vast richness.

Some may find fault with the young readers' lack of empathy for the black experience, but a visit with the books author makes one realize that the children were reading him and not just his book.

From his exuberant handshake of welcome to his fervant "God Bless You" of farewell, it is evident that the Rev. James Streeter Jr. is hopelessly in love with the human race-all of it.

It is also very evident that the

Newton Reps Urge Birth Control Action

State Representative David J. Mofenson and his colleague, Lois G. Pines, recently appeared before the joint legislative Committee on Social Welfare in support of their respective bills on contraception.

House Bills 3549 and 3550, sponsored by Mofenson, and House Bill 3492, sponsored by Pines, would allow physicians to prescribe or administer drugs or articles for the prevention of unwanted pregnancies.

Representative Mofenson told the joint committee, "If contraceptive technology has contributed to relaxed sexual norms, it is but one of the many technologies which have done so."

Automobiles, television, movies and popular magazines are just as responsible, according to Mofenson, and it is just as unreasonable to deny contraception as to eliminate these other causes of the new morality.

"It is time for the Great and General Court to face the realities of the 20th Century and to join the other 39 states which have taken strong affirmative steps to prevent the tragedies ensuing from unwanted teenage pregnancies," he concluded.

Representative Pines told the committee that present laws are clearly inadequate to prevent increased sexual activity among minors.

"Present laws, instead, have resulted in unwanted pregnancies," she said, and, "85 per cent of unmarried teenage mothers must accept public welfare."

Representative Pines was also before the Social Welfare Committee to argue for enactment of a measure sponsored by her, the Massachusetts Department of Public Health, Representatives Thomas W. McGee (D-Lynn) and Louis Bertonazzi (D-Milford).

The proposed bill would allow the Department of Public Health to regulate ambulance services, require specific training of emergency medical technicians and establish a communications network to remedy the present emergency health care inadequacies in Massachusetts.

According to Pines, "Only five per cent of the nations ambulance attendants met even the minimum standards of training recommended by the American College of Surgeons, the National Academy of Sciences or federal government."

"People are dying because of organizational problems, inadequate training of ambulance personnel, the lack of coordinated planning, and inadequately equipped vehicles. The people of Massachusetts need an emergency health care system, and they need it now," exclaimed Newton's female representative.

Representative Pines returned to the Social Welfare Committee hearing room the following day to lend her support to a bill filed by Representatives Jonathon L. Healy (R-Charlemont) and Senator Jack H. Backman (D-Brookline).

The bill would enable carefully selected inmates to leave their correctional institutions to address civic organizations, principally youth groups, in an effort to deter youth from crime.

The bill is an extension of the successful "Project Youth," begun on June 1, 1967 at Norfolk State Prison. It was organized to enable school and civic groups to visit inside the prison.

According to Representative Pines, "Project Youth", while successful, is limited in scope. Only a small number of students can hear the inmates' bill for equal distribution of prison.

The proposed bill would allow an even greater number of students to hear the selected inmates.

"More than one hundred Massachusetts High School principals have requested that such a program be instituted in their schools, explained Representative Pines.

She was also on hand at a hearing of the legislative Taxation Committee, of which she is a member, to support her bill for weual distribution of county taxes among the cities and towns in each county.

According to Representative Pines, "The established cities and towns are currently paying a greater proportion of the county costs than the so-called 'growing communities' ".

Of the 54 communiites in Middlesex County, Newton paid the largest share of county assessments in 1972, $2,595,768.08 or 11 per cent of the total county budget.

If her bill is enacted, Pines believes the figure would be reduced to approximately 7 per cent.

Travels From Newton . . .

Thailand: Don't Point Your Toes

By DICK GLOVSKY
Third in A Series

Webster has not yet invented the word or phrase to describe Thailand.

Intriguing, cultural, carefree, violent, religious all apply. How do you define a land where people smile all the time, where Buddhist monks command the highest respect, where elephants labor daily, where kickboxing and cockfighting draw crowds of spectators, and where its leading American figure msteriously vanished without a trace?

Thailand fascinates the visitor.

Before adventuring in Thailand you must understand several ground rules. First, women may not touch the orange-robed, head shaven monks who dominate the scene. The lightest feminine contact demands a long purification ceremony. Second, do not aim your feet in anyone's direction. To do so would insult the most mild-mannered Thai. Third, avoid patting another's head, a worse insult than pedipointing.

Avoiding the latter two was not difficult, neither Jean nor I ever being serious toe towarders or pate patters. However, eluding monks constantly consternated Jean.

We would be casually strolling along a busy Bangkok avenue, when — whoops, she almost grazed one. Or we would board a water taxi for a ride up or down the Chao Phraya River, when — whoops, she almost sat next to one.

Whereas the monks sometimes amused us, to the Thais they are anything but jocular. Every Buddhist man enters the priesthood at least once in his life. Some enroll at several junctures, during which times they imitate the life of Buddha.

Each morning, at the sound of temple bells, the monks disperse throughout the country carrying large bowls, into which the low and the lordly place food to gain favor. Each cenobite must swallow at least a sample from each offering. Except for that daily A.M. segment, these religionists fast all day.

By their manner, the monks engender respect from all quarters of society. Our American friends all spoke highly of them and some adopted their ways.

Two of our acquaintances invited us to meditation class one evening. We went.

Divided into two hourly halves, the class featured first instruction and then actual meditation.

The wet season temperature hit near 100 degrees that day, mild compared to that of the hot season, but well beyond Right Guard's powers. We arrived at the cocktail hour for mosquitos, around dusk, so far the opening twenty minutes we sweated and scratched.

But the two men in orange who conducted the class, the abbot of the temple (or wat) and an Australian, who explained when the former's English failed, absorbed us. Something about the frailty of the 60-year-old head friar, a man who had famished himself for forty years; something about the younger Australian, not yet thirty with his shaven head, calmer than calm disposition, and discourse on sensual discipline — something about all of that grabbed our attention.

At the end of the classroom segment, like a familiar scenario, the Australian monk asked whether this was out first time.

We sheepihsly admitted our rookiness. He advised us to concentrate for the next hour only upon the breath rushing in and out of our nostrils. If our attention drifted, we were to return it to our noses.

The hour passed faster than we had anticipated.

And, even though we sat crosslegged on a hard floor for sixty minutes to our surprise, we relaxed.

As mysterious as our monkly meeting was mystical, was the story of Jim Thompson. Thompson arrived in Bangkok at the end of the Truman administration. He soon had mutured the silk industry there into a prosperous and most respected position in Thai society. We toured his home, filled to the brim with Southeast Asian art work, as the statute of limitations expired on his life.

As told to us, Thompson headed a hunting-camping excursion north to near the Chinese border. One evening he disappeared without a trace. A massive manhunt found nothing. Seers saw nothing.

One rumor claims that the Chinese captured him because he toiled for the CIA. Soon after Thompson vanished, a villain murdered his next of kin. No leads on that one either.

The seven year death statute of limitations will soon expire and Jim Thompson will legally die. No one knows his whereabouts.

Although whispers of Jim Thompson's story always arise in English conversation, for the average Thai, there are more earthly concerns. Planting harvesting rice and cutting and transporting teakwood commonly occupy this smiling populace. Water buffalo provide power, but harnassing the elephant produces much more.

At a cultural Disneyland, called Timland, about twenty miles outside of Bangkok, we watched elephants work. Fantastic.

When I visited Tivoli Gardens in Copenhagen and there gaped at one of those big-eared mammoths dancing the twist, I though I had seen everything in the way of elephants. Perhaps I had, but here were long-tusked behemoths stacking teak logs, wrapping chains around them, and pushing them into the river. Thais do not train elephants for entertainment.

For pleasure, they prefer cockfighting, which we did not see, and kickboxing, which we did see.

At an arena which would make one proud of the Boston Garden, Jean and I, escorted by our friend, Jill, paid 30 baht each ($1.50) to watch six athletes, in three bouts, punch and kick each other to the accompaniment of six slow clanging Thai musicians. Petting and drinking flourished in the cement stands, where everyone stood yelling. Overall, a strange scene, with Jill and Jean the only female spectators.

Probably the oddest scene on our entire trip occurred in Bang-Pa-In, home of the imperial summer palace. We motored there over one of Thailand's many rivers in a typically narrow one-seat-wide boat. After surveying a model of the palace in Peking, a temple in the center of a pond, and hedges shaped like animals, an opportunity, for which many men have yearned, knocked on my proverbial door.

As we left the palace grounds, three laughing young men visually examined my wife. Then in Thai-sign language, they indicated to me with eyes full of glimmer, that they had never before seen hair (blonde) like hers before. They found her most attractive.

How much?

Although they obviously could not have meant a serious offer I pretended to weigh the matter when I realized that Jean was unaware of the proceedings.

Bartering in Thailand requires three persons, the two bargainers and a medium, the latter to prevent one of the principals from losing face should he receive the short end. The medium works for one of the hagglers, relaying his messages to the other.

"Jean, I'm bargaining with these fellows. Would you act as medium?"

"Sure."

"Tell them 500 baht is not enough." Giggling all over.

"500 baht is not enough. Hey, what are you selling?"

A family discussion followed.

Legislature Told To Require Mental Illness Insurance

William Carmen, past president of the Newton Mental Health Association, told state lawmakers recently that health insurance companies should be made to provide coverage for the treatment of mental illness.

Carmen testified at a State House hearing held by the joint House and Senate Committee on Insurance. The committee is now studying a bill sponsored by Rep. Charles Flaherty (D.-Camb.) that would force insurance companies to cover mental illness on the same basis that physical illness is now covered in health insurance policies.

"By not providing coverage for mental illness, the insurance companies are engaging in a very subtle form of discrimination," Carmen told the state legislators.

"Insurance companies don't exclude broken arms or broken legs from coverage," he said, "and there is no justification for excluding mental illness."

"Mental illness is insurable at a reasonable cost," Carmen said, "and it has been demonstrated that it would not create a financial burden on the insurance companies or the people taking out the insurance. Blue Cross, for example, now provides annual coverage for mental illness, and the cost is only $9 a year for the individual, and $17 a year for a family. That amounts to less than two per cent of total Blue Cross costs, which now average about $700 a year for a family. More than eight million federal workers now have mental health coverage, and more than three million members of the United Auto Workers," Carmen testified.

"If this insurance coverage is provided, it would be of particular benefit to working men and their families, those in the low and middle-income brackets," Carmen said. "Time and again I have heard people say 'But it can't happen in my family.' But it has happened, and then they found themselves facing financial burden to pay for the cost of treatment."

The State of Connecticut has already passed legislation making this type of coverage mandatory," Carmen said, "and it is now time that we in Massachusetts should take this step to end discrimination against the mentally ill and to provide protection for the working man and his family."

Museum Names New Director

The appointment of Merrill C. Rueppel as the director of the Museum of Fine Arts, Boston, was announced today by George C. Seybolt, president of the Board of Trustees.

Mr. Rueppel will assume his new position on July 1, one year after the retirement of former director, Perry T. Rathbone. Dr. Cornelius C. Vermeule, senior curator, has been acting as director during the one-year interim.

Mr. Rueppel is currently director of the Dallas Museum of Fine Arts, a position he has held since 1964. Previously, he served as assistant director of the City Art Museum in St. Louis (1961-1964), and as assistant director of the Minneapolis Institute of Arts (1959-1961).

In announcing the new director's appointment, Mr. Seybolt stated, "We feel extremely fortunate that our intensive search for a director has come to such a happy conclusion. Mr. Rueppel has a remarkable record of achievement both as a scholar and an administrator. We believe he is the ideal choice to assume the complex responsibilities of directing one of the world's most comprehensive museums.

Lasell College Opens Mammoth Fund Drive

Lasell Junior College, Newton, last week announced an 8-year, $5.5 million development program designed to strengthen the college significantly for its continuing role in the education of women.

The campaign will be the first of its kind in Lasell's 122-year history.

In announcing the campaign to the college's 13,000 alumnae and parents, President Kenneth M. Greene explained that the program's first phase will conclude in 1976, coinciding with Lasell's 125th anniversary, the second phase to continue through 1980.

High on the priority list is a new student center, a new dormitory facility, a fine arts center, a health center and new administrative offices. The campaign will also provide for increased student scholarships, endowment for faculty salaries, and funds for educational resources.

The first building planned is a new student center, which will include a swimming pool. Work on this building should begin sometime within the next few months.

While available to all students, the new center is expected to also provide special accommodations for day students, who number about one-fifth of Lasell's current student body of 750, and will be made available to neighbors and community organizations.

Serving as West Suburban Area Chairman in the campaign is Mrs. R. Emerson Sylvester of Auburndale.

A weekly column of information about the Newton Centennial Celebration

A PICNIC THAT'S MORE THAN A MILE LONG . . . A STEEL BAND ON WHEELS . . . A SCOTTISH BAGPIPE MARCHING BAND . . . DEMONSTRATIONS OF ARTS AND CRAFTS . . .A FLEA MARKET . . . and A FREE COMMUNITY DANCE will highlight inaugural day activities for the Artisans Committee of the Newton Centennial, Sunday, May 6.

James Bottomley, chairman of the committee, has announced that his group will convert the Commonwealth Avenue Mall, from Walnut Street to Chestnut Street, into a gigantic one day picnic and fairgrounds, to accommodate families from each of the 14 villages.

The morning program will start at 10 a.m. and continue until 2 p.m. when there will be a recess for families to adjourn to City Hall to participate in the Tree Planting, Burying of the Centennial Time Capsule and observance of the Centennial Ecuminical Religious Service. The program on the Commonwealth Avenue Mall will resume at 4 p.m. and continue until the community dance begins at 8 p.m. at City Hall Mall.

The outdoor Arts Program, headed by Mrs. Leonard Salter, will include exhibits and demonstrations of original paintings, sculpture, graphics, ceramics, photography, stained glass, blown glass, copperware, silversmithing, jewelry and all types of crafts. Participation will be limited to Newton residents, and prizes will be awarded in all categories.

Servong as co-chairmen of the exhibits and demonstrations are Mrs. Robert Bernson and Mrs. Paul Rosman. Mrs. Stuart Pompian is chairman of the Flea Market.

Mrs. Pompian announced that there will be no charge for exhibit space except for vendors and artisans who wish to sell their own works. There will be a $3 booth space charge for commercial exhibits, with vendors required to set up their own displays.

Open to the public at no admission charge, starting on Sunday, May 6, will be the Invitation Art Show, featuring works of prominent Newton artists, on display in the War Memorial Auditorium at City Hall. Mrs. Louis Egelson, chairman of the Invitation Art Show, has appointed a consultant committee of Museum Curators to select the works to be hung for the Invitation Art Show. The art will be on display from May 6 through June 3, the entire Centennial celebration period.

During the month, the Cerebral Palsy Association of Greater Boston will co-sponsor on behalf of the Newton Centennial Commission, an exhibit and auction of art by college students. John Koschen of the Cerebral Palsy Association is chairman of the program. Art coordinator is Robin Carter of the Massachusetts College of Art.

Serving on the Centennial Arts Committee under chairman Bottomley are Mrs. R. Laning Humphrey, Marilyn Wittrup, H. Peter Nostrand, Mrs. Alan Sostek, Rona Goodman, Mrs. Laurence Dallin, Mrs. James Kingsbury, Craig Chandler, Neal Weinstock and Mrs. Peter Scott.

The Advisory Committee includes Dr. and Mrs. Edwin Gordy, Mrs. Doddie Finlayson, Mrs. George Michaels, Mrs. Norman Sherman, Waldren Cluett, Ms. Elise Sigel, Paul Whitworth and Ms. Shirley Fink.

Artists and craftsmen who wish to exhibit or conduct demonstrations on May 6 may make application to NEWTON CENTENNIAL ARTISANS COMMITTEE, NEWTON CITY HALL, NEWTON, MASSACHUSETTS 02159.

County Costs Up

The Middlesex County Commissioners have announced that the proposed tentative budget for the 18-month period beginning July 1, will be $47,011,019.12.

This amount is some eight million more than the 1972 budget calculated over the 18-month period, a situation the Commissioners found "both distressing and distrubing."

Most disturbing, according to Chairman S. Lester Ralph, is the fact that much of the eight million dollar overage is beyond the control of the County Commissioners.

The debt and interest, mostly reflecting the Middlesex County Courthouse, is increasing from 4.2 million to 8.3 million, which on an 18-month basis is 2.3 million over the 1972 rates.

Commissioner Paul Tsongas pointed out that "beyond this is the hundreds of thousands of dollars overage found in the budgets of those over whom our control is limited and-or questionable."

Tsongas added that all 12 district courts, plus the juvenile probation and appellate budgets contain significant increases. Taken together these budgets reflect an increase of 2.5 million dollars.

The Billerica House of Correction requests are almost one million dollars in excess of the 1972 budget calculated over 18 months.

Ralph stated, "In those departments over which we have authority, such as the training school, highway and maintenance departments, we have sought to bring about major savings. These efforts will continue."

Commissioner John Danahy of Cambridge stated "The dilemma posed by the 1973-1974 budget reveals serious basic flaws about the county system and the question of accountability. These issues will have to be resolved in the future if there is to be a direct relationship between the people, their elected officials and the monies raised to run county government."

Jaycee Award Up For Grab

Steve Gilman, Newton Jaycee 1973 Distinguished Service Award Chairman, has announced that Mar. 31 is the deadline for submitting nominations for this year's award.

Nominations may be submitted by anyone who feels a young person between the ages of 18 and 35 is deserving of the Jaycees' Highest Community Service Award.

The winner and four runners-up will be decided by an impartial panel of judges from outside the Jaycee organization. The criteria to be used is outstanding community service beyond the call of one's normal occupation.

If you know of someone deserving of this distinction, you are asked to call Committeeman Robert Alkon at 969-6032 or Vice-President Jeff Cornell at 965-0200 for nomination information.

The judges' decision will be announced at the D.S.A. banquet to be held on Wednesday, Apr. 11, at the Holiday Inn in Newton. For ticket information, call Bob Alkon or Jeff Cornell or contact any Newton Jaycee.

William J. Goldberg

William J. Goldberg of Newton Centre has received a letter award for his contribution to the 1972-1973 Hobart varisty fencing team.

William, a junior, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles O. Goldberg of 12 Kappius Path, Newton Centre.

League Drafts Housing Ordinance

The League of Women Voters of Newton, often taking the role of lobbyist in supporting or opposing proposed legislation, recently drafted a new ordinance of its own in the field of housing.

Ellen Lipson, president of the Newton League of Women Voters, and Sondra Shick, former chairman of the Human Resources Committee, discussed the proposal with the Land Use Committee of the Board of Aldermen at a hearing on the measure on Monday evening, Mar. 12.

The proposed ordinance would make legally binding the present informal agreement by which the aldermen have required a builder or developer who seeks zoning permission for multiple-unit housing to lease 10 per cent of the units to the Newton Housing Authority for rental to low-income persons. This "gentlemen's agreement," initiated in 1968, has resulted in the lease of 15 units to the Housing Authority.

These are among 200 units the authority has leased in Newton at market rates and rented to low-income persons, both elderly and families, for 20 percent of their income. The difference in the two figures is made up by federal funds.

These rental units are scattered over the city and are indistinguishable from any other apartments, thus avoiding any embarrassment to the subsidized tenants. However, the number of rental units in this city is limited, and the Housing Authority currently has 188 eligible elderly persons and 125 families on its waiting list.

Thus the League feels it is important that as new housing is built some should be set aside for the low-income, whose housing needs have long been recognized.

Under the League's ordinance, the 10 percent is figured in terms not of apartments but of bedrooms; that is, for every ten bedrooms built, one bedroom must be leased to the Housing Authority. Thus one 3-bedroom apartment could satisfy the requirement for a development of 21-30 units. Since larger apartments are in especially short supply, this provision should benefit both the builder and the Housing Authority.

In the case of a development containing 8 or more 3- or 4-bedroom units, however, 10 percent of these large apartments must be made available for the leased housing program.

The ordinance would be applicable throughout the city, so that it would not be imposed merely on those builders who come before the Board of Aldermen seeking a zoning change or permissive use, as is now the case.

Because the requirement has not previously been spelled out in detail or presented in legal form, it has been a source of confusion to Newton residents and to builders, some of whom have recently challenged it. The proposed ordinance thus would clarify the situation for all concerned.

For further information about the proposed ordinance please call Ellen Lipson, 332-8620, or Sondra Shick, 969-2583. For information about the League of Women Voters of Newton please call Marsha Slotnick, 244-6268.

RED CROSS MONTH — March has been officially proclaimed "Red Cross Month" in Newton by Mayor Theodore D. Mann. Mrs. Laurence Bishoff, a member of the March Campaign Committee was on hand last week to accept the proclamation from the mayor.

Canoeing Guide Available For- Charles River Travel

Of considerable interest to area canoeists is the Charles River Canoe Guide recently published by the Charles River Watershed Association.

According to the introduction, "the Charles has been canoed continuously since the days of the Indians." Early Algonquian settlers called the river Quinobequin or meandering. It is the meandering pattern of the gently-sloping coastal plain river that provides the many miles of exceptional canoeing today.

The Charles was once a busy transportation highway; today's residents seek the quiet of this same river to escape the noise and turmoil of modern highways and urban pressures.

The Canoe Guide is an attractive 24-page booklet devoted solely to the information needs of the canoeist on the Charles. Sectional maps with relevant text opposite make it simple for the canoeist to know where he is, where he is headed, where he can put in and take out, and what he is likely to find along the way.

A center spread cross-references the section maps with USGS topographic maps. A separate section treats the major canoeable tributaries of the Charles River.

The very handsome cover was taken at Norumbega by association member Margaret Faulkner, and is indicative of the many beautiful stretches still found along the Charles.

At present, only the Needham YMCA at Red Wing Bay has canoe rentals. However, according to Mrs. Rita Barron, Executive Director for the association, CRWA is assisting state agencies in siting additional livery facilities as well as improving accessibility to the river. Copies of the Charles River Canoe Guide are available for $1 from CRWA's office at 2391 Commonwealth avenue, Auburndale, 02166. It can also be purchased initially at Massachusetts Audubon's Lincoln and South Natick sanctuaries, the Needham YMCA, and the Museum of Science in Boston.

Further information about the Canoe Guide and about the association can be obtained by calling 527-2799.

Multiple Sclerosis Society Plans Gala

Mrs. Udel Rosenberg of Waban, president of the Women's division, National Multiple Sclerosis Society, announced today that the group's spring event will be a dinner-theatre evening at the Chateau de Ville in Framingham on Sunday, May 6.

Formulating plans for the presentation of "Hello Dolly" are Mrs. Leonard Freed, Mrs. Bertram Cohen and Mrs. Lewis Lubar, all of Newton.

Tickets are $15 per person and reservations are due by April 6. Call 332-5015 for information.

DAV Honors State Lady Commander

A testimonial banquet honoring Florence E. Daley, state commander of the Massachusetts Department, Disabled American Veterans Auxiliary, will be held on Saturday evening, Mar. 31, at Lantana, Randolph, at 7:30 p.m.

Mrs. Daley was elected state commander in Boston in June, 1972. She is presently employed by the Post Office Department as station superintendent in charge of the Nonantum Post Office in Newton. The Toastmaster will be Bonnie Powers of Quincy, past department commander, D.A.V. Auxiliary.

Invited guests will be: George A. Walker, acting manager and postmaster, Boston Postal District; Honorable Paul Murphy, West Roxbury District Court; Reverend Carl E. Bergstrom, chaplain, Boston V.A. Hospital; Honorable John F.X. Davoren, secretary of state; William A. Tabb, state commander, D.A.V.; Walter T. Greaney, national Jr. vice commander, D.A.V.; Mr. and Mrs. Boyd Bowers from Woburn, National Executive Committeeman and Committeewoman, D.A.V.; Betty Wilson of Malden, commander, Chapter 10, D.A.V. Auxiliary; George Rubin, commander, Boston 10; Mr. and Mrs. Edward Sheffield of Wakefield, superintendent, South Postal Annex; Patricia Morgan, National Miss Teenager; Mary T. Silva of Weymouth, Department Senior Vice Commander, D.A.V. Auxiliary.

Joseph R. Harold of Quincy, department adjutant, Disabled American Veterans, will be the principal speaker.

Mann Urges State Relief

Mayor Theodore D. Mann of Newton recently appeared before hearings of the Massachusetts Legislative Committee on Taxation in support of two bills currently pending before the Great and General Court.

If enacted the first bill, co-sponsored by the Mayor, would provide reimbursement to cities and towns by the Commonwealth for the loss of revenues due to statutory exemptions pertaining to real and personal taxes.

In supporting the bill, Mann stated, "exemptions from taxation, especially upon real property, are necessary for our elderly, disadvantaged and handicapped individuals so that they may continue to live in our communities."

"I am not questioning relief for such individuals," added the Mayor, "but the state must come to the aid of its cities and towns by reimbursing them for losses incurred through statutory exemptions."

In supporting a second bill which would update the basis for apportionment of state and county taxes to reflect the existing realities in the state, Mann estimated that Newton could save some $700,000 if the bill is enacted.

"The present apportionment formula consists of tables set for real property values existing in the early 1960's and mid 1940's," explained Mann, adding, "Everyone is aware of the inflationary spiral affecting this state and the entire country. That, coupled with the development of more rural and suburban communities has left the Commonwealth with the intolerable situation of older communities supporting these younger areas."

"The property taxes and other sources of revenue," stated the Mayor, "are sufficiently strained to meet the needs of citizens without the added burden of disproportionate valuation for state and county taxes."

Head Start Continues

Head Start is still alive and well in Newton and Communities United is pleased to announce that, despite massive federal cut backs of poverty programs Head Start is still funded and serving low income pre-school children with a quality comprehensive child care program.

In Newton Head Start classrooms are located in the Unitarian Church at 1326 Washington st. and serve 30 children.

The program was begun with the concept that children are part of families and that preschool programs for children must include families in many ways. Therefore, in addition to the classrooms which operate daily from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. with free transportation and hot lunch provided, Head Start also tries to work with parents and whole families to help meet their needs. It has an active health, social and psychological services programs which work closely with parents in accomplishing this goal.

Anyone interested in applying for next fall should call the main office in Newton at 969-4615. Head Start will be happy to talk with you and answer any questions which you might have.

Newton's Districts

The map on page one shows exactly what the new districts will be for each of Newton's four representatives now in the House on Beacon Hill.

Despite some protest, the chances are that the present incumbent-sponsored plan as detailed in the map will not change in the slightest degree. When cement has been poured it is almost impossible to change the layout of the forms.

Several Newton aldermen have come up with a plan they feel offers better representation to the residents of their city than does the redistricting plan agreed on by the four state representatives who now live and hold office from Newton.

But the disapproving aldermen should not get their hopes up. The map will not change. The cement has already hardened.

The General Court will vote this year on the statewide redistricting plan and elections 1974 will determine which representatives are returned to the Hill.

Make no mistake about this one, the plan which carves up the political pie of Newton was drawn up by Representatives Harrington, Guzzi, Mofenson and Pines.

They have picked their "home turf." It remains to be seen whether the residents they picked will pick them in the election next year. It's one thing to select the district lines where an office seeker thinks he or she will run best. It's quite another to win the race. If Newton voters can't be heard right now then they only have to wait . . . their day is coming.

One representative has passed the word around some sections of the city and in the State House that Alderman Richard McGrath is strenuously objecting to the Newton plan because he has ideas of running for office himself and his homebase, Auburndale, is being sliced up into three sections. In a sense it becomes a political neuter.

Does McGrath plan to run as a representative? "No, absolutely not." That's what the man says and his statement is taken at face value.

For every Newton plan there will be an objection. That's understandable. But the plan that is mapped is the one Newton residents will probably have to live with. Some believe that the new district lines will bring forth surprising political challenges.

The Celebration

Newton stands on the threshold of its most ambitious civic observance—its 100th year as a city.

Throughout the last century of its history, there has been much to applaud in the conduct of municipal activities and in the responsible behavior of its administrations. This characteristic again domintes the current plans.

Mayor Theodore D. Mann has declared that not one cent of city revenues will be used in sponsoring the celebration.

We intend to see that this promise stands. It is the first time in the history of any municipal event of such magnitude that no funds have been appropriated by the municipality.

Each of the Centennial committees has been dependent for its planning funds and budget on monies raised through voluntary contributions from citizens and businesses via the non-profit Newton Centennial Commission.

In addition, the commission has tried to arrange as many events as possible with no admission charge at all, and where admission charges are made, the general admission ticket prices are minimal.

The array of events is impressive, and exciting in view of the prospects Newton has of seeing some of its more widely known celebrities again.

Yet, with an eye toward the future, the Centennial Commission has a special subcommittee whose deliberations are concerned with the type of tangible memorial which should be erected with any surplus Centennial monies.

The mayor, and others concerned, are hoping for seed money to set off a campaign for the construction of a library-civic center.

May 5 is rapidly approaching.

We hope the efforts of so many volunteers will be rewarded with community support for the events planned.

We are certain the Centennial will be a success in terms of pure enjoyment and participation and in terms of the fact everyone in Newton has an opportunity to contribute to a lasting memorial; one that will stand when, 100 years from now, someone tries to top the 100th birthday celebration of the City of Newton.

Political Highlights

By JAMES G. COLBERT

Debate Reorganization Plan Before It Is Fully Drafted

Governor Francis W. Sargent and House Speaker David M. Bartley engaged in a debate in Boston's historic Faneuil Hall the other night on the subject of Governor Sargent's reorganization plan.

Both Sargent and Bartley were at their oratorical best. They practically charmed their listeners out of their seats. As one member of the audience observed, either Sargent or Bartley probably could have talked a dog down off a meat wagon.

Mr. Sargent exuded sincerity. Here was a Governor, you thought, who was trying to install a new form of government on Beacon Hill which would be a model of efficiency and economy, and somebody — it wasn't clear who — was trying to prevent him from doing it.

Speaker Bartley was unusually entertaining. When he concluded his speech with a particularly witty remark, Sargent, grinning broadly, rushed over and shook hands with him. An air of goodwill existed. Not a word was spoken in anger.

The only real flaw was that neither Governor Sargent nor Speaker Bartley really knew what he was talking about.

Governor Sargent and the equally persuasive Lieutenant Governor Donald Dwight have been selling the reorganization plan for months.

No new taxes would be needed if the reorganization plan is adopted in precisely the form presented by Governor Sargent, they declare.

The plan would eliminate duplications, would wipe out needless state agencies (which for some reason have continued in existence while Francis Sargent has been Governor), would provide better state government for less money and, in short, would bring the Massachusetts state government into the final one-third of the 20th Century.

Both Sargent and Dwight would storm the political ramparts and charge the guns of the enemy to win approval of the all-important reorganization program.

But as far as this writer was able to ascertain at the time of the Sargent-Bartley debate, the plan under discussion had not been completely drafted and was not then fully in existence.

At least Governor Sargent said the reorganization plan will be submitted to the Legislature in finished form by the end of the month. It was then early in the month.

From where we sit it seems the Governor would be well advised to postpone some of the debates and speeches until he gets the reorganization plan to the point where he can say something about it other than that he will not "retreat one step from this battle."

It does not appear to be clear either to Governor Sargent or to this bystander what the battle is that he will not retreat from.

His repeated assertion that "we will be able to provide better services for less money by eliminating waste and duplication" also should be supported by a greater number of solid proposals.

State Senate President Kevin B. Harrington made what seemed to be a sensible suggestion when he proposed that the Legislature conclude its regular business by acting on the thousands of bills pending before it, take a vacation this summer, then return to session next fall to devote itself exclusively to the Governor's reorganization scheme.

Margaret Heckler Gets Zero Mark From Right-Wing Group

Congresswoman Margaret M. Heckler received a black mark the other day which she probably welcomed.

The American Conservative Union rated the members of Congress on the votes they had cast on key issues.

Members of the Massachusetts delegation in Congress listed in the Union's publication, "Battle Lines" as getting a score of "zero" were Democratic Senator Edward M. Kennedy, Congressmen Thomas P. O'Neill, Jr., James A. Burke, Torbert Macdonald, Robert F. Drinan, Edward P. Boland, Harold D. Donohue and Michael Harrington and Republican Congresswoman Margaret Heckler.

This group did nothing on any key issue which satisfied the American Conservative Union. All the other Bay Staters — even Senator Edward W. Brooke — voted right at least once in the eyes of the right-wing group.

Sarge Sees Nothing Funny About Joke At His Expense

Governor Francis W. Sargent apparently is losing the keen edge from his sense of humor.

More than 100 members of the Massachusetts House of Representatives have been told by Mr. Sargent's aides that they can expect no favors from the Governor's office as a result of their attempt to perpetrate a joke at Sarge's expense.

This is believed to mean that there will be no summer jobs for constituents of the 109 Democratic law-makers who presently occupy places in the gubernatorial doghouse.

What they did to incur the Governor's displeasure was to vote for the adoption of a resolution supposedly intended to name the so-called "road to nowhere" the "Francis W. Sargent Highway."

This attempt at heavy-handed humor, which was approved by the House by a margin of 109-108, seemed at least a little bit funny to just about everyone except Frances W. Sargent.

Governor Sargent probably would have been better advised to laugh off the joke with the observation that it was unfortunate the Democratic-controlled House didn't have more serious things to do while conducting the people's business.

He isn't likely to improve his relations with the House of Representatives by severing his ties with 109 members although he does like to promote his image of a Republican Governor who stands up and fights with the big, bad Democratic Legislature.

But so many things have been going wrong for Governor Sargent between John Boone, Miles Mahoney and a few others that the cares of his office appear to be resting heavily upon him.

State Senator John Quinlan May Seek Promotion in 1974

State Senator John Quinlan of Norwood may be one of the strong men on the Republican State Ticket next year.

Quinlan tried to win the GOP nomination for Lieutenant Governor over the opposition of Governor Sargent in 1970 but was beaten down at the Republican State Convention.

Mr. Sargent first picked former Representative Martin Linsky of Brookline as his running mate in the 1970 campaign but subsequently dumped Linsky in favor of Donald Dwight, the present Lieutenant Governor.

Sarge performed the unusual political feat of lining up the necessary convention votes for two different candidates for Lieutenant Governor over a formidable opponent, Senator Quinlan.

Quinlan, who was formerly a fellow townsman of Sargent's in Dover, moved to Norwood so the Republican candidates for Governor and Lieutenant Governor would not be from the same small community, but that action did not lessen the Governor's determination that he did not want Senator Quinlan as his running mate.

Senator Quinlan, a potent candidate and a strong vote-getter, is not planning to challenge the Republican establishment again next year. A place somewhere on the GOP State Ticket will be his for the asking if he wants it. He probably will be the GOP nominee for Secretary of State.

The problems from Quinlan's standpoint are that Republican candidates have not had much success in seeking offices in the lower part of the state-wide ballot and that he does not yet know whether there will be a Republican State Convention next year.

The Republicans may have a difficult time holding Quinlan's seat in the State Senate if he runs for Secretary of State, but that, of course, doesn't mean he must spend his political life in the Senate.

Politico Gains Prominence On Publicly Funded TV Show

A political columnist for a Boston daily newspaper observed the other day that former Representative Michael Dukakis of Brookline who is expected to run for state-wide office next year, "has achieved prominence as the moderator of 'The Advocates' show on Channel 2.

This is true. He has. But is it right that one politician should be able to obtain an advantage over other politicians by appearing on a television show which is financed with public funds?

A lot of people don't think so, and that has slowed the flow of donations to Channel 2 in response to recent appeals for funds to keep some of its shows on the airwaves.

Under the circumstances the station should be more careful about favoring one politician over another.

Lindsay Unable To Handle Task of Running Big City

John Lindsay seemed headed for the Presidency of the United States when he was elected Mayor of New York City in 1965 after making a record as a liberal Republican Congressman.

He was a spectacular and dashing figure as he walked the streets of Harlem during the riots there. He was often described as the Golden Boy of politics.

But Lindsay was a poor administrator and was either unwilling or unable to handle the day-to-day problems of running a big city which at best is difficult to manage.

Strikes have marred his administrations. Corruption was disclosed in his police department. Large amounts of money were stolen or wasted in the city's poverty program. Thousands of drug addicts were placed on the city's welfare rolls.

Lindsay's tenure as Mayor has been a period of ill will in New York, partly because of his poor handling of racial matters and negotiations with city unions.

He actually is disliked to a surprising degree by many people in New York.

Despite this, Lindsay shocked most politicians with his recent announcement that he would not seek a third term as Mayor of New York. The general assumption is that he had a survey made and concluded he could not win this year's election. It could be, of course, that he has had his fill of the job of Mayor of New York City.

Lindsay reportedly will either challenge Nelson Rockefeller for the New York State Governorship next year or oppose Conservative Republican U.S. Senator James Buckley in 1976.

His chances of defeating Rockefeller are considered slim. But by 1976 the citizens of New York City may have shifted their unhappiness to Lindsay's successor.

Incidentally, the leading candidate to succeed Lindsay is City Controller Abe Beame who is 67 years old. James M. Curley was 71 when he started his last term as Mayor of Boston.

Quinn Standout Democratic Governor Candidate For '74

At this stage Attorney General Robert H. Quinn appears to be the standout candidate for the Democratic nomination for Governor next year.

Other public figures are being mentioned as possible contenders for the right to run as the Democratic candidate for Governor in the 1974 election, but none of them has as much political muscle or as strong an organization as Quinn.

It would seem that about the only thing which could prevent Quinn from getting the Democratic gubernatorial nomination next year would be a decision on his part to serve another term as Attorney General. Such a development probably is unlikely.

Quinn has not been a spectacular or even a colorful Attorney General. But in a quiet sort of way he has been an extremely effective one. He has done and is doing a good job. He has not hesitated to make what he considered the right decision even if it might not always be the most popular or expedient one.

Democrat leaders, incidentally, are seriously considering the possibility of making an all-out drive to wipe out the convention system of endorsing candidates for state-wide offices. This, of course, would require the contenders for such nominations to go directly into the primary.

Some Democratic chieftains believe the State Convention is a help to the Republicans and a handicap to the Democrats. They are convinced it will hamper Democratic efforts to recapture the Governorship as long as it is continued.

Republican candidates have won five of the eight gubernatorial elections which have been held in Democratic Massachusetts since the convention system of endorsing candidates was revived, they point out.

Many observers believe that the Democratic disasters have been caused in part by the political blood-letting at the Democratic State Conventions on which funds and energy are wasted and at which feuds and ill-will are created.

Republican leaders invoke party discipline, and the winners at the GOP conventions rarely are challenged in the subsequent primaries.

For the Democrats, however, the convention usually is only a preliminary to the main bout which comes later.

Governor Sargent vetoed a bill repealing the pre-primary convention system which the Legislature adopted just before the end of its session last year.

But he waited until the law-makers had prorogued and gone home for the year, preventing any move to adopt the repeal measure over his veto.

The Democratic leaders in the House and Senate probably will not allow that to happen again although the Democratic legislators are not in complete accord that the pre-primary convention system should be wiped out.

The Democrats have the votes in both branches of the Legislature to override the Governor's veto if they can attain anything approaching a united party front.

Supporters of Attorney General Quinn say it doesn't matter much to their candidate whether the convention system is repealed or not. Actually, Quinn's election chances probably would be improved if the convention is wiped out.

He would be spared the necessity of wasting money on a convention which accomplished nothing and would be able to conserve his resources to a greater extent for the final election.

Quinn, incidentally, disagreed with most other Democratic leaders on the issue of placing the Commonwealth more deeply in the gambling business. He opposed the proposal.

That sounded reasonable to this observer since the Governor's plan, if approved, would revamp the very structure of the state government and, when submitted, will be the most important piece of legislation considered on Beacon Hill in years.

But it didn't seem reasonable to Governor Sargent who mounted his white charger, sounded his bugle, announced he would not retreat one inch, much less a foot, and demanded that the bill be approved yesterday even though it was not entirely in existence today.

We don't want to seem demanding, but if we're going to storm the hill and face the guns of the enemy in behalf of this bill, we'd like to know what the bill provides.

Danger Is Seen In Mixing Men and Women Prisoners

We can accept the idea of boys going to girls' schools and girls going to boys' colleges, but from our vantage point state correction officials seem to be inviting trouble when they mix men and women prisoners at the Framingham Women's Reformatory.

Officials in the State Department of Human Services estimate that Framingham will have 120 men and 25 women by mid-summer.

That apparently is a liberal approach to the penal problem, but under those circumstances there will be a serious danger of criminal attacks and assaults in what has been an all-women's prison until very recently.

State Correction Commissioner John O. Boone is understandably proud of the statistics which show that of the 2559 prisoners who were granted furloughs of up to a week to visit their families and seek jobs, only 23 men and one woman, or about one in 100, took advantage of the opportunity to go AWOL.

Exactly half of the 24 were captured and returned to prison, including one man who was arrested on a robbery charge.

Boone is not disturbed by the fact that some of the furloughed inmates returned to prison under the influence of drugs or alcohol. He asserts that these prisoners can be treated and that their condition offers evidence on whether they have reached the point where they are responsible enough to parole.

Nixon Used Rose-Tinted Glasses In Viewing Cities

If the "hour of crisis" in American cities actually has passed, as President Nixon recently declared, somebody should have told a number of Mayors about it.

Even though Boston's tax rate climbed close to $200 last year, Mayor Kevin H. White has things under control in the Hub.

But the picture is not exactly bright in New York, Chicago, Philadelphia, Detroit, Los Angeles, Cleveland and Newark.

Civil disorders have declined, as Mr. Nixon asserted, but he must have been viewing some cities with rose-tinted glasses when he said that crime rates have fallen in more than half the major cities and that finances have improved.

It seemed that the President was congratulating himself a bit too enthusiastically.

Ward 4—Bits And Pieces

Editor, Newton Graphic:

I am shocked and upset with the way that Ward 4 has been treated in the proposed plan for the redistricting of the state representative's districts.

The new plan calls for Ward 4 to be divided into three sections: one third of the section to join with West Newton; one third to join with Newton Centre, Chestnut Hill and parts of Oak Hill; and, one third with Waban, Upper Falls, part of Needham, and the rest of Oak Hill.

This proposal destroys the unity and identity of Ward 4 and. makes it impossible for the area to effectually participate in the democratic process. The Auburndale community itself has been split in half; 50 percent joining with its neighbors in West Newton and 50 percent to be split off and tacked onto the Newton Centre, Chestnut Hill, Oak Hill district.

Where are the ties that the 3,570 people of Auburndale (Pct. 4-3) have in common with the residents of Chestnut Hill or Oak Hill other than the fact that we are all in Newton?

The problems of Auburndale are not the problems of Chestnut Hill and vice versa. Ward 4 residents are sensitive to the difficulties of urban renewal, of a polluted Charles River, of a faulty incinerator, and of a rat and cockroach infested dump while the south side of the district looks to the effects of high-rise development, impossible traffic dilemmas caused by the ever-increasing commercial expansion of Route 9, and the impact of Boston College's development to name a few problems.

It is my strong feeling that a district should at least:

1) be geographically contiguous,

2) share the normal ties of communication such as school, churches, community associations, shopping districts and playgrounds etc.,

3) share common problems that the people can relate to and focus their energies to solve.

I can sympathize with the fact that our representatives must consider their basic source of strength for re-election in drawing new districts, but, it is more important that the districts be drawn to fit the needs and convenience of the people. The present proposal does not fit the needs and convenience of the people.

I am asking our representatives if they will reconsider their position on their proposal and try to come up with a plan that will have less of a devisive impact on Ward 4.

Eligibility Impact

Editor, Newton Graphic:

Family Counseling Service (Region West), Inc. wishes to bring to the attention of your readers the serious impact of proposed regulations affecting social service programs for low income families and children by the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare - Social and Rehabilitation Service.

In summary, these proposals severely limit the eligibility of former, current and potential welfare recipients to receive services such as protective emergency care, day care, homemaker services, and camping programs for children throughout the state. The regulations further exclude the mandate for homemaker services to the aging, blind and disabled who qualify for such services under various titles of the Social Security Act. Mothers of young children, for example, who require homemaker or day care services to enable them to continue working might well be faced with the need to leave their work and return to public welfare rolls to insure adequate care for their children. Our agency knows of many similar situations that would be the probable consequence of inconsistent public policy in the proposed regulations.

We urge that before these proposals are enacted by the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare that you express your opinion in writing to Mr. Philip Rutledge, Acting Administrator, Social and Rehabilitation Service, Department of Health, Education, and Welfare, 330 Independence Avenue, S.W., Washington, D.C., and to the Honorable Casper Weinberger, Secretary of Health, Education, and Welfare, Washington, D.C.

Bids -

Manin recommended to the Mayor that an additional amount of $210,000 be appropriated "to fund the total contract bid of the recommended company."

In sending the bids to the Board of Aldermen, however, the Mayor indicated that a final choice of firms would not be made until the Board had an opportunity to review the proposals with the assessing department.

In an effort to comply with the court order and to persuade Judge Chmielinski to lift the injunction, Mayor Mann set aside $215,000 in the budget to fund a revaluation contract. Final approval of the funding will be made by the Board of Aldermen.

According to Assessor Manin the City only has until the end of this month to expect a lifting of the injunction. Judge Chmielinski has indicated he will only listen to arguments in the case until that time.

Crime -

streets without additional consultations with Chief Quinn, he said.

The article mentioned that the number of homicides, for instance, doubled from 1971 to 1972 - from one to two. Chief Quinn feels that stressing this point is "playing with the wrong percentages."

"They said nothing about the fact that burglaries are down in Newton by 31 per cent so far this year over 1972."

"We've had results from a lot of hard work," he stated. "Robberies are controlled through some very comprehensive programs." Brochures have been printed and distributed to the community, something omitted from the article. The Operation Identification, a preventive measure pushed from neighborhood to neighborhood, was also given superficial treatment, the Chief felt.

The Police Chief also was concerned that the article left out several other items which the city is "noteworthy" for in the field of crime prevention and community relations.

The story made note of the fact that the city has an auxiliary police force of 60 men, but failed to state that Newton received the "only government grant in the state for auxiliary" officers.

Chief Quinn took exception to the omission of the citizen alarm boxes, 80 of which have been installed throughout Newton at the MBTA stations. He said that one has been placed in nearly all the MBTA stops in the City, but "the article says nothing about it."

The newspaper story, the chief continued, also said nothing about the city's "$100 Club," which private citizens may contribute money to which is subsequently channeled toward crime-prevention methods employed by his Department. Chief Quinn has so far utilized almost $1,000 in funds from the "Club" which have gone for police programs.

Chief Quinn noted that no reference was made in the article of a City-sponsored book about guarding against property and personal crimes, 25,000 copies of which were disseminated to Newton families.

Also completely overlooked, he pointed out, was the fact that assaults against young women have been greatly curbed in Newton by the enforcement of jaywalking and hitchhiking fines. "Assaults have gone way, way down," the Chief stresses; Newton is the "only community" where girls are cited for hitchhiking.

Cartoon Gave Wrong Impression

Editor, Newton Graphic:

In reference to the editorial cartoon which appeared in the Graphic on Thursday, March 15, perhaps we are giving a wrong impression to the general public.

It has been very hard so far to have a contractor indicate his support for environmental activities in relation to a project under his control; the unintentional negative aspect shown in the cartoon may turn such people off from further support of environmental organizations.

It is my opinion that Mr. Julian Cohen indicated his support for environmentalists in general, most willingly, once he had been adequately informed of the glacial pavement site and had had an opportunity to visit it. If I may make a suggestion, perhaps the cartoon could be redrawn to indicate the environmental group shaking hands with Mr. Cohen thereby indicating for the first time, at least in this area, a willingness and a spirit of cooperation now and for the future between commercial, environmental and aesthetic interests.

If the cartoon cannot be redrawn, then perhaps a letter can be written to indicate that we do not want to make Mr. Cohen the scapegoat but indicate our support and thanks for what he has done.

Peter G. Richter

Rev. Streeter firmly believes the truths he expressed for his young readers are the only liberating force available not just to his people but to everyone.

He is founder and president of the Universal Christian Association for the Improvement of Black People, Inc., directed from his home at 21 Barbara Rd.

"The Lord has ordained me to talk to black and white people to lift Blacks up to the status of any other American citizen," said the Rev. Streeter.

The white children in a suburban fourth-grade classrom listened.

on a 12-11 vote after a short debate over whether or not a raise should be granted to someone rumored to be retiring within the next few months.

Alderman Richard J. Bullwinkle said "there is a rumor that the city solicitor will not be with us much longer. Why should we add $1,000 to his salary and increase his pension?"

"Because of his retirement," Small responded, "the members of Finance did not think it would make sense to give him a raise."

Alderman David Jackson asked Small if the committee had directly questioned Dangel on retiring, and the Finance Committee chairman said the word had come from the mayor.

"Salaries should be set for certain periods of time for department heads and they should be changed when they appear to be unreasonable," Alderman Joseph McDonnell commented. "It isn't appropriate for a department head to be involved in an annual hassle over a few dollars a week."

"The city solicitor is paid less than the city engineer," McDonnell noted, "and we now have a water commissioner earning $1,500 more than the city solicitor."

Dudman did not fare quite so well.

The Finance Committee recommended his salary be kept at the 1972 level and that Assistant Director of Public Works John Carroll's salary also remain the same.

The salary question also brought up the original debate of Mann's choices for reorganization of the Public Works Department, and a motion was made to eliminate funding for Dudman's salary past the May deadline when his term as acting director expires. A motion was also made to place his salary in "budget reserve" after the May deadline. Neither motion carried.

The Finance and Public Works committees also recommended sweeping changes in the city plans to contract for outside beautification work in spring clean-up.

The mayor's request for a $60,000 bulldozer and several thousand dollars worth of contracted street sweeping work was deleted and a substitute recommendation approved that Mann be asked to buy three street sweepers, two leaf loaders and a "sky worker" with the freed funds.

A cut of $276,000 was made in the Street Dept. $4 million labor account through the combined pruning efforts of Finance and Public Works.

The aldermen found, it was explained, that there were several duplications of salaries figured in twice for men doing different work at different times and being paid from different accounts. The original recommendation was to cut $260,000, but Alderman David Cohen pointed out there would be two more vacant positions and asked for an additional $16,000 cut. The total cut was voted 17-5.

After several votes, aldermen agreed 22-0 to place $298,666 into budget reserve that was designated for a new garbage collection contract for Newton. The current contract expires in April, and public works and city officials have been considering abandoning the use of private garbage collectors in favor of combining collections with city trash.

The $298,000 sum would fund a contract for private garbage collection from May 1 through June, 1974, and members of the Public Works committee objected on the grounds they had not had a chance to adequately study the successful bidder for the contract.

McDonnell moved that $256,000 of the sum be placed in budget reserve and a four month trial of mixed collections be conducted when the contract expired. His motion lost 15-7.

Alleging there might be something wrong with the bid specifications that were sent out, Alderman Richard J. McGrath asked that the entire sum be placed into budget reserve. His motion lost by a tie vote, 11-11.

Ald. Small then moved to include the entire sum in the budget appropriation and his motion lost by a vote of 12 against and 10 in favor.

Since it was apparent an impasse had been reached, the matter was reconsidered and the unanimous vote to place the money into budget reserve taken.

Districts -

District elected both of us and we have not heard about any mandate from them to turn us out."

He pointed out that each legislative district is supposed to be apportioned to include approximately 23,000 people and the plan approved by the Legislative Redistricting Committee represents a variance of 3.5 per cent in the populations of the districts.

The plan proposed by McGrath, he said, represents a variance of about 11.5 per cent.

Skirting the issue of residence, Ald. Pines said the plan finally chosen by the committee for Newton was one of "50-100 plans considered as alternatives."

She said she "did not believe any of us (the four representatives) are completely happy and would not be with any plan."

"I personally prefer the double district," Mrs. Pines said.

Then she went on to say: "The State Legislature deals with state issues and is not parochial in its deliberations.

"I question how important it is that each district be contained so that it represents only one small portion of the city."

Alderman Edward Uehlein commented that the question to be answered was "whether or not the people of Newton are satisfied with this plan."

"It is the height of ridiculousness to let the representatives divide up the city. The plan is not for the best interests of the representatives whoever they may be it is for the best interests of the people."

McGrath proposed this alternative plan:

District 1: wards 1 and 2;

District 2: ward 3 and 4;

district 3: wards 5 and 6 and ward 8 precinct 3;

District 4: ward 7, the rest of ward 8 and Needham precinct H.

McGrath said the people in Auburndale feel the current plan "destroys the unity and community characteristics of many areas in Newton, which is in direct conflict with the purpose of setting up single representative districts."

He also said he intended to discuss this matter with the Redistricting Committee again this week.

You can buy a little AM/FM radio for twenty bucks. So why spend $119.95?

The answer is obviously better sound. But how much better? The fact is that most radio stations, particularly FM stations, are putting out a terriffic signal. But by the time the music reaches you via a dinky radio, it sounds like it's coming through a paper cup on a string. What serious music listeners have always needed was a serious high fidelity radio. A radio with real power. Highs that sing. And lows you could feel. A radio with super sensitivity. And an AM section that made even traffic reports, time checks, "pop forties" and "moldy oldies" sound good.

In short, what was needed was the KLH Model Twenty-One . . . a neat, compact AM/FM radio that delivers an astonishing amount of sound. Now you might think it takes a lot of nerve to charge $119.95† for a small radio.

Not really.

What it takes is a lot of radio. Hear it soon. The KLH Model Twenty-One AM/FM radio.

Boys Club Meet Set

The nineteenth annual meeting of the Newton Boys' Club will be held on Tuesday March 27, at 8 p.m. at the Newton Boys' Club.

The club will have as guests Theodore D. Mann, mayor of Newton and Mrs. Eloise K. Houghton, a member of the Newton Centennial Committee.

They will bring members up-to-date on the preparations and plans being made for the forthcoming Centennial Celebration.

Board member Michael J Antonellis, chairman of the nominating committee, will present the proposed new officers and directors to be elected for the upcoming year.

Club president Victor A. Nicolazzo will give his annual report of the organizations achievements through the 1972 season. The annual report of executive director Samuel Crocetti will be distributed at the meeting.

Following the business meeting, members of the Keystone Club will conduct guests through the club premises and answer questions pertaining to its operation.

Refreshments will be servec by the Mothers Club at the conclusion of activities to which all friends and supporters of the Boys' Club are invited.

Newton-Wellesley Nursing School Has Anniversary

The Newton-Wellesley Hospital School of Nursing is celebrating its 85th anniversary next month.

The Alumnae Association plans to mark the occasion with a program of special events on Saturday, April 7, at Allen-Riddle Hall, culminating with a dinner that evening. All interested alumnae are urged to call Sheila Murray at 259-0444 before March 24 for reservations.

Following registration on April 7 at 1 p.m., the program will open with one of three presentations. The first will be a discussion of the Newton-Wellesley Multiservice Center, located on Washington Terrace near the Newtonville Post Office. Kathi Arsenault, a center staff member and Steve Baron, president of the center's Board of Directors and one of the hospital's assistant administrators, will discuss the center's role in the community.

The center, which opened in April, 1971, offers a free medical clinic, emergency housing and youth counseling on everything from family problems to drug abuse, VD and pregnancy.

The second presentation will be on "Central Venous Pressure and Hyperalimentation" by Judy Jadako and Jane Rawlings, R.N., and the third will consist of a film entitled "The Inner World of Aphasia."

Following the program and a tour of the hospital's latest facilities, a dinner is scheduled for 7:45 p.m. at Valle's Steak House on Route 9, preceded by a cocktail hour at 6:30 p.m.

The wedding will be held June 17 at Temple Emanuel in Newton. (Ellis Gale Photo)

Doreen Weems Is Bride Of Mr. Crawford

St. John's Episcopal Church in Newtonville was the setting for the March 3 wedding of Miss Doreen Barbara Weems of Newton to John Edmund Crawford of West Newton. The Rev. Michael Shirley officiated the double ring ceremony at 7 p.m. A reception followed at Briar Lane, Newton.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Dorothy Weems Jacobowitz of Meriden, Conn. Parents of the groom are Eugene Crawford of Medford and Mrs. Anne Caldon of Ft. Lauderdale, Fla.

Given in marriage by her brother-in-law, Luther Kamborian of Newtonville, the bride wore a princess style gown of peau de soie and Alencon lace with bishop sleeves. A flowered headpiece held her fingertip veil and she carried an old fashioned bouquet of yellow roses and lillies of the valley.

Mrs. Arlene Kamborian of Newtonville was her sister's matron of honor. Bridesmaid was Miss Donna Lemelin of Plantsville, Conn.

Best man was Andrew Colbierre of Newton Highlands. Ushers were Douglas Smith of Waltham and John Gardner of West Newton.

MRS. ROBERT HENRY PATRIQUIN

Karen Louise Clisham Weds Robert Patriquin

Our Lady Help of Christian church in Newton was the setting for the recent wedding of Miss Karen Louise Clisham to Robert Henry Patriquinn. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter A. Clisham of Newton. The groom is te son of George S. Patriquin of Westboro, formerly of Brighton, and the late Mrs. Patriquin.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore an ivory cluny lace gown fashioned with a fitted bodice, high neckline, full bishop sleeves, and a skirt scalloped at the edge. She carried a cascade of yellow roses, stephanotis, and purple statice.

Matron of honor was Mary Ellen Clisham of Natick, sister-in-law of the bride. She wore a purple silk taffeta gown belted with an ivory sash, and carried a bouquet of lavender roses, babies' breath and purple statice.

Brother of the groom, George S. Patriquin of Billerica, was best man. Ushers were John Clisham, brother of the bride, of Natick and Robert Crotty, brother-in-law of the groom of Milford.

Following a reception at the Holiday Inn in Waltham, the couple left for a wedding trip to St. Thomas, Virgin Islands.

The bride attended Lasell Jr. College. Her husband attended Wentworth College, Northeastern University, and is employed as a field engineer. The newlyweds will reside in Watertown. (Sharon's Photo)

All proceeds will be used to help defray the mounting costs of various educational, therapeutic and research activities in metropolitan Boston.

Locals Help Heart Fund

Mr. and Mrs. David R. Decter, Heart Fund Community Co-Chairmen for Newton recently announced the names of six local residents who have been assisting in the local Heart Fund drive.

Dr. and Mrs. Michael Berger of 85 Oldham Road, West Newton, are serving as residential co-chairmen, Mr. and Mrs. Neil Jaeger of 27 Walnut place, Newton Highlands, are special events co-chairmen, and Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Kaufman of 252 Upland avenue, Newton Highlands.

"While the Heart Fund door-to-door neighborhood drive officially ends on Heart Sunday in February, there are a number of other ways we hope to raise additional funds in the coming weeks," Mr. Decter explained, "we would like to thank these dedicated chairmen for continuing their efforts to make this year's drive successful."

"Many of Newton's residents have already been visited by a Heart volunteer, but we hope that we can rely on the support of the rest of the community as we work to reach this year's goal," Mrs. Decter added.

All Heart Fund volunteers who have not turned in their kits are asked to complete their calls and leave their neighbors contributions at a local drop-off spot. Volunteers may also send the contributions to the Heart Fund office at 677 Beacon st., Boston.

Mental Health Auxiliary Schedules Fund Program

The Massachusetts Mental Health Center Auxiliary will sponsor its annual fund-raising program entitled "A Whale of a Party" at The New England Aquarium on Friday, April 27, 1973, at 6:30 p.m. Cocktails will be served followed by a buffet supper.

The proceeds from this event support the work of the auxiliary at Massachusetts Mental Health Center, which is the principal psychiatric teaching hospital associated with Harvard University. Dr. and Mrs. Milton Greenblatt are the benefit's honorary chairmen of patrons and sponsors.

For 27 years, the auxiliary has provided funds for patients' outings and parties, ward redecoration, patients' library, and management of the gift and coffee shops which offer work opportunities for the patients. In addition to these services, contributions are made to research and treatment through support of special projects in the day hospital, the adolescent unit, and the neighborhood day school.

Auxiliary president is Mrs. William Carmichael of Newton, and benefit co-chairmen are Mrs. George Klavens of West Newton and Mrs. Julius Levine of Brookline. They are assisted by Mrs. Robert Pyles of Newton Lower Falls and Mrs. Robert Sharpley of Brookline.

Those interested in supporting the activities of the auxiliary and obtaining tickets for the evening may call Mrs. Robert Pyles at 969-3715.

Temple Honors Robert N. Bloom

The Brotherhood of Temple Shalom of Newton honored Robert N. Bloom of Bow Street, Newton Centre as "Man of the Year" at a breakfast meeting in the Social Hall of the Temple recently.

The award was presented by Arnold Shaw, chairman of the event, and Jerry Briskin, president of the Brotherhood. Rabbi Murray I. Rothman welcomed the assemblage and Mayor Theodore Mann brought the greetings of the city.

Past presidents of the congregation were honored at this event by the presentation of a plaque listing their names. Past presidents who were present were Soloman Shulmen, Marshall Glen, George Schwartz, Harold Edinberg and Arnold Shaw.

The man-of-the-year award is given to the Brotherhood member who has done the most for the temple, the Brotherhood and the community. Robert Bloom is a vice president of the Brotherhood and a member of the Board of Trustees of the temple. His services include building the Brotherhood membership to a new high, chairing the annual Chanukah party for the children, and serving on the Temple Finance Committee.

No one but the "Man of the year" committee members knew who was to get the award as all were sworn to secrecy as is the custom. The announcement of the award at the Brotherhood breakfast was a complete surprise, especially to Mr. Bloom who recovered in time to thank the members and guests for this honor.

World Religions Talk

The first of four presentations on World Religions will be given on Friday March 23, at 10 a.m. at the First Unitarian Society in Newton by the Rev. Polly Laughland, Parish Minister. Lets Look at Hinduism - through art, history, literature, believers. The community is cordially invited to participate.

Rabbi Lectures On Zionism

Rabbi Zev Nelson of Temple Emeth will give a lecture on "The Zionist Idea - Its Development and Impact" on Tuesday, Mar. 20, at Temple Reyim, 1860 Washington St., at 9:15 p.m.

His lecture is part of the Combined Adult Education Series of Conservative temples in the Newton-Chestnut Hill areas.

Rabbi Nelson is a graduate of New York University and the Herzliah Hebrew Academy. He was ordained at the Jewish Theological Seminary of America in 1939.

He received his MHL in 1948 and his doctorate from the seminary in 1950. He received an honorary degree of doctor of divinity in 1969.

Rabbi Nelson served as rabbi of the Tree of Life Congregation in Clarksburg, West Virginia and the Beth Jacob Synagogue in Norwich, Connecticut, prior to coming to Boston. He has been spiritual leader of Temple Emeth in Brookline since 1947.

Rabbi Nelson is chairman of the Board of Directors of the Solomon Schechter Day School and is currently president of the New England Association for Hebrew Culture. He is also secretary of the Rabbinical Assembly of America.

The lecture will trace the Zionist idea from its biblical origins to the birth of the State of Israel and will discuss present and future implications of Zionism.

Concert Set In Brookline

Cantor Alex Zimmer, Jeanne Bloom and Morris Bleiwas, Newton residents, will be featured in the concert of the New England Jewish Music Forum Sunday, March 25, at 8 p.m. at Temple Ohabei Shalom, Beacon Street, Brookline.

"We Remember," a narration with music, was written by Cantor Zimmer, who will sing the bass-baritone part and will also serve as narrator. Bleiwas is pianist and director of the group. Mrs. Bloom, contralto, will perform solos and in ensemble. The work will include folk songs of Eastern Europe and ghetto songs. Percy Brand, violinist, will participate.

The Forum concert will also present the "Memorial Cantata" by Herbert Fromm, which will be performed by the Harvard-Radcliffe Orchestra, with the Collegium Musicum of Harvard - a 60 member mixed chorus. Tenor soloist will be Dean Wilder and conductor will be James Yannatos.

The entire program is in observance of the 30th anniversary of the Warsaw Ghetto Uprising.

Three Residents Aid Wentworth Reunion

Three Newton residents have been appointed to the committee for the 60th annual reunion of Wentworth Institute Alumni Association on Saturday, May 5, at the school campus in Boston.

The reunion program will include a golden anniversary luncheon for the 1923 class, general meeting and election, campus tour, class get-togethers, and dinner dance.

Three Newton residents serving on the reunion committee are Robert Sheroff of 255 Woodcliff Rd., Romeo D'Agostino of 447 Craft St., and John Arduino of 53 White Avenue.

Dorothy Restall Teaches Course

Dorothy Restall of West Newton is currently conducting a course, "Introduction to Learning Disabilities for Secondary Teachers," in Framingham.

The object of the course is to help teachers identify and work with students having learning difficulties.

Lectures have included Dr. Homer Reed Jr. and Dr. William Rothney of Tufts University and Dr. Eleanor Semel of Boston University.

Mrs. Restall, a graduate of Tufts, received her master of education degree at Harvard Graduate School of Education in 1965 and has since done post-graduate work in reading and learning disabilities at Harvard and Boston University.

Paulists Offer Marriage Course

"Thinking of Marriage" will be a unique marriage preparation course to be offered at the Paulist Center, 5 Park st., Boston, on four Wednesday evenings at 8 o'clock, beginning Mar. 21.

Father James Young of the Paulist staff will lead the discussions and will welcome a psychiatrist, a feminist and several couples in interfaith marriages to the group. The course is designed for couples who are preparing for marriage or have recently married.

Father Young worked as a marriage counsellor for the Catholic Family Consultation Service in Chicago before coming to Boston in 1971. He will present the current theological understanding of marriage and some of the current discussion about changes in marriage legislation in the Church.

Dr. Ruth Barnhouse, a psychiatrist from Cambridge, will join the group on Mar. 28, along with Ms. Linda Forest, a chaplain at Boston University; they will discuss the current situation of marriage in our society with focus on the changing roles of husband and wife and changing expectations in the marital relationship.

On Apr. 4, David and Sharon Breakstone and Jan and Gerry Howell will join the group; David is Jewish and Sharon is Lutheran; Jan is Protestant and Gerry is Roman Catholic. The two couples will share the unique potentialities of interfaith marriage.

The approach to the course will be group-centered with opportunity for small group discussion among those participating. Fee for the course is $6 per person.

Temple Emanuel Telephones Soviet Jew Denied Emigration

Soviet citizens are one small step closer to freedom as a result of a telephone call made at Temple Emanuel, Newton Centre, to Shalom Gotler, a Russian citizen who has twice been denied permission to emigrate from the U.S.S.R. to join his family in Israel.

Speaking to the Gotler family were cousins, Mrs. Evelyn Shulman and her mother, Mrs. Gottler.

Shalom Gotler is an engineer who lost his job upon applying for an exit visa. He has been told that he will not be permitted to emigrate before 1976.

According to Russian law, if and when Shalom Gotler is granted permission to leave the country, he will be required to pay a prohibitive exit tax of $25,000 in order to obtain his visa. This figure does not include the fees he will have to pay for his wife Tamara and their 2½ year old son Alexander.

The call was a highly emotional experience shared with the family by Temple Emanuel students who heard the conversation via amplification.

Ronya Schwaab, a Russian by birth, served as translator and led the discussion that followed.

Moakley To Speak At Endicott Estate

The Leagues of Women Voters of Congressman Moakley's surburban towns invite the public to a meeting to be held at the Endicott Estate, East Street, Dedham, on Thursday, March 29 at 8 p.m. Representative Moakley will speak on his views as a newcomer of Congress and what he feels may be necessary reforms in that body. Following this he will answer questions from the floor. A coffee hour will conclude the evening, at which time there will be an opportunity to meet your Congressman.

The League of Women Voters has been engaged in a two year study of the Congress. In part they made the following recommendations: a modification of the seniority system, limiting the chairman's tenure, and implementing procedures to limit his absolute control as well, a more balanced representation of diverse interests in each committee, a restructuring for determining national priorities, and of particular interest to the taxpayer, a coordination of fiscal processes to examine the expenditures and revenues of the budget as a whole. Further it was felt that there was unnecessary secrecy between the Congress and the Executive branch, that congressional activities should be scheduled more efficiently, and the congressmen should have research material more readily available either by enlarging staffs or by a computerized process. The use of electronic voting and other time-saving devices was recommended.

The Leagues of Canton, Walpole, Westwood, Needham, Norwood, Dover, and Dedham welcome this opportunity to hear Moakley speak to his constituents.

Decorators' Show House 1973

A harbinger of spring for the third year in a row will be the opening of Decorators' Show House 1973, sponsored by the Junior League of Boston, Inc., whose headquarters are at 117 Newbury street, Boston.

The setting of Show House will be the Stone Estate, most recently Cardinal Cushing College, at 575 Boylston street, Brookline. Located opposite the reservoir, it is a short walk from the bus stop with ample parking on the house side of Route 9.

Opening date is Sunday, April 30, preceded by a Preview Party the previous night. It will be open daily through May 20 from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. except from 1 to 5 p.m. Sundays. This year two evenings will be open, Wednesday and Thursday, from 7 to 9:30. Tickets are available through league members or at the door for a slightly higher price.

Mrs. Joseph F. Park, Jr., of Boston is Show House '73 chairman for the second year. Last year's house in Chestnut Hill saw over 20,000 visitors from all over New England. Most of the more than 1700 Junior Leaguers in the eight various areas of the Boston League took part in acting as guides, staffing the coffee house, decorating odd areas like stairways, doing publicity, and various other jobs.

Area women on the Show House committee include: Mrs. David Armstrong and Mrs. Roger Hewlett of Dover, Mrs. Frank A. Ames of Chestnut Hill, Mrs. Bancroft R. Wheeler of Needham, and Mrs. Chilton S. Cabot of Westwood.

The Show House, which is in its third year and is rapidly becoming a Boston tradition, will again feature its trademark as the pineapple, 18th century symbol of hospitality. The home will feature over 30 decorators, who will transorm the 60-room mansion into a living book on interior decorating and its most contemporary trends. It will be completely redecorated and furnished with choice pieces of furniture, both modern and antique, many of which will be for sale. Paintings will be on loan from Vose Galleries of Boston, Inc., at 238 Newbury street.

Highlights of the Georgian Home, built in 1928, include a mahogany paneled library, pine paneled den, octagonal breakfast room, divided staircase, and second floor hall French wallpaper of the 19th century.

The Decorators' Show House is the Junior League's main fund-raising event to provide funds for community projects. Among the 14 projects the league supports with volunteers and-or financial support, is an urban child abuse center. Established in the fall of 1971, the center aims at family unity as an alternative to foster care for "children at risk" between the ages of seven months and 2¾ years. Under a partnership with the Department of Public Welfare, the league has administered a program of day care for abused children and counseling for the parents.

Mrs. R. Wendell Phillips, Jr., of Dedham is the representative who volunteers from the Dedham-Dover-Needham area, one of the eight areas surrounding Boston which make up the whole Junior League of Boston, Inc.

Tickets to Show House '73 are available for $3.00 through league members before the opening of the house. Then they are available at the door for $3.50.

Archaeologist To Lecture at Science Museum

An archaeologist who tackles Colonial American sites rather than ancient cities will lecture at Boston's Museum of Science Friday, March 23, at 7:45 p.m.

Dr. James Deetz, assistant director of Plimoth Plantation, will discuss "Historical Archaeology at Plimoth Plantation" in this final lecture of the museum's "Two Digs and a Dive" series.

The fee is $3.50, which includes Museum admission for the evening. Reservations may be made with the Museum Course Registrar at 723-2500.

Archaeology is usually associated with pre-history—the time before written records were kept—or with biblical and classical antiquity. Though he is an anthropologist who has worked extensively in American prehistory, Deetz is primarily interested in historical archaeology, which focuses on times and places that fall within recorded history.

Most of his work in this area centers on colonial America at Plymouth and in other parts of southeastern New England. Deetz will discuss the methods and procedures of historical archaeology as well as some of the facts about colonial America that have been uncovered.

A native of Maryland, Deetz completed his undergraduate and graduate studies in anthropology at Harvard University. He has taught at Harvard and the University of California at Santa Barbara. Currently, he teaches two days a week at Brown University in addition to his work at Plimoth Plantation.

He is author of numerous articles and books on anthropology and archaeology, including a study of colonial gravestones. He is a Fellow of the American Anthropological Association, a member of the Post Medieval Ceramic Study Group, and Associate of "Current Anthropology."

Noel Coward: Prolific Composer In Heyday

By WILLIAM D. LAFFLER

NEW YORK (UPI) — Even though Noel Coward is as British as the Rock of Gibraltar, his music has had a relatively strong impact on Americans.

That is because Americans are pushovers for sentimental stuff and Coward's best-known songs definitely are romantic—"Someday I'll Find you," "I'll Follow My Secret Heart" and "I'll See You Again."

Coward, however, was in his heyday a prolific composer who turned out serious and humorous tunes as well.

He composed enough first-rate songs to hold an audience for hours and that is just what "Oh Coward!" has been doing on Broadway.

The hit musical now is available in its entirety on a two-record album, "Oh Coward!" (Bell 9001).

Barbara Cason, Roderick Cook and Jamie Ross are featured in the happy happening under the musical direction of Renee Wiegart.

There are almost 50 songs in the production, among them "Mad Dogs and Englishmen," "Ziegeuner," "Chase Me Charlie," "Something to Do With Spring," "Mad About the Boy" and "I'm No Good at Love."

If this is not enough to sate the appetite for Coward's music, there's another two-record album which will help round out an evening. It is "Bobby Short Is Mad About Noel Coward" (Atlantic SD2-607).

Short's technique is eminently suitable for interpreting Coward's songs and again here is a selection that is never distracting.

Short sings a number of tunes which are not included in "Oh Coward" so both albums may be placed back-to-back without overrepetition.

"Oh Coward" is the kind of music that will create an atmosphere for listening to Broadway music.

Also Kurt Weill

If this mood persists, the listener can turn to "Berlin to Broadway with Kurt Weill" (Paramount PAS-4000), still another two-record set.

Here is the original cast record of an off-Broadway show based on Weill's great musicals —"The Threepenny Opera," "Knickerbocker Holiday," "Mahagonny," "Lost in the Stars" and "One Touch of Venus."

"Mack the Knife" from "The Threepenny Opera" is Weill's best known song. It was popularized as an instrumental by Jonah Jones and as a gore-spattered vocal by Louis Armstrong and Bobby Darin. And "September Song" from "Knickerbocker Holiday" was introduced on Broadway by the late Walter Huston and it became a popular classic.

Innovations In Sound

You've probably never thought of your car as an ideal stereo listening studio. Well, it is! The minute you sit in your stereo equipped auto, you're blanketed in thrilling sound. You'll witness an entirely new perspective in stereo listening; a richness in stereophony and realism of sound reproduction that has never before been possible. Now, with stereo tape cartridges, whether you listen in your car, home, boat, plane or trailer you enjoy an unparallelled sound sensation . . . crisp clarity and maximum fidelity, superior craftsmanship . . . and a wealth of music for every taste from Broadway to The Beatles, from current hits to classical.

Stereo cartridges are carefully engineered to afford maximum reliability and convenience of operation.

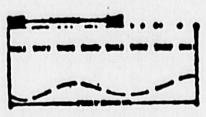
1. You never have to thread or even touch the tape.

2. You may change from one stereo program to another with the press of a button.

3. Tapes are continuous and never need rewinding.

4. With a minimum of care, the playing life of the tape is practically unlimited.

What is four-track and eight-track stereo tape? Within the ¼-inch tape width, music is recorded on four or eight parallel tracks which run the length of the tape. Two tracks play simultaneously and produce true stereo sound. Standard tapes provide up to 40 minutes of continuous music. Twin cartridges up to 80 minutes.



How does a tape cartridge work Stereo cartridges contain a tape in a continuous loop, which simply means that the tape runs from the center of the spool and is returned to the outer lap of the reel. Thus, never needs rewinding. Inserting the cartridge into the tape playback unit is probably as easy as replacing your cigarette lighter in the dash.

Seeing is believing, however, and perhaps the least expensive method for you to experience the unusual convenience engineered into a stereo tape is to visit a dealer and ask for a demonstration.

Realizing that stereo tapes are here to stay, Lechmere Sales of Cambridge and Dedham is now compiling substantial stocks. This foresighted record dealer and department store devoted exclusively to providing the consumer with even a larger and more complete musical selection than previously realized with the more traditional record album departments.

Long recognized as a retailing leader and innovator, Lechmere now features perhaps the largest selection of stereo tape cartridges in New England. It's a certainty that a visit to either Lechmere in Cambridge or Dedham will prove a most rewarding musical experience.

Area Walk for Hunger May 6

The Committee for the Greater Boston Area Walk for Hunger announces the fourth Annual Walk for Hunger, to take place Sunday, May 6. This year's Walk will be 20 miles long and will again end in the Boston Common.

The recent Federal cut - backs have threatened the very existence of many of this city's programs benefiting the poor. This year's Walk, therefore, has taken on a special urgency and it is hoped that the hundreds of expected walkers will raise enough money to somewhat alleviate the dire financial needs of many of these groups. The following programs will benefit from the funds raised on May 6:

Haley House of Hospitality.
Pine Street Inn.
Cardinal Cushing Spanish Center feeding program.
Chinese Community Center lunch program.
Paulist Center Community Wednesday Nite Supper Club.
South End Breakfast program.
Warwick House, Roxbury.
Beacon Hill visitation food program for the elderly.
United Farm Workers staff meal program.

Anyone interested in helping with the Walk is invited to call the Walk office at 742-8155.

Jeannie Berlin Is A Hit In Another 'Loser' Role

Jeannie Berlin would like to get rid of her image. To use her own expression, she's a "Jewish loser" in the minds of every current film producer. Even now that she has won two awards from the New York Critics and the National Society of Film Critics; she played a "Jewish loser" to get them.

She loses both her boy friend and her new bridegroom in "The Heartbreak Kid," a film written by one of her ideal people, Neil Simon, and directed by her brilliant mother, Elaine May. And she loses them to a WASP beauty, Cybill Shepherd.

It is exasperating to know you want something different, and yet are so very good in what you are doing.

I sat next to Jeannie at a Ritz Hotel reception, and was able to judge for myself that she could be a real beauty. She has lovely flowing dark hair, eager, expressive brown eyes, a slim figure, a profile of distinction, and a bearing full of charm. She caught me stydying the profile and I don't know which of us was more embarrassed.

But she did like it when I said that some day soon I was sure that she would play a glamour role and instead of losing her man to a WASP she would grab him away from any number of acknowledged belles.

It isn't the "Jewish" part the 23-year-old actress objects to. It is always being a loser. And that is what she won't be in the picture of her dreams, which she is now writing. It tells the story of her famous actress-director grandmother, Ida Berlin, who also brought Jeannie up as a child while mother Elaine May was carrying on a career in night clubs with Mike Nichols.

"Grandma" is the current title — it could be first a book, and might turn into a play. She has already written 2,000 pages and cut them down to 500. So much does Jeannie admire Mrs. Berlin that she dropped her own last name to take her grandmother's.

Her current prize-winning "loser" role as a lovable but socially unaware bride whose clothes are really awful (and whose table manners are equally bad) was accepted by Jeannie without any attempt to quibble.

"How could you ask for anything better than Neil Simon as the writer and your own mother as the director?" she asks, with practical realism. She knew she couldn't go wrong. But she didn't expect she'd turn into a hit of the season.

Miss Berlin is one of the most modest, unassuming young actresses I have ever met. During some of the scenes for "Heartbreak Kid" she went out to Minnesota to be with the rest of the company making the film on location. In the picture all of her own scenes take place in Florida, but Jeannie couldn't bear to leave her working associates.

So she taught behavioral studies and improvisation to graduate students at the University of Minnesota, and continued writing "Grandma." Her students learned to love her so much that three of them went right along with her when she returned to California.

She met her rival in the story, Cybill Shepherd, only once. The better known actress pressed her hand and said, having seen the famous Florida restaurant sequence: "You were fantastic. You nearly broke my heart."

This was exciting praise to get from the gal you beat out as the most discussed and praised member of the cast.

Her mother has read Jeannie's story of her grandmother, and thinks it is a great idea. She has even made suggestions on cutting it down. And Elaine May, who wrote as well as directed her previous film, "A New Leaf," is certainly a good person to have giving motherly advice. Meanwhile, Jeannie is also busily working on two other writing projects, one of which is based on her own experiences and observations, titled "Autograph Hounds."

The actress has not much use for the kind of people you meet when auditioning for a role.

"I never dressed up," she explained. "I would rush in as I was, in jeans with my hair hanging any way. And I wouldn't see the top men, but somebody's nephew, who wanted to tell me about himself and his family. No, I didn't tell them who my mother was, and they didn't ask."

Jeannie's father, divorced from her mother, lives in California and invents all kinds of wonderful toys.

Jeannie's own romantic life centers on a husky young man named John Miller, who sat not too far away at the Ritz table. He is a sportswriter for a California newspaper.

Will they marry? Jeannie says not if she has to take a blood test. She has a really ingrained fear of needle injections, as a result of a childhood experience, and every year it gets worse. That's why she won't leave the country unless she doesn't have to be vaccinated.

"I think I'd die if I had to take a blood test," she shudders.

"You'd have to go abroad if you made a picture with Ingmar Bergman," someone stated.

Miss Berlin smiled in reply, her mischievous eyes dancing: "Mr. Bergman will have to come to the United States to put me in a film."

Cinema Review

TRAVELS WITH MY AUNT was adapted from the best-selling novel by Graham Greene. It has no message except to make people enjoy themselves. The theme of the film asks whether orchids in a Paris salon are better than dahlias in an English garden. Are they? Does the eccentric, gayly wicked Aunt Augusta give up her madcap ways and go to live in a country home with her respectable nephew? Or does the nephew join Auntie's smuggling operations?

Maggie Smith heads the cast, and has the courage to often appear positively ugly. But when she wants to be she can still be beautiful, as in the scene where she is a 35-year-old woman of the world kept by an amorous millionaire.

Alec MacCowan is the male lead as the nephew who is initiated into the delights of dangerous living after spending his entire career as a straight-laced bank clerk. Robert Stephens, Miss Smith's real-life husband, has the on-screen role of her romantic hero.

George Cukor, a veteran director of immense prestige, whose films include such classics as Camille, Dinner at Eight and My Fair Lady, handles this story with grace and skill appropriate to a man who is one of the most experienced directors still working.

In some ways, Travels With My Aunt is a modern-day reminiscence of the classic American film, full of wit and style and likeable characters. It certainly has some of the most beautiful design, photography and costuming — oh, the costuming — to be seen on the screen in many years.

Political Contributions Deductible

A change in the law now allows taxpayers to designate part of their tax liability to the political party of their choice in the next Presidential election, William E. Williams, district director for Massachusetts, said today.

A tabulation of the first 1972 returns received by IRS shows only a small percentage of the taxpayers are availing themselves of this privilege. This change is effective for 1972 returns being filed now by taxpayers. If a taxpayer chooses, he may designate that one dollar (two dollars on a joint return) be paid over to the candidates of a specific political party, or to a non-partisan account according to Williams. Amounts designated to the non-partisan account will be divided among all eligible candidates. Also, Williams emphasized that participation will not change the amount of refund or tax liability due.

Taxpayers wishing to participate should complete Form 4875 and attach it to their Federal income tax return. The forms are contained in the Tax Return Package that IRS mailed to taxpayers. Williams said taxpayers filing Form 1040A or Form 1040 may participate.

Church Plans Special Musicales

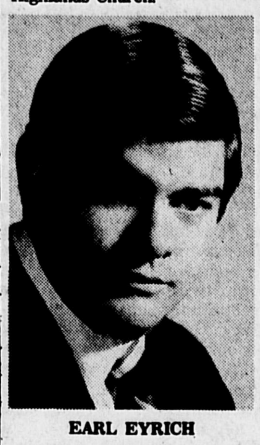
In tribute to the cultural community of Newton in the year of the city's centennial, The Newton Highlands Congregational Church is inviting the public to a Spring series of community concerts and special musical services. The series also celebrates the church's years of growth with the village of Newton Highlands and its long tradition of fine music for the church and the community.

The first event of the series will be a joint recital by Marsha Vleck, soprano, and Earl Eyrich, harpsichordist and organist, Sunday, March 25, at 4:30 p.m. The program will include vocal works of Scarlatti, Bach, Haydn, Mozart, Poulenc, Franck, and Dvorak sung in the original languages, and keyboard works of Valente, Sweelinck, and Arne. Miss Vleck's husband, Mr. Eyrich, will accompany her on a copy of an early 17th century Flemish harpsichord by Wilson Barry, Andover, Mass., and on the church's 1924 Hook & Hastings organ. The music to be presented is appropriate for both the church and concert stage.

Miss Vleck studied at the Mozarteum in Salzburg, Austria, and graduated with a Bachelor of Music degree from the Oberlin College, Oberlin, Ohio. She received her Master of Music degree from the New England Conservatory in 1964 and the Artist Diploma in June, 1970. A lyric soprano who has already gained wide professional experience concertizing in New York City and the New England area, Miss Vleck has also appeared with the Boston Symphony, the Boston Civic Symphony, and the Festival Orchestra. Her performances with such groups as the Opera Company of Boston, the Cantata Singers and Ensemble, and the New England Conservatory Opera Theatre have received acclaim from music critics. In addilion to her concertizing, Miss Vleck is currently instructor in voice at Radcliffe College and associate professor in voice at Lowell State College. She is also soprano soloist at the Newton Highlands Church.



EARL EYRICH

MARSHA VLECK

Eyrich received the Bachelor of Music degree from the New England Conservatory, and he has done graduate work in organ and musicology at the University of Minnesota; and in choral conducting, at the New England Conservatory. Eyrich has been an instructor of organ at MacPhail College of Music in Minneapolis, and at the New England Conservatory. He formerly taught harpsichord and music theory at the University of Minnesota, and was resident harpsichordist of the Minneapolis Institute of Arts. Presently instructor of organ and harpsichord at Rhode Island College as well as organist and director of music at the First Unitarian Church in Providence, Eyrich has played many recitals throughout New England and the Mid-West.

Future events in the series of 4:30 p.m. Vesper Recitals will demonstrate the Church's Hayward Memorial Organ in concerts by three gifted young organists: April 1, Philip Valera; April 15, Eileen Hunt; and April 29, Carrol Hasman, organist-choirmaster of the Newton Highlands Church. The series of special 10:30 a.m. Sunday morning services will feature the Adult Choir and six soloists in music of the "Missa Brevis" by Zoltan Kodaly on both April 8 and May 6. The Easter Sunday Service will include music by soloists, three choirs, organ, and a quartet of brasses.

The final event in the series will be a special youth service May 13. To be celebrated by the cast of the Highlands' November "Godspell Celebration," this service of liturgical drama will include songs from many contemporary rock and folk music sources. The Newton Highlands Congregational Church Trio will accompany the worship event.

Offerings will be taken to support the series and to benefit the Church's organ fund.

Twi-Lite League Plans Meeting

The Twilight Baseball League of Newton, will hold their first meeting of the season on Monday, Mar. 26 at 7:15 p.m. at 70 Crescent St., Auburndale.

Election of officers will be the order of business. Plans for the coming season will also be discussed.

Karen Lane

Karen Lane of Newton Centre was a member of the make-up crew for the recent production of "Tis Pity," presented Mar. 15-17 at Ottawa University, Ottawa, Kansas.

Written by John Ford, the last of the great Elizabethan dramatists, "Tis Pity" exhibits compassionate interest in human nature and questions the laws of society and religion.

Miss Lane, a sophomore, is the daughter of Mr. Barbara C. Lane, 228 Wiswall Rd.

---

Rex Harrison, Celese Holm, Sandy Duncan and Jerry Orbach will serve as hosts for ABC's "The Wide World of Broadway," March 25 special at which the annual Broadway theater Tony Awards will be presented.

Winolas To Aid State Of Israel

Members of local Pioneer Women chapters will be selling Winolas to benefit social services for women and children in Israel at the Chestnut Hill Stop and Shop all during store hours next Thursday, Mar. 29.

Purchasers will have the opportunity to win a trip to Florida and 10 other valuable prizes. An active committee will be at work under the chairmanship of Mrs. Archie Isgur and Mrs. Sidney Lelchook.

Panelists To Discuss Youth-Elder Conflicts

The Greater Newton Combined Jewish Education Committee will hold a film and panel discussion on "The Ingredients of the Generation Gap" at Temple Reyim, Tuesday, Mar. 27, at 8 p.m.

An Eternal Light film entitled "The Teaching," dealing with the generation gap in the context of Jewish religious values, will precede the panel discussion.

Panelists will include Dr. Oscar Tenenbaum, moderator, Sumner Barton, Arthur Freedburg, Dr. Rosalyn Kolodny, Miss Judith Melin and Robert Weiss.

Miss Melin and Weiss will present the views of the younger generation, while the others will speak for the older generation. Miss Melin is a Newton High School student. Weiss is a recent graduate of Harvard College.

Dr. Tenenbaum, retired meteorologist in charge of the National Weather Service of Boston, is a practicing attorney.

Barton is an editor with the Boston Globe. Dr. Kolodny is a practicing doctor of medicine.

The panelists will welcome audience participation.

Temple Looks At Value Systems

Dr. Dana L. Farnsworth, consultant in psychiatry at the Harvard School of Public Health, will speak at the Kehillath Jacob Institute of Social and Religious Studies on Wednesday, Mar. 28, at 8 p.m.

Farnsworth was formerly director of health at Williams College, M.I.T. and Harvard. He has written several books including "Mental Health in College and University," "Psychiatry Education and the Young Adult," and "Psychiatry, Clergy and Pastoral Counselling."

The subject of the lecture will be "The Teaching of Values."

Dr. Farnsworth is currently the Henry K. Oliver Professor of Hygiene Emeritus of Harvard University and vice chairman of the National Commission on Marijuana and Drug Abuse.

At the conclusion of the lecture there will be a question and answer period. The public is invited to attend.

Temple Honors Choir Directors

Richard Reynolds, director of music at Temple Shalom of Newton, will be honored at a special Jewish Music Month Sabbath Service on Friday, March 23 at 8:15 p.m.

The choir of Temple Shalom of Newton, with which Reynolds has been associated for more than twenty years, will be augmented for this special event by the choir of the Melrose Highlands Congregational Church. An outstanding musical service has been prepared by the combined choir.

A reception in honor of Reynolds will follow the service. The community is invited to the service and reception.

Temple Shalom of Newton is located at 175 Temple st. in West Newton.

Guideline For Police

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A University of San Francisco psychology professor has proposed a 10-point guideline for professional police work, including a recommendation that all officers get college degrees.

Other ethics standards for police, according to Prof. Lawrence E. Murphy, should include:

—Protection of the confidentiality of information about private lives of citizens.

—A ban on "roughing up" and other unnecessary use of force.

—High private standards of conduct.

The areas covered in the "code" are: responsibility, competence, moral and legal standards, public statements, confidentiality, client welfare and relationships, professional relationships, teaching of law enforcement, research and writing, and employment practices.

"The worth of a profession is measured by its contribution to the welfare of man," Murphy said. "and by its concern for excellence and self-regulation, and by the guidance it provides its members toward a high level of ethical practice."

Fruits are popular as desserts in most countries, particularly those in the southern hemisphere.

BERNARD GELBER

Manager of Bloomingdale's Chestnut Hill

Bloomingdale's has appointed Bernard Gelber manager of the Chestnut Hill, Massachusetts store, the newest unit of the store's Home Furnishings chain, which is scheduled to open in the Boston area late summer of this year.

He will report to James Schoff, Jr., vice president.

Gelber was named manager of the Manhasset, Long Island store, the first in the home furnishings chain, in the fall of 1971. The previous year, he had been successively branch manager of the Furniture Department and branch coordinator of the Home Furnishings Division in the Short Hills, New Jersey store. He joined Bloomingdale's Bergen County as a furniture salesman in 1965.

His previous experience also had been in the home furnishings field as store manager of furniture, television and appliance stores in New Jersey.

More Stroke Patients Go Home: What Then?

Improved medical and rehabilitative techniques developed in the last decade are making it possible to return more and more rehabilitated stroke patients to home and community. While this progress promises hope of a more normal life to many stroke patients, it also creates additional problems that must be confronted.

According to the Greater Boston Heart Association many stroke patients are not aware of the resources available to help them make the transition to normalcy in their daily home life and many are bewildered by seemingly insurmontable problems.

How many patients find friends reluctant to call or visit because they are unable to deal with the changes brought on by stroke?

. . . find their mobility is restricted either within their own homes or within the community because of architectural barriers that prevent wheelchair or otherwise assisted travel?

. . . become burdened by financial problems due to long illness and unemployment and don't know where to turn for relief?

. . .feel that they might be able to pursue a different or limited employment even with their disability, but don't know where they can be retained or how to pay for it?

. . . are in need of continued therapy such as occupational therapy, physical therapy, nursing, speech therapy or dietary counseling, on an out-patient basis, but are unable to get to hospitals or clinics offering these services?

. . . find that previously simple housework now poses incredible difficulties because of limited physical ability or coordination?

. . . simply do not understand their illness, its limitations or the prognosis for improvement?

These are but some of the very special needs and problems facing the rehabilitated stroke patient once he has returned to the community. How does he deal with these problems and who can help him?

There are a number of facilities and organizations that offer their services to stroke patients living in the Roslindale area. The Heart Association's Stroke Education Committee is concerned that stroke patients in the area become aware of these services and utilize these resources in order to better adjust to community and home life.

The Heart Association advises stroke patients in the community to contact one of the following agencies for various forms of assistance:

Visiting Nurse Association, 20 South st., Jamaica Plain, 542-0272.

Mass. Rehabilitation Commission, 30 Court sq., Boston, 742-3911.

Council on Aging, Commission on Elderly Affairs, City Hall, Boston 722-4100.

Family Service Association of Greater Boston, 34½ Beacon st., Boston, 523-6400.

Companions Unlimited, Women's Educational and Industrial Union, 264 Boylston st., Boston, 536-5651.

Homemakers, Inc., 8 Winter st., Suite 401, Boston, 482-4416.

For further information about stroke and patient care, call the Greater Boston Heart Association at 267-4400.

Bring More Than Ski Pants To Himalayas

By WALTER LOGAN

NEW YORK (UPI) — What do you wear when you start out to climb a 26,795-foot mountain in the Himalayas? Well, for the lower slopes you start out with some rugged apres ski pants. Then when you get above the 17,000 foot snow level you switch to even more rugged ski pants.

The mountain is Dhaulagiri-I, a tragedy-marked mystery peak that is the legendary home of the Abominable Snowman, or as the Nepalese prefer, "the bed of the king of cobras," which is what the Nepalese call the storied creature.

The expedition led by Dr. James D. Morrissey of Stockton, Calif., arrived in Nepal in February and hopes to make the final assault in May on the fearful and never-climbed southeast ridge. A Swiss team climbed the easier northeast spur in 1960.

Avalanches are prevalent on the great mountain which lies between Nepal and Tibet and an avalance killed five climbers and two Sherpa guides on a previous attempt in 1969. Morrissey escaped that disaster and has returned to Nepal with a 15-man team that includes nine doctors of philosophy or medicine.

The $150,000 expedition was financed by contributions by such organizations as the National Geographic Society and the American Alpine Club. A number of West Coast business firms also contributed, including the Edelweiss Co., of Seattle, Wash., one of the top American skiwear manufacturers.

For the trek through the Himalayan rain forests to the lower reaches of the mountain the firm designed special 100 per cent cotton pants, virtually snagproof, in a comfortable jean's cut worn over the tough hiking boots. For midly cool weather wool sweaters, high-necked for warmth.

Rough at 17,000 Feet

The going gets rough above the snow level at Dambush Pass, 17,000 feet up, and for this climb Edelweiss devised special pants of wool for warmth, nylon for strength and Helence spandex, a fiber with a lot of stretch

With the pants, sweaters and more sweaters, lightweight but in layers for warmth and over them a windproof nylon parka with a zippered plaquet, heavy climbing boots, gloves that are warm but practical for wielding the tools of mountain climbing.

Some of the clothes were tested in the rugged Puget Sound area by such members of the expedition as Dr. David Peterson of Olympia, Wash., and Del Langbauer of Tacoma, Wash., whose rigorous pre-climbing activities included 10-mile practice hikes and practice climbs on Mt. Rainier.

It is an unusual expedition in that the climbers do not plan to use climbing oxygen, although medical oxygen will be taken along. If they make it to the top without oxygen they would establish a new no-oxygen climbing record.

Without oxygen each man in the expedition was required to put on an extra 40 pounds—expedition leaders figured they would lose that much weight during the climb. A second innovation is that the climbers will both climb and carry their supplies.

This makes the expedition less dependable on the Sherpas who have traditionally carried supplies in the past. Only six Sherpas are planned for this expedition, compared with 45 on some of the previous climbs. But more climbers are required and the figure rose to 15.

Reunion of Class of '63 J.P. High

Jamaica Plain High School class of 1963, is planning its 10th year reunion for June of this year. The exact date and place to be announced shortly.

Any member of the class of '63 who has not yet been contacted by the reunion committee, may call the guidance office at Jamaica Plain High, 524-6540, between 2 and 2:30 in the afternoon.

Eyes for Needy

What do you do if you're eight - years - old, have no old eyeglasses to give, but feel strongly you want to help other people to see better?

For Harriet, a third - grader in a suburban school, the solution was simple. . . she sold some of her toys.

That's how "New Eyes For The Needy", a volunteer Short Hills, N. J. organization, wound up with $13.75 in the mail one day.

What makes the happening even more unusual is the fact that in its 40 - year history, "New Eyes" has never had a fund drive. It solicits, instead, old eyeglasses, precious metal scrap, silverware, dentures with bits of gold and silver, and antique and costume jewelry.

The glasses, almost a million pairs received last year alone, are graded and sorted and bring new sight to impoverished people all over the world.

The precious metal scrap is melted down and the money from the reclamation, plus the sale of usable jewelry and silverware, goes to "New Eyes" funds established in 80 hospitals all over the country, Canada and Puerto Rico to pay for new prescription glasses, or if needed, artificial eyes.

That's where Harriet's $13.75 went.

The plastic framed glasses are used to fill orders from medical missions in such far places as the Phillippines, Guam and Africa.

Through "New Eyes" has an international reputation, few know it is run by a small group of about 250 persons — mostly housewives. When the organization was incorporated in 1947, its entire treasury consisted of 47 cents.

Nobody can really say how many lives have been brightened because hundreds of thousands of strangers have thoughtfully sent their old eyeglasses to "New Eyes". But every now and then the mailbag provides a clue:

"You have made this a beautiful new world for me. Again I thank you all who made this wonderful miracle available."

Maybe the next miracle will come from you. The address is New Eyes For The Needy, Short Hills, N. J. 07078.

Renewal Registration Information

The Registry of Motor Vehicles has mailed out all computerized renewal applications for blue - numbered plates ending in a three (3) bearing a black decal which expires at midnight, March 31, 1973.

Registrants who have blue numbered plates ending in a three with a black decal are advised of the following:

1. If you have not received a computerized renewal application, contact your insurance agent.

2. If there are any errors or changes on the computerized application which you receive from the Registry, other than a change of address, contact your insurance agent to prepare a replacement form.

3. After insurance endorsement, applications with the correct fee attached may be mailed to the Boston Registry office for delivery of plates by mail, but they must be received at the Boston office prior to the tenth (10th) of March. There will be no guarantee of delivery of plates before the end of March if applications are received after the tenth of March. Please note that branch offices do not have mailing facilities.

4. Applications may be processed over-the-counter at any Registry office except for reserved number plate applications.

5. Reserved number plate applications will be processed at the Boston Registry office, 100 Nashua Street, in person or by mail. If they are mailed, they must be received in Boston prior to the tenth of March or there is no guarantee that the plates will be delivered by mail prior to the end of March.

6. All registrants are asked to check their new plates with the new certificate and if the numbers do not match, they are asked to contact the nearest Registry office.

7. Plates on renewed registrations may be attached to the registered vehicle beginning at noon on the last day in which the current registration is due to expire. (i.e. Registrations renewed for the March expiration period ending in a "3" may be attached from noon of March 31 to noon April 1 providing the registration certificate for both years is carried in the vehicle.)

Louisville's Derby Week

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (UPI) — Derbytown here always gets up in the air over Derby Week festivities the first week in May, but this year proponents of the colorful event have an extra.

Proposed to be added to the already scheduled events, which include a bicycle race, a steamboat race and, of course, a mile and a quarter race for 3-year-olds known as the Kentucky Derby, is a balloon race.

Jack Guthrie, executive vice president of the Kentucky Derby Festival Committee, has announced plans to add a balloon race to this year's gala, pending approval of the Federal Aviation Administration (FAA) and the availability of suitable takeoff and landing sites.

Annual Reunion At St. Leonard's

Former members of St. Leonard's Parish, 14 North Bennet street, Boston, now living in the Greater Boston area are invited to its 100th anniversary reunion to be held on Saturday, May 12, at the Dorothy Quincy Suite in the John Hancock Hall, Boston.

Rev. Kenneth Garolafo, O.F.M., pastor, is looking forward to greeting former members of the parish at the reunion.

Dove Story

HOLLYWOOD — Gregory Peck has signed director Charles Jarrott to direct "Dove," the story of a 16-year-old's solo cruise around the world in a 24-foot sloop.

Yvonne Rainer At Art Museum On March 27

The fourth of five premiere performances by outstanding contemporary artists in the Boston Museum of Fine Arts' "5 Evenings" series features Yvonne Rainer, choreographer-dancer, filmmaker, Tuesday, March 27, at 7:30 p.m. in the Tapestry Gallery.

Ms. Rainer's highly original performances have gradually evolved into mixed media evenings, using film, dance and theatre to relate experiences and convey certain psychological interactions.

Ms. Rainer was born in San Francisco in 1934 and began studying dance in 1958. She has been considered a major performing artist since the early '60's and has performed throughout the U. S. and in Stockholm, Dusseldorf, London, Copenhagen, Paris and Rome among other foreign capitals.

Tickets for the evening will be available at the door: Members $2, Non-Members $3, Students $1.50.

Scholarship Program For Juniors and Seniors

A new scholarship program for Massachusetts high school juniors and seniors was announced today by Lieutenant Governor Donald R. Dwight.

Cash prizes ($500, $300 and $200) will be awarded to those three students submitting the best essays on specified topics. Essays will be judged by five regional committees comprised of educators, community leaders and prominent people from the literary field. Names of committee members will be announced next week.

Secondary school principals or headmasters will submit essays done by their students directly to the Lieutenant Governor's office by April 5, and they'll be forwarded to the appropriate regional committee for judging. Each regional committee will select the three best essays, and the three prize winners will be selected from among the fifteen finalists by a statewide committee. Winners will be announced in mid - May.

Following is the list of topics:

— What developments in 1973 do you believe will have the most profound effect on your life in 1987?

— What do you believe is the most important trend in education today? What positive effect can government have on this trend?

— Is state government too big? Is it unnecessarily expensive? Detail the areas of state government activity which you feel should be reduced or expanded and explain why.

— Finish the following sentence and discuss the basis for your conclusion. "Most people who run for state office do so because. . ."

— For the first time in more than a decade there is peace in Vietnam. What do you think will be the lasting effect of the Vietnam War on your generation?

Prize monies for the program are being provided privately by the Lieutenant Governor.

"There will be no strings attached to the prizes," said Dwight in announcing the program. "It is intended to encourage scholarship and education in the broadest possible sense.

"The real aim is to stimulate thinking and creativity. If one young man or woman delves into an area of serious study he or she would otherwise have missed, then the program will have served its purpose."

Seminar for Red Cross Blood Donors Recruiters

Red Cross Community Blood Donor Recruiters will have an opportunity to learn a great deal about the need for blood and methods of blood donor recruiting at a special seminar to be held Thursday, March 29, from 7 to 10 p.m. at the Greater Boston Red Cross Service Center, 99 Brookline avenue, Boston, one of the many activities taking place at the Center during March, Red Cross month. This will be an unusual educational opportunity for community blood donor recruiters to learn how to do the most effective job.

Neighborhood Blood Chairmen who are busy organizing the seminar include Miss Marion Goldberg, 33 Curtis road, Canton; Edmond Wheelwright, 11 Elm street, Medfield; Gardner Rice, P.O. 22, Millis; Mrs. Stuart Finlay, 507 Bridge street, Dedham; Mrs. Lester A. Browne, Strawberry Hill street, Dover; Mrs. Harold Lamb, 31 Marcus road, Sharon; Mr. F. Edward Anderson, 98 High Rock lane, Westwood; and Mrs. C. Roger Pearson, 106 Day street, Norwood.

Featured "educators" at the seminar will include Dwight E. Harken, M.D., pioneer open heart surgeon, who will show films of his team in action; C. Theodore Mazza, Deputy Administrator, New Hampshire and Vermont Blood Program, who will discuss proven methods for community donor recruiting and James Adams of the Dale Carnegie Institute who will talk on "sales motivation for blood recruiters." Charles (Bill) Williams, Director, Blood Program, Greater Boston Chapter, will serve as toastmaster.

Blood program volunteers who have not received invitations and anyone interested in participating in the seminar are urged to contact their neighborhood blood chairman or call the Greater Boston Chapter Blood Program at 262-1234, Extension 205.

INTERNAL REVENUE SERVICE

Tax Questions And Answers

Q. If I have a balance due on my tax return must I pay the full amount or may I make arrangements to pay in installments.

A. Full payment is required by the filing deadline. Otherwise interest is charged at the rate of 6 percent per annum for failure to pay tax when due. Such interest must be paid even if an extension of time for filing is granted. Unless failure to pay is due to reasonable cause and not wilful neglect, an additional penalty of one half of 1 percent of the unpaid tax on the return is charged for each month or fractional month of delinquency, up to a maximum of 25 percent.

Q. I gave my daughter a $2,000 down payment on a house as a wedding gift. Does she have to pay tax on this?

A. No. Gifts are not taxed to the recipient. However, if a donor's gifts to any one individual exceeds $3,000 a gift tax will have to be paid. For further information see Publication 546.

Q. Several years ago I invested $5,000 in Mutual Funds. I just received a Form 1099 that dividends on these funds total $352.24 have to be reported on my income tax?

A. Yes. This amount must be reported although it probably qualifies for a $100 dividend exclusion. The $2,000 less on your original investment reflects a downturn in the stock market and would only show up on your tax return if you sold your mutual fund shares.

Q. I own an apartment house and rent strictly on a lease basis. One of my tenants broke his lease and had to pay me several hundred dollars to do so, per the terms of the lease. Is this money reportable by me?

A. Yes. If your tenant pays you for permitting him to cancel his lease, the amount received is rent and must be reported in the year you receive it, whether you use the cash or accrual method.

Q. I am 71 years old and am receiving a state retirement pension of about $2,000. I am confused about the Retirement Income Credit. Where the form asks for "earned income," does this mean the pension?

A. No. A pension is not considered to be earned income. Earned income is the gross amount of wages, salaries, or professional fees and other amounts you receive as compensation for personal services. For the purpose of computing the Retirement Income Credit, the total amount of your pension which has been included on Part I, line 5 of Schedule E should be shown on Line 5b of Part A, Schedule R (form 1040).

Q. My 21-year-old son worked days in 1972 and earned approximately $1,200. Since he attended school at night and I provided over half of his total support, does he qualify as a "student" and a dependent when figuring my exemptions?

A. No. He will not qualify as your dependent, even though you may have contributed more than one-half his total support during the year. A "Full time Student" is an individual who was enrolled at an educational institution during some part of each of any five calendar months of the year for the number of courses considered as full time attendance. An individual does not qualify as a full-time student if he was employed full time during the day and attended school at nights.

Q. The company where I was working went out of business last year and I was unemployed for seven months. Are the unemployment benefits taxable?

A. No. State unemployment benefits are not taxable.

Q. We are going to sell our home and try living in an apartment. What is the length of time allowed in which to buy a new house, without paying tax on the profit on the old residence?

A. The time allowed depends on whether you purchase a house already built, the purchase and occupancy must be within a period beginning one year before and ending one year after the sale of your old residence. Construction of a new residence must begin either before the sale of your old or not later than one year after the sale. Also, you must occupy your new residence not later than 18 months after the sale of the old residence.

Q. I have moved since I filed my return. What should I do about my refund check?

A. Many refund checks are undelivered because the taxpayer has moved and has not filed a change of address notice with the post office at their old location. It is also advisable to complete Form 3911 Taxpayers Statement Relative to Refund which can be obtained at your local IRS office.

Q. My husband died in June of 1972 just before his 65th birthday. Can I claim the additional exemption for 65 or over since he would have been 65 during 1972 had he lived and we would have been able to claim the additional exemption if we filed jointly?

A. No. This additional exemption would not be allowable. When one spouse dies during the year, the determination as to whether a person is 65 or over is made as of the date of death.

Q. I am a 50 percent owner in a partnership. Last year, when I was out ill for two months, I drew my regular salary. Can I exclude any of my salary under a sick pay exclusion?

A. No. A partner is not an employee. If while you are absent because of illness or injury, you receive payments from a partnership of which you are a member, those payments may not be excluded from income even though you may be guaranteed a specific salary by your partnership.

Q. I am a salesman who does quite a bit of entertaining. What kind of records do I have to keep to be allowed a deduction on my tax return?

A. You must keep a timely record in an account book, diary or similar record. The information in this record should be supported by adequate documentary evidence that is sufficient to establish the following elements:

1. The amount of each separate expenditure for entertaining;
2. The date the entertainment took place;
3. Where you did the entertaining and the type of entertainment;
4. The reason for the entertainment and what business benefit was derived;
5. The occupation or other information about the person or persons entertained, including name, title, or designation sufficient to establish the business relationship.

Q. My mother is 85 years old and last year we put her in a nursing home. Since she has no income at all, and we can claim her as a dependent, can we claim the cost of the nursing home as a medical expense?

A. If an individual is in a nursing home for the aged because of his physical condition and the availability of medical care is a principal reason for his being there, the entire cost of maintenance (including meals and lodging) may be included in medical expenses.

Q. During the past year, I held two jobs simultaneously. I went directly from work each afternoon to my second job. One of the fellows in work tells me this travel is deductible. Is this true?

A. Yes. You may deduct the cost of going from your first job to your second job. You may deduct either 12 or nine cents a mile by using the standard mileage rate or deduct the applicable business percentage of the actual expenses incurred.

Q. In May of 1972, I put a $500 deposit on a house. Later on I decided not to buy the house, but the real estate agent refused to give me back my $500. Can I deduct this as a bad debt?

A. No. This is a personal loss incurred by you because you failed to comply with the terms of an agreement you entered into. Such a loss is not deductible.

Q. Why do I have to show my name and social security number on every schedule?

A. Your name and social security number should be shown on each schedule you file to identify them as part of your return, and particularly to provide identification of your schedules in the event they become separate from the return.

Q. I saw on television that the IRS will prepare my return for me free of charge. Is this true and where do I go?

A. You are correct. The IRS has several small offices set up in cities and towns throughout the state. For information as to hours of service, call your local IRS office listed in your telephone directory.

Canty Leads Firm In Insurance Sales For '72

Edward D. Canty, leading sales representative on the staff of Metropolitan Life Insurance Company's Harvard Square office at 625 Mt. Vernon Street, Cambridge, has been invited to participate in a four-day business conference with company officials and other sales representatives in New Orleans, La., later this year.

Last year, Canty placed more than $1,600,000 in personal life insurance to rank among the leaders of Metropolitan Life. It was the sixth time that his annual sales have passed the million mark.

A graduate of Jamaica Plain High School, Canty attended Bentley College and served in the U.S. Army from 1941 to 1945 and again from 1950 to 1951. He joined Metropolitan as an agent in the Central Square office in 1947. He is a member of the National Association of Life Underwriters and vice-president of the Metropolitan's Veterans Organization.

He is a member of the Elks Club, Yankee Division of Veterans Association, Disabled Veterans of America, and the Holy Name Society in Waban. He and his wife have three children, Mrs. Virginia Young, Edward, Jr., and Peter.

New Pet Shop Opens In West Roxbury

Betty Wyman of Newton and Donna DeFelice have opened the Brookline Town Kennel at 419 Baker St., West Roxbury.

The pet shop is unique in that it becomes a home away from home for pets.

Miss DeFelice and Miss Wyman have been in the business for approximately 20 years and are not only well known for their grooming talents, but fully aware of the needs of various pets and respond to them with care.

Besides grooming, the shop carries an array of animal products, food and accessories at reasonable prices.

Earns Promotion

William A. Seidman of McCarthy road in Newton has been appointed vice president of Northeast Federal Savings.

Seidman has been at Northeast since 1971. Previously he was assistant controller at Transitron Electronics Corp. of Wakefield.

In Newton, Seidman is a Little League baseball coach and a coach of Pop Warner Football. He is a director of the Newton Athletic Assocation and treasurer of Temple Miskan Tefila PTA.

He is a member of the National Association of Accountants and the Society of Controllers for Savings Institutions.

A Newton High School graduate, Seidman received his undergraduate degree from the University of Miami and a MBA from Boston College in 1969.

Boston City Picks Cohen

The Board of Trustees of the Boston Department of Health and Hospitals voted to appoint Dr. Alan S. Cohen of Newton Centre as director of medical services of the newly reorganized department.

The board recently placed responsibility for coordinating medical staffing of the department with Boston University. That vote ended years of internal conflict and duplication of services due to the autonomous roles played by Harvard, Tufts and Boston University at Boston City Hospital.

Dr. Cohen has been serving since last July as director of the Boston University Medical Services at the hospital.

He is a graduate of the Boston University School of Medicine, is the Conrad Wesselhoeft professor of medicine at B.U. and has been head of the Arthritis and Connective Tissue Disease Section at University Hospital since 1960.

Over the past decade, he and his associates have rendered clinical care in his specialty to patients at Boston City Hospital. He has an international reputation as an outstanding medical scientist and a leader in his field.

Dr. Cohen is a native of Boston and graduated from Boston Latin School. He graduated Phi Beta Kappa and magna cum laude from Harvard College, and in 1952, magna cum laude from Boston University School of Medicine.

He served his internship and residency in the Harvard Medical Service at Boston City Hospital, was a senior assistant surgeon in the Public Health Service and later an exchange registrar in medicine at St. Andrew's University Medical School in Scotland.

After two years as a research and clinical fellow at Massachusetts General Hospital, he taught in the Department of Anatomy and the Arthritis Unit of Harvard Medical School and returned to Boston University in 1960.

Dr. Cohen is past president of the New England Rheumatism Society and on the governing boards of the National Arthritis Foundation and the American Rheumatism Assocution. He is a consultant to the National Institute of Health, Food and Drug Administration, Veteran's Administration and other organizations.

JAMES W. MOGAN — 607 Washington st., Newton, has been named an assistant vice president in the Retail Banking Division of The First National Bank of Boston. Mogan joined the bank in 1964 and became a personal credit officer in 1965, personal credit loan officer in 1968 and personal credit manager in 1971. He is married to the former Catherine Day of Dorchester. They have two sons and a daughter.

Members Sought

Alderman Robert L. Tennant of the R. L. Tennant Insurance Agency, West Newton, and Senior Vice President of the Newton-Needham Chamber of Commerce, has been named to head the Chamber's 1973 Membership Campaign.

Tennant will direct the efforts of 40 key business persons in seeking $5,000 in increased income for expanded programs and to replace normal attrition.

He will be assisted by the following five team captains: John Horne of Norfolk County Trust Co., last year's top salesman award winner; Richard F. Kaerwer, the Three M Company; Robert P. Lurvey, West Newton Savings Bank; Victor A. Nicolazzo, Bigelow Oil Co. and Lewis M. Sherer, Jr., Marriott Motor Hotel.

The campaign will be launched with a campaign kick-off breakfast next Tuesday morning at 7:45 a.m. at the Marriott Motor Hotel.

NHS Lacrossemen Defend State Title

By DAVID CUTLER

In his first season as a lacrosse coach, Tom DePeter molded a band of undisciplined maniacs into State Lacrosse Champions. Prior to last season Newton High School had a reputation as a dirty, vicious, wild lacrosse team, because they were. Not that they were-n't nice people; some of my best friends were lacrosse players, but as a team they spent more than half the game with someone in the penalty box. Under DePeter that figure was cut by 75 per cent, and Newton High School's lacrosse program flourished as one of the best in the state.

This year DePeter is working with an almost entirely different group of athletes. There are only five returning varsity players, and only two regulars. They are this season's co-captains, Ralph Vitti and Jay Tutungian. The rest of the squad will be made up mostly of last year's undefeated jayvee team. "Sure, other teams know we've lost a lot," said DePeter, "but they also know that the junior varsity was 14-0."

Gone are the stars: Walter Cox, Mark Herendeen, and Mike Ball. But taking their places are a group of lacrosse players giving Newton tremendous depth all over the field. "Overall," said DePeter, "We'll be really tough defensively. Both our midfielders and defensemen will keep the other teams from getting off a lot of shots. I'm especially surprised by the attack. They look real good. I'll probably be using six attackmen, whereas last year I made the mistake of only using three."

Goalie Is Back

One unsure spot in the lineup is the goaltender. "That's a big question mark," commented DePeter with a grimace.

After a week of practice there are both good and bad signs showing up. "I guess the progress has been pretty good," stated DePeter. "The team as a whole is showing good skills. But with all the jayvees and the few guys who've never played before, there is a problem with teaching. There is a lot that these guys have to learn."

Part of what they'll have to learn is a whole different style of offense for Newton. Last year's star-studded lineup made a one-on-one style of play the most feasible. This year the team will use primarily a passing offense.

Newton will be competing this season in the newly formed Suburban Lacrosse League. Also in the league are Needham, Framingham North, Framingham South, Newton South, Medford, and Weymouth North. "Needham is the team to beat," DePeter pointed out. The complete schedule is as follows:

April 14 at Moses Brown Academy.
16 at Lincoln-Sudbury.
18 at Andover Academy.
24 at Medford.
30 at Weymouth North.
May 4 Concord-Carlisle.
7 at Pinkerton Academy.
9 at Newton South.
11 Winchester.
15 Framingham South.
18 Needham.
21 Framingham North.
23 at Exeter Academy
25 at Brookline.

"It's a tough schedule," insisted DePeter. "Our four scrimmages with Brown University (Freshmen), Boston College (Freshmen), Pinkerton Academy, and Noble & Greenough Academy will definitely help. We should know how good we really are though, when we start scrimmaging ourselves. That should start sometime this week."

With the label 'State Lacrosse Champions' on their backs, the Tigers cradlers will have everyone after them. Despite this, Coach DePeter has set lofty goals for himself and his team: "First to win the League Championship, and then the State Championship."

Newton South Basketball Future Bright

By Lewis H. Freedman
Asst. Sports Editor

At the beginning of the season coach Chandler Phinney knew he had a lot owork to do before he could floor a winnning basketball team at Newton South, but he also knew that the team which played this year would lay the foundation for next year's squad.

Phinney knew 1972-73 would be a rebuilding year and that the Lions would take their lumps. He hoped that by the end of the year he would see enough positive things to look forward to next year.

It wasn't an easy task to take a team which had lost 11 of 12 lettermen and make it a winner. Making it respectable was the first order.

The Lions finished 6-12 this year, and made some horrible mistakes. But they also did a lot of good things, and with a junior varsity which had the reverse record, coach Phinney's patience should pay off with a winning team next winter.

When Newton High smashed the Lions on opening day, 97-47, it was clear that South had a long way to go to perfection. However, the team bounced back with an encouraging, 50-43 defeat of Roslindale, and that set the tone for the next two-thirds of the season. The Lions beat the bad teams and got stomped on by the good ones.

South really started to play together as a team at the beginning of February, when it downed Maynard, 44-42 in two overtimes. After losing to Lincoln-Sudbury, the Lions came back to stun Dual County League champ and tourney-bound Bedford, 45-43 and top Concord-Carlisle, 56-53. That three-out-of-four stretch was South's best streak of the year and showed that better things will be coming next year.

What South loses from this year's team is two out of its top three scorers and a good deal of its rebounding muscle up front.

MOAN VERSATILE

Captain Ned Moan, who missed the first game of the season with a foot injury, but who was never out of the lineup afterwards, averaged 11.5 points a game and was a hard-nosed defensive player. Moan, at 5-11, was versatile enough to play forward and guard.

Mike Lushan was South's outside threat until he injured his leg wit five games left in the season and sat out the rest of the year. His deadly pops netted him 10.3 points a contest. He was a steady guard who made few mistakes.

Also going are Al Grupp, a 6-4 muscleman who was tough underneath and who came through with big points; forward Rich Duffy, who didn't get much of a chance to play in the beginning of the year, but turned in good efforts near the end; and Scott Green, who played sparingly.

Plenty of Promise

What Phinney has coming back, however, is the nucleus of a fine team. The only apparent questionmark is rebounding. The Lions will need someone to complement leading scorer Rich Spector.

The 6-5 Spector pumped in 11.8 points per ballgame, and played creditable defense (as well as hitting impressively from the foul line) but rebounding is not his strong suit.

Sophomore Bob Lent, who started very strongly, faded in the middle of the season, and came back to record some good efforts at the tail end, is the leading forward candidate. Lent averaged 7.2 points and twice hit the 15-point mark.

After Lent up front, there are plenty of openings, although there are some good prospects available from the junior varsity.

Bob Harris, a top scorer for the jv, is almost a cinch for the other forward berth. He's an excellent scorer and even though he stands in at 6-1, a tough rebounder.

Bob Shpiner, a junior who scored four points in his only varsity game, also seems assured of a spot on the varsity. George Thomas, who exhibited potential on the jv, is another likely candidate.

The backcourt has depth, but those returning did not exhibit any explosive scoring touches. Tom Sullivan, Mark Jefferson, Mark Aronson, Mark Smoller, and Howie Pinderhughes to a lesser degree, all saw action this year.

Sullivan and Smoller were more playmakers than scorers, and Jefferson, out for basketball for the first time as a junior, is still a questionmark. If he can develop scoring consistency he would take care of some problems. Aronson, who missed almost half the year with an injury, is a shooter who should improve. He could be abig gun.

Also in the running for guard spots will be Ricky. Charton, who scored big for the jayvee, (once hitting 30 in a game) and John Bamel, who did likewise for the sophomore team.

Sophomore crop notwithstanding it is realistic to believe that South will occasionally go into a three-guard offense with a double low post next year. The personnel available now would seem to demand it. However, that's just a possibility, and it looks like the team, with this year's experience chalked up, should be a winner next season.

Track Meet Helps Celebrate Centennial

The Newton Recreation Department has scheduled two special events as part of Newton's Centennial observance.

According to Senior Recreation Supervisor James E. Murphy the Recreation Department in conjunction with the Newton Youth Commission is planning an Open Track Meet for boys and girls of high school age. It will be held Tuesday, May 15 at Dickinson Stadium.

Participants in the quadrangle meet will include teams from both Newton High School-Rindge Tech and Newton South High-Bedford High.

The girls will compete in the 50, 100 and 220 yard dashes, the broad jump and relays. Boys events will include the 100, 110 and 440 yard runs, the mile run, broad jump and marathon.

Runners in the marathon will start at the stadium, move out to Elm Road to Walnut Street to Commonwealth Avenue and Lowell Avenue, back to the stadium.

Trophies will be awarded to the winners in each event.

The other Centennial flavored activity will be a Frisbee Clinic to be held in two parts, May 17 at the Newton Centre Playground and May 24 at the Hawthorn Playground. The clinic will prepare contestants for the finals which will be held at Dickinson Stadium, Thursday, May 31, beginning at 6 p.m.

There will be two age divisions, nine to twelve, and thirteen to sixteen. Prizes will be awarded to the winners who will go on to represent Newton in the state finals later this year.

Recreation Supervisor Fran Towle announces that a gymnastics program is being conducted for four consecutive Saturday mornings, from 9 a.m. to noon at the Frank A. Day Junior High School.

The Recreation Department's winter basketball program is nearing its conclusion. Recreation Supervisor William J. Barry reports two upsets in the semi-final playoffs in the "A" Division of the American Basketball League.

First place Silver Lake Electronics was eliminiated by fourth place Centre Pizza, two games to one, and the third place Waban Wonders, last year's champions, upset second place George's Cafe, two games to one.

The American "B" Semi-Finals are being played this week, with first place Newton Boys' Club facing the Oakley Spa Team, and the Stumblebums playing the Bucks in a two our of three series. The Finals will be played the week of Mar. 26.

Barry also reports that Commissioner John B. Penney has confirmed Apr. 7 as the opening date of the mini-bike program, off Winchester Street, Newton Highlands.

The two coffee houses run by the Recreation Department and the Newton Community Centers are proving popular, according to Barry.

Saturday night some 200 young people attended the coffee house at the Unitarian Church in West Newton. Entertainment included a rock band.

Another coffee house has been opened at Newton Highlands Congregational Church and will also be open Saturdays from 7 p.m. to 11 p.m.

Barry also reports great interests in the upcoming softball season. He says that the League will be held to three Height Team divisions again this year, and it is extremely doubtful whether there will be any new openings for the coming season.

Recreation Intern Austin Moore reports that plans are being made for a junior high boys post season basketball league to operate through the first of May. Games will be played at Hawthorn on Tuesday and Thursday afternoons.

Chairman Paul J. Burke of the Newton Recreation Commission was on hand to present trophies to the winners and runners-up in the Pony Basketball League playoffs.

The Warren Red Devils clinched the pennent with two consecutive wins over the Newton Boys' Club in the two out of three series. The Boys' Club finished first in regular league play.

The series featured defense and the final was a low scoring affair. John Williams of Warren was high scorer.

Warren was coached by Ken Annese and Dave Sellers coached the Boys' Club, according to Recreation Supervisor Robert E. Doherty, the league director.

Doherty also notes that the ten week archery class program at the Newton Centre Field House will be completed on Mar. 29 with a three division match. The three divisions are, Expert, Bowman and Archer. A dual meet has already been set up with Waltham at Waltham on Apr. 5.

The woodrowking class being conducted for sixth grade girls on Thursday afternoons from 3 to 4 p.m. has proved very successful according to recreation leader Ralph Hamilton. The program, which was requested by the girls, will continue through Apr. 13, at which time there will be an award ceremony with the boys who have had their woodworking classes through the winter. Both programs have been held at the Emerson School with Gordon Westwater directing the classes for the fifth and sixth grade boys.

Little League Tryouts Set

On Saturday, Mar. 31, tryouts for the Newton East Little League will be held at the Weeks Junior High School gymnasium.

Tryouts will be based on league age. League age is determined as follows: boys born between Aug. 1, 1960 and July 31, 1961 are considered 12; between Aug. 1, 1961 and July 31, 1962, 11; between Aug. 1, 1962 and July 31 1963, 10; and between Aug. 1, 1963 and July 31, 1964, 9.

Ten-year-olds are set to try out at 8:30 a.m., 11-year-olds at 10 a.m. and 12-year-olds at 11:30 a.m. Nine-years-olds and boys now on a major league team are not required to try out.

To be eligible for Little League, the applicant must be a resident of Newton Centre, Oak Hill, Thompsonville or Chestnut Hill (south side of Commonwealth Avenue.) No boy may try out unless he has returned an application signed by a parent.

Parents who do not wish their child to play on a major league team must indicate so on the application blank.

On Sunday, Apr. 1, a brief meeting of parents and all new applicants is scheduled for 4 p.m. at the Sacred Heart School, Crescent Avenue, Newton Centre.

Anyone not receiving an application in school may obtain one at the try-outs.

Private School Sports Roundup

After winning 10 out of 11 games at one stretch in midseason and appearing certain of a berth in the Private School Basketball Tournament, St. Sebastian's folded up, losing its last four regular season games, and had to scramble to make it, and finish 15-8.

The Arrows suffered just three losses over their first 18 games and looked untouchable as they reposed alone in first place in the league's Southern Division with a 10-0 mark. Then the roof caved in and the Arrows ended their season by losing five straight, including an embarassing 68-30 defeat by St. Mark's in the tournament.

It's not easy to pinpoint what happened, but one thing clear is that the Arrows, who averaged 53.4 points a game, were not an explosive team. They were offensively conservative and did not rely on explosive players to haul them out of trouble. The defense was magnificant, holding the opposition to just 49.4 points per ballgame, but it loosened up over the last couple of games and the shooting got worse. Then the balance which was so helpful earlier wasn't such an advantage. The all-around team play slumped and it needed a star to emerge and set it straight. But there was no-one to count on.

Senior Phil Coleman, a 6-5 center, was the leading scorer and rebounder for the Arrows. He tossed in 13.3 points per game.

Kevin O'Malley, a 6-3 guard, and one of two players returning from the starting lineup, contributed 10.2 points a game for second high total.

Bob Maguire, a forward, 180 points, sophomore guard Tom Giblin, 160 points, and Terry Grant, 136 points, completed the starting lineup. Bob Lawler, 81, Peter Flynn, 64, Paul Kelly, 19, Larry Kird, 17, Jack O'Doherty, 13, Tom Hurley, 12, Brian Greene, 2, Frank McGurrin, 2, and Doug Shaw, 2, also saw action this year.

O'Malley and Giblin, plus Kelly, are the only returnees from the varsity. Pat Lee, Buddy Giblin, Tom's brother, Paul Sutlett, and Gary Grady, will be definite additions from the jayvee squad.

On the whole, however, next year looks like a rebuilding for St. Sebastian's - unless, that is, there's an exceptional influx from the school's top freshman team.

Boston College Notes

Boston College had its shot, but the shot turned out to be a BB gun firing into the face of several cannons, as the University of Denver trained all its guns on BC netminder Ned Yetten and waltzed off with a 10-4 victory in the semi-finals of the NCAA Hockey Championships at the Boston Garden, last week.

The Eagles, however, rebounded from the embarrassing loss to outplay Cornell, 3-1 and avenge its loss in the ECAC championships on the week before.

BC's first troubles became public the day before the tournament was about to start. Regulars Joe Fidler and Mike Powers were suspended from school and thus from the team for unspecified rules infractions. Their suspension had to have a demoralizing effect on the team.

The Pioneers, the number one team in the west this year and the WCHA champ, were participants in the tournament for the 11th time and second year in a row.

BC scored first at 3:37 of the first period when Ed Kenty blasted in his own rebound. But the Pioneers notched nine unanswered goals over the next two periods before Eagle captain Bob Reardon connected for the first two of his three third period tallies. Then the two squads traded goals for the final score.

Cornell beat the Eagles, 3-2 in the finals of the ECAC's a week earlier, but was upended, 6-5 in overtime by western runner-up Wisconsin in its NCAA semi.

The consolation game was played on St. Patrick's afternoon and BC's Irish contingent took it upon themselves to provide more cause for celebration.

Reardon, Kenty, and Jim Doyle each netted a goal to best the Big Red.

Neil Higgins, who started the season as the number one goalie, but then gradually fell into Yetten's shadow, played superbly in his last college game, turning aside 46 Cornell shots. His only miscue was on a short-handed situation. Doug Marret struck at 8:42 of the last stanza.

Doyle's score came at 19:59 after Cornell coach Dick Bertrand had pulled goaltender Dave Elenbass.

In the final, Wisconsin upset favored Denver, 4-2 to take the crown.

Boston College completed its first season under Len Ceglarski with a 22-7-1 record.

Enroll At Ted Williams Baseball Camp

Stuart Martin Werman, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Michael E. Werman, 37 Woodchester Dr., Newton, Mass., has recently been accepted for enrollment at the Ted Williams Camp in Lakeville, Mass.

The camp helps boys understand the fundamentals of baseball, and Stuart's session begins on July 1 and goes to August 11. It's a great way to spend a summer vacation.

Ex Newton High Athlete Makes Mark At Weselyan

MIDDLETOWN, CONN. — Jeff Dunn, former three-sport star at Newton High School, recently completed his sophomore basketball season for the Wesleyan University Cardinals. Dunn, a 6'5" center, saw action in thirteen contests as the Cardinals posted a 9-12 record with a schedule featuring most of the top clubs in New England.

Though faced with the prospect of competing with a returning senior center, Dunn still managed to impress the Cardinal coaching staff enough to become a key substitute. Noted for his tenacious play and strong defense, Dunn was inserted into the lineup to get the squad back on the right track. In addition, he shot 78 percent from the free throw line, high for the team.

Wesleyan coach Herb Kenny sees a bright future for the West Newton native, especially since he will be the tallest Card returning next year. "Jeff improved greatly over the course of the season," Kenny noted, "and there is no reason why he should not step into a starting role next year."

Dunn, a psychology major with a B-plus average, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Norman Dunn, 85 Dartmouth Street, West Newton.

Playground Bowling

The Newton Centre Playground Bowling League rolled into its third week of exciting action recently at the Riverside Lanes.

The League which is sponsored by the Newton Recreation Dept. is enjoying its 4th campaign. Head Recreation Leader Bob Worden directs a congregation of 44 participants and leader Steve Pozzi assists.

This weeks action was highlighted by the crumbling of the former first and second place teams, the Colts and Bombers. The Colts managed only four wins out of 12 possible and dropped to third place, the Bombers went 67 pins below their averages and fell t fourth place. "Boss" climbed into the leadoff spot on the basis of solid statistics which include 23 team wins and 63 total pins while the Crackerjacks gained the second position. Funky Critter remains struggling in the cellar in Division One.

In Division Two the Little Runts captured the top slot with 20 team wins and 118 team pins, the Fighting Irish sank to the second position with a weak weekly showing in pins but they have 22 team wins to lead the division in that department. The Eagles maintained third place while the Chicago Chiefs climbed into the remaining playoff spot. The Flames are in a close fifth with the Leafs pulling up the rear.

John Malloy is the league's top bowler with a 102 average, Bryan Cutrove is second with a 99 and Henry Taillaeg and Dave Fishman share third place honors with solid 96 averages.

The League bowls every Saturday afternoon at Riverside Lanes. An eight week schedule is slated for action with a 2-week Playoff Finale. Trophies and certificates will be awarded at the conclusion of the season.

Care for your car. Then follow these signs. For safe summer driving.

These new "symbol" road signs are replacing the conventional "word" signs that we've been familiar with throughout our driving careers. It's important for every driver to quickly recognize each sign—and understand its meaning. Just as it's important for every driver to take his car in for regular car care maintenance. For maximum performance, safety and operating economy. With minimum harmful exhaust emissions.

THIS MESSAGE BROUGHT TO YOU AS A PUBLIC SERVICE BY TRANSCRIPT NEWSPAPERS, THE FOLLOWING ADVERTISERS: FIRESTONE OF WEST ROXBURY, GOODE FORD, HERB ANDERSON VOLKSWAGEN, HOGAN TIRE, JACK LANE LINCOLN-MERCURY, JACK MADDEN FORD, LECHMERE SALES & CHAMPION SPARK PLUGS.

Tune-Ups Most Vital in Coping with Pollution

Progress in Fight for Cleaner Air Calls for Regular Car Maintenance

If you're adept at creating HC, CO and NOx, you may get a good grade in a chemistry class. But you'll be flunking in a more important area, helping protect the nation's environment.

The three chemical designations are the elements of the harmful emissions that are byproducts of fuels that power automobile engines. They are part of the air pollution problem.

HC (or hydrocarbons) is a scientific designation for fuel. The amount of fuel that is unburned and enters the atmosphere through exhaust or vaporization is one element that, when exposed to sunlight, creates smog.

Invisible Gas

Another smog-creating byproduct of combustion is NOx (nitrogen oxide), CO (carbon monoxide) does not create smog but enters the atmosphere as an odorless, tasteless and invisible gas. In enclosed areas, such as the interior of a car, CO can be lethal.

If automotive fuel were burned to 100 per cent efficiency, the byproducts would be $H_2O$ and $CO_2$. $H_2O$ is water and $CO_2$ is carbon dioxide, both harmless to the atmosphere.

Fortunately, all signs point to the near-future time when the automobile will no longer be a significant part of the air pollution problem. One indication of this trend is that today, more than 85 per cent of automobile-caused pollution comes from cars built before 1968.

Later-model cars, incorporating anti-pollution devices, have become a minor part of the problem.

In fact cars built today create only 10% of the pollutants as did cars manufactured in the early 1960's.

As the older cars are scrapped, the pollution picture in this country is brightening significantly. And as devices such as after-burners or catalytic converters are introduced in a few years, cars will be virtually pollution-free, according to the car manufacturers.

Maintenance Needed

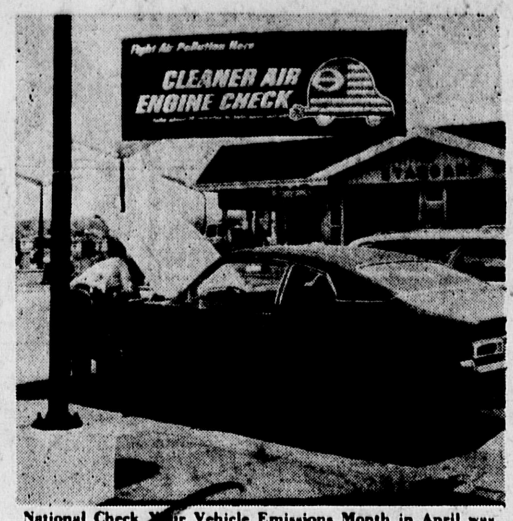
Despite all the efforts and money invested by the car makers, the fight against air pollution will not be totally successful unless the car owner adheres to a schedule of maintenance.

The service most vitally affecting emissions is tune-up.

According to tests conducted by the University of Michigan and the State of New Jersey, a tuned engine produces about 50 per cent fewer pollutants than the same engine in need of tune-up (at idle).



National Check Your Vehicle Emissions Month in April was established in the U.S.A. to remind motorists that engines in good condition do not pollute excessively. Many service facilities like this one offered clean engine checks to help combat air pollution. Mechanics perform a 15-minute check of vital engine components to see whether the car is a polluter or not.

Seven Points Cited as Way To Cope with Brake Trouble

Powered or unpowered, drum or disc, your car's brakes are one of the simplest systems in your car and one of the most critical to your safety. So an understanding of the following seven common points of failure is vital, says the Canadian Safety Council.

1. Fade is one of the most common problems.

Although cheap or defective linings, fluid or drums may be at fault, the usual case of fade is simply overheating from severe service. Three things can happen, any of which can cause partial or total brake failure. If two or three happen simultaneously, you have very little hope of stopping your car.

FIRST, excessive heat can temporarily weaken the drum and cause it to distort from the pressure of the shoes inside it. This may allow excessive movement of the shoes and cause the pedal to go all the way to the floor.

SECOND, heat may cause the brake fluid to boil and become compressible; this would also allow the pedal to go to the floor.

FINALLY and most commonly, heat glazes the lining, giving it an almost liquid coating that acts as a lubricant, preventing the buildup of friction necessary to stop the car.

In a minor case, all the cure that's needed is time—15 to 30 minutes at the most — to allow the brake parts to cool. When they do, they will operate normally if they have not been damaged by excessive heat. The trick is to recognize the onset of brake fade and get the car stopped before it gets worse.

\+ + +

2. When the brakes don't take hold until the pedal almost touches the floor, this is known as excessive pedal travel and is a serious problem.

If not corrected, it will lead to a total brake failure.

A simple adjustment may cure the problem, but a complete system check is called for because there may be a leak or other critical hydraulic defect. If the pedal goes all the way to the floor, do not attempt to drive; have your car towed to a repair shop.

\+ + +

3. Spongy pedal is usually caused by air getting into the hydraulic system when the fluid level is low.

Correction may require only a simple "bleeding" job that usually costs a few dollars for an hour's labor. But there could also be a serious mechanical failure; get a thorough inspection.

4. Wheel pull or failure of the car to stop in a straight line can result from a defective brake or simple maladjustment.

It can also be caused by excessive wear somewhere in the steering system or an oil leak from an axle.

But don't treat it as an annoyance; it will probably get worse — perhaps suddenly — and it could easily cause you to lose control of your car. Have it looked at right away.

\+ + +

5. Squeal sometimes comes from certain brands of extra-hard brake linings.

It's annoying, but not necessarily a danger sign. On the other hand, the noise may result from a mechanical malfunction or worn lining.

Excessive or sudden new brake squeal calls for a checkup.

\+ + +

6. Drag may be caused by many things, but the scraping sound is a sure sign that something is wrong.

To neglect dragging brakes (partly engaged) will not only allow them to ruin themselves but will inevitably lead to a total failure.

\+ + +

7. Pulsation or chatter, a vibrating sensation you may feel at the pedal or notice at the wheel, comes from a loose support plate or from a broken or out-of-round drum.

It is usually a minor problem to correct but it needs immediate attention.

Keep this in mind about brakes: when defective they never get better of their own accord; they only get worse. And when a defect shows up, total failure may be only seconds away.

WIPE OUT NOISE

If you have car radio interference when your electric windshield wipers are on, check your wiring, improperly-gounded two-speed wipers can cause the trouble.

Don't Pass Up Free Services

May Cost You Money Later If You Do — Maybe the best things in life aren't really free, but if you pass up those free services offered by service outlets, it may cost you.

Take the simple precaution of checking battery water levels. It requires only a few seconds of time and absolutely no money. But if battery fluid levels are allowed to drop and the condition is not detected, it could mean premature deterioration of the battery. It could cause an inconvenient "can't start" as well.

During hot, dry periods of summer, battery water is more likely to evaporate. So, especially during warm weather months, have the battery checked every time you stop for gas.

In addition to water levels, have the battery checked for corrosion and soundness of the cables.

Another free service that can save you money is checking the tires for proper inflation. Both underinflation and overinflation can be harmful to tires, wearing them out prematurely. For accurate readings, do not have the tires checked after you've driven more than a few miles.

Other free checks that will help prevent trouble include inspection of oil level and windshield washer fluid. Low levels of oil can lead to engine damage and no fluid in the washer reservoir could hamper visibility at a critical time.

CAR CARE QUIZ THE NUMBERS GAME

If you are the typical driver, you'll put considerably more mileage on your car during spring and summer than you do in the cold weather months. That means your odometer will be spinning a lot faster. If your odometer could talk as well as spin, it might be the best car care adviser you've ever had. Why?

The mileage recorded on the odometer is often an indication of when to have vital maintenance performed.

This quiz links mileage with suggested service intervals. So, see how well you can listen to your silent odometer.

1. Under normal wear you can expect to replace shock absorbers at:

A. 10,000 miles
B. 25,000 miles
C. 50,000 miles

2. Tires should be rotated every

A. 5,000 miles
B. 15,000 miles
C. 30,000 miles

3. A major tune-up should be performed every

A. 1,000 miles
B. 5,000 miles
C. 10,000 miles

4. With normal wear, you can expect major brake service every

A. 12,000 miles
B. 24,000 miles
C. 50,000 miles

5. Oil filters should be changed with the oil at about

A. 1,000 miles
B. 4,000 miles
C. 10,000 miles

6. The PCV valve, part of the anti-pollution system, should be changed ordinarily at

A. 10,000 miles
B. 20,000 miles
C. 30,000 miles

7. Radiator hoses, under normal wear, need replacement at

A. 5,000 miles
B. 15,000 miles
C. 24,000 miles

8. Transmission filters should be changed every

A. 12,000 miles
B. 30,000 miles
C. 50,000 miles

9. You can begin expecting replacement of your muffler and tail pipe at

A. 24,000 miles
B. 48,000 miles
C. 60,000 miles

10. Wiper blades should be checked every

Check List—for Those Who Will Tow Trailers

If you're planning to tow a trailer on a vacation trip this summer, you won't be alone. Trailer towing has increased 400 percent in the past ten years.

But you may be alone — all alone—if your car breaks down in the boondocks. Minimize this danger by properly servicing and equipping your car before hooking up that trailer.

Here are some things to be checked:

BRAKES. Is the lining thick enough for a season of driving? Are components completely leak-free? Is pedal pressure solid without sponginess and is fluid up to the mark?

\+ + +

TRANSMISSION. Is fluid level correct? Does the car shift at correct speeds without lag or erratic performance? Are "U" joints quiet?

\+ + +

TIRES. Are treads wearing evenly? Any cracks or cuts in the tread or sidewalls? Adequate size for load? More than 1-16" of tread left?

COOLING SYSTEM. If it has been a year or more since the last cooling system service, it's a good idea to have the system flushedout and replace the anti-freeze cooland. A 50 percent solution is recommended. This will assure a margin of safety in terms of boiling protection. are hoses and fittings leak-free? No sponginess? Are fanbelts tight and in good condition? Are thermostat and water pump working properly?

\+ + +

LIGHTS. All operative including signal lights? Tail light lenses in good condition? Extra fuses in the glovebox?

SHOCK ABSORBERS & SUSPENSION. Any leakage from the shocks? Springs sagging from old age?

\+ + +

WHEEL ALIGNMENT. Had it checked lately?

\+ + +

ENGINE. Before an extended drive, the engine should be tuned. This is especially important under heavier load conditions when you need all the power you can get. Check the mileage since your last lube and oil and filter change, too.

How to Get Maximum Safe Miles Out of Tires, Told by Expert

By RODGER WARD

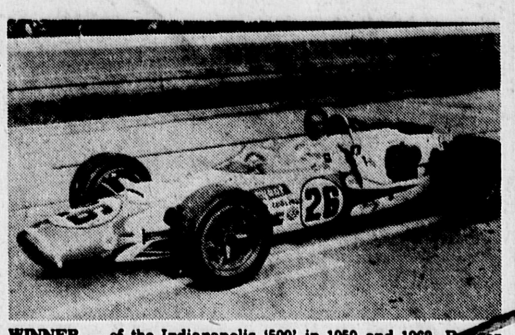
I've learned a lot about tires and what makes them last longer, perform better, thanks to my years as a race car driver and professional tire tester. Now that I have a performance safety tire on the market with my name on it I'm even more interested in seeing that motorists everywhere get the right facts on prolonging tire life.

The tricks to getting those extra miles of tire life aren't all connected solely with the condition or quality of the tires installed on a car however. Improved driving techniques will help extend tire life, as will taking care of your car's tires from time to time. I have a list of seven things to do that I know will prolong the life of your tires.

\+ + +

WATCH THAT INFLATION: Perhaps the greatest single determining factor in tire mileage is the air pressure at which tires are run. Check the owner's manual for your car — this is where the load range data will be useful — and follow the recommended air pressure for the tires you now use.

The Department of Transporation estimates that some 33 million tires a year are destroyed by under-inflation. This represents a loss of some $750 million to car owners. To remember, the few minutes a simple tire pressure check takes will save you money.



WINNER — of the Indianapolis '500' in 1959 and 1962, Rodger Ward knows how to get every safe mile possible out of tires. His advice to car owners is presented in the accompanying article. This photo was taken in 1966, Ward's last year in competitive racing.

If you get a tire that is larger than normally called for on a given car, this is all right — as long as the wheel rim will accept the larger tire. Undersized tires could fail you in a stress situation. An undersized tire will not safely carry the weight of your car and its payload.

Another point about tire sizes. Be sure that the same tire sizes are in service on the same axle.

\+ + +

CUTS, BRUISES AND BUBBLES: Tires that have sustained actual damage are a serious safety hazard. A sidewall cut can let go when it's least expected, sometimes with disastrous results. So for safety's sake check your tires for cuts, bruises and bubbles.

This kind of checking must be done with the tire must be done with the tire free of the road, so that it can be spun and checked on the entire circumference of the tread as well as the sidewall that faces into the car. If the tire rubber is abraded over a considerable distance, and the tire looks as though it may be damaged, there's only one thing to do. Have the tire removed and the inside checked for possible cord damage.

Bubbles that indicate rubber layer separation are cause for immediate replacement also. A young tire with a sidewall bubble should be taken back to the point of purchase for warranty consideration.

\+ + +

SUSPENSION ADJUSTMENTS CRITICAL TOO: Proper alignment of a car's front-end will help to get more miles out of a set of tires. And if you rotate tires regularly, accurate frontend alignment will improve the wear of all road tires.

Another point to remember is that shock absorbers also should be checked regularly for effectiveness and correct operation. If the shocks are weak they won't keep those tires on the road and frequent bouncing impact will take its toll in shortened tire life.

High-mileage cars should have their ball joints checked since wear of these components also can lead to rapid tire wear. Maintaining regular wheel balance is another key to longer tire life. The wheels should be balanced according to the car maker's suggestions, or when you feel any unusual minor vibration in the chassis or steering.

\+ + +

STARTS, STOPS, CORNERS AND CURBS: Even if you're in a hurry, you should take your time when pulling away from a stop. On the other side of the coin, you should never as a habit use the panic stop, or other such hard-driving techniques as late breaking, unless you absolutely must as an evasive maneuver.

Taking corners and curves at high speeds is one of the best ways I know to reduce tire mileage. When your car builds up a lot of forward momentum, and you ask the tires to absorb the sideways force of a quick turn, you're burning rubber.

If you must drive over curbs or driveway entrances where you work or where you live, take them very slowly. A curb taken at high speed can do more damage to ply cords than the average driver knows, and a wheel can be deformed or even destroyed.

\+ + +

WATCH THE WEATHER: When the weather turns extremely cold, tire pressure drops approximately one pound for every 10 deg. F drop in temperature. Conversely, tire pressure increases by one pound for every 10 deg. F rise in temperature.

Regular tire pressue checks should catch pressure changes due to temperature shifts. But the driver who travels from a cold northern state to a warmer part of the nation— or vice versa — should be particularly alert to the need for tire pressure adjustments.

\+ + +

TURNPIKES & FREEWAYS: Finally, a tip that will destroy one of the oldest and most harmful myths about tire wear.

Ask almost any driver how he should prep his tires before doing any prolonged high-speed driving and he'll tell you to take out some air. And he'd be wrong. You're supposed to add air—about 4 psi over normal, in fact.

In every phase of American life, there has been a tendency to accept slipshod service, because people have given up hope of ever getting prompt, efficient and effective service on anything mechanical. Washing machines won't wash, toasters won't toast, air-conditioners won't cool, and cars won't deliver 100% of what they're designed to do. On appliances we can't help you, but on car service, we can and we are doing something to eliminate aggravation and frustration.

Some Motor Accidents Traced to Missed Meal

Abnormally low blood sugar levels, induced by missed meals, may be a direct cause of accidents.

This is the view of Miss M.S. Christian, Head of the Accident and Emergency Department at Wexham Park Hospital, Slough, England. In accident studies she found that several truck drivers who crashed for no appraent reason had extremely low blood-sugar levels.

In three cases, the drivers were either confused, faint or ill but each recovered after a shot of intravenous glucose and a meal. None of them was diabetic and all were young and healthy. The common factor was that each driver had at least 12 hours' starvation.

This new danger was discovered by Miss Christian during a survey she is undertaking of the "unknown factors" in road accidents.

The survey, which will also look into the effects of such factors as tranquilizers and diabetes, includes a question to establish the relationship between the time of the accident and the last meal.

Symptoms associated with low blood-sugar are weakness, drowsiness, dizziness, mental confusion, double vision, aggression and other abnormal behavoir. Because symptons can show at levels not much lower than those after the normal 12 hour overnight fast, anyone undertaking a long journey should not skip a meal.

Truck drivers who make early starts without breakfasts are obviously at risk but so may be people on slimming diets. Just how widespread the problem is is not known, but clearly should be a matter of concern.

DID YOU KNOW?

Did you know that if you drive a car an average of 10,000 miles per year its spark plugs have probably fired some 15 million times during that period? That's why they should be serviced at 5,000 miles and replaced at 10,000 miles.

SEE AND BE SEEN!

Among the most common reasons for rejection at vehicle inspection stations throughout the country are items affecting visibility. In some areas as high as a 50 percent rejection rate occurs on items such as lights and windshield wiper and washer systems.

Experts say that headlight aiming should be checked several times a year. Wiper blades should be replaced every six months.

LOTS OF AIR

An average automobile engine uses about 9,000 gallons of air for every gallon of gasoline. Have your air cleaner serviced regularly for top performance.

Carbon on the distributor points can lead not only to spark plugs misfiring but in some cases can cause complete ignition failure.

HERE'S YOUR TICKET TO CAREFREE MOTORING

Perhaps one definition of a young old-timer is someone who recalls those long railroad passenger tickets. On a cross-country trip, a ticket could be several feet in length, with each coupon representing one stop on the journey. Since the automobile now carries about 85 percent of all vacation travelers, it might be a good idea to resurrect the old train ticket to remind the motorist of vital services. Each portion of the "Carefree Car Vacation" ticket above describes a service that will help keep your car in top condition during your vacation. Car Care Council suggests that you use it as a reminder when getting these services performed at your favorite service facility. In that way you'll be sure that you're on the right track every mile you're on the road.

TUNE-UP

Good for surer starting, better gasoline mileage, peppier performance, reducing harmful emissions.

Should include new spark plugs, points, condenser; distributor and wiring check; set timing, compression test and servicing of anti-pollution devices.

Also battery, electrical system and carburetor check.

LUBRICATION

Good For Optimum Wear of Vital Moving Parts.

Change oil and filter, lubricate the chassis and check all hydraulic fluid levels.

TIRES & WHEELS

Good For Longer Tire Wear.

Check Tires For General Condition and Rotate Them. Check wheel alignment and bal

BRAKES

Good For Safe Stopping.

Have linings inspected, seals, fluid and adjustments checked.

COOLING SYSTEM

Good For Preventing Overheating.

Clean and flush and refill with fresh anti-freeze. Check thermostat, fan belt, water pump, hoses and radiator cap.

SHOCKS

Good For Smoother Ride, Better Control on the Road. Check for condition.

VISIBILITY

Good For Safe Vision.

Check windshield wipers, washer system, headlights, turn signals, backup and brake lights.

Cleaner Engines Call For Better Cooling

In designing anti-emission systems to help reduce air pollution, car manufacturers are installing hotter-running engines in today's vehicles. Therefore, it has become even more critical that cooling systems be in top condition to handle the higher engine temperatures.

This means that the cooling system should be checked twice a year for the following:

Leak-free radiator; soundness of all hoses and connections; properly operating thermostat; radiator cap is sealing efficiently; water pump is working, and coolant levels are normal.

Proper mixture of coolant, for both summer and winter operation, is about 50 per cent ethylene glycol type anti-freeze and 50 per cent water. This so-called permanent-type anti-freeze should be replaced every two years or 30,000 miles, which ever comes first.

While on the subject of anti-freeze, the "self-sealing" variety that claims it can stop radiator leaks offers only a temporary solution to a leak problem. Containing, generally, an asbestos-type compound, the "leak-proof" anti-freeze is effective only for a short time. Once revealed, the leak should be located and repaired by a competent auto service technician.

ADVICE TO WOMEN who DRIVE... and MEN, Too...

from DeDe Benson... a woman who does

Dear DeDe:

My husband is a commercial pilot and understandably is very finicky about the condition of his plane. But what drives me batty is that he is also a dingbat when it comes to our car. We are always late wherever we go because Bob insists on performing what he calls a "preflight check" before he gets into the car. He checks the tires, the wipers, the oil and water and a dozen other items before he'll even move out of the driveway. I'm all for safety but don't you think he's carrying this thing too far?

Mrs. R.W.
Chicago, Illinois

Dear Mrs. R.W.:

Perhaps your husband is carrying things too far. But, if he is, at least he's on the side of the angels. (A good place for a pilot to be.) Too many motorists pay no attention to fundamentals like proper tire pressure, oil levels, good wipers and other basics necessary for trouble-free performance. At best, neglect can lead to premature deterioration of the car. At worst, carelessness can lead to a serious accident. Bear with your husband's carefulness. He wants to fly now and drive later in a safe manner.

\+ + +

Dear DeDe:

Will you please help me out of a tight spot at home? I just met Jeff and he's the kind of guy I could get serious over. There's only one trouble. Jeff has his heart set on being a race driver. When my parents heard that, they blew their stacks and forbade me to see Jeff again. Now, I've driven with Jeff a number of times and he's a lot safer driver than some of the boys my parents approve of. How can I convince my parents to let me go out with Jeff?

Wrong Track Winnie
Mobile, Alabama

Dear Winnie:

You are right in one respect. Successful race drivers are the safest drivers in the world. They must adhere to the rules of the road and have their cars in the best possible condition to be successful. Why not arrange for a double date with your parents with Jeff driving. Once they see he's a better bet at the steering wheel than the average driver, you two may reach the winner's circle together.

\+ + +

Dear DeDe:

We are a young couple on a tight budget. One high but important item on that budget is car expenses. Can you give us some tipes on how to keep that budget under control?

Claude and Jeanne
Montreal, P.Q.

Dear C and J:

One way not to save is to scrimp on preventive maintenance. That dollar you didn't spend could end up costing you five. For instance, there's no surer way to cause premature engine wear than to skip recommended oil and filter changes. Neglecting tune-up is going to cost you money in excessive gasoline bills, charges for road service when your car won't start and possible engine damage. Not checking the air in your tires, having tires improperly balanced could wear out a set of tires 25 percent prematurely. So, to avoid paying those whopping repair bills that shatter budgets, earmark some money for preventive maintenance. It pays off in the long run.

It costs not to tune every 10,000 miles.

Putting off a tune-up can cost you plenty. Costs that affect your wallet. Your safety. Your car's dependability. And your health.

Tests have shown that an untuned car wastes, on the average, a gallon of gas from every tankful . . . takes an average of 7½ car lengths longer to pass a vehicle moving 50 mph . . . has over twice as many "won't starts" . . . and spews substantially greater amounts of harmful pollutants into the air we breathe.

Consider the costs. We think you'll see why it's smart to take your car in for a tune-up every 10,000 miles—or once each year—with Champion spark plugs. The brand that's always right. For every engine.

Better plugs for everyone

Mysteries of Single-Car Accidents May be Traced To Worn Out Shocks

One of the fastest growing and most mysterious fatal accident statistics is the single car accident. It results when, for some undetermined reason, a car leaves the road and strikes a fixed object.

Since victims of the single car accident cannot explain what happened, causes of the tragedy are difficult to determine.

According to some traffic experts, a possible reason for at least some of the single car fatalities could be worn shock absorbers. When shocks are worn, a panic stop, possibly caused by an animal darting into the roadway, could result in the car's front wheel lifting off the road's surface. This action could result in loss of control by the driver.

Also, when shocks are defective, taking a curve at high speeds can mean loss of control.

The average effective life of shock absorbers is about two years or 24,000 miles of driving. Beyond that point, shocks generally lose effectiveness and pose a safety hazard.

There, the motorist is advised to have the condition of the shocks checked routinely when the car is on the hoist for an oil change, lube job, wheel alignment or similar service.

Motorists are also advised to match up the replacement shocks with the type of driving they do. In over-the-road driving with normal loads, regular shocks generally suffice. However, with frequent driving over rough roads and at high speeds, a heavy duty shock may be needed. Motorists who frequently haul trailers or other heavy loads may need load leveler stabilizing units.

In front-end sag due to worn springs is evident, front end stabilizing units are recommended.

Signs of worn shock absorbers include a bobbing of the car after a stop, rough riding characteristics and instability on curves.

Helpful Hints For Safe Driving

When an engine misses as the car is accelerated but runs fine at light load or idle, the probable reason is that a worn plug may misfire because of increased compression pressure at heavy load.

\+ + +

When cleaning your windshield, don't force the wiper blades aside. Some of the late model electrically driven wipers can be permanently damaged by forcing them to another position.

\+ + +

Some ignition problems don't show themselves except in wet weather. That's when cracked insulation is most likely to fail. Avoid trouble by having boots and cables inspected when you buy new spark plugs.

\+ + +

If you should be adding water to your car's battery, be careful not to overfill. Spilled acid will attack metal hold-downs, cables and other parts adjacent to the battery.

U.S. Government Has Car Care Information

A number of booklets on car care and safety are available from the United States government. Among the publications available are:

Automobile batteries, their selection and care (40 cents)

Automotive fuels and air pollution (40 cents)

Brakes, a comparison of braking performance for passenger cars (40 cents)

Maximum safe speed for motor vehicles ($1)

Kiwanis Honor Officers

The Newton Kiwanis Club awarded special plaques to Officer Walter E. Jenkins and Detective William D. Fitzsimmons commending them for their meritorious action in apprehending a hold-up man on Feb. 5.

At the Mar. 14 ceremonies Richard McLaughlin, Massachusetts secretary of public safety presented the men with Distinguished Service Awards and said the without men like Jenkins and Fitzsimmons, Massachusetts might well become a jungle.

On Feb. 5, Jenkins, a traffic control specialist, was informed by police broadcast of a hold up at the Garden City Trust Company in Newton Corner. He then gave chase to the suspect, Richard B. Stunkel of Manchester, N.H. Jenkins stopped Stunkel and a gun battle ensued. After emptying his gun, Jenkins ducked behind Stunkel's car. There he apparently hit his head, knocking himself unconscious.

Det. Fitzsimmons arrived as Stunkle was reportedly pointing a gun at Jenkins' head. Fitzsimmons managed to engage Stunkel and wounded him. He died at Newton Wellesley Hospital four hours later.

Over $12,000, a second gun and a disguise were recovered from Stunkel's car.

At the Kiwanis dinner, Newton Police Chief William F. Quinn stated the whole Newton Police force joins with the Kiwanis Club in their gratitude to Jenkins and Fitzsimmons.

Conference Studies Discrimination

"SEXISM: A Case for Change in the Public Schools" is the topic for a one day conference, Mar. 24, 9 a.m. to 3 p.m., at Boston State College, North Hall.

Organized by several local, state, and national organization, the conference will concentrate on bringing attention to the legal restrictions, both state and federal, against discrimination. Special emphasis will be on Chapter 622 of the Massachusetts Laws which deals with discrimination in the public schools.

The conference resulted from Mayor White's Boston Commission on the Status of Women's Task Force Report on Education. The manifest aim is to heighten awareness of economic and social problems related to sex discrimination; to sensitize participants to discriminatory behavior; and to suggest alternative school practices to assure equal opportunity in education.

Dr. Joseph M. Cronin, secretary of Educational Affairs, State Department of Education, will moderate a panel discussion with Regina Healey, an attorney with the Cambridge-Somerville Legal Services; Florene Howe of the Feminist Press, New Yrok; and Joan Thompson, Office of Civil Rights.

A slide show by Lenore Weitzman of the University of California and a series of workshops will also highlight the day's program. Among the workshops are "Racism and Sexism." "Use of Legislation to Combat Sex Discrimination;" "Strategies for Community Change in Schools;" "Designing A Female Studies Program" and "Teacher Behavior Patterns."

Workshop leaders include Michele Russell, Cummings Foundation, Detroit; Diane Lund, Harvard Law School; Norma Gluckstern, U. Mass. Amherst, Everywoman's Center; Dr. Betsey Useem, Boston State College; Bette Johnson, Education Collaborative of Greater Boston; Dr. Shirley McCune, National Education Association; and June Namisa, Newton Public Schools.

The cost of the conference is $3 to defray expenses. Lunch is not covered in the fee but may be purchased in the cafeteria.

Registration will be at the door of North Hall or registration fees and choice of workshops may be sent to Committee on 6-22, c-o Cecilia M. DiBella, Bureau of Equal Education Opportunity, Massachusetts Department of Education, 182 Tremont Street, Boston, 02101.

For more information, contact Geraldine Pleshaw, special assistant to Mayor White on Women's Affairs, 722-4100, ext. 8192, or Catherine Minicucci, Bureau of Equal Education Opportunity, 727-5880.

Tells Poison Hazards

A Poison Prevention Week program was presented for fourth and fifth grade students at the Cabot Elementary School on Monday, March 12.

The film "Toddlers' Hours of Hazard" was shown by Sidney Levin of 164 Newtonville avenue, director at the Army Materials and Mechanics Research Center in Watertown.

Levin gave a brief talk on poison prevention in the home, followed by a spirited question and answer period.

The program was conducted under the direction of teachers Kathy Caro and Harry Mangle.

Across The Kitchen Counter

Ruth Lenson

Have you ever tasted Creole cooking? If you haven't, it's possible you're missing out on the best original cuisine that America has.

It all began early in the 18th century when some 100 or more resourceful young French and Spanish women were brought to the port of New Orleans to be wives of the rough-and-tough soldiers and settlers. Conditions were primitive. Accustomed to the diversity of European cuisine, the brides found available foods (mainly cornmeal and fish) dull and uninteresting.

It didn't take long for the dissatisfied young women to form a committee and marched on the governor's office with their grievances. A wise man, he arranged the first cooking school — lessons from an older experienced woman who had lived in New Orleans long enough to know how to embellish the native foods. She taught them how to cook and season plentiful fish and game and what to do with wild fruits and berries, turning them into gastronomic delights.

The results of that extraordinary school were passed on from mother to daughter and, to the present day, young brides are taught to cherish their culinary heritage.

Wouldn't it be a nice change to treat the family to a Creole-style dinner? You'll find the dishes laced with interesting spices (never, never bland) and, as an added bonus, Creole cooking is a boon to the budget-conscious homemaker.

CREOLE JAMBALAYA

1 chicken (2½ to 3 lbs.) cut into pieces
4 and one-third cups water, divided
One-third cup instant minced onion
¼ teaspoon instant minced garlic
½ pound link pork sausage
1 tablespoon flour
1 can (1 lb.) tomatoes, broken up
2 tablespoons parsley flakes
2 tablespoons sweet pepper flakes
1¼ teaspoons salt
1 small bay leaf
½ teaspoon thyme leaves
¼ teaspoon ground red pepper
1¼ cups raw, regular cooking rice
½ pound cooked ham, cut julienne
½ pound peeled and deveined raw shrimp

In a saucepot simmer chicken in 4 cups of the water until almost tender, about 35 to 40 minutes. Remove chicken from broth; reserve broth and chicken. Mix onion and garlic with remaining one-third cup water; let stand for 10 minutes to rehydrate; set aside. Cut sausage into ½ inch pieces. In a large Dutch oven or heavy saucepan brown sausage. Remove sausage; set aside. Pour off all but 2 tablespoons fat. Add rehydrated onion and garlic; saute for 5 minutes. Stir in flour. Gradually add 2½ cups of the chicken broth. Add tomatoes, parsley and sweet pepper flakes, salt, bay leaf, thyme and red pepper. Bring to boiling point, stir in chicken, sausage, rice, ham and shrimp. Reduce heat. Cover and simmer until rice and chicken are tender, about 20 to 30 minutes. Yield: 8 portions

SHRIMP GUMBO

1 pound fresh or frozen shrimp in shells or 1 pkg. (10-12 oz.) frozen peeled and deveined shrimp
1 clove garlic, minced
1 onion, chopped
1 green pepper, chopped
1 stalk celery, chopped
2 cups sliced okra
2 tablespoons butter or margarine
3 cups water
¼ teaspoon bottled hot-pepper sauce
1 can (1 lb. or 2 cups) tomatoes
2 teaspoons salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
1 teaspoon sugar
1 tablespoon chopped parsley

If shrimp is in shell, wash, peel and devein shrimp. If shrimp is frozen, let thaw slowly in refrigerator. Cook garlic, onion, green pepper, celery and okra in butter until onion is tender, stirring often. Add rest of ingredients except shrimp and parsley; cover and simmer for 30 minutes. Add shrimp and cover; simmer 3 to 5 minutes, or just till shrimp is done. Serve in soup plates and sprinkle with parsley. Serves 4.

CALAS (Hot fried rice fritters)

1¼ to 1¾ cups unsifted flour
½ cup sugar
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon ground nutmeg
1 pkg. Active Dry Yeast
¼ cup very hot tap water
3 eggs, at room temperature
1½ cups well cooked rice
Oil
Sugar

In a small bowl thoroughly mix one-third cup flour, ½ cup sugar, salt, nutmeg and undissolved active dry yeast. Gradually add very hot tap water to dry ingredients and beat for 2 minutes at medium speed of electric mixer, scraping bowl occasionally. Add eggs and ½ cup flour, or enough flour to make a thick batter. Beat at high speed for 1 minute, scraping bowl occasionally. Add rice and beat 1 minute longer. Stir in enough additional flour to make a very soft dough.

Cover; let rise in warm place, free from draft, until doubled in bulk, about 30 minutes. Stir batter down. Drop by tablespoons into deep hot (370 degrees) oil and fry until deep golden brown, about 3 minutes. Turn only once during frying. Drain on paper towels. Roll in sugar. Best when served warm.

FILET OF SOLE NEW ORLEANS

4 fillets of sole, about 1½ pounds
1 pkg. meat marinade
1½ teaspoons cornstarch
¼ cup white wine
Juice of ½ lemon
½ cup dairy cream
1 small clove garlic, minced or pressed
Freshly grated black pepper
1 cup raw spinach finely chopped
2 tablespoons grated Parmesan cheese
2 medium tomatoes, quartered and cut in half
2 tablespoons toasted bread crumbs

Pour contents of package of meat marinade into skillet with tight fitting lid; blend cornstarch in. Add wine, lemon juice, sour cream, garlic and pepper and blend thoroughly. Fold fillets into thirds with dark side inside. Place in marinade in single layer; spoon marinade over fish, coating all sides. Poach fish in marinade — bring to boil; reduce heat and simmer, covered, only 10 minutes, or until fish flakes easily when gently tested with a fork. Remove fish from skillet; save marinade mixture. Add spinach and cheese to marinade; blend well. Arrange tomato halves in a 2½ quart baking dish; place a fillet on each tomato half; spread spinach-cheese sauce over top; sprinkle lightly with toasted bread crumbs. Brown under broiler. Serves 4.

LORD BALTIMORE CAKE

Lightly oil and dust with flour 2 round 8-inch cake pans
Preheat oven to 350 degrees
2¼ cups sifted cake flour
1 cup sugar
1 tablespoon baking powder
1 teaspoon salt
½ cup milk
½ cup vegetable oil
1½ teaspoons vanilla
½ cup milk
2 egg yolks
2 egg whites
½ cup sugar

Into mixing bowl, sift flour, sugar, baking powder and salt; make a well and put into it ½ cup milk, oil and vanilla; beat for 1 minute at medium speed of electric mixer. Add ½ cup milk, egg yolks and beat 1 minute. Beat whites of eggs until soft peaks form; add ½ cup sugar slowly, 2 tablespoons at a time until stiff glossy peaks form. Gently fold this meringue into cake batter and pour into prepared pans; set in preheated 350 degree oven and bake 30-35 minutes, until cake tests done. Cool on wire rack. Fill and frost with Lord Baltimore Frosting.

LORD BALTIMORE FROSTING

Pour boiling water to cover ½ cup raisins; let stand until plumped, then drain raisins thoroughly. Mix raisins with ½ cup chopped pitted dates, ½ cup chopped pecans or other nuts and 1 tablespoon dark rum or rum flavoring; set aside until needed. In top of double boiler combine 2 egg whites with 1½ cups sugar, ½ cup water, 1 tablespoon white corn syrup and 1 teaspoon salt. Beat 1 minute with rotary electric beater at high speed. Place over boiling water and continue to beat until mixture forms firm peaks when beater is lifted. Take pan from heat; add 1 teaspoon vanilla and continue to beat until it reaches spreading consistency. Fold one-third of this frosting into raisin mixture. Spread over bottom layer of cake. Place second layer neatly on top and use rest of icing to spread in swirls over top and sides of cake.

Household Hints

Researchers have discovered that virus infections can be carried from one fabric to another and live for long periods of time. But hot water washing of clothing tends to help eliminate the problem.

Home economists suggest that the homemaker choose her automatic dishwasher on the basis of average daily load and ease of loading features.

Glass doors in the home are often described as the "unseen killer" because of the number of accidents in which they are involved each year.

Decals, ornamental bars and grills are recommended by home economists to make glass doors in homes visible and thereby prevent serious accidents.

The Federal Trade Commission now requires a permanent care label for all fabrics for home sewing manufactured after July 3, 1972.

An increase in interest in home sewing has brought an increase in gadgets to make the task easier, such as the hem clip, the automatic tailor tacker, tape stitching guides and the automatic buttonhole cutter.

Foliage plants such as Dracaena, Philodendron, Sansevieria and Coleus are especially suited to planter boxes in the home to add a decorative touch.

Weather Wise Wonders

It won't be long now when you'll awaken to one of those endless gray mornings and the sound of rain against the windows. What will you wear? That old khaki raincoat hanging in the closet, black umbrella and galoshes? No!

Fashion experts argue that what you wear has a strong bearing on your disposition and one way to dispel the gloom of day is with an assortment of bright and happy rain fashions.

Designed specifically to banish dreary-day blues, raincoats today are so lovely they've replaced traditional Easter Sunday spring coats. New rain gear carries out the easy-elegant sporty classics theme that has been dominating the fashion market for some time.

It hasn't been easy to wrench women away from their dull khaki, navy or black rain coats. One designer, Calvin Klein, centers his rain fashions on imported rain-treated poplin. His styles include raincoats, shirt-jackets, battle-jackets with elasticized waists, and a young stylized "Baseball jacket." These new fashions are natural colors, unlined, beautifully finished and double-stitched.

Also part of his rainwear collection, is a group in a cottonblend that is dry-cleanable, washable, water-proof and "breathes." Again the styles range from short jacket to knee-length raincoat with coordinating pant or skirt in natural, black check on natural, and flocked cherries on natural.

For the traditionalist, there are still lots of classic trench coats, some with the addition of new features such as tie belts, contrasting yokes, hoods that zip on and off and interesting spaghetti lacings.

The topper raincoat is new and very young looking, especially when it's a fireman red swingy coat with topper lines; this model comes with attached hood and epaulets at shoulders.

Gingham, blue and white, strewn with pink rosdbuds, a round collar that snaps tightly under the chin and a matching floppy rain hat is bound to be a blues chaser. Also a zingy red gabardine drawstring blouse on jacket weather treated, that ties snugly over solid navy gabardine wide cuffed pants.

New synthetic suedes are amazingly butter soft and a joy to wear, appearing in all the delightful sherbet pastel colors as well as soft earth tones. Tailored to a "T," these coats with their classic styling lend themselves beautifully to the new drawstring styling and detailing.

Following is a potpourri of new rain fashions:

Shiny royal blue rubberized shirt-coat that is slimming and neat in its classic cut. Slicker-yellow rubberized cotton coat with one-button flap pockets and a buttoned tab front.

The caftan-poncho look is now called a "tent slicker" and is the easiest raingear of all to wear. Drop it over your sweater and pants — you'll carry books, handbag or shopping bags in dry comfort. The tent slicker is super looking when it's lime green oil cloth with a shiny white zipper streaking from the hem to a little stand-up collar.

Luxurious Qiana lets you laugh at the weather in high style when it's a double-breasted coat with wide lapels, easy self sash, big pearl buttons in an Oriental looking off-white shantung.

Combinations are most appealing to the young set . . . especially when it is a reversible topper in ecru polyester-cotton poplin lined in bright navy and white woven polyester gingham checks with matching check cuffed pants.

Fun in the rain when you're wearing a navy Dacron polyester double-knit shirtcoat that snaps close under a flap front — long full sleeves are cuffed at the wrist . . . neat topstitching in white makes this coat a standout.

You'll be dazzling in a drizzle in a vinyl-coated navy, red and orange cotton plaid shirtcoat with full sleeves and ruffled cuffs which fasten at the wrist with D-rings.

In an effort to change the old raincoat concept, new raincoats feature raglan and dolman sleeves — a departure from the uptight design of yesterday's coat. Softness is the main theme . . . knit coats are lightweight, a must for traveling (especially when these coats double nicely as bathrobes).

Rain suits are new and they make such good sense. Those appearing on the market now are water-repellent (both pants and jacket) and quite springy in their tailored costume look.

No rainwear season would be complete without the classic trench coat, especially when it's an off-white cotton and polyester trenchcoat with strong accent on top stitching, a good body fit with interesting tab yoke and tab-flap pockets.

Does it rain only during the day? Not according to Bill Blass who has designed a smashing [illegible] sequin maxicoat sash-tied with deep side pockets.

Umbrellas, once considered a strictly utilitarian item, have become fashion accesories. During the past few years the "bubble" burst upon the scene and manufacturers were hard put to keep stores adequately supplied. This spring the clear deep bells or bubbles will maintain their popularity, however, the trend is toward bigger umbrellas in the classic or tailored look.

Important umbrella fabric is cotton seen in black and white plaid, stripes in mannish styling and wood handles. Tiny florals, blue chambray and checks with denim borders are expected to be part of the new umbrella scene.

Any of the new spring wet weather fashions will have you skipping blithely along singing in the rain.

CALVIN KLEIN greets spring with her peach gabardine fly front trench coat with large path pockets and tied belt.

Information Please

Ruth Lenson

This is the reader's column. If you have a question or a recipe to share with other readers, please write to: Information, Please, Transcript Newspapers, 420 Washington Street, Dedham, Mass. 02160.

Question: Quite some time ago, I had a recipe for a tuna sandwich that was made like French toast, and we enjoyed it for a Sunday night supper. But I've lost the recipe and wondered if you had a recipe of this kind. Thanks. — Mrs. A. M., Norwood

Answer: I do hope this protein-rich medley equals the recipe you lost!

FRENCH TOASTED TUNA SANDWICHES

1 can (7 oz.) tuna, drained and flaked
One-third cup finely chopped celery
¼ cup finely chopped green pepper
1 teaspoon fresh grated lemon peel
1½ teaspoons fresh lemon juice
¼ cup mayonnaise
3-4 drops hot pepper sauce
8 slices white bread
3 eggs, well beaten
One-third cup light cream or milk
4 tablespoons butter or margarine

Combine tuna, celery, green pepper, lemon peel and juice, mayonnaise and hot pepper suace; mix well. Spread evenly on 4 slices of bread; cover with remaining slices. Combine eggs and cream; beat until well blended. Dip sandwiches in egg mixture. Turn so that both sides of bread are coated with the mixture. Melt butter in skillet, using 1 tablespoon per sandwich. Saute sandwiches until golden brown on both sides. Serve at once. Yields: 4 sandwiches.

Please Note:

Mrs. A. Froese, Dedham, phoned to say that in her Rinderrouladen recipe (February 22) the slices of round roast should be ¼-inch and not 1¼-inches thick.

Question: Whenever my husband and I eat out in a Chinese restaurant, he urges me to try Oriental dishes at home, and so I am asking for two recipes for a Beef with Snow Peas and a Cantonese Lobster Sauce. I really do enjoy your ladies' page. Many thanks.

Answer: Thank you for your kind words! Here are your recipes from the book, "Chinese Cooking with American Meals" by Moira Hodgson, Doubleday:

CANTONESE LOBSTER SAUCE

1 clove garlic
3 scallions
¼ pound minced pork
1 tablespoon dry sherry
1 tablespoon soy sauce
½ teaspoon sugar
3 tablespoons peanut or vegetable oil
1 teaspoon cornstarch mixed with 1 teaspoon water
2 beaten eggs
Salt and pepper

Mince garlic and chop the scallions. To pork add sherry, soy sauce, sugar. Heat oil in skillet. Quick-fry garlic and scallions. Add pork mixture to pan. Cook for 10 minutes until pork is thoroughly done (it should be white). Add cornstarch mixture; when sauce thickens to coat the spoon add beaten eggs; season and serve at once. Makes about 1½ cups. Note: This sauce is particularly good with shellfish.

FRIED BEEF WITH SNOW PEAS

2 pounds stewing beef, sliced and cut into small cubes
1 teaspoon sherry
3 tablespoons soy sauce
1 teaspoon flour
½ cup peanut or vegetable oil
1 pkg. (10 oz.) frozen snow peas, thawed
1 clove garlic, crushed
½ teaspoon onion powder
½ cup chicken broth
Salt and pepper

Marinate beef in sherry, soy sauce, and flour for at least 20 minutes. Heat two-thirds oil in skillet. Add beef and stir-fry for 3 minutes or until tender. Remove to drain on paper towels. Heat rest of oil in skillet. Add snow peas and crushed garlic. Cook for 2 minutes. Add beef to pan plus onion powder, broth and seasoning. Cook for 1 more minute. Serve immediately. Serves 4.

Question: We love bagels in our home, and my husband has asked many times why I don't try baking them — frankly, I don't think I could. When we lived in Philadelphia we bought the Lender Frozen Bagels and I've found them here also . . . do you suppose you could print a bagel recipe — if it isn't too difficult an art to master. Thank you very much.

Answer: We received an immediate reply from Murray Lender, President of the Lender Bagel Bakery; here is the recipe along with a photo of that versatile round "doughnut" of bread. (I baked a batch and can honestly say that it is an easy recipe and a very tasty bagel!)

THE BASIC BAGEL

1½ cups warm water (105-115 degrees F.)
1 pkg. active dry yeast or 1 cake compressed yeast
3 tablespoons sugar
1 tablespoon salt
4¼ cups unsifted flour (about)

Rinse a large bowl under hot water (to warm bowl). Pour in the 1½ cups of warm water. Sprinkle or crumble yeast on top; stir to dissolved. Stir in sugar, salt, and enough flour to make a soft dough. Turn out onto lightly floured board and knead about 10 minutes (adding flour to board as needed) until dough is smooth and elastic. Cover; let rise in a warm place, free from drafts, 15 minutes. Punch down dough and roll on lightly floured board into a rectangle about five by nine inches. Dough should be one inch thick. Cut it into twelve equal strips with a floured knife. Roll each strip till it's only a half-inch thick; moisten ends and join together to form bagels. Cover; let rise in warm place again 20 minutes. Bring 1 gallon of water to a boil, lower heat and add four or five bagels. Simmer them exactly 7 minutes (longer will cause sogginess). Remove and cool on a towel while you cook the remaining bagels. Bake on ungreased cookie sheet at 375 degrees F. (moderate oven) 30 to 35 minutes. Cool and eat — or wrap and freeze. Makes a dozen.

Note: The use of the bagel (other than with lox and cream cheese) is limited only to your imagination. For example: The Hero Bagel — piled high with cold cuts, Swiss cheese, lettuce and tomatoes or the Grilled Cheese Bagel — when the bagel is split, slathered with butter, cheese and broiled Ummm'mmmmmm.

Our thanks to Mrs. W. D., West Roxbury, who shares with us her family's favorite dessert:

DATE CRUMBLE

1½ cups light brown sugar, firmly packed
1 cup chopped dates
1 cup water
1 tablespoon cornstarch
1 teaspoon vanilla extract
¾ cup butter or margarine
1½ cups sifted all purpose flour
½ teaspoon baking soda
½ teaspoon salt
1¾ cups rolled oats
Ice cream or whipped cream

Combine ½ cup sugar with next three ingredients in saucepan; cook over medium heat about 10 minutes or until thickened, stirring frequently. Remove from heat; stir in vanilla extract; cool slightly. Cream butter or margarine with remaining sugar. Sift together next three ingredients; stir in rolled oats. Add to creamed mixture; blend well; press half over bottom of a well greased, 9x9x2-inch baking pan; spread with date filling. Sprinkle remaining crumb mixture over top. Bake in a preheated hot 400 degree oven about 25 minutes, or until done. Serve warm with ice cream or whipped cream. Makes 16 squares (2½ inch).

Arrest for Postal Crimes

Arrests for all types of postal crimes in calendar 1972, totaled 18,972 compared with 19, 497 the previous calendar year, 1971, the U. S. Postal Service reported today.

Convictions in 1972 were 16,316 compared with 15,111 in calendar 1971.

Over the last decade, between 1962 and 1972, the law enforcement activities of the Postal Inspection Service increased sharply, the report shows. The total of convictions compares with 10,438 a decade earlier.

Among the major crimes for which convictions were obtained in 1972 was mail fraud, the Inspection Service reported.

A total of 5,373 fraudulent promotions of all kinds were discontinued in 1972, usually before the operators could realize any substantial gain.

These promotions involved such frauds as medical quackery, fraudulent investment schemes and attempted stock swindles. The 1972 total of discontinued promotions was about double the total a decade earlier, in 1962.

In 1972, the Inspectors handled 125,048 fraud complaints. Based on estimates of old records, this is about twice as many complaints as were received a decade ago.

The increase in complaints shows a growing public awareness that consumer frauds often indicate violation of the mail fraud statutes when the mails are used in any manner to promote the fraud.

In all, during 1972, Postal Inspectors completed 119,112 criminal investigations.

Bach Passions at Symphony Hall

Two of J. S. Bach's greatest masterpieces, the St. Matthew Passion and the St. John Passion, will be performed by the Handel and Hayden Society under the musical direction of Thomas Dunn this month at Symphony Hall, Boston.

The Society will perform the St. Matthew Passion at Symphony Hall on Tuesday evening, March 27, at 7:30 p.m. The orchestra and chamber chorus will perform the St. John Passion (second version) on Friday evening, March 30, at 8:30 p.m.

Soloists for both performances will include Barbara Wallace, Mary Strebing, Pamela Gore, Richard Shadley, Jon Humphry, Frances Hester, Robert Shiesley, David Evitts, Fortunato Arico and the Choruses and Orchestras of the Society.

Tickets priced from $7.50 to $3.50 are on sale now at the Symphony Hall Box Office, for each performance.

For further information call the Society at 536-[illegible] or 536-2951.

SOCCER TALK

By PAUL ELDRIDGE JR.

On Sunday, March 11, at the Azione Cattolica Club in Boston, North End, we witnessed the birth of a new referees group. The Mass. Soccer Referees Association was formulated under the auspices of the Mass. Soccer Association, and was immediately recognized by the M.S.A.

One of the main reasons for the formation of the M.S.R.A. was to align the structure of the M.S.A. with the Constitution of the United States Soccer Football Association regarding the formation and control of a Referee's Unit. To quote from the Constitution of the U.S.S.F.A., "In each state association or state commission, there shall be but one recognized Referee's Unit and evry referee is obligated to affiliate with the U.S.S.F.A."

John Healy, the coach of the Dedham "C" Team in the Boston Area Youth Soccer League, tells me that the Dedham "AA-A-B-C-D" Teams have begun to work out in a school gym on Saturday afternoons. They will stay in the gym until their field dries out.

Helay feels that the "D" team should be the class of this new division of the BAYS League. It seems that most of the boys on this team have been playing in the "C" Division against older boys for the past two seasons. The "D" Division is new this year and introduces Soccer to boys under the age of 11.

Rene Kormemans of the Netherlands has signed as Coach of the Connecticut Wildcats of the American Soccer League. Kormans was formerly a coach for the Dutch first division professional club, Fortuna. He also was a player for a farm club of Feyenoord, Rotterdam; the perennial Dutch national champions.

President James P. McGuire of U.S.S.F.A. recently announced the U.S. National Soccer Team. The team will play a series of international games in Europe later this month. We wish the U.S. National Soccer Team and their coaches, Max Wozniak of Los Angeles and Gene Chyzowych of Newark, New Jersey, the best of luck on their European tour.

A youth's quick reflexes gained from playing soccer was credited with saving many lives in a Belfast bombing attack.

Extremists in a Northern Ireland community threw a bomb into the Hole in the Wall pub, where John Martin is the doorman. Martin kicked the bomb back out the door as it entered, and it exploded on the way back out. Martin and 19 others were injured.

"If it had not been for Martin's action, we would have been counting dead instead of wounded," said a police spokesman.

I think great credit is due this man.

Red Cross Aid Servicemen

Over three million times last year the American Red Cross gave neighborly assistance and help to U. S. servicemen and their families who were plagued by problems and emergencies made more acute by the men's assignments far from home, Charles F. Woodard, chairman of the Greater Boston Red Cross Chapter, said today.

Here in Greater Boston, he said the Red Cross aided 1,636 of servicemen's and veteran's families during the course of the year. Nationally, 1,810,845 men and their families were helped.

This Red Cross assistance, he stated, included counseling in personal and family problems; help with emergence and convalescent leave; reporting on family conditions and communications; recreation for hospital patients; assistance to relatives visiting hospital patients; and emergency financial assistance.

Woodard said the reduction in active U. S. military forces has enabled Red Cross chapters to give more individualized attention to military families and especially to veterans and their families. Locally, he added, the Red Cross last year sent welcome home letters to all returning veterans in the area, with a list of local employment offices and job opportunities centers enclosed, along with a time table indicating how to take advantage of veterans' benefits; provided budget counseling for student veterans in school under the G.I. bill; and gave financial aid to veterans' widows and their dependents awaiting receipt of government benefits.

Red Cross chapters across the nation last year gave individual assistance to 725,101 servicemen and veterans and their loved ones, Mr. Woodard said, while Red Cross field staff at U. S. military installations and medical facilities around the world helped another 972,433 men and their families. At Veterans Administration Offices in this country, ARC staff aided 113,311 veterans or their dependents with claims for government benefits.

He reported that both in chapters and at military installations Red Cross provided servicemen and their families with financial assistance in the form of loans and grants totaling $12,006,945. Most loans were repaid.

Red Cross staff members stationed in Veterans Administration offices worked with chapters in assisting veterans and their families to obtain educational benefits, disability compensation and pension, survivor benefits, insurance benefits, medical care, other federal and state benefits, and applications for change in type of discharge or other change in military records.

Overall, he added, the Red Cross gave 4,080,986 services last year to servicemen and their families, and veterans and their dependents.

Woodard pointed out that any change to an all-volunteer military service will not have a major effect on Red Cross services to the armed forces. Most of these activities, he said, are aimed at helping with family emergencies and problems stemming from the man's separation from his family.

As an indication of the widespread need for these Red Cross services, he said that roughly 50 per cent of the nation's population is made up of men and women in military service, their dependents, and veterans and their dependents or survivors.

Woodard added that the Greater Boston Red Cross is appealing to members of the community to join Red Cross by becoming individual members of the chapter.

"Thanks to the Massachusetts Bay United Fund," he said, "the Chapter is able to meet three-fourths of its financial commitments. Individual memberships will make up the difference."

Academy Award Contest At Dedham Drive-In

The Dedham Drive-In Theatre, a unit of Redstone Theatres in Greater Boston is having their Annual Academy Awards Contest from now until March 25.

The first prize is a weekend at a Holiday Inn, followed by season passes for the drive-in theatre and 100 more prizes from participating sponsors such as, Maverick Steak House, Route 28, North Reading. Pewter Pot Restaurants, and Lechmere Car Wash.

Contest ballots may be picked up at any of the participating theatres. No purchase is necessary. All ballots must be returned to any one of the following drive-in theatres, Dedham, Route 1 and 128, Neponset, at Neponset Circle, V.F.W. Parkway, in West Roxbury and the Revere Drive In, Revere, by 10:00 p.m., Sunday evening, March 25th.

All one has to do is to mark their ballot for the picture, the actor, the actress, etc., who they think will win the Academy Awards which will be on Nationwide Television, Tuesday evening March 27. All ballots remain the property of Redstone Theatres and any ties will be decided on by the judges.

LIKE A PEOPLE RACE?

NEW YORK (UPI) — "College and University Business," a McGraw-Hill journal for eggheads at the helm of higher education, widens horizons by reporting on something called "rathletes."

The "rathletes" converge on the American River College, Sacramento, Calif., campus for an annual Rat Decathlon. Initiated by psychology instructor Jack Badaracco, the decathlon requires specially bred super-rats to compete for world titles in such things as the high jump, the maze dash, rope scampering and high-wire clambering.

International Institute Annual Ball on April 6

The annual Ball of the International Institute of Boston will be particularly colorful this year, as guests enjoy samplings of home - made dishes from 18 different countries. The buffet - patisserie chairmen are Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Celosse, who have been working with the committee to assure the gastronomic delight of all those who attend.

On Friday evening, April 6, beginning at 7:30 the array of distinctive cuisines will be available fore Jeff Stoughton strikes up the band for an evening of dancing. Many guests will arrive in national dress, and later a Grand March and stage program featuring a whirl of song and dance from all over the world will capture the international flavor of the evening.

Guests may purchase food tickets that evening. Food is also available to take home, and will be packaged accordingly.

The International Ball is held each year to benefit the International Institute of Boston, a United Community Services Agency that assists the foreign born in their adjustment to a new environment. The Ball is the major source of operating funds for the Institute. Tickets are still available at the Institute, 287 Commonwealth avenue, Boston (Tel. 536-1081) or from 7:30 p.m. at the Statler Hilton Hotel on the evening of the Ball.

To Select Miss Bradley Next Tuesday

Miss Bradley will be chosen by a group of judges at Bradley's, 960 American Legion highway, near the junction of Cummings Highway, Roslindale, next Tuesday evening, March [illegible] at 7:30. The judges will base their decision on looks and personality.

The winner of the contest Tuesday, will be Miss Bradley's of Roslindale and go to Hingham on Friday, March 31 to compete in the semi-finals.

The Miss Bradley selected will enter the Miss Massachusetts Contest and will enter the Miss Massachusetts portion of the Miss USA Contest on Sunday, April 15, at the Copley Plaza Hotel, Boston.

Any young woman, at least 18 years old and who has never been married, may enter the contest. Application blanks may be obtained at the service desk at Bradley's in Roslindale.

Proparvulis Club Fashion Show Mar. 27

The Proparvulis Club will sponsor its annual spring luncheon and fashion show Saturday, March 24, at the Sidney Hill Country Club. The program will start with a social hour at 12 noon followed by the luncheon at 1 p.m.

Mary Cummings, chairman (782-5558) or M. Rita Powers (893-2985) are in charge of reservations. Proceeds of the day will assist in the support of Sunset Point Camp, Hull, for underprivileged children of the Greater Boston area.

"Over 70,000 people dependent on HBLC?"

"I can't believe it"

It's a fact there are 22,000 employees of The Home-based Life Companies with over 50,000 members in their households. That's over 70,000 people dependent on us. It's another important way The Home-based Life Companies play a vital role in the State's economy.

Brownies Aid Vietnamese Orphans

Brownie Troop 457 in Newton Centre has recently completed a project to help children in Vietnamese orphanages.

From their troop dues money and contributions the girls planned to purchase baby clothes and food to be shipped to Vietnam.

With their leaders, Mrs. Elva Schein and Mrs. Carol Martin, the Brownies went on a shopping trip to purchase these items, and then packed them for shipment. Through Friends of Children of Vietnam they obtained the address of an orphanage and mailed their package.

With this project the Brownies fulfilled the requirement that each troop participate in an international friendship program each year.

Members of Brownie Troop 457 are: Ann Berlin, Corinne Braverman, Barbara Martin, Sharon Greene, Marion Minichiello, Harriet Weinraub, Victoria Larkin, Betsy Schien, Elise Bass, and Danielle Rankin.

CREATIVE ARTS ENTHUSIASTS—Seated left to right are Ernie Donovan, John Haltey, Tom Haltey and Kathy Donovan of the Newton Lower Falls Community School. The children are participating in a creative arts course, one of many offered to community residents by the school. A course on Newton history is also being offered and features Alan B. Larkin, chairman of the Newton Historical Research Committee. Larkin lectures at the Hamilton School, where all the courses are offered, at 7:30 p.m. each Thursday. Two more lectures will be offered by Larkin on Mar. 22 and 29. Admission is free to this informal tour of Newton's past. The Hamilton School is located at 545 Grove St., Newton Lower Falls. ## New Brownies Receive Pins

Second grade girls at the Emerson School recently received their official Brownie pins at an investiture ceremony, and are now an organized Brownie Scout Troop in the Newton South Neighborhood of the Bay Path Colonial Girl Scout Council.

Mrs. Eleanor Brayman is the Brownie leader, assisted by Mrs. Mary Manzelli and Mrs. Carol Warr.

The new Brownies were welcomed into Girl Scouting by Mrs. Betty Laning, Brownie Troop Consultant. In a short ceremony they made their Brownie promise, sang appropriate songs, and were taught the Brownie International Handshake.

Mrs. Laning also presented special pins to the leaders signifying that the troop is starting a project to serve others.

League Of Women Voters Attempts Tri-Level Approach

A conference on health, housing and the environment, sponsored by the League of Women Voters of Massachusetts and the Massachusetts Medical Society, will be held on Wednesday, April 4, at Cohen Auditorium, Tufts University, from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m.

Tickets are available from Mrs. Thomas Hoban, 86 Richardson Drive, Needham 02192. The price is $6.50 including lunch. Student tickets are available at $2.50.

The problems of health, housing, and environment have been discussed often in the past few years. All too often, however, each is seen as a separate subject; therefore, the solution of one problem comes into conflict with the solution to another.

The League of Women Voters and the Medical Society are sponsoring this conference to further discussion of ways to balance the needs of health, housing and environment so that the setting of priorities is better understood as we consider future citizens' action.

The speakers at the morning session have been asked to talk to the interrelationship of health, housing and the environment. They include: Jose Louis Sert, architect and urban planner; Dr. John Cassell, Chairman of Epidemiology at the University of North Carolina School of Public Health; and David Liederman, commissioner, Children's Affairs.

These speakers will be joined at the afternoon panel discussion by Thomas I. Atkins, secretary, Communities and Development, and Dr. John Robey, pediatrician at Children's Hospital, Boston, and a member of the Massachusetts Medical Society's Committee on Environmental Health.

Moderators for the conference's two sessions are: Dr. George Wilkins, Massachusetts Medical Society, and Margaret Lynch, president, League of Women Voters of Massachusetts.

Republicans To Honor Unannounced Guests

Two Newton residents will receive special recognition when they are cited for outstanding service to the community and the Republican Party at the thirteenth annual Lincoln Day Dinner to be held Wednesday evening, Mar. 28, at the Marriott Motor Hotel.

The names of those to be honored will not be announced until the dinner, a practice since 1964, according to Henry J. Wilson, chairman of the Annual Awards Committee.

Governor Francis W. Sargent, a head table guest at the dinner, will receive an award from the New York Young Republicans whose leadership is coming to Newton to make the award.

The Governor will join a list of distinguished recipients when he accepts the award. Past recipients include Presidents Eisenhower and Nixon, Senator Jacob Javits, and Governors Thomas E. Dewey and Nelson A. Rockefeller.

William I. Corwin, Secretary of Finance and Administration of the Commonwealth, is the guest of honor and principal speaker for the dinner.

Lieutenant Colonel Edwin C. Martin

Lieutenant Colonel Edwin C. Martin, son of Mr. and Mrs. Cornelius P. Martin, 134 Crafts St., Newtonville, received the U.S. Air Force Commendation Medal during his retirement ceremony at Luke AFB, Ariz.

Colonel Martin was cited for his meritorious service as senior director, Region Control Center, Headquarters, 26th Air Division.

The 20-year veteran was commissioned in 1953 through the aviation cadet program and has completed tours of duty in Vietnam and the Republic of Korea.

A 1949 graduate of St. Charles High School in Waltham, he attended Burdett College in Boston.

The colonel's wife, Carol, is the daughter of Warren Tyler of Waltham.

Lenten Abstinence Is Still Practiced

By JEANNE LESEM
UPI Food Editor

NEW YORK (UPI) — Seven years after papal restrictions were eased on Lenten eating, most Roman Catholics and many non-Catholics continue to observe the traditional abstinence from meat during all or part of Lent, says Progressive Grocer.

The trade magazine says the trend is reflected in increased sales of canned tuna, macaroni products and other meatless meal ingredients such as canned salmon, dried beans and dried peas.

Except for fish, most of these products are inexpensive. An article in U.S. News & World Report says retail prices for seafood have risen nearly 50 per cent in the past five years, or twice as fast as all foods. It attributed the increase partly to fast-growing demand during a period of stable supplies.

Other factors include competition from big foreign fishing fleets in international waters, increased fish consumption abroad, and reductions in our fishing fleets.

The situation is especially critical in Massachusetts, said Hugh F. O'Rourke, executive secretary of the Massachusetts Seafood Council, an industry organization. In an interview, O'Rourke said the fishing industry, there, which was started by the Pilgrims, is hanging on the ropes.

Only 10 years ago, it supplied 40 per cent of the edible fish consumed in the United States, he said. A decade ago, 110 million pounds of fish were landed in Boston annually. By 1971-72, the figure had dropped to 32 million pounds.

U.S. Fishing Decreases

O'Rourke said it's common now for a U.S. vessel with 350 thousand-pound capacity to bring in only 60 thousand pounds because of overfishing in international waters by fleets from other countries.

He told of one incident in which a New England fishing boat radioed others in the fleet nearby when it sighted pollack, a food fish related to cod but darker. Before the other U.S. vessels could reach the scene, about 30 Russian fishing boats showed up and cleaned out the catch.

O'Rourke added that he expects fish prices to remain high, but he doesn't see price as a sales deterrent because there's a greater appreciation of fish and seafood now than in the past.

Yet there are alternatives for nutritious meatless meals that cost only pennies per serving: dried beans. A one-pound bag makes 4 to 6 servings. In one midtown Manhattan supermarket, nine different varieties of dried beans ranged in price from 23 cents a pound for baby limas to 45 cents a pound for large limas, marrow beans and red kidney beans.

Macaroni products combined with cheese, eggs, canned tuna or canned clams also make moderately priced meatless main dishes which usually take less preparation and cooking time than dried beans.

However, there are short-cuts to bean cookery. Instead of the overnight soaking called for in most recipes, bring beans to boil in cold water to cover. Boil two minutes, remove from heat, cover and let stand one hour. Then cook in a pressure cooker, following the manufacturer's directions for quantity of beans and water and cooking time. Most varieties cook in 30 minutes or less.

Macaroni and cheese is another old-fashioned meatless main dish that can be made in a shortened range-top version. Bring 1 quart of water to boil in a dutch oven with 1 teaspoon each of salt and dry mustard and ¼ cup of instant minced onion. Gradually stir in 2 cups (8 ounces) of uncooked elbow macaroni so that water continues boiling. Cover and simmer stirring occasionally, about 15 minutes, or until most of the water is absorbed. Stir in 3 cups of shredded sharp cheddar cheese until cheese melts. Makes 4-6 servings.

V.A. Newsletter

EDITOR'S NOTE: Veterans and their families are asking thousands of questions concerning the benefits their Government provides for them through the Veterans Administration. Below are some representative queries. Additional information may be obtained at any VA office.

Q.—If I purchase a mobile home with a VA guaranteed loan, just what does this guarantee?

A—VA guarantees up to 30 percent of loans—up to a maximum of $10,000 for mobile homes and up to $17,500 if the loan covers a lot as well as the mobile home. The guarantee usually permits eligible veterans and widows to arrange "No down paymnt" loans with private lending institutions.

Q.—To settle a disagreement in my family, can you tell me if many veterans participate in job and farm training programs under the G. I. Bill?

A.—In Fiscal Year 1972 (ending June 30) there were nearly 170,000 veterans in on-job training programs, which is 20,000 more than in FY 1971 and nine times the total in FY 1968.

Q.—What is the income limit governing entitlement to nonservice-connected disability and death pensions for veterans?

A.—The income limit to such pensions for a veteran or widow with no dependents is $2,600, and $3,800 for a veteran or widow with dependents.

The Veterans Administraton today offered helpful tips to recipients of veterans benefits preparing to file Federal income tax returns.

Officials noted that veterans benefits, in general, are exempt from taxation, and need not be reported as income.

An exception is interest on government life insurance dividends left on deposit or credit with VA. Such interest is considered income, officials explained, and therefore should be reported as income.

Dividends and proceeds from G. I. insurance policies are not subject to Federal income taxes, but proceeds must be included for Federal estate tax purposes.

Officials said other major tax-exempt benefits include compensation and pension, G. I. Bill and other educational assistance, subsistence payments to vocational rehabilitation trainees, and grants to severely disabled veterans eligible for homes and cars.

Savings Bonds Instead Of Silver Spoons

Cervantes maintained that every man was not born with a silver spoon in his mouth. But, today, in this 32nd year of the U. S. Savings Bond Program, it may well be within the realm of possibility, figuratively speaking.

Savings Bonds are accessible as the nearest bank or the offices and plants in which millions of Americans work — and at only a few cents a day. These pennies, put away regularly, quickly add up to dollars, dollars to Bonds.

Savings bonds are like silver spoons in the mouths of the newborn and can guarantee that he or she will get to go to college. They can also guarantee a new roof for the old home, if needed; they can make some of the burdens of retirement years more realxed; they can take a lot of the bite out of unexpected emergencies.

For 32 years, now, Savings Bonds have been helping to give a better start to life to millions and millions of newborn Americans.

It is never too late to make the wise start in behalf of your own. Come to think of it, what better way is there to encourage personal thrift and family security? Why isn't today a good time to begin?

Silica gel, activated alumina or calcium chloride can be used to absorb moisture from the air and prevent mildew in enclosed areas such as closets.

MEMO TO BOSSES

NEW YORK (UPI) — Jim Windle, a professor of industrial supervision at Purdue University, has identified the "nobody-gives-a-damn syndrome." He says it breeds sabotage, theft, absenteeism, alcoholism and drug abuse.

The cure? Windle suggests job conditions that breed self-respect. It seems a worker can't have self-respect if "nobody-gives-a-damn."

Open House At Oak Hill Nurseries

After one of the shortest and mildest winters on record, Jay M. Berkson announces the opening, on March 24, of Oak Hill Nurseries. "Everything is at least a month earlier than last year" according to Berkson, which means the home gardener could start now to get his lawn and garden in shape for the summer.

"Open house" at Oak Hill is a nine-day celebration lasting right thru April 1. There will be gardening clinics to answer questions and describe proper methods and techniques. Free coffee and donuts will be served on Saturday the 24th. Five prizes will be awarded to lucky customers who enter the Oak Hill annual spring drawing. In addition everyone dropping by the nursery between March 24 and April 1 will receive a starter seedling kit.

Oak Hill Nurseries is located on Rte. 1, the Providence Highway, in Westwood just south of Rte. 128. They are open weekdays til 5:30 and Sunday til 4 p.m. Staffed by garden professionals, Oak Hill Nurseries pride themselves on helping the home gardener with good advice and friendly hints. This year's biggest news is you can get started a good deal earlier than usual."

Tennis Gala April 9

Topnotch tennis players in singles and doubles exhibition, a demonstration for children, a celebrity challenge match and a buffet with the players are features of an Evening of Tennis for all the family to be held April 9 at Roberts Center, Boston College.

A huge success last year when Lt. Governor Dwight, among other celebrities, played with some spectators, the event will benefit the work of the Norfolk Mental Health Association as well as the Massachusetts Mental Health Association.

Bud Collins, tennis commentator and sports writer, will again be master of ceremonies and players to appear are: Gene Scott — ranked No. 1 in 35 singles; Clark Graebner — ranked in top 10 for eight years; Carol Caldwell Graebner — Bonnie Bell Cup Captain; Marjorie Gengler — No. 1 in the East; and Jim Connors — No. 3 in U.S.; presently leading Grand Prix circuit.

A 6 p.m. "Buffet with the Players" and the Tennis Exhibition is $15.00 each for adults; tennis only at 7:30 p.m. is $10.00 each; buffet and tennis for children is $5.00 and tennis only for students $2.50.

Reservations should be made as soon as possible by telephoning the Norfolk Mental Health Association office, 698 Washington street, Norwood, 769-0006, or Mrs. Eugene Nelson, 762-4642.

Hungarian Artist's Woodcuts Slated For Local Exhibition

A special exhibit of the works of Joseph Domjan, internationally recognized for his color woodcuts, will be held April 5-19 on the Brimmer and May Campus, 69 Middlesex Rd., Chestnut Hill.

The exhibition will be open to the public from 2 to 4:30 p.m. weekdays and from 2 to 5 p.m. Sundays.

Born in Budapest, Hungary, in 1907, Domjan worked as an engine fitter and foundry worker at the age of 13, later turning to art. He studied for seven years at the Academy of Fine Arts in Budapest, and by 1948 he was in Scandinavia organizing his first one-man shows.

In the years that followed, his work was exhibited in many countries of Europe and in the United States. In 1957, he settled in New York City and had his first American one-man show there. This was followed by a tour of exhibitions in museums throughout the United States.

His numerous prizes include The Kossuth Prize, highest art award of his native Hungary, and the title "Master of the Color Woodcut," awarded once every 100 years in China. In 1957, Domjan received a Rockefeller Foundation grant and since that time, he has been honored by many groups both here and abroad, including the American Color Print Society and the American Institute of Graphic Arts.

Domjan's work is included in the permanent collection of approximately one hundred and thirty museums of four continents.

PROBATE COURT

To Enrico J. Petrucci of Newton, and Goldstar Wholesale Nursery of Lexington in the County of Middlesex, Suffolk Franklin Savings Bank, Division Employment Security, and Crystal Coal & Oil all of Boston in the County of Suffolk, and Grossman Sons, Inc. of Braintree in the County of Norfolk and to all other persons interested.

A petition has been presented to said Court by Elia V. Petrucci of Newton in the County of Middlesex representing that she holds as tenant in common one undivided half part or share of certain land lying in Newton in said County Middlesex and briefly described as follows:

(1) A certain parcel of land now known as 121-123 Warren Street in Newton, Middlesex County, and being shown on a plan of land by E.S. Smilie, Surveyor, dated August 13, 1925, recorded Middlesex South District Deeds at end of Book 4890, and bounded and described as follows: SOUTHWESTERLY by Warren Street, seventy (70) feet; EASTERLY by land now or formerly of Della H. Willien, one hundred fifty (150) feet; NORTHERLY by land now or formerly of Della H. Willien, seventy (70) feet; and WESTERLY by land now or formerly of Alexander Montgomery, one hundred fifty (150) feet. Containing 10,500 square feet of land according to said plan. Being the same premises convey to Enrico and Elia Petrucci by Anthony W. Orlandella, M.D. and Elinor Rose Orlandella dated January 18, 1960, recorded in Middlesex South District Deeds Book 9540, Page 172.

(2) A certain parcel of land being the same shown as Lot 1 on a plan entitled "plan of Land in Newton Centre, Massachusetts, dated September 7, 1951, Everett M. Brooks, Co., Civil Engineers" and bounded and described as follows: SOUTHEASTERLY by land now of Enrico and Elia Petrucci seventy (70) feet; EASTERLY by land now or formerly of Sara S. Sigel and Horold H. Sigel one hundred thirty three and 5-10 feet (133.5 feet); NORTHERLY by land of Boston & Albany Railroad Co. seventy and 26-100 (70.26) feet; WESTERLY by land now or formerly of Alexander Montgomery one hundred twenty eight and 83-100 (128.83) feet. Containing 9228 square feet of land, more or less.

Setting forth that she desires that all of said land may be sold at private sale for not less than thirty-eight thousand dollars, and praying that partition may be made of all the land aforesaid according to law, and to that end that a commissioner be appointed to make such partition and be ordered to make sale and conveyance of all, or any part of said land which the Court finds cannot be advantageously divided either at private sale or public auction, and be ordered to distribute the net proceeds thereof.

If you desire to object thereto you or your attorney should file a written appearance in said Court at Cambridge before ten o'clock in the forenoon on the ninth day of Apirl 1973, the return day of this citation.

Witness William E. Hays, Esquire, First Judge of said Court, this sixth day of March 1973.

Library Features Many Programs For Centennial

Diversified, informative and entertaining aptly describe the Newton Free Library's third Centennial Program scheduled for Newtonville branch, 345 Walnut St., Sunday, Mar. 25 at 3 p.m. when a discussion of "The History of Women's Clubs in Newton," an explanation of Newton South High School's Oral History Projects, and a performance by a Barbershop Quartet result in a varied Centennial Program that will appeal to a wide range of Newton citizens.

Mrs. Eugene Faucher of Newton, a long-time activist in women's organizations discusses the accomplishments of Newton Women's Clubs and their contributions to the city. Formerly the managing editor of "Federation Topics," Mrs. Faucher is second vice-president of the Federation of Women's Clubs, and assumes the presidency of that large organization in May, 1974.

Robert Sloan, a Newton South High School student explains an oral history project, "Interviews with Senior Citizens," conducted by six high school students, under the direction of Mr. Wayne Altree, head of the Society Studies Department at Newton South.

Musical entertainment will be provided by the Newton-Wellesley-Waltham Chapter of the Society for the Preservation and Encouragement of Barber Shop Quartet Singing in America.

The club, in existence since 1956, was known originally as the Newton Police and Fire Department Glee Club. Mr. Everett E. Wood of Foxboro directs the quartet and Mr. John Mullen of Waban acted as liaison between the library and the group.

Miss Sally Stimpson, Newtonville branch librarian, extends a cordial invitation to all Newton residents to attend this program. Simple refreshments will be served.

The Newton Free Library's April Centennial Programs, a highlight of National Library Week, will be held at the main library and at the Lower Falls branch.

On Apr. 12 at 3 p.m. the library honors 13 of Newton's many authors at a tea, where they will be entertained by the Young Adult Drama Workshop, a group sponsored jointly by the Newton Free Library and the Newton Recreation Commission.

Mr. George Gloss, owner of the Brattle Bookshop, discusses valuable antique books on Apr. 10 at 7:30 at the main library, and an extensive exhibit of valuable and informative materials from the Newton Room Collection and the Jackson Homestead will be on view in all the glass cases throughout the month.

Lower Falls branch library presents a program, "Religion in Newton" at St. Mary's Episcopal Church Sunday, Apr. 29. A panel discussion on the religious scene then and now will be followed by the Centenary Bells and the Black Gospel Singers of Myrtle Baptist Church.

Other Library Centennial programs include the history of transportation at Highlands branch in May, river walk along the Charles from the Upper Falls branch in June, a program on the notable people of Newton at Oak Hill in July, and a panel discussion on authentic architecture, furniture and paintings at Auburndale in September.

Also included will be a puppet play and discussion of early Newton settlers at Nonantum in October, a fashion parade of the 1800's at West Newton branch and final Centennial Program in December at the boys' and girls' library where a "Holiday Fair for All - As It Might Have Been in 1873," is scheduled to wind up the celebration.

Volunteers range in age from 60 to 90, and include a retired engineer, a podiatrist, salesmen, accountants, school teachers, musicians, a practical nurse, social workers, housewives, bank tellers, business men and retired clergy.

At the present time, there are at least 75 urgent requests for volunteers in Newton in the following assignments, clerical assistant with a mental health project, community information receptionist at Newton City Hall, tutoring in elementary schools, remedial reading tutor for junior high school, assisstant in an Italian language class, arts and crafts teacher, nursery school grandparents, woodworking instructor for elementary school, library hostess, friendly visitors, photography teacher and school library assistants.

A group of RSVP volunteers are planning a community rehabilitation project withthe staff from the Newton-Wellesley-Weston Unit of Medfield State Hospital.

For further information about volunteer opportunities with the Newton - Wellesley - Weston Volunteer Program, call Mrs. Marjorie Glassman at 969-5906.

DAR Hosts Spring Meet

Lydia Partridge Whiting Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution, will be officially represented at the spring conference of the Massachusetts DAR by Mrs. James S. Gove and Mrs. John J. Gay, Jr., both of Newton Highlamds.

The Conference, to be held Tuesday, March 27, at the Copley Plaza Hotel in Boston, will be attended by DAR members from all over the state.

It will open with a memorial service at 9:15 a.m. conducted by Mrs. Franklin R. Swan of Arlington, state chaplain of the Massachusetts DAR, in Gordon Chapel, Old South Church, Copley Square.

At 9:35 a.m. Mrs. George C. Houser of Chestnut Hill, state regent, will call the morning session to order in the Oval Room of the Copley Plaza Hotel.

Reports of state officers and chairmen will be presented, as well as awards for outstanding achievements by both members and non-members.

Winners in the American History Month Essay Contest will be presented by Mrs. William A. Hurley of Newton Highlands, state chairman of American History Month and vice regent of Lydia Partridge Whiting Chapter.

A 1 p.m. luncheon in the ballroom of the Copley Plaza will feature James M. Howell, vice president of the First National Bank of Boston as principal speaker.

Chief economist at the bank, he has been recently named to the Comptroller's Consulting Committee of Bank Economists by United States Comptroller of the Currency, William B. Camp.

He will speak on the economy of Massachusetts. A 30-voice choir from Thayer Academy in Braintree will present musical selections.

Among the invited guests will be the six district winners of the "Good Citizens" program, chosen from 296 girls selected by as many high schools throughout the State.

According to DAR, these high school seniors have given evidence of superior qualities of cooperation, courtesy, leadership and patriotism.

One of them will be selected to be the 1973 Massachusetts Good Citizen Girl.

Others present will be James Lowell of Brookline, president of the Board of Trustees of Hillside School for Boys in Marlborough, a school partially supported by the DAR; Richard Whittemore, headmaster of Hillside School.

Also, State Sen. Donald Atkins of Acton; Lester M. Clark, representing the Sons of the American Revolution, and Mrs. Clark of Braintree; Henry S. C. Cummings of Newton and Wyman S. Randall of Melrose, judges in the American History Month Essay Contest.

The next Peggy Fleming special on NBC is one filmed in Russia as an unprecedented joint production between the U.S.S.R. and Bob Banner Associates. Most of the talent supporting the skating star consists of prominent Russian entertainers.

New Crucifix At Art Museum

The acquisition of a life-sized 16th century Austrian Crucifix, one of the few of its kind in the world, was announced today by the Museum of Fine Arts, Boston.

This magnificent Crucifix of polychromed wood (ca. 1520) is now on permanent exhibition in the Museum's Medieval galleries. This acquisition appropriately coincides with the Lenten season.

The Crucifix came originally from a church or chapel in Upper Austria. It represents the late Medieval style of Northern Europe which blended new forms of the Renaissance with the traditions of the Middle Ages. The newly-acquired crucifix complements the Museum's monumental 11th century Salzburg Crucifix.

Together, they dramatically illustrate the change in sculptural style between the early and the late middle ages

Robert Moeller, Curator of the Department of European Decorative Arts, observed that only one other museum in the United States has a crucifix of this type and quality. "The monumental size, superb condition and the quality of this work contribute to its rarity. It admirably enriches our collection of large polychromed wooden figures from major stylistic moments of the Middle Ages."

The new Crucifix is particularly interesting because it differs from others of the period. The naturalistic presentation of the human body departs from the contorted portrayals of Christ often found during this period. The body is calmly represented while the swirling drapery and facial expression convey tension and agony. The cross is of a later date than the Crucifix figure.

FAST START

NEW YORK (UPI) — New York University's College of Business and Public Administration joins the growing list of schools admitting students who have finished the third year of high school.

The "early admissions" program is for any student who has demonstrated satisfactory academic competence and maturity. "We are in agreement with a recent Carnegie Commission report on early admissions—that great numbers of high school juniors are qualified and eager to start their college careers a year early," a university spokesman said.

ENGLEWOOD CLIFFS, N.J. (UPI) — In its biggest January since 1970, Volkswagen sold 43,261 new cars in that month this year, compared with 32,559 cars in January, 1972, an increase of 32.8 per cent, the company reports. The January sales were 12.3 per cent higher than December, 1972, when 38,539 new cars were sold.

Every Volkswagen is guaranteed for 24 months or 24,000 miles.*

Most other economy cars are guaranteed only 12 months or 12,000 miles.

But don't take our word for it. Take our words for it:

*If an owner maintains and services his vehicle in accordance with the Volkswagen maintenance schedule any factory part found to be defective in material or workmanship within 24 months or 24,000 miles, whichever comes first (except normal wear and tear on service items) will be repaired or replaced by any U.S. or Canadian Volkswagen Dealer. And this will be done free of charge. See your dealer for details.

What's New

By United Press International

A 57-page booklet from the National Institutes of Health will bring you up-to-date information on children's growth. Free for the asking, it contains useful data on fetal growth, low birth weight babies, childhood growth (including sections on nutrition, hormones, illness, and emotion), and adolescent growth—subdivided into obesity and early and late puberty. Write: Information Office, Division of Research Resources, National Institutes of Health, Bethesda, Md. 20014. Ask for "How Children Grow."

(National Institutes of Health, Bethesda, Md.).

If the kids like to color you may want to consider a Paint With Picasso book (St. Martin's Press). On one page is a painting. On a facing page is the uncolored reproduction of the painting. Just add color — crayon, paint.

Passes to Golden Agers For Recreation Use

Postmaster George K. Walker today announced that the U. S. Postal Service will make available two types of season passes good for entrance to designated Federal areas operated by the U. S. Department of Interior's National Park Service as a special service to campers and other outdoor enthusiasists.

All post offices in the Boston Postal District will issue Golden Age Passports free of charge to any person 62 years old or older who appears in person with proof of age. The Golden Age Passport covers entrance fees in the calendar year 1973 for the person to whom it was issued and all persons who accompany him or her in a single noncommercial vehicle.

In addition, the Golden Age Passport holder receives a 50 per cent discount on all Federal Special Recreation Use Fees in all areas designated Federal Recreation Bureau of Land Management, Bureau of Reclamation, Bureau of Sport Fisheries and Wildlife, U. S. Army Corp of Engineers, Tennessee Valley Authority, and the National Park Service.

Postmaster Walker said all post offices in the Boston Postal District will also issue Golden Eagle Passposts good for calendar year 1973 at a cost of $10 each. The Golden Eagle Passports cover National Park System entrance fees at designated areas for the purchaser and all persons accompanying him or her in a noncommercial vehicle used for private recreation purposes.

The Golden Eagle Passport is valid only for Entrance Fees does not cover Federal Special Recreation Use Fees, and is nontransferable.

An Informative, sparkling column on national and international affairs

In the nervy world of espionage where the unseen battles of terror and treachery are fought the secret agent deals in two things: facts and people.

I have known well four types: the venal spy, functioning only for money; the entrapped, compromised person blackmailed into service; the born conspirator, of which there are a surprising number; the patriot, or man with an ideological incentive, who typifies what the French call "L'homme engage"—the committed man.

Beyond these there is what is technically designated the "unvetted source"—the man who remains as undisclosed to this employers as to the enemy against whom he works. Once trusted, it is a blunder to press unduly for the identity or an unvetted source. It can scare him away.

Periodic informers who furtively approach a U.S. Embassy abroad with their hand out, palm up, are mostly a loathsome lot, but such an informer and his information are two separate things. You do not have to stroke the bee to get the honey.

A defector from the Iron Curtain bloc is usually a peculiar person. He considers his strange new freedom especially precious because to acquire it he has given up most things men think worthwhile—their native land and native tongue, their families and friends, their work and possessions. The defector is also in a no-man's land because those he left consider him a traitor—and so do those to whom he has come.

A knowledgeable defector is useful to us for the information he can supply. Merely to accept him for asylum is easy. But when he has told all he knows his usefulness ends. The far greater prize is to persuade a defector not to defect but, instead, to return whence he came (if that is possible) and become our agent.

Frequently the persuasion time is limited, which compounds the difficulty. The defector may be a member of a Soviet commission coming to the West for a conference. There may be only a few days before his is due to return to Moscow.

But what if the defector is a plant on us? This is an excruciating decision. It can require an almost-totally intuitive approach. The man who makes this decision must have that rare combination of a logical brain which can also be switched suddenly onto the intuitive approach.

Incomparably the highest laurel in espionage goes to the manager willing to make this decision and his ability to make it right. For if the K.G.B. has sent the man as a plant to penetrate our own intelligence service the dangers are appalling.

A penetrated U.S. intelligence service is not just a bad one. Instead of being an indispensable eye, it can become a dangerously credulous ear and a deceiving voice destroying its own purpose of our national security.

The first rule that a good interrogator of a defector must follow is to realize that gathering the information is like making cream cheese from sour milk. If you squeeze the muslin bag to force it, it's ruined. A good interrogator collects information from a defector drip by drip. An nothing is nothing in the espionage business.

A competent enemy agent planted in the guise of a defector always and only tells lies that contain much truth. The interrogator must, hypnotically, return again and again to any tiny crack in the smooth surface of the defector's story. Coincidences happen in life. Interrogators, however, are very suspicious of them.

Sometimes the silence fall with the impact of a hammer blow. But usually a plant will immediately follow up any debating advantage he has. You are drawn off on a dozen false trails like a bewildered hound behind a fox.

A man changing his identity is ordinarily propelled toward choosing a name that has euponious links with his old name The Soviet K.G.B. always avoids this, but most of its plants do have a common denominator. They reveal the utter righteousness of those who cannot admit the possibility of being wrong. This is a danger signal to a good interrogator.

In espionage it is good intelligence to think the unthinkable. Recently retired Central Intelligence Agency Director Richard M. Helms had this ability and his unknown services in that and other areas were enormous.

A BRIGHT FUTURE WITH GOOD PAY!

Isn't that what we're all seeking?

We'll pay you a starting salary of $150-$170 to learn our business and provide a good fringe package and raises as fast as you can earn them.

When you are promoted to Manager 12-24 months from now, you will be earning $200-$250 a week immediately with prospects for more as soon as you show us you can build business and control costs.

We have many Managers making $300-$400 a week and they aren't working 70 hours per week to do it. But, they have complete responsibility for making our business successful and that's why they are paid so well. Candidates must be over 21, have high school diploma and transportation.

Give us a call or drop us a line and we'll arrange an interview to discuss how you can be a Friendly success story, too.

Rockfish In Manmade Lakes

Fishing for striped bass usually conjures up a picture of a booted angler with an 8 or 9-foot pole casting out into the Atlantic surf for the highly prized game fish.

But if an ambitious $2.5 million fish hatchery near here on the Licking River in northeastern Kentucky works as expected, the striped bass—usually called rockfish in fresh water—will be available in Kentucky's maze of man-made lakes.

A similar project proved successful in South Carolina, North Carolina and Virginia, so the state Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources has high hopes for its viability in the Bluegrass State.

The hatchery, funded mostly by state fishing license fees, also will stock muskies, bass and other popular game fishes.

The concept of adapting striped bass to fresh waters burgeoned in the Santee-Cooper Dam in South Carolina. Some fingerlings from Santee were placed in Lake Cumberland, Ky., in the early 1960s.

A few years later a Kentucky angler set a state record by pulling out one that weighed more than 50 pounds.

Teens Like Their Own 'Squid Roe'

"Squid Roe" a well-known local rock band joined the Murray Road faculty and students in a fund-raising event for support of some of their several activities.

Arts, crafts and refreshments created and provided by both the teachers and students were sold at the fair, first of its kind at the Newton High School annex.

The "Squid Roe" musicians will be performing again Saturday evening, Mar. 24, at the weekly West Newton Coffee House at the First Unitarian Society Parish Hall, West Newton Aquare.

Members of the rock group include David Kulik of Auburndale, a Murray Road student; John Simone, Brian McLatchy, David Foley, also of Newton; Michael O'Keefe of Waltham, and Jeff Orchard, Berklee School of Music.

Local Artist Displays Works

Thomas Barron, son of Dr. and Mrs. Joseph B. Barron, 64 Beethoven Avenue, Newton, is one of seven painters participating in a Direct Vision Exhibition at Boston City Hall beginning Apr. 7.

The exhibition will continue through Apr. 28 and will include seventy paintings by Barron and other members of the group of Boston painters dedicated to aesthetically redefining nature for our age.

The painters will be joined in their exhibition by international critic and writers Leslie Fiedler, poet Adam Berger, composer Richard Hundley and singers Lamar Alford and Billie Lynn Daniel.

The Apr. 7 gala opening and continuing exhibition are free to the public.

Presenting

"WHO'S A LADY?" is an original collage by Annette Miller concerning a modern woman's quest for identity. The theater piece, featuring songs, poetry, and dialogues about romance, seduction, motherhood, marriage, courtship and sexism, will be performed with Annette Miller and Naomi Thornton on March 24 at 7:30 p.m. in the Pomroy House, Newton Corner. A dialogue between the audience and performers will follow the musical.

Players Pick Their Music

The Newton Country Players have announced the selection of music and choral directors for their annual touring children's show, a merry musical ghost story entitled "Gabriel Ghost."

The mirthful melodrama will open its spring season with two "out-of-town" preview performances next weekend before its official opening locally on Mar. 31.

The whimsical and new suspense show for youngsters of elementary school level is being staged and directed by Daniel Kosow of Chestnut Hill. With book by Peggy Simon and Sue Lawless, lyrics by Peggy Simon and music by Phil Gilbert, the original production floats through one hour of spoof and spookery, bringing live theatre to the community.

Fifteen year-old Wayne Kaufman of Newton Highlands, a sophomore at Newton South High School, was named musical director. Previous experience includes his efforts as accompanist for the musical "Anything Goes" while attending Weeks Junior High School, where he was also featured pianist at the school's "Pops Nite" the past two years.

Mrs. Ruth Boynick of Newton Centre, choral director for Temple Beth Avodah, for the past nine years, has served in a similar capacity for the Players in innumerable productions, including last season's mountings of "Sam Stiller, Private Eye" and "Gold in the Hills."

A nine year veteran with the group, she has worked also as costume designer and props chief and is a mainstay on the Players' Board of Trustees.

Under their banner, she appeared as a housewife in "Inherit the Wind" and a nun in "Can Can" before being featured as Agatha in "Guys and Dolls," Doris in "Damn Yankees," Miss Jones in "How to Succeed in Business Without Really Trying," Sue in "Bells Are Ringing," Miss Skillon in "See How They Run" and Lizzie Jones, the housekeeper, in "Gold in the Hills."

Members of the chorus are Michelle Francer, Franny Osman, Jill Pinkofsky, Sue Rubin, Karen Sudbey and Jack Wernick.

A limited number of dates remain open for programming to sponsor groups and theatre parties interested in fund raising. Weekend bookings are available during April and early May, either as a "road show" or performances at Pomroy House, 84 Eldredge St., Newton, where seating capacity approximates 175. For additional information, phone Jim Sloane at 969-2665 or write P.O. Box. 9, Newton Centre, 02159.

Plays for children previously produced by the Players include "The Sleeping Princess," "Mr. Popper's Penguin," "The Tale of the Donkey" and last season's award-winning "Sam Stiller, Private Eye."

Now in their 17th year of community theatre activity, the Newton Country Players are a non-profit, philanthropic association comprised of local residents, who, as an avocation, are actively engaged in the development, expansion and assistance of theatre activity on community and educational levels.

Gospel Choir Visits Newton

A gospel concert featuring the choir from St. John's Missionary Baptist Church in Roxbury will be held at Newton College on Sunday, Mar. 25 at 7:30 p.m.

The concert, to be performed in Chapel Hall on the Centre St. campus, is open to the public and free of charge. The event is part of Newton College's Spring Festival which will bring a wide range of visual and performing arts to the campus from Mar. 21-25.

St. John's Choir, under the direction of Jean Truitt, is composed of about 50 young people between the ages of 16 and 24. The group has often performed on television and radio and at other area concerts.

Newton College Welcomes Spring With Arts Festival

Spring will be heralded at Newton College on Centre Street with a five-day Arts Festival from Mar. 21-25.

The festival will feature concerts, films, a dramatic production, art exhibits, poetry readings and creative experiences.

Highlights of the event-packed week will include an all-Bach harpsichord concert by Anthony Newman, a chamber music concert by a group from the New England Conservatory, the drama club production of Richard Wilbur's version of "Tartuffe" by Moliere, a concert by folk singer Tom Willits and a Charlie Chaplin film festival.

Also included will be a poetry reading by the well-known author and Newton College faculty member, Dan Wakefield, a black poetry reading by students, a gospel concert by St. John's Choir, a liturgy sung by the Newton College Glee Club, and student and faculty art exhibits.

In addition to these events, there will be a film making session for children and an afternoon of creativity for students with emphasis on macrame.

A precise schedule of events may be obtained by calling Newton College, 332-6700, ext. 236.

Songsters In Concert

Richard Gasset of Cottage St., Newton Upper Falls, and James Miller of Roundwood Rd., Newton, will be part of the annual concert of the Framingham Chapter of the Society for the Preservation and Encouragement of Barber Shop Quartet Singing in America. The program will be held on Saturday, Apr. 7 at 8 p.m. at Nevins Hall in Framingham's Memorial Building.

College To Greet Returning Grads

More than 70 Boston area alumnae of Newton College will return to the campus on Wednesday, Mar. 21 for a "Back-To-College Day."

The grads will attend classes that interest them; meet informally with students, faculty and administration and welcome the class of 1973 into the Alumnae Association.

One of the day's highlights will be a sherry hour and luncheon on campus featuring Dr. Kristin Morrison, academic dean of Newton College, as the guest speaker.

The Boston Alumnae Club of Newton College is sponsoring the event. Dr. Guillemine de Lacoste of Cambridge, an alumna and faculty member at the college, and Ms. Mary Downs of Salem, an alumna and student at Boston College Law School, are serving as co-chairmen for the occasion.

Board Passes $82.9 Million Budget

By CYNTHIA BLACK

At 11:55 p.m. Monday, the Board of Aldermen voted 23-1 to approve the city's final 18-month budget figure, $82,915,023.97.

The approved figure represents a drop of about $14 million dollars from original departmental requests for 1973-74 submitted to the mayor earlier this year.

Mayor Theodore D. Mann cut requests down to a total of $88 million and submitted the budget to aldermen. Aldermen introduced about $1 million worth of cuts, agreed to remove $3 million for additional teacher's salaries and bond the amount, and subtracted $1.8 million in anticipated federal revenue sharing funds, bringing the figure down to $82.9 million.

Speculation on the Newton tax rate this week has been focusing on the possibility of a dramatically low increase. Firm figures are unobtainable because 'cherry sheet' returns have not been received from the state. The last estimate was for an increase of about $8, but city officials have hinted Newton property taxpayers might be surprised by an increase of less than $8 for the 12-month period.

Mayor Mann said this week the city expects the cherry sheet, listing assessments for the county and the MBTA among other things, to arrive sometime in May.

Mann also indicated to aldermen at the beginning of board budget deliberations $1.8 million in revenue sharing monies would come to the city and indicated all of it should be applied to departmental accounts to reduce the budget. Aldermen agreed to this distribution schedule:

Public Safety: $228,573
Public Works: $331,512
Recreation: $32,550
Public Buildings: $20,000
Public Works: $358,800
Human Resources: $65,410
Police: $380,000
Fire: $383,153.

Mann has been a critic of revenue sharing distribution, claiming Newton has come out on the short end.

"It is abundantly clear to me Newton must be the master of its own fiscal destiny," Mann commented.

Discussing the city budget, the mayor said the cost of municipal services in Newton is up about 5 per cent. Factors offsetting any tax increase include an increase in income from new construction in Newton and the application of a $2.9 million surplus from 1972, he said. Mann says this is the largest surplus in the history of the city.

Among actions taken by the Board of Aldermen before it approved the final figure Monday were the placement of $215,000 into budget reserve to round out the sum needed to conduct revaluation in Newton, the replacement of some deletions made in the police department budget, elimination of $2,000 earmarked for Freeport Inc.; and the reduc-

Newton Joins Meat Boycott

Several alternatives are open to Newton residents concerned with joining the national movement to boycott meat next week.

The formal boycott, according to organizer Roberta Croce, will begin in Newton Saturday (March 31) and continue through April 7. Plans have been made, she said, to picket several chain grocery stores here throughout the week.

Volunteers wishing to participate and distribute meatless menues can contact her at 965-9777.

"This is not intended to be a 'housewives only' activity," she said, "so I urge men, women and children to participate."

Representatives from Newton also plan to take part in a demonstration led by Rev Robert J. McEwen, S.J. of Boston College that will be held in front of the Federal Building in Government Center at noon Saturday. This action is designed to coincide with a march on the White House in Washington, D.C.

In addition, Newton residents Fran Putnoi and Maureen DePactar, under the name of SCRIMP (Save Cash and Reduce Immediately Meat Prices) are collecting written pledges to be given to congressional representatives. They are also distributing buttons and bumper stickers. Petitions can be obtained at the Peace Boutique.

The 36-store Purity Supreme chain supermarket announced Monday it will join the nationwide protest of high meat prices by withdrawing all fresh meats from the meat counters of its stores next Monday.

Newton's aldermen Monday unanimously approved a resolution declaring their support for the meat boycott and urging President Richrd Nixon to take "all the necessary steps to halt the spiraling food costs."

The board agreed to send a copy of the resolution to the president and the Massachusetts congressional delegation.

State Representative Peter F. Harrington also said Monday he and Rep. Lois G. Pines intend explore the possibilities of establishing a price control commission in Massachusetts and would submit a resolution to this effect to the General Court.

A Winner

Ralph Burns, who grew up in the West Newton - Newtonville area, added an extra honor to top his musical career Tuesday night.

Burns won an Academy Award for his scoring adaption of the musical, "Cabaret."

Burns, who attended Warren Jr. High School, graduated from Newton High School and went on to study at the New England Conservatory of Music. In recent years, he has scored many Broadway hit musicals including "Golden Boy," "Pippin," and "Irene," which opened two weeks ago and stars Debbie Reynolds.

Two Housing Plans Approved By Aldermen

Aldermen cleared the way Monday for the construction of 58 units of low income and elderly housing on two sites in Newton.

After a discussion that followed budget hearings and in which all attempts to change the proposal were defeated, the Board of Aldermen voted to grant the necessary zoning changes for the construction of 50 units of elderly and four units of low income family housing on the Thurston Road site in Newton Upper Falls, and for four units of low income family housing at the Victory Field site in Nonantum.

The aldermanic Land Use Committee, reporting the housing items, included as a condition for approval that the Beaconswood Road site in Newton Highlands, earmarked for 20 units of family housing, must be acquired before construction on the other two sites can begin.

Land Use Committee Chairman Ald. Alan Barkin explained the condition had been made to offset any accusations that city officials would agree to build housing on the north side of the city and let the south side off the hook.

"We don't want people to say we are not moving on the south side project," Barkin stated. "The committee felt the Newton Housing Authority should go forward on a three-front basis."

Alderman David Jackson questioned the validity of the Beaconswood restriction on construction and moved to delete it from the proposals.

"I don't want to see either of these other proposals fail because we can't go ahead on Beaconswood Road," Jackson said.

"If the condition did create a legal roadblock, the Board of Aldermen could consider waiving it," Barkin responded.

Board members voted 19-5 against suspending the Beaconswood Road provision.

Aldermen cast the same vote in opposition to a motion made by Alderman Michael Antonellis to delete the four units of family housing at the Thurston Road site; and, on a voice vote, defeated a motion by Alderman Robert Tennant to delay the Victory Field construction for a period of six months.

Tennant, pointing out the newly constructed American Legion Post No. 440 there is scheduled to open next month, said he felt a delay might be wise so city officials could find out what kind of impact the post would have at this location.

Other motions to declare the remaining portion of Victory Field land recreation land were ruled out of order and not voted on.

The ultimate vote of approval was unanimous with the exception of Victory Field Alderman Robert Gaynor, Andrew Magni and Tennant voted against approval for this parcel

Last week, the Supreme Judicia Court upheld the constitutionality of the so-called "anti-snob zoning law." The law maintains that it is illegal for communities to withhold zoning changes requested to accommodate developers of low or moderate income housing in a community containing less than 10 per cent such housing.

The Newton Community Development Foundation (NCDF) has an appeal pending under this law for 361 units of mixed, subsidized housing.

Committee For Retarded Finds Possible Home In Newtonville

By LEN BATEMAN

According to an enthusiastic spokeswoman for the Newton-Wellesley-Weston Committee to Establish Community Programs for the Retarded, Newton will soon be host for a unique experiment in living.

The committee has tentatively selected a house on Judkins Street in Newtonville to be used as a residence for eight retarded people.

The committee, composed mainly of volunteer parents of retarded children, has been working only since last December, but is well on the way to providing the already selected residents with an alternative to institutionalization.

All eight have been chosen for their ability to take care of themselves, their ability to get along with each other and according to Mrs. Marilyn Lovell, "their normal desire for independence."

They will be watched over by house parents, Tom and Susan Corcoran, now undergoing training at Wrentham State School for their demanding but lovingly selected roles.

The residents, now at Wrentham and all between the ages of 18 to 30, will, like all of us, occasionally balk at the everyday chores we all hate so much. It will be up to the Corcorans to see that the chores, such as the laundry, are done by the residents.

Mrs. Lovell did guarantee that the house and grounds will be the most well cared for in the city. "They possess a patience not found in the best of us," she said, adding, "Once a job is started it will be carried through to the end without complaint."

The community based program also provides employment for the residents. Those of the eight unable to find jobs around the city will be provided for by the Charles River Workshop in Needham, a concern specializing in hiring the retarded.

"It is important that the young people gain a sense of self-worth that comes with a paycheck," stated Mrs. Lovell in explaining one of the prime objectives of the program.

Based on a successful residency plan put into effect at the New England Village in Pembroke, the Newton program has the full backing of the Massachusetts Department of Mental Health which has provided two liaison men for the committee in its planning stages.

State funds are also expected for salaries of the house parents, a part time director, Albert Tousignant, food and rent.

The committee is presently searching for usable furniture especially bedroom equipment. "Unfortunately state funds will not be received until the house is in complete operation," stated Mrs. Lovell who jokingly added "If I live long enough I'm going to every civic and social club in Newton to get what we need to open."

When queried as to possible neighborhood dissatisfaction with the proposed residence, Mrs. Lovell stated that the committee did not anticipate any adverse reaction.

Newton is an ideal place for such an experiment because people here really care," she said.

"This is a unique opportunity for the community to help give people who would otherwise grow old in an institution a chance to become worthwhile, productive members of society," exclaimed Mrs. Lovell.

"Of course we anticipate going before the neighbors and the Board of Aldermen to present our plans and a request for a variance may be needed, but we intend to do so on an individual, person to person basis," and for Mrs. Lovell and her committee that makes all the difference in the world.

In addition to the aid supplied by the Department of Mental Health the committee has also been helped by Carolyn Snipe and Miriam Schwartz, both of the Newton School Department, Division of Special Education.

Joseph Terrasi, owner of the Newton Corner Sunoco, has very generously offered the use of a truck for picking up donated furniture, and Attorney Joseph Bradley has lent his legal expertise to the committee free of charge.

Mrs. Lovell concluded her remarks by verbalizing a secret wish that eventually the teenagers of Newton will become involved through some type of Big Brother-Big Sister program.

Fishman Answers Fund Critics

State Senator Irving Fishman (D-Newton) has responded to recent accounts detailing campaign contributions made to him in 1972 from officers of five banks.

Fishman, chairman of the legislature's Joint Banking Committee, stated, "I take it as a compliment that people in the banking industry, which I to some extent regulate, would think highly enough of me and my performance to contribute to my reelection campaign."

According to the account, citing campaign disclosure statements on file with the office of Secretary of State, Fishman received contributions from four officers of savings banks currently engaged in a struggle with commercial banks for the right to keep Negotiable Order of Withdrawal (NOW) accounts.

The four contributing to Fishman, also chairman of a special committee investigating the accounts, were Frederick C. Ober of Wellesley, president of the Newton Savings Bank and president of the National Association of Savings Banks, $50; Donald A. Pope, vice-president and treasurer of Home Savings Bank, $50; Donald P. Noyes, president of North Avenue Savings Bank, Cambridge, $100; and Frank E. Woodward, president of Everett Savings Bank, $25.

"The contributions were not from any one segment of the banking industry," according to Fishman. "Commercial as well as savings bank interests were represented," he added.

The article listed a fifth contributor. Rubin Epstein of Chestnut Hill, president of City Bank and Trust Co. of Boston, a powerful commercial bank, also contributed $200 according to the disclosure statements.

"The article obviously tried to make a point, but was only contradictory," stated Fishman.

"The contributions were nothing more than an acceptance of my judgment as autonomous and the bankers, both savings and commercial, are willing to abide by my decisions," concluded the senator.

Incinerator Crews Get Initial Okay

Incinerator workers have been back on the job without any further problems since a brief walkout last week.

Newton aldermen met in special session last Thursday and granted initial approval to proposed lung disability protection to the men who have to work at the incinerator.

Woekers walked out last Tuesday and returned to work Wednesday after they were promised the special meeting on the proposal. Alderman last Monday night had received the item and turned it over to appropriate committees.

The Heart and Lung Act, which covers firefighters, provides 75 per cent disability pay for anyone disabled by job conditions affecting the heart or lungs. The rate is higher than normal disability; and if granted to Newton incinerator workers, would expand coverage in a precedent setting move.

There were 15 workers on hand at the special meeting last week to follow the aldermanic deliberations.

North High Students Wil Make Move In The Fall

Newton's new North High School is nearing completion and should be ready for occupancy in the fall without any difficulties.

Projected plans which will signal the end of three years of building include furniture deliveries beginning May 15, the laying of flooring within a month, and the installation of auditorium seating by July 1.

Bids on synthetic flooring were received recently by the Business Services Division of the School Department, and the contract was awarded to Republic Floors, a Boston firm. The company will install Polyurethene Chem-Turf flooring in the gymnasium, particularly the physical education area.

Construction on the new facility began in the spring of 1970. The new school is designed for 2,750 pupils.

Future plans outlined by the Business Department include parking spaces and landscaping, but work has not begun on these. The school itself, however, should definitely be ready for student occupancy this September.

A motion passed by the School Committee Monday called for a

Meeting On Redistricting Planned

A meeting on legislative redistricting proposals will be held next week.

. The meeting, according to Democratic City Committee Chairman David Mofenson, has been called in response to a request from Ward 4 Alderman Richard J. McGrath.

In a related development, the chairman of the Ward 5 Democratic Committee has called a meeting to be held April 3 to discuss what action that could be taken to produce "a more acceptable redistricting plan."

State Rep. Mofenson acknowledged Monday that he has been opposed to the current redistricting plan since it was initially formulated and said he plans to continue "active opposition."

"I think Newton deserves more from its legislators than a plan that accommodates their own residences," Mofenson said. "I think our function is more important than that."

Mofenson said the State Legislative Redistricting Committee would consider a substitute plan "if the four Newton legislators agree."

He also explained that the substitute plan proposed by McGrath and about 30 other Newton residents was the one had originally suggested for Newton. This plan would place wards 1 and 2 into one district; wards 3 and 4 into the second district; wards 5 and 6 and precinct 3 of ward 8 into the third district; ward 7, the balance of ward 8 and Needham's precinct H into the fourth Newton district.

McGrath said this week that interest among residents has been mounting since last week's stories on the plan.

"My next step," he said, "is to take my views to the Democratic City Committee and ask their advice."

"Until the last vote is taken," he went on to say, "we are going to keep up the pressure."

Conservation Commission Meetings

The Newton Conservation Commission has scheduled important meetings on Thursday, Mar. 29, and Wednesday, Apr. 4, both at 8 p.m. in Room 202 of the Newton City Hall.

The agenda for the Mar. 29 meeting includes a work session on commission plans, status reports, and preparation for a hearing on House Bill 3393, the bill proposing MDC takeover of the Gilligan property at Riverside.

The hearing will be held Apr. 3 at 10:30 a.m. in Room 473A, the State House, Boston. The legislative Urban Affairs Committee will hold the hearing.

The agenda for the Apr. 4 meeting includes work on commission plans and the Ford Foundation grant program, status reports, Alderman David B. Cohen's proposal for city, street, tree planting, pesticides, and plans for the Apr. 29, 1:30 p.m. to 4:30 p.m. clean-up at Webster Conservation Area boundary with Temple Mishkan Tefila, and associate members.

Commission meetings are open to the public, but no visitor may speak without permission of the commission.

PTA Studies Early Teens

Dr. Donald Gair will speak on "The Junior High Years: Behavior and Attitudes of Parents and Children" at the Bigelow P.T.A. meeting on Thursday, Mar. 29, at 8 p.m.

Dr. Gair is assistant clinical professor at Harvard Medical School and principal psychiatrist at the Massachusetts Mental Health Center.

In private practice he is both an adult and child psychiatrist, and is the author of a number of published articles and books.

The meeting has been planned as a direct response to a questionnaire asking Bigelow parents to state their areas of interest and concern.

After Dr. Gair's talk in the school auditorium the audience will disperse for small group discussions. Leaders for these groups will be members of the Bigelow community who have experience with students of junior high school age.

No Questions Asked!

The Newton Free Library has announced an Amnesty Week to be held during National Library Week, Apr. 8-14.

All overdue library materials may be returned free of charge to the Main Library or to any branch.

A RUN ON TICKETS — Joan McGrath, Ward 4 Alderman Richard McGrath (center) and State Rep. David Mofenson, chairman of the Newton Democratic City Committee, count early returns for tickets for "The Crucible." The Arthur Miller play will be presented as the City Committee's only annual fund raising event on Saturday, April 7 at 8:30 p.m. at the Spingold Theater. A champagne party follows.

Newton Reps Fight Race Track

Newton freshmen legislators Lois G. Pines and Peter F. Harrington challenged an attempt by Suffolk Downs to take an estimated two to three million dollars from state revenue and return it to the race track.

House Bill 6055 would reduce the state tax on horseracing from 9½ percent to a minimum of 6½ percent.

Representative Harrington said, "There has been a great deal of talk concerning a possible closing of Suffolk Downs, but there has been very little factual information to back this up."

"Sixty racing days were added between 1970 and 1972 but during these extra racing days the average daily handle has decreased $150,000 - $200,000 per day," he added.

"Obviously this is an unprofitable time for Suffolk Downs to engage in racing. These additional racing days drain the large profit from the spring session," stated Harrington.

Representative Lois Pines argued, "There has been a 3,000 drop in the average daily attendance over the past three years. Many believe that this decrease and the accompaning loss of revenue is attributable to recent scandals surrounding the track."

"The Perfecta scandals have caused legitimate bettors to stay home and rumors of bookies laying off their bets to reduce track odds has kept others away from the betting windows," added Pines.

Representative Harrington went on to say, "In 1970 Suffolk Downs argued that they should be allowed to increase the number of racing days which in turn would produce more money, better racing and larger corporate profits and state taxes."

"Now they are back. The additional racing days didn't increase profits. The race track is still in financial difficulty, but they now propose, not to cut out the unprofitable days, but to decrease the state tax revenue. In my opinion, this is a highly questionable practice," he argued.

"At the national level or state level, whenever government attempts to subsidize a commercial enterprise, everyone loses; the people, government and eventually the industry and those employed who were given false hope," concluded Harrington.

Representative Pines concluded, "We should not be rushing forward to protect questionable losses of the racing interests. Once we grant this type of benefit it will be extremely difficult to take it back.

"I think we should require a management study of the whole problem," she proposed.

"Questions of competition from Rhode Island and New Hampshire race tracks won't disappear by granting a tax break," added Pines.

"Problems of commuter availability, track location and concession profits must also be examined before we can finally determine the question of future profits and losses at Suffolk Downs," stated the woman legislator.

Students To Hear Speakers

Newton South High Schools students will have an opportunity to hear two guests speakers at the school Thursday and Friday (March 29 and 30).

Do schools tend to dull peoples' minds, are they compassionate and what are Free Schools, will be some of the questions tackled today by guest speaker Jonathan Kozol at 11 a.m. in the lecture hall.

Kozol is the author of "The Fume of Poppies," Death at an Early Age," and "Free Schools." He has written articles for several leading magazines including "Atlantic," "Saturday Review," and "Harvard Educational Review."

A 1958 graduate of Harvard, Kozol attended Oxford University as a Rhodes Scholar and lived in Paris before rturning to Boston in 1963. He has been interested in the free school movement since 1966 and has taught in the Newton School System.

ARNOLD ZENKER

Arnold Zenker, who hosts his own television show on channel 5, will speak at 11 a.m. Friday.

In April of 1967, Zenker achieved national prominence when he substituted for Walter Cronkite on the CBS Evening News during an AFTRA strike against three major networks. Newsweek Magazine labeled Zenker's performance as the "smash hit'" of that unusual period in broadcasting history.

Besides his on the air background, Zenker has diverse record in broadcasting management having served as manager of news programming for CBS News, where he worked on such shows as "60 Minutes" and "CBS Reports, and as manager of Labor Relations for American Broadcasting Company, New York.

Zenker, an attorney and member of the New York Bar, is married. The Zenkers have an infant daughter and live in Boston.

Singapore: An Island Chameleon

By DICK GLOVSKY
(Fourth in A Series)

A rarity, a worthwhile tourist trap, called Instant Asia, typified multi-faceted Singapore, a dot on the map at the tip of Malaya.

In an hour there, we applauded three dances groups. First, Malay dancers performed one of those pointed appendages numbers. Second, Indian women thrilled us with a quick, foot stomping, bells (on the ankles) ringing, body shaking act. And third, four pink Chinese fairies, twirling batons with flowing pink streamers attached, produced a soft mood.

Then, the highlight: an Indian snakecharmer, playing a high pitched horn and shaking a rag at two less than cooperative cobras. The finale featured Jean toestepping with one of the Malayan troop, following remarkable well — in hiking boots.

The three cultures converging at the show — Malay, Chinese, and Indian — represent the hetero-geniety of this island state. Each of those groups maintains its own society.

For Indian culture, you visit the Chettiar Hindu Temple on Clemenceau Avenue or the Sri Mariamman Hindu Temple on New Bridge Road. For Indian food, go to Little India, around Serangoon Road, where murtapak (a dish of mutton, eggs, and onions fried and served with cucumbers in tomato sauce and curry) will feed two for three Sinagapore dollars (about $1 US).

For Chinese culture, you go to the Lim Sian Si Temple on Jalan Toa Payoh or the Buddha Gaya Temple on Serangoon Road. For Chinese food, you go to Albert Street, where the famous spot is Fatty's.

Amid a row of similar establishments, Fatty's offers you a seat indoors or out. If you choose the latter, you perch next to the kitchen — on the street.

We elected the asphalt (as we have done at times in this country) and watched Fatty cut, slice, and fry in the kitchen as we devoured fried vegetables, crab in black bean sauce, and chicken in oyster sauce, all for $13S ($4 U.S.).

Fatty and his helpers worked busily.

They had to. First, a chauffeur pulled up to us in a Rolls Royce, got out, walked haughtily toward the counter, picked a bagful of edibles for his master, and sped off. Then two young ladies approached and asked Mr. Fatty for several dishes. But my favorite was the fellow who jostled our table with his motorcycle, screeched to a stop inches from a kitchen catastrophe, and rode off with his order on his handlebars.

For Malaysian culture, there is the Sultan Mosque off Scotts Road and the National Library and Museum on Orchard Road. Their satay (beef or lamb on a stick dipped in a peanut sauce, costing about 10 cents per piece) tempts your taste buds at numerous road and quayside cafes.

In addition, colonial architecture, cricket grounds, and bowling greens rekindle memories of Churchill's impregnable World War Two fortress. British accents commonly float into the air. An occasional bowler and umbrella bearing Britisher crosses your path near the Singapore Cricket Club off High Street or nearby Parliament at Empress Place.

But the new Singaporean government is rapidly changing the scene. Large government financed apartment complexes infringe the outskirts of the city. Strictly enforced anti-litter laws cleanse the streets, $1000 fines awaiting violators. Regulations forbid masculine manes, customs authorities, I am told, sometimes refusing entry to shaggy aliens.

Still, old Singapore lingers. The famous Raffles Hotel, with its revolving ceiling fans, continues to draw tourists and celebrants. Change Alley and Raffles Place offer Hong Kong-like bargains.

Most fascinating are the sidewalks. For protection from the oppresdive hunidity (forget your deodorant here — it's useless), most streetways are tiled blue and white and all building roofs extend to cover them. Walking down the street is like walking through a tunnel with one side open and the other a storefront.

Shops use the tunnels. Pedestrians must dodge workers, who unpack crates, stock supplies, and sell goods under the solar protective lid of the shopfront extension.

If you walk to the waterfront, you will see that sampans and barges continue to fill the Singapore River. On its banks, natives load and unload by hand or small crane the little cargoes upon which many people depend. Godowns line the quays. Food stalls proliferate. And always the heat.

In the nearby business district, Indian money changers surround the banks trying to coax your dollars. Claiming to offer the town's best rates, these turbanned transactors try to lure you into swapping with them.

If Hong Kong had not previously evaporated our naivete, one of them might have trapped us. But we resisted and went inside. We glanced at the exchange rates there and found them higher than on the outside. I grinned and became obnoxious for the rest of the afternoon.

Once you get them, if you shop with your Singapore dollars, you will find bargains on cameras, stereo equipment, ivory carvings, jewlery, and batik. There are several large shopping centers from which to choose, including Raffles Place, Outram Park, and People's Park.

Every day at dusk, the authorities close certain prearranged streets for the pasar malam, or night bazaar. Vendors set up small booths to sell inexpensive jewelry, antiques, and nicknacks. Like all proprietors in Singapore, they plead with you to purchase. Bargaining is appropriate.

But for fun shopping, we liked Change Alley. A narrow lane crammed with shops and shoppers, Change Alley buzzes. Anything for sale in Singapore can be found there.

Anything, that is, except perhaps crocodile products. For them, you can go right to the farm. Far out on Upper Serangoon Road, past numerous public schools and mobs of chattering schoolchildren, crocodiles imported from Indonesia and Cambodia are bred for their leather. Hundreds of them may be seen (but not too closely) crowded together in cement tanks, while artisans pound, cure, and shape the hides of their departed relatives. The browser will notice shoes, bags, and belts on disply.

But Singapore is much more than shopping. It is more than any one culture. It is the Asia of China and its subcontinent, India. It is heat and humidity. It is British influence. It is the old and the new. It is many things. And it is changing.

So if you can, visit Singapore, an island chameleon.

GOP Leaders Honored At Lincoln Day Dinner

More than 300 Republicans and their guests turned out Wednesday night for Newton's thirteenth annual Lincoln Day Dinner at the Marriott Motor Hotel in Newton.

It was a gala event with special honors going to two local residents as well as to Governor Francis W. Sargent.

Principal speaker was William I. Cowin, secretary of Finance and Administration for the Commonwealth.

Governor Sargent, who headed the list of dignitaries at the head table, was the recipient of an award for Civic Service presented at the dinner by the New York Young Republican Club whose representatives flew in from New York yesterday to make the presentation. Previous recipients of the New York Club's award numbered among them, Governor Thomas E. Dewey, Senator Jacob Javits, President Dwight Eisenhower, President Richard Nixon, and Governor Nelson A. Rockefeller, among others.

The distinguished guests were introduced to the gathering by Donald P. Quinn, president of the Newton Republican Club.

The invocation was given by the Rev. Miles F. Fay, S.J., Rev. Arthur A. MacGillivray, S.J. gave the benediction.

Special honors announced at the dinner highlighted the event with Mrs. Marcia Smerling, and Anthony J. Medaglia, Jr., named as this year's recipients of the club's Citation Awards.

Both recipients of this year's awards are well known for their many years of activity in Newton's civic affairs.

Henry J. Wilson, chairman of the Awards Committee and co-chairman of the Dinner Committee, made the presentations of an engraved plaque to each.

He cited Mrs. Smerling for "devoted, energetic and effective work in behalf of Republican and other community activities." Mrs. Smerling was co-chairman of the Dinner Committee.

In making the presentation to Medaglia, Wilson took special note of his service as chairman of the Newton Housing Authority, Medaglia, an attorney, is past president of the Club and has been actively identified with a number of civic organizations.

At the Head Table with Governor Sargent and Secretary Cowin were Donald P. Quinn, president of the Newton Republican Club, Mayor Theodore D. Mann, Sheriff John J. Buckley, State Committeewoman Mrs. William L. Bruce, Representative Francis W. Hatch, House Republican Leader; Senator David H. Locke, Asst. Senate Republican Leader, Julius L. Masow, Chairman, Newton Republican City Committee; Charles Miller, President, Newton Young Republicans; State Committeeman Robert Semonian; Francis Tambascio, President, Newton Italian American Republican Club; Miss Charlotte R. Thornbury, President, Newton Women's Republican Club, and Otto Wahlrab, Chairman, Massachusetts Republican State Committee.

INSTRUCTS POLICE — Assistant District Attorney Richard H. Steinberg recently conducted classes for the Newton Police Department In-Service Training Program. Assigned by Midddlesex County District Attorney John L. Droney to Newton District Court to assist the police in the prosecution of criminal cases, Steinberg had been invited to participate in the police education program by Chief William F. Quinn. Steinberg has been a practicing attorney since 1959 A resident of Newton, he is also vice-president and director of the Brotherhood of Temple Mishkan Tefila. Steinberg instructed his police students on the preparation needed to assist crime victims through the court process.

Jaycees Schedule Second Bike Clinic

The Newton Jayces have announced the renewal of their Bicycle Safety-Identification Program.

A clinic will be held on Saturday, March 31, between 10 a.m. and 2 p.m. at the Newton Police Station, 1321 Washington st., West Newton.

All bicycle owners are urged to bring their bikes to the Police Station for a safety inspection and to have their names electronically engraved on the upper cross bar of the frame.

The program was initiated in an effort to curb the high theft rate of bicycles in the city and, according to Police Safety Officer Sgt. Charles Feeley, of the nearly 1500 biles marked so far, only one has been reported stolen — and that one had been marked on the underside of the frame at the owner's request and could not have been seen by the thief.

If a marked bicycle is stolen, according to a Jaycee spokesman, and the name is removed, it can still be brought back by the use of special acids. With good bicycles costing from $70 on up, it makes good sense to do everything possible to prevent its theft. The engraving should deter the amateur but, locks, chains and other devices should be used for additional protection, he said.

Anyone wishing to hold a bicycle clinic of their own is asked to call Vice President Jeff Cornell at 965-0200 to obtain information.

Campus Notes

Margaret Akiko Horioka, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Chimyo Horioka of 51 Parker Terrace in Newton Centre has been accepted and has indicated her intention of attending Ursinus College in Collegeville, Pa., in September.

Miss Horioka, a senior at Newton South High School, plans to major in health and physical education.

Ursinus College is a four-year, independent liberal arts college, founded in 1869 and located on a suburban campus 25 miles northwest of Philadelphia.

Majors are offered in 15 departments, with 1,130 students enrolled, plus 770 evening school students.

Davis PTA Entertains School Programs Chief

The Davis School PTA of West Newton has asked Irwin Hoogheem of the Newton School Department, Division of Programs, to address their next meeting in the school library on Monday, Apr. 2, at 8 p.m.

The title of Hoogheem's lecture will be "Programs in Human Sexuality and Possible Davis School Involvement."

Hoogheem will discuss the philosophy of a sex education program at the Davis School and he will survey children's needs and explore with the PTA some available visual aids.

Get The Hook!

Certain members of the school committee or board of aldermen may find themselves on the short end of KP duty at the Day Junior High PTA Family Spaghetti Dinner on Friday, Mar. 30 at 6 p.m.

Members of the boards have been asked to participate in a contest pitting Newton's least known song stylists against each other.

The worst of the intergovernmental bathtub warblers will again find themselves in hot water as they are blithley led off to the sinks.

It is not known at this point if representatives of the executive department will be on hand to make the musical decisions, but in light of the current city budget, many are expected to fork over the 99 cents for dinner.

An open house will follow the spaghetti feast and the public is invited to view the art, graphic arts, industrial arts and music rooms of the Newtonville school.

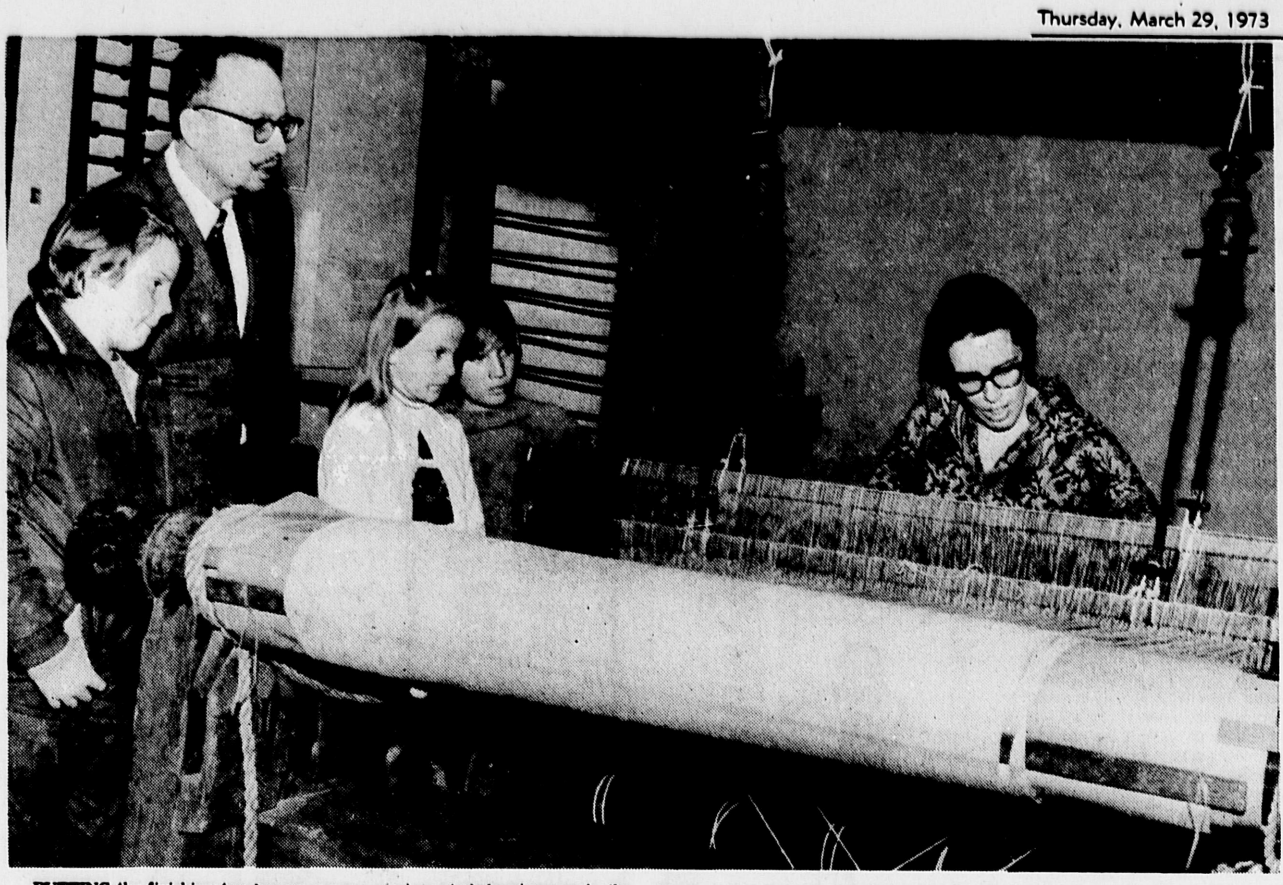
Those so inclined are also asked to bring their sneakers for a volleyball game in the gymnasium.

Dinner planners, fearing the proverbial fast getaway, have asked song contest participants not to don their high-cut P. F Flyers until kitchen chores are completed.

The public is invited to partake in the non-inflationary meal and open house. Tickets are on sale in the Day Junior High office.

Tomatoes for the song contest are not included in the ticket price and must be brought from home.

Senior citizens may purchase their tickets for a reduced price of 50 cents. Noise is so much harder on golden agers.



PUTTING the finishing touches on a piece of plain cloth hand-woven in the Merrimack Valley Textile Museum, North Andover, is Mrs. Carol Govan of Newton, watched by a visiting family. Demonstrations of cloth making techniques are given every Sunday afternoon.

South High Closed On April 11

Students at Newton South High School will not have any classes on Wednesday, April 11, due to faculty evaluation.

The School Committee approved a recommendation by Superintendent of Schools Aaron Fink this week to close South High for a single day for "self-evaluation" by teachers.

One school day is set aside for this purpose every few years, to let faculty members examine programs and teaching methods.

All other Newton public schools will have classes April 11 as usual.

Parents Given Last Chance

The final meeting to discuss the risk factor screening program now underway in all Newton seventh grade classes will be held for parents on Tuesday, Apr. 3 at Weeks Junior High School.

Parents who were unable to attend the other orientation meetings held in recent weeks are urged to attend this last session to learn about the program and the important role it can play in maintaining their children's "heart health" in later years.

Speakers for the evening will be Dr. Allan Goldblatt and Dr. Robert Kilburn.

Dr. Goldblatt, co-chairman of the Greater Boston Heart Association Risk Factor Screening Committee and a pediatric cardiologist at Massachusetts General Hospital, will discuss the risk factors of heart disease and the importance of forming good health habits early in life.

Dr. Kilburn, science coordinator of the Newton school system, will review the educational unit on heart disease risk factors that is now a part of the seventh grade curriculum.

While all seventh graders will be taking part in the educational portion of the program, the actual screening is voluntary and requires parental consent. Children will be screened for blood pressure and blood serum cholesterol, two important risk factors of heart attack and stroke.

Ninety-three percent of the students at Warren Junior High School participated in the first screening for blood cholestrol. It is hoped that other parents will also encourage their youngsters to participate in the screening scheduled in their individual schools.

The risk factor screening program is being co-sponsored by the Greater Boston Heart Association, Newton School Department, Newton Health Department and Newton-Wellesley Hospital. For further information about the Risk Factor Screening Program, contact the Greater Boston Heart Association at 267-4400.

Purity Supreme Joins Protest With Meatless Monday

The president of a major New England supermarket chain, Leo Kahn, of Purity Supreme, has announced his 36 stores will boycott meat in a day long protest this coming Monday.

Customers at Purity Supreme supermarkets Monday will find meat cases stripped bare of fresh meats in all stores in a dramatic move designed to join in the nationwide protest of the "exorbitant" cost of meat to its customers.

In place of meat Purity shoppers will find high protein foods recommended as meat substitutes during the 24 hour period beginning at 8 a.m. Monday, April 2nd.

In making the announcement Tuesday at Boston to a large gathering of press and broadcasters Mr. Kahn said: "The only way the cost of meat will come down is when consumers stop buying. We have seen the cost of meat skyrocket and it has got to stop. We are trying to dramatize that there are good substitutes for meat. And together with our customers we can do something to bring meat prices back to reason.

In a question and answer period following the announcement of Purity Supreme's joining in the protest against high meat prices Mr. Kahn said the situation is "strictly a case of supply and demand."

It is believed that Purity Supreme is the first major chain to take such a step of withdrawing all fresh meat from its counters for a whole day.

Purity Supreme stores near here are in West Roxbury, Roslindale, Newton and Walpole.

Police Investigate Fatal Auto Accident

State police are still investigating a hit and run accident on Route 128 near Grove street, Newton, which claimed the life of a 24-year-old Wellesley man early Sunday morning.

Douglas J. Salerno, 15 Lathrop road, Wellesley, a Boston College Law School student and buyer for Filene's, was pronounced dead on arrival at Newton-Wellesley Hospital after Newton firefighters spent almost an hour extricating him from the wreckage of his automobile.

According to state police reports garnered from witnesses, Salerno's car was struck by another vehicle traveling "75 to 80 miles per hour" which had left the passing lane and swerved sharply into the far right lane where the victim was then traveling.

Salerno's vehicle then went out of control, ran into the right hand guard rail and eventually wrapped itself around an overhead sign support after traveling some 50 feet, witnesses said.

The offending vehicle, described by one witness as a brown, late-model Buick, then left Route 128, proceeded left on Route 16 and disappeared.

Salerno, a 1970 graduate of Brandeis University, was the grandson of Joseph A. Salerno of Weymouth Landing, a former New England director and former national vice-president of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America (AFL-CIO).

Salerno, a resident of Wellesley for the past 17 years, is also survived by his parents, Guy J. and Lucinda M. (Ilch) Salerno; a brother, Richard G.; and two other grandparents, Mrs. Lucinda Ilch of Pittsburgh, Pa., and Mrs. Mary I Salerno of Weymouth Landing.

Funeral services were held for the young man at the George F. Doherty and Sons Funeral Home, 77 Washington street, Wellesley, followed by a funeral Mass at St. Paul's Church at 9 a.m. on Wednesday. Interment was at Woodlawn Cemetery in Wellesley.

State Trooper Robert Tocchio, initial investigator, indicated that Salerno was traveling approximately 55 to 6 miles per hour at the time o impact according to the witness. State police are also investigating a report that the automobile in question was damaged on the right side by the crash.

Lettuce Boycotters Plan Picket Line

There will be a mass picket line in support of the United Farm Workers (UFW) on Saturday, March 31, from 1 to 3 p.m. at the Four Corners A&P on the corner of Beacon and Walnut Streets in Newton Highlands.

Nineteen striking lettuce workers and organizers from the UFW will be joined by state and local officials and clergy of all faiths.

The action is planned as a protest against A&P's policy of purchasing non-union lettuce. The UFW urges you to attend and show your support.

Conservationists Convene

The recent "Charles-to-Charles emerald necklace" meeting filled the Newton Highlands Workshop to overflowing.

Mayor Theodore D. Mann of Newton came to cheer on the Boston, Brookline, and Newton Conservation Commissions to work toward their common goal of protecting the 8.5 mile green corridor which follows the tri-community boundaries from Charlesgate at the Charles River Basin to the West Roxbury-Newton line near the Cow Island Pond section of the Charles.

"MC" Mrs. Rita Barron, executive director of the Charles River Watershed Association, introduced Mrs. Eugenie Beal, chairman of the Boston Conservation Commission; Francis X. Meaney, chairman of the Brookline Conservation Commission; Dennis L Ditelberg, chairman of the Newton Commission; and Newton Conservators Vice-President Mrs. Helen Heyn.

John Blackwell, planning consultant for the Boston and Brookline Commissions, and Fred Ficken, co-ordinator for the Brookline Commission, showed slides supplied by the Newton Commission, beginning at the Newton-Waltham-Weston "lake section," showing points along Newton's river shoreline which remain to be publicly controlled.

Upon reaching the Newton-West Roxbury line, the slides swung eastward along the Saw Mill Brook valley as far as the Brookline incinerator and Lost Pond MDC Reservation, then north to Saw Mill's source at Hammond Pond.

Mr. Meaney and Mrs. Beal did the commentary on Brookline's slide collection of the corridor from the Basin in Boston, through the Fens to Leverett Pond, Jamaica Pond, the Sargent estates, Hellenic College Hill with its remarkable two-century survival and self-naturalization of some of Royal Governor Sir Francis Bernard's plantings; to Larz Anderson Park, Westbrook Village, the D. Blakely Hoar bird sanctuary, to Brook Farm in West Roxbury.

Mrs. Beal announced that Mayor Kevin H. White has pledged his and the City of Boston's support for S. 1403, the bill which would authorize the $2.2 million bond issue for MDC acquisition of the 179-acre historic Brook Farm. The bill will have its hearing before the Committee on Urban Affairs, Tuesday, Apr. 3, 10:30 a.m., Room 473A, State House. Mrs. Ellen Feeney of the West Roxbury Historical Society was present and busy collecting signatures favoring S. 1403.

Newton's Planning Director Charles Thomas was on hand to show his department's work to date on the aqueduct-loop pathway system which will connect Newton's Charles River pathway to Brookline at Lost Pond Reservation along Hammond Pond Parkway.

Planning for the green corridor by the Boston and Brookline Commissions is being funded by the Ford Foundation plus matching money voted by the Boston City Council and the Town of Brookline. The Newton Commission has received $750 of its Ford Foundation planning grant and will receive the remaining $4,250 from the Ford Foundation when the Board of Aldermen appropriates the matching $4,250.

Mr. Blackwell made a strong plea for open space protection. "Financing of open space sounds unrealistic," he said, "but it need not be. Drive your city agencies to apply for BOR (Bureau of Outdoor Recreation) Land and Water Conservation Fund money which is administered by our state Department of Natural Resources." BOR supplies 50 per cent and the local community 50 per cent for a land purchase.

Blackwell said that as of Mar. 1, Massachusetts had $8.6 million of BOR money available and unobligated; that $4.4 million of this is allocated for fiscal year 1973; that the other $4 million is money which was not obligated for fiscal 1971 and 1972. There is a deadline, he said, at the end of each June for applications for BOR funds appropriated three years previously. So Newton still has a chance at this money.

"The BOR matching money does not have to be wholly municipal money," said Blackwell. "Instead, a conservation restriction can be given to the City. Such a gift can have an appraisable value placed on it. This creates a money credit value for the City's share of a matching application. The donor also benefits because he can deduct the gift of a conservation restriction from his income tax."

"Donors can also give cash to the Conservation Fund which can be used as matching money for BOR applications," said Blackwell. "Press for at least a little money—$5,000 to $10,000 each year to be appropriated by the Board of Aldermen to the Conservation Fund," he said.

The Newton Conservation Commission is in process of petitioning the Board of Aldermen to establish a Conservation Fund as permitted in chapter 40, section 5 of the General Laws of Massachusetts.

SHIPS AHOY — Two female civilian employees of the Naval Electronic Systems Command, Washington, D.C. will be taking short "see duty" cruises with the Fleet next month. Mrs. Anna Larsen (left) is a supervisory Inventory Management Specialist. Miss Dorothy Whelan, a personnel specialist and graduate of Newton South High School in 1964, is familiar with morale problems, fringe benefits and other employment inducements. Her specialty is mankind. As she put it, "It's all going to be new to me, but I'm a fast and willing learner; people are my business." Miss Whelan, it is interesting to note, will be the only female aboard the USS Neosho at the start of her seven day cruise in the Atlantic.

Elders Urged To Speak Out

An "Open Meeting" for all persons interested in helping to shape the re-organization of the Massachusetts Department of Elder Affairs will be held on Friday, Apr. 6 at 2 p.m. in Memorial Hall, Newton City Hall.

The featured speaker will be Jack Leff of the Massachusetts Department of Elder Affairs.

Refreshments and a reception will follow the meeting in the City Hall cafeteria through the courtesy of the Newton Council on Aging.

Transportation is available to Newton residents to and from the meeting by phoning the Newton office of Human Services at 244-4700.

The meeting is sponsored by the Newton Council on Aging, the Newton Community Service Centers, Inc., the Wellesley Council on Aging and the Weston Sr. Citizens Group.

Ward 4 GOP Sets Meeting

"What Ticks at the Top" is the theme of the city-wide open meeting sponsored by the Republican Ward 4 Committee with Otto Wahlrab, Chairman of the Massachusetts Republican State Committee as guest speaker.

The event being held at the Auburndale Club on Melrose Street in Auburndale takes place Monday evening, April 9 at 7:30 p.m.

Mrs. G.M. Swift, chairman of the Ward 4 Committee who will preside, heads the Committee on Arrangements, assisted by F. Payson LeBaron, Vice-Chairman; Mrs. Phyllis R. Butler, Secretary; Mrs. William C. Powers, Treasurer; Mrs. S. Page Cotton and Precinct Captains Donald Budge, Mrs. Joseph R. Scott, Miss Evangeline Marshall, and Zemgal.

A social hour and refreshments will follow the evening's program.

The public is invited.

Campus Notes

Miss Bonnie Callander, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Cedric Callander, has been named to the dean's list at Trinity College, Burlington, Vermont, where she is a human services major.

A Lady Speaks

The head of the League of Women Voters in one Massachusetts community has lost her job as president after tripping over a LWV rule that seems to belie many beliefs of that organization.

Mrs. Mary Dean of North Adams was apparently forced to resign her post with the North Adams unit where she had been active for seven years because she is a vocal supporter of the Right to Life group, an anti-abortion movement. Because the League has taken a stand in favor of abortion, Mrs. Dean, in a minority role, has appeared to violate a rule that prohibits League members from speaking out officially in opposition to a league consensus.

On a national and state level, the LWV has adopted a resolution supporting the liberalization of abortion laws. Mrs. Dean, as a private citizen and a member of the Right to Life group, has spoken against it.

The issue here, although Mrs. Dean may feel otherwise, is not abortion, but the so-called "gag" rule the League imposes on its members, most of whom probably do not realize the gag exists. The League often presents itself as a people's champion and a vital voice in local, state, and national affairs. Many organizations look to the League for its in depth studies of social problems and its willingness to face up to the issues of the day.

But isn't censorship an issue of the day? Isn't the right to personal opinions, although in a minority vein, also a right of all.

The league spends a lot of time and energy carefully selecting what they consider to be relevant topics for study. And they hope their studies in some way help better the social and governmental structures of our society.

Maybe however, they have been looking too far down the block. Perhaps there are some problems in their own backyard. It would seem there is some contradiction here and a little sprung clean-up might be in order.

If our observations are not correct we welcome clarification by the League which examines and explains so many issues so well.

A Matter of Policy

What will the policy be at our local hospitals on abortions?

Each and every hospital from the small hometown facility down the street to the giant, multi level medical centers in the cities is faced with decisions of drawing up rules and regulations dealing with abortions.

The policy question was asked recently of Norwood Hospital, Glover Hospital in Needham, Newton - Wellesley Hospital, Boston City Hospital and Faulkner Hospital in Jamaica Plain.

It was on January 22nd that the Supreme Court ruled that the state can no longer outlaw early pregnancy abortions. From the lofty realm of the Supreme Court the decision has cast its influence in just about every home on every avenue and street.

Of the five hospitals above none has issued a clearcut policy statement to date.

Immediately following the 7 to 2 ruling the Massachusetts Attorney General's office said that a statement would be given following a review of the decision. The position of the Attorney General today is that there will be no appeal — the high court ruled that out — and that the Massachusetts laws against abortion are invalid.

The soul searching has not ended on the abortion question. If anything it has deepened and become more personal than ever before.

The 26 member board of trustees of Norwood Hospital have not yet met to discuss the issue which the Supreme Court ruled on more than two months ago. A spokesman for Norwood Hospital also said that the hospital's legal council has not yet rendered an opinion on the issue although the medical staff has been asked to submit rules and regulations for adoption at the 269 bed not - for - profit community hospital.

A spokesman for Newton - Wellesley said there has been "no marked change" in its policy on abortions. "I don't think it is any different than it was before," the spokesman said. Actual statistics are not available from Newton - Wellesley.

At Glover Hospital in Needham the subject of legalized abortions at the 113 bed town funded facility is "still" being studied by the Glover trustees and the medical staff.

A Glover spokeswoman pointed out that persons seeking an abortion would not go to their hometown hospital but seek out a larger facility offering more anonymity than does the hospital in Needham which employees many local residents.

At Boston City Hospital the director and a group of doctors at BCH will be meeting Tuesday, April 3, to decide what steps will be taken on abortions at the hospital.

In making inquiry at Faulkner we are told that at the present time no space is available for abortions. Possibly there may be when Faulkner's new addition is completed a spokesman says.

The fact that the court has made the ruling certainly does not mean that all must accept it. It remains to be seen what each hospital decides to do and whether the court ruling, as it applies in Massachusetts, make a procedure mandatory at each and every community hospital.

HIGH HOPES

POLITICAL HIGHLIGHTS

Quinn Standout Democratic Governor Candidate For '74

At this stage Attorney General Robert H. Quinn appears to be the standout candidate for the Democratic nomination for Governor next year.

Other public figures are being mentioned as possible contenders for the right to run as the Democratic candidate for Governor in the 1974 election, but none of them has as much political muscle or as strong an organization as Quinn.

It would seem that about the only thing which could prevent Quinn from getting the Democratic gubernatorial nomination next year would be a decision on his part to serve another term as Attorney General. Such a development probably is unlikely.

Quinn has not been a spectacular or even a colorful Attorney General. But in a quiet sort of way he has been an extremely effective one. He has done and is doing a good job. He has not hesitated to make what he considered the right decision even if it might not always be the most popular or expedient one.

Democrat leaders, incidentally, are seriously considering the possibility of making an all-out drive to wipe out the convention system of endorsing candidates for state-wide offices. This, of course, would require the contenders for such nominations to go directly into the primary.

Some Democratic chieftains believe the State Convention is a help to the Republicans and a handicap to the Democrats. They are convinced it will hamper Democratic efforts to recapture the Governorship as long as it is continued.

Republican candidates have won five of the eight gubernatorial elections which have been held in Democratic Massachusetts since the convention system of endorsing candidates was revived, they point out.

Many observers believe that the Democratic disasters have been caused in part by the political blood-letting at the Democratic State Conventions on which funds and energy are wasted and at which feuds and ill-will are created.

Republican leaders invoke party discipline, and the winners at the GOP conventions rarely are challenged in the subsequent primaries.

For the Democrats, however, the convention usually is only a preliminary to the main bout which comes later.

Governor Sargent vetoed a bill repealing the pre-primary convention system which the Legislature adopted just before the end of its session last year.

But he waited until the law-makers had prorogued and gone home for the year, preventing any move to adopt the repeal measure over his veto.

The Democratic leaders in the House and Senate probably will not allow that to happen again although the Democratic legislators are not in complete accord that the pre-primary convention system should be wiped out.

The Democrats have the votes in both branches of the Legislature to override the Governor's veto if they can attain anything approaching a united party front.

Supporters of Attorney General Quinn say it doesn't matter much to their candidate whether the convention system is repealed or not. Actually, Quinn's election chances probably would be improved if the convention is wiped out.

He would be spared the necessity of wasting money on a convention which accomplished nothing and would be able to conserve his resources to a greater extent for the final election.

Quinn, incidentally, disagreed with most other Democratic leaders on the issue of placing the Commonwealth more deeply in the gambling business. He opposed the proposal.

That sounded reasonable to this observer since the Governor's plan, if approved, would revamp the very structure of the state government and, when submitted, will be the most important piece of legislation considered on Beacon Hill in years.

But it didn't seem reasonable to Governor Sargent who mounted his white charger, sounded his bugle, announced he would not retreat one inch, much less a foot, and demanded that the bill be approved yesterday even though it was not entirely in existence today.

We don't want to seem demanding, but if we're going to storm the hill and face the guns of the enemy in behalf of this bill, we'd like to know what the bill provides.

Downey Wise In Disclosing Whatever Secrets He Knew

When John T. Downey returned to his Connecticut home after spending 20 years in a Chinese prison, he declared candidly that he had given the Chinese "every bit of information I had."

He added that if he had not done so, he would still be in prison. Downey was serving a life sentence after being arrested and convicted as a CIA agent.

In fact, his prospects of ever seeing the outside world again were remote until President Nixon spoke to Premier Chou En-lai during his visit to Peking last year and requested that Downey be freed as a goodwill gesture.

The fact that Downey had disclosed all the secrets he knew to the Chinese obviously didn't disturb Mr. Nixon to any great extent.

This has prompted one highly respected columnist to express the opinion that military men taken prisoner would do well to tell their captors whatever they know and to make something up if they don't know anything to tell them.

On the same day that column appeared news dispatches from Clark Air Base in the Philippines told of "diabolical" forms of torture used by the Communists in Vietnam to force their prisoners to answer questions or issue anti - war statements.

A Navy pilot, who refused to make anti - war statements was forced to sit on a stool for 20 days. A guard would hit him under the nose whenever he tried to go to sleep. On the 21st day he caved in and agreed to make any statement desired from him.

Other men who refused to give unimportant information demanded from them were forced to kneel on concrete floors until their knees swelled up like balloons or were beaten with rubber hoses or sandals with truck tire soles.

The prisoners, of course, were unable to withstand this barbaric brutality. Many brave men died under the strain of it which probably is one of the reasons so many men missing in action are still unaccounted for.

The men who lived through these ordeals of torture inevitably did what their captors demanded they do. Some of them were still mentally scrambled when they arrived back at Clark Air Base so brutally had they been treated.

This writer has the greatest admiration for the courage of the men who tried to defy their captors. But we don't applaud the action of the crowd at the Travis Air Force Base in California who roared a rousing welcome to 63 returning former POW's but remained silent as three allegedly anti-war POWs debarked from a medical plane.

We wonder how many persons among the gathering that remained silent know what they would have done under the brutality and torture employed by the Communist captors.

These men didn't enjoy the luxuries of a Walpole State Prison.

Capital Punishment Favored Until Someone Is Executed

As a young reporter, this writer covered an electrocution at the old Charlestown State Prison and helped to cover a hanging in New Hampshire.

We were so far from the gallows that the hanging seemed unreal and impersonal. Our assignment was to cover the crowd which witnessed the hanging, not the hanging itself which made no great impact on us.

But there was nothing impersonal about the electrocution in the antiquated prison which has since been torn down. It was something which caused you to wake up screaming in the middle of the night weeks later.

The witnesses, of whom this observer was one, gathered ahead of time in the room where the convicted murderer was to be put to death for his crime.

Shortly before midnight, the condemned man, half - walked falteringly, half - stumbled into the chamber, helped by a guard and a clergyman who was murmuring prayers to the unlistening murderer.

This was no case of a criminal walking defiantly to the electric chair. Once a vicious killer, the murderer was now little more than a walking vegetable. He obviously had been heavily drugged.

As the man about to die was strapped in the electric chair, the writer found himself nervously hoping that a last - minute call would come from the Governor commuting his death sentence to life imprisonment.

But that couldn't happen in Massachusetts, as it does in the movies, because the commutation would have to be approved by the Governor's Council which wasn't even meeting.

Everything went smoothly and according to schedule except that the perspiration streaming down our face streaked our glasses and made it difficult to see.

At just about midnight an executioner hired specially for the job pulled the switch and sent powerful electric shocks surging through the body of the man being electrocuted.

The prison lights seemed to dim momentarily as a great flow of electricity was diverted to the task of snuffing out a human life. The electrical systems weren't as good then as they are now.

The man in the electric chair lunged against the leather straps that bound him. Then he went limp. A second flow of electricity was sent coursing through his body to make sure he wasn't still alive. There was the smell of burning flesh.

The electricity was turned off; the slumping man in the electric chair was unbound and pronounced dead. It had all taken a matter of minutes.

We rushed out to a designated telephone to call in a bulletin for a delayed edition. "Did they fry him yet?" was the jovial question of the veteran rewriteman taking the call. We felt ill. The writer had been converted into an opponent of capital punishment.

From 1947 until the present time no one has been put to death in the electric chair in Massachusetts. It's even longer since there has been a hanging in New Hampshire. The U.S. Supreme Court has ruled out the death penalty.

But now there is a strong move to revive capital punishment. It is stimulated by the rising wave of capital crimes.

Even President Nixon is calling for a restoration of the death penalty for such heinous crimes as hijacking and kidnapping which result in the death of a victim.

The President believes — and many people agree with him — that the death penalty would be a deterrent to such crimes. We're still unconvinced that is so, but if capital punishment is brought back, someone else can have our seat in the death chamber

Many people will find they favor the death penalty right up to the point where it is used

Critics of J. Edgar Hoover Are Now Singing His Praise

Some of the very columnists, who for years were writing that J. Edgar Hoover was too old, too crusty, too much of a dictator and had outlived his usefulness as head of the F.B.I., are now pinning editorial medals posthumously on the old curmudgeon.

The writers, who complained so forcefully that J. Edgar ran an independent barony in the Justice Department, are now lamenting in print that L. Patrick Gray, 3rd, does not have some of the independence which Mr. Hoover possessed in such abundance.

What J. Edgar Hoover wold have done if the Watergate mess had been dropped into his lap is a matter of conjecture, but whatever he did would have been done with greater deftness than has been displayed by Mr. Gray who seems to have displeased just about everybody, including his boss, President Nixon.

The same writers who once protested in their columns that J. Edgar Hoover ate Attorneys General for lunch are now criticizing L. Patrick Gray for accepting Attorney General Richard Kleindienst as his boss.

Those one-time critics of Mr. Hoover, who now at times seem to be on the verge of urging his beatification, are calling upon the Senate Judiciary Committee to reject the nomination of L. Patrick Gray and to suggest that Mr. Gray take Attorney General Kleindienst with him when he leaves.

F.B.I. directors, it would seem, don't have much success in pleasing columnists until after they die. But, of course, Mr. Gray is only the second in a short line of F.B.I. chiefains. One thing he has done is make believers out of those who were so skeptical about J. Edgar Hoover.

Elliot Roosevelt Degrading Father's Memory For Money

Franklin D. Roosevelt has always rated right up near the top in our list of favorite public leaders.

Perhaps that is partly due to the fact that he was the first public official we tried to interview, and he was extremely kind and helpful to an inxperienced cub reporter.

It was a warm Sunday back in June, 1929. The phone rang, and the assistant city editor of the Post came on the line.

"Franklin D. Roosevelt is coming down to Harvard from Groton this afternoon," he said. "I want you to meet him at the Harvard dormitory where he is staying and interview him. The only reason I'm assigning you is I don't have anybody else," he added with something less than a touch of reassurance.

The writer had just finished his freshman year at Harvard and had held the exalted position of assistant Harvard reporter for three months. Roger Birtwell, the first - string Harvard reporter and until recently a Globe sports writer, was busy elsewhere.

FDR was then Governor of New York. He also was a member of the Harvard class of 1904 which was holding its 25th reunion, was to be the Phi Beta Kappa orator at the Harvard Commencement and was to get an honorary degree from Harvard.

When his limousine pulled up at the entrance to the dormitory where he was staying, only his butler and the writer were waiting to greet him. I had agreed to help carry him into the dormitory suite.

We lifted him out of his limousine, crossed our arms, locked our hand and carried him into a first-floor suite. As Mr. Roosevelt relaxed in the big armchair in which we had placed him, he reached into his pocket and fished out a roll of bills, pulled off a couple and started to hand them to me.

"I don't want any money," I told him. "I'm a newspaper reporter for the Boston Post, and I was sent out to interview you."

"Oh," he replied, "I thought you were a student."

"I am," I said, "but I'm a reporter too."

"Well, sit down and interview me," he declared.

We accepted the invitation, but no questions came to our mind.

"What's the matter?" he asked.

"I can't think of any questions to ask you," I replied.

"Well, get out your pencil and paper, and I'll interview myself," he said.

For a fascinating half - hour Franklin D. Roosevelt, the old pro of politics, asked himself questions and answered them, going slowly so we could take it all down, in the end giving us a news story that helped us to get a permanent job on the Post that made it possible to continue working our way through Harvard.

Perhaps that's why it seems despicable to us that Elliot Roosevelt has written a book about the marital difficulties between his mother and father and about his father's relations with other women.

What useful purpose can possibly be served by bringing out these facts concerning his father — one of the truly great Presidents in United States history — 28 years after his death?

It's not surprising that his three brothers and his sister issued a statement disassociating themselves from the book. Elliot Roosevelt's own statement that he considers the truth is better told than alluded to "in veiled sentences," is limp and lame. He is degrading his father's memory for a few dollars.

FIRECRACKER CRACKDOWN

FRANKFORT, Ky. (UPI) — The state fire marshal is cracking down on the illegal sale of firecrackers and other fireworks in Kentucky this year.

State Fire Marshal Warren H. Southworth says not even sparklers may be sold this year to commemorate the Fourth of July. Under the ban, imposed by a 1968 state safe fireworks law, only public fireworks displays by licensed operators and the sale of toy pistol caps will be permitted.

DUCK DIET

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (UPI) — Mallard ducks prefer a diet of sedges, grasses, smartweeds and other aquatic plants, according to the Missouri Conversation Commission.

SEED MONEY

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (UPI) — The University of Michigan Institute for Environmental Quality is one of the few institutions of its kind in the country. Among other things, it provides "seed money" to U.M. researchers for environmental studies.

A Lot Of Time To Read

Editor, Newton Graphic:

I used to live in Newton in 1950.

I am now a disabled veteran.

I fought in the Battle of the Bulge. I was wounded three times in action and I had four operations before I had my left leg amputated on June 11, 1971, in the Presbyterian Hospital in Pittsburgh, Pa. I had seven more operations after I had my left leg amputated.

It would make me, a disabled veteran, very happy if you would please publish my letter in the Newton paper.

It would make me very happy to receive get well cards, letters or birthday cards. My birthday is April 7. Since I am disabled, I have a lot of time to read. It makes me very happy to receive mail.

Have I Got Your Number?

Editor, Newton Graphic:

Both in preparation for the Centennial and for the continuing life of the city, there are a number of relatively simple and inexpensive improvements (some possible being currently considered) that could be made and would improve the quality of life in the community.

Among these are:

(1) the installation of new street signs where presently non-existant, and possible freshening or luminizing existing signs that have low visibility. This should include not only signs of the small intersecting streets but of the principal street as well. All cities tend to take knowledge of the principal street for granted. Visitors need and would appreciate both signs!

(2) The application of paint, applied with flair, on certain central village curbings and crosswalks, at such points for example as Newton Corner, the Gateway, so called, where presently the curbings and crosswalks are so utterly dreary and drab that they establish a forlorn image for the city. In this whole area nary a drop of paint has been so used since the Turnpike Extension was built.

The two foregoing initiatives would depend on action by the city government.

(3) Citywide application of luminous tapes and-or markers on roadside posts and trees that are uncomfortably near the curb and particularly where the road curves as for example Centre Street approaching the Corner. On certain heavily travelled streets in Newton the lamp posts are within less than a yard of the pavement. Such markers would establish a significant safety factor, particularly for night driving in the rain or snow. The execution of this project could involve many persons.

This initiative need not and preferably should not depend on City Hall action except for securing and furnishing the luminous plates or the luminous tape in small rolls for wide distribution. This objective could ideally operate as a joint project offering participation to cooperating groups, coordinated and directed by the Centennial personnel. The personpower could come from such groups as improvement associations, neighborhood groups, Boy and Girl Scout Troops, or any group or individual man or woman aware of the satisfactions to be derived from participation in a joint community effort. This sort of cooperative effort could triumphantly achieve such a safety factor and at the same time heighten the civic morale of those involved.

(4) The proper marking or numbering of residences and business establishments. This matter calls for serious consideration. Few things are more frustrating than inability to find a numbered address where it ought to be and having to ask the neighbors. It is properly the role of the postal authorities to police the matter, but they often have to settle for tiny numbers attached inconspicuously. The American failure to pay attention to the matter is a sort of national scandal. It ranks among the lowest of the priorities.

Newton is no exception to the rule. On some of our streets there seems no pretense to numbering, and even in some of our finest neighborhoods there is a high percentage of numbers either non-existant, poorly placed or too small for easy visibility.

This baffling situation could now be substantially corrected by our Centennial personnel through a concerted effort, in cooperation with the postal authorities to achieve a widespread installation of large and distinctive numbers affixed in the best position to afford maximum visibility. Where circumstances permit, the painting of the numbers could be encouraged.

Retail stores could be encouraged to stock and prominently display a choice of distinctive numbers. Editorials would urge action, and young folk - of both sexes - could be able to earn extra money by offering the householder fixed price deals for painting the number or for furnishing and affixing the chosen style of numbers at the most convenient location. Groups of young folk have done this quite profitably in Bethseda, Maryland, among possible other cities.

Incinerator -

The city's labor negotiator, Atty. Leon Kowal, explained to aldermen that when the men are covered by the law, disability due to lung conditions would be presumed to be job related unless evidence to the contrary was produced.

In the event of disagreement, the individual case would be decided on the merits of each side's evidence.

Incinerator workers, via Local 800, have alleged the city verbally promised to secure this coverage for them when their contract was negotiated early last year.

The matter must go to the State Legislature for its approval, and, according to State Rep. Peter F. Harrington, consent of the local unit of government is needed before the legislature would consider the matter.

The men are also seeking the same coverage as related to heart conditions, but Union President Lou Rufo said they were satisfied with the initial approval of lung coverage.

Injustice In Ward 4

Editor, Newton Graphic

At present, there is a plan to redistrict the city of Newton to provide four single representative districts before the State Legislature.

This plan trisects Ward 4 and deprives the Ward of a single identifiable state legislator. The Ward 4 aldermen along with many other aldermen are concerned and would very much like to see this corrected.

Last Monday, this situation was discussed by the Board of Aldermen at its regular meeting.

Much of the explainations and smirking by Newton's two state representatives who are also aldermen, led me to recall Nathaniel Hawthorne's thought on hypocrisy: "No man, or woman, for any considerable period, can wear one face to himself, and another to the multitude, without finally getting bewildered as to which may be true."

If a representative takes his role as a public servant seriously and truly believes that his responsibility is to his constitutents first and foremost, then what I had to listen to at the Newton Board of Aldermen meeting was pure hypocrisy.

There is no defense for the injustice delivered to the citizens of Newton's Ward 4 by the insensitive, random destruction of that political unit. Any explanation already offered or forthcoming will only serve to deepen the wound.

I wish to take this opportunity to encourage every concerned Newtonite to write or call your state reps to demand that justice for the decimated Ward 4 resident be fought for before it's too late to reconsider the present redistricting plan.

It's time that all Americans throughout these United States wake up and take notice of the highly political motivations, by both parties, in the constant gerrymandering of districts to suit individual self-serving elected public employees.

I may be idealistic but I subscribe to the theory that "Whatever the human law may be, neither an individual nor a nation can commit the least act of injustice against the obscurest individual without having to pay the penalty for it eventually."

Evidently Ward 4 is the spoils to our one party representation in the State Legislature. Is this what the citizens of Newton must now look forward to? I humbly commit the words of Lord Kames to all our state reps in the hope that they reconsider the political havoc wrecked on Ward 4. Kames said that "No Man ever did a designed injury to another, but at the same time he did a greater to himself."

Large Families Fight Back

Editor,
Newton Graphic:

The population alarmists have created a preposterous myth called the "Population Explosion" which has been spoon fed to the American public. Large families have been particularly battered about by these alarmists. Large families are beginning to fight back!

Our association is a non-profit association providing economic benefits to 170,000 families with three or more children. Eventually, we fully expect to reach the 14 million large families of America. It's a startling fact that 23 percent of the American families raise over 65 percent of our children.

The "population explosion" myth must be shattered. It thrives on fear and leads innocent people to emotional and dangerous actions. It leads to a "Nazi-type mentality" which starts out with slaughtering unborn children and winds up in killing off old people and other "undesirables" in our society. We can regain a reverence for all life in our country and emphasize the infinite value of a child as long as we don't permit the fearmongers to frighten us by overworking our emotions.

The alarmists cry that we are running out of resources but can't name a resource that we are running out of. They cry about running out of food but know very little about the world food supply and what they do know is obsolete.

Every unbiased, reputable source indicates without exception that the trend in food production for a generation has been more food per person in spite of population increases.

They cry about pollution, yet can name no pollution which cannot be cured in spite of growth in population. They cry about lack of space, yet don't even know how much space there is. Actually, it's amazing how empty the world is. When we examine everyone of the arguments of the alarmists, we find they have nothing but fantasies and high-powered rhetoric. Colin Clark, the world's most renowned demographer, emphatically agrees with our position.

The alarmists are really "cop outs" since it is easier to cry about populations than solve the problems that need solving. They ignore the still umlimited opportunities in the world and the known cures for many of our problems.

When these alarmists attack large families, they fail to point out that famous leaders from large families abound. Some of our greatest presidents were children of large families. History records an amazing number of saints from large families. Most of our clergy of all faiths come from large families.

Professors James H. S. Bossard and Eleanor S. Boll of the University of Pennsylvania have given a ringing endorsement of the large family in their book, "Large Family System," University of Pennsylvania Press. They point out that large family living makes for an early acceptance of the realities of life, that teamwork is encouraged and develops naturally, that good organization and leadership develop in such a system, that discipline is stressed, that large families tend to develop close bonds and that large families make for a certain balance in sanity in child-rearing.

Sir James Spence, the first full-time professor of child health in Great Britain and one of the greatest physicians of this century, says: "A family at its best would have in it five or more children, without wide gaps in age between them. The parents at their best would come from similar families, but preferably not the firstborn nor the lastborn of these families. This variety gives the necessary range of characters. There are no star players on this stage, for all are equal stars. They play their parts and live their lives in a constant interchanging of relationships up and down the scale of the ages, and they do this within indefinable lines of conduct automatically accepted as their code."

We invite all families with three or more children to join with us in our fight to strengthen family life in our country. Please write to Large Families of America, 54 Miller Street, Fairfield, Conn. 06430 and we'll send you further information about the benefits of membership.

ARP Sends Music Abroad

ARP Instruments, Inc., of Newton, a manufacturer of electronic music synthesizers, has entered into agreements in principal with Boosey & Hawkes, Edgware, England, and Manufacturers' Centre Holland, Baarn, Holland regarding the distribution of ARP products in Europe, Africa and Canada.

B&H and MCH are two of the world's largest distributors of musical instruments.

ARP commenced negotiations with these two distributors at the Frankfurt International Trade Fair held in February of this year in Germany.

As a result of these negotiations, B&H and MCH have recently given ARP purchase orders amounting in the aggregate to approximately $400,000, for products deliverable during the next several months.

Tax Questions And Answers

Q. I am 67 years old. I have dividend and interest income. I also received Social Security benefits of $1908 in 1972. May I claim the Retirement Income Credit?

A. No, you would not qualify for the retirement income credit. The maximum amount of retirement income on which the credit may be computed is $1524. (In the case of a married couple over 65 filing a joint return who elect the joint computation of retirement income credit, the maximum is $2286). This figure must be reduced by certain excludable pensions and annuities including Social Security and by earned income received. Since your Social Security payments were more than $1524, no credit is allowable.

Q. My father is retired and lives with my husband and me. He does not work and collects only a little Social Security. He has a small house which he rents for $100 per month. His gross income is $1200 but when his expenses are deducted, his net income is only $300 and therefore he owes no income tax. We would like to claim him on our return since we provide most of his support.

A. You may not claim an exemption for your father, since he had gross income in excess of $750.

Q. Can I round off the figures on my return?

A. Yes. The items on your return may be shown in whole dollars. You may eliminate any amount less than .50 and increase any amount from .50 to .99 to the next higher dollar.

Q. What dividends are subject to the dividend exclusion?

A. You may exclude up to $100 of dividends received from qualifying domestic corporations. If you file a joint return, each can exclude up to $100 of dividend income. However, if one spouse received less than $100 in dividends, the other cannot use the balance of the exclusion. For example, if you received $300 in dividends from a qualifying corporation and your wife received $45 in dividends, your total dividend exclusion would be $145.

Q. I spend .90 a day for carfare to and from work. Is this deductible?

A. No. The cost of commuting is a personal expense and is not deductible.

Q. My mother received benefits from a health insurance policy in 1972. Will I have to count these benefits when figuring her total support for the year since I plan to claim her as a dependent?

A. No. Benefits received from health insurance policies are not included in total support.

Q. What are some examples of taxable income?

A. Taxable income includes, but is not limited to: wages, salaries, bonuses, commissions, tips, Dividends and interest income, rents and royalties, pensions and annuities, capital gain and losses, alimony, partnership, estate and trust income, and all prizes and awards.

Q. My bank statement shows that my savings account earned $143 in 1972. Since this is less than $200, do I have to declare this amount as income?

A. Yes. If your account earned less than $200 that amount should be entered on line 13, form 1040 or line 13 form 1040A. If it earned over $200, the amounts should be listed on Schedule B and carried forward to line 13, form 1040. All interest earned is taxable and must be reported if you file a return.

Q. How do you record state income taxes on Schedule A? Is it the amount withheld in 1972 or the actual amount paid on the 1971 state tax return?

A. The proper way to handle this is to deduct the amount of state tax withheld during 1972 as an itemized deduction on Schedule A. Any refund which you might receive in 1973 would then be reportable as income on your 1973 Federal tax return. You do not have to report a state income tax refund if you did not itemize deductions in the preceding year. Of course, if you have to pay additional tax when filing your state return, then that amount would also be deductible in the year paid. For example, if your 1973 withholding was $600 and you paid $100 additional tax when filing your 1972 return, then the state tax deduction on your 1973 federal tax return would be $700.

Q. I recently arrived in the USA for a short stay. Where can I obtain some tax information?

A. There are various publications available for both resident and non-resident aliens. These may be obtained free at your local IRS office, or by writing to Director of International Operations, Internal Revenue Service, Washington, D.C. 20225.

Q. I own a small grocery store and my son will start working for me soon. Someone told me that I can't deduct the wages I would pay to him. Is this true?

A. If your child works for you, you may deduct reasonable wages to pay to him for services he renders in your business, even though he uses the money to purchase items which you would normally furnish him. However, you may not deduct the cost of meals and lodging furnished the child. The child must report the wages on his own tax return.

Q. I am over 65 years old, and have already received my tax refund. I think I should also get back the $63.88 that was deducted for F.I.C.A. tax. Can't I get that money back?

A. I'm sorry, but you cannot get that tax refunded. F.I.C.A. tax is the amount deducted for social security purposes on the first $9000 earned from each employer. The rate is now 5.2 percent. This amount must be deducted regardless of age, and is not refundable unless you have overpaid as a result of having two or more employers during the year with combined wages in excess of $9000.

Q. I will be donating some corporate stock to a qualified charitable organization. I bought the stock about 20 years ago at a fraction of what it is now worth. What do I deduct, the cost or the value?

A. Gifts of capital gain property may normally be deducted at their fair market value. However, there are instances in which the fair market value of capital gain property must be reduced by 50 percent of the appreciation:

1. If the contributed capital gain property consists of tangible personal property, the use of which by the charity is unrelated to us exempt purpose of function; or
2. The capital gain property is contributed to certain private non-operating foundations. You may obtain additional information in Publication 526, "Income Tax for Deduction for Contributions."

Q. I am unsure about what to do with my son's earnings from the summer. Do I include his income with my income when I file my return?

A. No, if your son earned $2050 or more, he is required to file his own return and pay a tax if due; Or to receive a refund. If his earnings were less than $2050 and any tax was withheld, it would be necessary for him to file in order to receive a refund of taxes paid.

Q. I have an expense account to cover the traveling I do for the company. How do I treat this when preparing my tax return.

A. Generally, reimbursements and allowances received for expenses incurred in connection with your employment must be included in income. However, if you are required to account to your employer for your expenses and your reimbursement does not exceed your expenses, then you do not have to report this on your income tax return. If you account to your employer, and your reimbursement exceeds your expenses, then the excess must be reported on your return. If your allowable expenses exceed your reimbursements report the reimbursements as income, but also deduct the expenses.

Q. We had a new side walk put in. The city did not pay for it. It was at our expense. Is this expense considered deductible?

A. No, any expenditure that tends to increase the value of your property is generally not deductible. The amount should be added to the bases of your property.

Q. Do all medicines and drugs qualify as a medical expense?

A. Medicines and drugs legally obtained generally qualify, even if they do not require a prescription. Do not include expenditures for toothpaste, toiletries, cosmetics, etc. Also do not include vitamins or iron supplements taken to preserve your general health, without them having been prescribed by a doctor.

"I haven't bought meat for any of my Purity Supreme stores for next Monday, April 2."

I'm Leo Kahn, president of Purity Supreme. We all know what's happened to meat. It costs you more, and it costs me more. Everybody talks about it, but the only way to drive meat prices down is to stop buying so much meat.

So that's what I've done; I haven't bought meat for any of my Purity Supreme stores for next Monday, April 2. With thirty-six stores, that's a lot of meat, and our suppliers are going to feel it. Meatless Monday at Purity Supreme is a protest against rising meat prices, to dramatize the fact that something must be done.

So when you come into any of my Purity Supreme stores next Monday, you won't find any meat in our fresh meat cases. Instead, you'll find specials on protein-rich meat substitutes, like fish and dairy products, eggs, beans, tuna. Even if you don't shop at Purity Supreme, come in and pick up our free recipes for nourishing meatless meals.

No matter where you buy meat, buy less meat, and start planning more meatless meals. Until they start selling us meat at reasonable prices.

Leo Kahn

Noted Author Speaks At Newton College

The well-known author Tom McHale, will read from his works and lead a discussion at Newton College at 4 p.m. on Thursday, March 29.

The event, open to the public at no charge, will be held in the East Lounge of the Stuart Administration Building on the Centre St., Newton campus.

McHale, a member of the faculty at Northeastern University, is the author of a number of novels including "Principato," "Farragan's Retreat" and "Alinsky's Diamonds."

Grossman Gives TV To Newton Winner

An RCA portable color television will soon belong to Mrs. Howard W. Lewis of Newton Lower Falls, whose name was among three winners chosen at random from hundreds of entries in Grossman's Wellesley store grand opening give-away.

First prize, a "Jamacian Jubilee" holiday for two was won by Mr. and Mrs. William MacPherson of Waltham, and third prize, a colonial-style lawn and garden storage building, was won by Mr. David Pulling of Wellesley.

GHOSTLY VISITATION — A performance of the Newton Country Players' production, "Gabriel Ghost," will be given in the Temple Emanuel Community Hall on Sunday, April 1 at 1:30 p.m. The theater party is being sponsored by the Rabbi Albert I. Gordon Religious School PTA and is open to the public. Doors will open at 1 p.m. and there will be a snack bar. Tickets will be sold at the door for $1. Committee members planning the event are Mrs. Mark Klein and Mrs. Gilbert Davidson, shown with "Gabriel's Helpers," Debbie Lowenstein and Sharra Davidson. Mrs Louis E. Siagel (not shown) is the co-chairman.

Incentive Travel Is Coming Thing

It was announced today that Joseph I. Weinrebe, of Waban, vice-president of Marketing and treasurere of Republic Travel Service, Ltd. of Boston, was elected President of the Association of Incentive Travel Organizations (AITO).

AITO is a national organization composed of travel and tour operators. Their major product line is the development and operation of sales promotion programs for business and industry using the travel award as motivators for their salesmen, customers, and employees for increased sales, purchases, and productivity.

Mr. Weinrebe stated that, "Because of the complexities and dynamics of the travel marketing structure there is a need to explain the unique characteristics of an Incentive Travel Operator so that business and industry can fulfill their requirements with greater confidence."

New Notary For Newton

William A. Schell, 82 Oxford Rd., Newton Centre, has been appointed as a Notary Public, State Secretary John F.X. Davoren has announced.

Confirmation of the new appointee was made here at a meeting of the Executive Council following submission of the nomination by Governor Sargent.

The term of the Newton Centre Notary Public will expire in seven years.

Recreation Notes . . .

Newton Swimmers Excel

The Newton swim team sponsored by the Newton Recreation Department recently completed its most successful indoor season, winding up with four consecutive wins.

In a meet held at the War Memorial Pool in Cambridge the Newton swimmers defeated the Cambridge Sting Rays 102 to 92.

Two Newton swimmers, Paul Higgins and Marianne Fay, shared the individual high point trophy, each winning four events, as the Newton team took 15 out of 22 scheduled events.

Newton winners were Paul Higgins, boys, 11-12, 50-yard backstroke, 50-yard butterfly, 50-yard freestyle and 100-yard breaststroke; and Marianne Fay, girls, 8 and under, 25-yard butterfly, 25-yard backstroke, 25-yard breaststroke and 25-yard freestyle.

Other winners included Susan O'Halloran, girls, 9-10, 25-yard freestyle and 25-yard butterfly; and Ann Mulvaney, girls, 9-10, 50-yard breaststroke.

In the girls 11-12, events the winners were Kate Green in the 50-yard freestyle and Joanna Bonizoli in the 50-yard butterfly. Mary Mulvaney won the girls, 13-14, 100-yard backstroke.

The Newton swimmers also took the girls, 11-12, medley relay. The members of he winning relay team were Joanna Bonizoli, Joanne Fay, Kate Green and Eileen Cronin.

In the 13-14 division, members of the first place medley relay team were Mary Mulvaney, Joanne Fay, Patti Higgins and Patty Ryan.

Other Newton swimmers who placed in their events were Deidre Jordan, Sandy Vachon, Caroline Ryan, John Mulvaney, Julie Whoriskey, Melinda Berry, Michelle Rowland, Fran McKay, Eryn Monahan, Beth Ryan and Janet Collins.

The final meet of the season was against the Belmont Recreation Department Swim Team at the Brighton Y.M.C.A. with the Newton swimmers prevailing 117 to 90 and giving the Newton team a winning season.

The Newton swim team concluded the winter season at the Brighton Y with a parent oriented program.

In a water polo match the parents defeated the Newton swim team, three to two and the rest of the program included a series of parent-swimmer relays.

Trophies were presented to Marianne Fay and Paul Higgins for being the individual high point scorers in the Cambridge meet.

Having successfully completed the indoor season the Newton swimmers are looking to the summer swim season with enthusiasm. All swimmers interested in joining the Newton swim team should contact Recreation Supervisor Fran Towle at the Recreation Department, 969-3171.

The playoffs in the girls junior high school basketball league, playing Wednesdays at Sacred Heart, Newton Center, from 6:30 to 9 p.m. will start April 4th. The first and fourth, and second and third teams will meet in the semi-finals.

The league standings with a week to go find Tony's Villa and the Tigers tied for first place with four wins and no losses each. The Auburndale Bombers are all even at two and two while Mini Trotters and the Flower Boutique both have one and three records. The Sacred Heart Team is still looking for its fifth win having absorbed four defeats.

Recreation Supervisor William J. Barry reports on the American League Basketball picture. In the A Division finals the Waban Wonders who finished third in regular season play swept to their second straight title defeating Centre Pizza, 82 to 66 and 100 to 74. Howie Greenblatt was high scorer in the second game with 40 points while player-coach Steve Hurley tossed in 18.

The B Division finals opened Wednesday night with the Boys' Club meeting the Oakley Spa Club. To gain the final round the Boys' Club took two straight from the Bucks and the Stumblebums quintet took two out of three from the Oakley Spa.

Barry also reports on the upcoming softball season. After the initial meeting it was determined that all teams in the A division will be returning and there are no openings. Bill says it looks like a similar situation will exist in the other two divisions of the league.

There is a waiting list but the league is held to three divisions by the fact that all softball diamonds available are being used.

The Youth Center Program continues to attract young people. The West Newton Coffee House at the First Unitarian Church was attended by 200 teenagers Saturday night and another 100 were at the facility in the Newton Highlands Congregational Church. These two centers are open Saturday nights from 7 to 11 p.m.

In Newton Corner the Beginnings, a drop-in center, is housed in the Eliot Church building. Sunday through Thursday it is open from 2 to 9 p.m. and Saturday the hours are 1 to 11 p.m.

Blackman - Galer Vows Spoken

In a recent double ring ceremony at Temple Beth Emunah, Brockton, Miss Lois Marsha Galer became the bride of Erwin Blackman. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthut Galer of Newton Center, and he is the son of Mrs. Paul Blackman of Brockton and the late Mr. Blackman.

Rabbi David Werb officiated at the ceremony and a reception followed at the Temple.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a white velvet gown with a pearl embroidered bodice, long sleeves and mock turtleneck. Her silk illusion veil was arranged from a pearl embroidered cap, and she carried her grandmother's Bible with a floral spray.

The bride's twin sister, Mrs. Elliott Marks of Silver Spring, Md., as matron of honor, wore a gown of purple satin with long sleeves and ruffled cuffs and bib. Miss Diane Franklin of Marlboro, a cousin of the bride, was maid of honor and wore a pastel print gown.

The bridesmaids, in orchid floral print gowns were Mrs. Michael Jacobson, Miss Rosalind Davis, Miss Cheryl Davis and Miss Carol Blackman, all nieces of the bridegroom and residents of Brockton.

Judi Tock of Natick, a cousin of the bride, was flower girl. She wore a pink gown and carried a pink basket of flower petals.

Harvey Blackman of Brockton was best man for his brother, and Abraham Davis of Brockton, brother-in-law of the bridegroom, escorted the bridegroom's mother.

Ushers were John Palla, brother-in-law of the bridegroom, Michael Jacobson, Neal and Jeffrey Blackman, the bridegroom's nephews, Dominic Persamierie, all of Brockton, and Elliott Marks of Silver Springs, Md.

After a wedding trip to Miami Beach, Fla. the couple will live in Brockton.

The bride attended Boston University and was graduated from Emerson College. She is a first grade teacher in Weymouth, and a member of the Weymouth and the Massachusetts teachers association.

The bridegroom is a graduate of the Massachusetts College of Pharmacy and served in the Army's Medical Corps. He is the assistant chief pharmacist at Goddard Memorial Hospital. (Ellis Gale photo)

J.B.'s Has That Personal Touch

By CYNTHIA BLACK

Maybe a Newton native knows better than anyone else in the city what people really like.

Joe Bianchi seems to have hit just the right note in Nonantum because his place, J.B.'s Steak House on Watertown street, is filled with customers.

His explanation is deceptively simple: "I was looking for something for myself, so I built it for others."

A restaurant to his likeing includes a cheese bar for cocktail nibblers, a salad bar for diners, and a heap of fresh fruit for citrus fanciers.

In the business for only a year, Bianchi attributes his success to attention to details and educated buying to keep his prices down in an era where prices are anything but down.

Joe's lobsters come right off the boat, his produce comes right off the train, and his beef comes from a local dealer. He says he has the advantage over other restaurnat owners of being able to buy in large quantities because he also owns Bunny's Market and can supply both business interests at once. After the meat is selected, the cutting is done by his own staff.

J.B.'s he says was an instant success and has attracted everyone from large families (who can buy a family steak, another personal touch) to Newton officials and metropolitan celebrities.

Fture plans include outdoor expansion with a seagoing decor that will be especially suited to summer dining, complete with candlelight.

"When people come here," he says, "I want them to feel at home."

"Home" is open daily from 11 a.m. to midnight; Sunday from 1 p.m. to midnight. Music at the piano-cheese bar starts at 8 p.m.

CPAs Elect Vine

Bernard D. Vine of Newtonville has been elected a Fellow of the Massachusetts Society of Certified Public Accountants.

He is vice president and controller of Boston Institutional Services, Inc., Boston. Mr. Vine was graduated from City College of New York where he received his B.A. degree in 1950, and Columbia University Graduate School of Business where he received his M.S. degree in accounting in 1951.

The Massachusetts Society of CPA's is an organization of 3200 members founded in 1900 to promote and maintain the high standards of accounting. The society has continually served the profession through the voluntary efforts of its members.

Mr. Vine is married to the former Thelma Newberger of Newtonville and they have one child. Mr. Vine is also a member of the American Institute of CPA's.

Yankee Bookstall Opens

The 19th annual Yankee Bookstall of the women's committee of Children's Hospital Medical Center will open on Wednesday, April 11, at Horticultural Hall, Huntington and Massachusetts avenues, Boston and will continue through Monday, April 16 from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. daily and 1 to 5 p.m. on Sunday.

Books have been donated by friends of the hospital from private libraries and estates and range from books long out of print to current best sellers. Subjects include the arts, hobbies, history, biography, text books and fiction. Prices range from children's books at 5 cents to collectors' items. Proceeds will go to the Children's Hospital.

New books will be put out daily for the first three days. Saturday and Sunday, April 14 and 15, will be half-price days with a final 10 cent clearance on Monday, April 16.

Local women who are working for the Yankee Bookstall are Mrs. Seymour Blum, Mrs. Richard Ginsberg, Mrs. Norman B. Leventhal, of Newton; Mrs. Albert A. Hittel, Miss Marie Desmond and Mrs. Thomas Desmond of Newton Highlands.

Summer Camp Information Released By Centers, Inc.

The Newton Community Service Centers, Inc., has announced its plans for this summer's programming through a brochure available at its 429 Cherry St. headquarters in West Newton and at 84 Eldredge St. in Newton.

Featured in the brochure is a description of the two summer camp programs for youngsters between three-and-one-half and 14-years-of-age.

In addition, announcements relative to the Youth Center Summer Program for Teenagers, Newton Job Bank, day care, nursery school, the Retired Senior Volunteer Program, and material on a special conference for women is included.

The day camp for boys and girls, six-and-one-half to 14-years-of-age, will be headed by G. Michael Gardner.

The private camp site, located at Hale Camping Reservation in Westwood, includes 30 acres of tree covered land, swimming facilities, cookout accomodations and 300 acres filled with long, winding, nature trails.

Activity is varied with swimming (instruction and free swim), arts and crafts, hikes, sports, cookouts, boating, games and trips included. In addition, regular overnight campouts will be offered as well as other special activities.

Some youngsters may want to be involved in a special confidence-building "ropes course" aimed at improving coordination and agility, facilitating group involvement and enhancing feelings of joy and trust in one's self and others.

All campers will benefit from the involvement of graduate students enrolled in the Boston College Summer School. These mature and creative individuals, most of whom have had extensive and variegated experience working with children, bring an added dimension of involvement and imagination to the camp.

A camper-counselor ratio of seven (or less) to one provides responsible and positive leadership for enjoyable programming.

Campers leave from the Country Day School of the Sacred Heart, 785 Centre St., by bus each morning, Monday-Friday at 9 a.m. and return at approximately 4 p.m. (3 p.m. on Friday). Children bring sandwiches and are served milk.

Kinder Kamp for boys and girls aged three-and-one-half-to six, once again headed by Miss Bonnie Algeri, is located on the beautiful grounds of the Country Day School of the Sacred Heart, Newton Centre.

The facilities make Kinder Kamp an all-weather, Monday through Friday program. Hours for the camp will be Monday through Thursday, 9 a.m. - 4 p.m. and Friday, 9 a.m. to 3 p.m.

Designed to give a beneficial and rewarding camp experience to the three to six-year-old, it also generally serves as a vicarious learning experience.

During the camp day children participate in many activities in assigned areas: art, swimming, games, stories, music, and most importantly, those activities created from the imaginations of the counselors for the campers.

The children are separated according to age, into small groups with two staff members assigned to each group.

An open house will be scheduled prior to the start of the Kinder Kamp program.

Both camps will run for an eight-week period divided into two-week sessions, with each child obliged to enroll for at least one complete two-week session. Campers may be registered for any number of the sessions desired.

Transportation will be available from designated elementary school sites.

For additional information on the camps or other offerings, contact the Centers at 969-5906 on Monday through Friday from 9 a.m. to noon and 1 p.m. to 4:30 p.m.

Newton YMCA Opens Day Camp Registration

The Newton YMCA announces that registration is now beginning for Camp Massasoit, its day camp at the "Y" which offers a fun, yet instructional summer experience.

Staffed by local men and women of college age, the camp is for boys and girls five-years-old through 12. The program features instructional and recreational swimming; daily sports such as gymnastics, floor hockey and games; arts and crafts; specialists, including music, library and dramatics; tennis, archery, and game room activities.

Enrollment is limited to insure a desirable camper-to-staff ratio. Children are separated into groups by age and sex wherever possible. The benefits from the use of the "Y" facilities, including its adjacent field and tennis courts.

Robert Bryant, the associate physical director and a graduate of Northeastern University, is the director for the second year.

For further information about Camp Massasoit, come by the Newton "Y" or call 244-6050.

Library Blossoms For Spring Schedule

April activities abound at the Newton Free Library and its branches with 31 interesting and varied activities scheduled during National Library Week, Apr. 8 - 14, highlighting the month's events.

The library's first major April event is scheduled for Tuesday, Apr. 10 at 7:30 p.m. when George Gloss, owner of the Brattle Book Shop discusses "Book-Gold in Your Attic, Treasure in Your Trash."

All Newton residents are invited to hear Gloss and to participate in a discussion following his informative and informal presentation.

On Thursday, April. 12 at 3 p.m. at the Main Library, Director Virginia A. Tashjian hosts a tea honoring thirteen Newton authors who contribute to the creative life of the city.

A brief excerpt from Shakespeare's "Midsummer Night's Dream," directed by Dick Power and performed by the Young Adult Drama Group will be a highlight of the afternoon's festivities.

The Young Adult Drama Group is a theatre workshop sponsored jointly by the Newton Free Library and the Newton Recreation Commission.

A third National Library Week event is the opening of Jeannie Abbott's one-woman show of paintings and an exhibit of a graphic alphabet she designed, now used by several book publishing houses.

A fourth event of note at the Main Library is the month-long exhibit of old and treasured Newtonia from the Newton Free Library's extensive collection, and from the Jackson Homestead, commemorating Newton's Centennial Year Celebration.

Free films scheduled for National Library Week are "Mark Twain's America," a film recreating the life of Mark Twain and the age in which he lived, Apr. 10 at noon; "Abortion And The Law," a film discussing the legal, moral, social and psychological aspects of abortion on Apr. 12, at 7 p.m.; and films are scheduled also for Sundays, April. 8 and 15.

Library Director Virginia A. Tashjian reminds patrons of "Amnesty Week," Apr 8 - 14, when borrowers may return without charge all overdue library materials, no questions asked.

Also in April, the Newton Free Library will screen Kenneth Clark's latest film series, "Pioneers of Modern Painting," Apr. 18, 25 and May 2 at 7 p.m.

The Newton Free Library's fourth Centennial Celebration focuses on Newton's "Religious Scene-Then and Now," and will take place Sunday, Apr. 29 at 3 p.m. at St. Mary's Episcopal Church.

Several prominent religious leaders will participate in a panel discussion. Musical entertainment will be provided by the Centenary Bells-Yeo Group, and a quartet from the Myrtle Baptist Church.

Following the program, the audience will be provided by the Centenary Bells-Yeo Group, and a quartet from the Myrtle Baptist Church.

Following the program, the audience will be invited to adjourn to the Upper Falls Branch Library to view an historical exhibit and to enjoy refreshments.

Other library activities during April include a coffee hour-slide talk "The Beatuy of Persia As I See It" with Miss Elizabeth B. Cushman, at Waban branch, Thursday, Apr. 12; a series of lectures on investments at Newton Centre beginning Apr. 25; exhibits of acrylics, by Mrs. Marguerite Daly at Auburndale; paintings by Sorina Vigoda at Waban; pottery by Fran Lodge at Newtonville; art by Mrs. Kingsbury's Adult Education Class at West Newton; eleven pre-school story hours; three film programs for children; and three creativity programs, as well as free films Tuesday at noon, Thursday at 7 p.m. and Sunday at 2:30 p.m.

Also, in cooperation with Newton's Centennial Committees, the library is selling tickets for the Jazz Festival and the Centennial Ball. Read the NFL Bulletin for specific dates and times of scheduled activities.

Nursery School Director Speaks Out On Education

Parents of Bowen Nursery children recently received a statement of policy from the school's teacher-director Anne Cammer.

Director Cammer's open letter to the parents was prefaced by a statement reflecting her desire to keep all informed of the school's educational philosophy and important goals and purposes.

"My concept of the open classroom is based on the notion that children are people from the very beginning and are not thought of as blank slates anymore," explained the director in attempting to answer many questions asked of her in the past.

In developing her concept of education for the nursery parents, Ms. Cammer stated "We don't need to push as much as we need to empathize with the child's inner life and trust and recognize their desire to learn."

"An open classroom means child-centered not adult centered," she added. "It means an environment has been designed to allow children to be active, to manipulate and experiment with materials chosen because of their suitability to children's needs, interests and access."

"Children learn by playing and playing is actually having fun while learning. In the open classroom you will see children play alone play with one other child, play with two other children or play with a large group," according to Ms. Cammer.

She concluded her letter by inviting further participation and questions from parents. "I hope this will help to answer some of your questions as well as provide a clearer picture and understanding of what the nursery school is," said the director.

The Bowen Nursery School was founded 18 years ago at the Bowen Elementary School in Newton Centre along with several similar nursery schools throughout the city.

Until a year ago it was the only remaining school of its kind.

A non-profit corporation, the school is administered and financed each year by the parents of the children who attend.

Because of its location and "the enthusiastic support of the Bowen School Principal Jack McLeod," the nursery school child enjoys such additional advantages as the use of the library, gym, and playground and the added opportunity to share the experiences and activities of the elementary school children.

The school offers two sessions; morning sessions on Monday through Friday from 8:15-11:30 and afternoon sessions on Monday, Wednesday and Friday from 12:30-2:45.

Any questions about the school may be directed to Barb Tellalian at 332-3249 or Margaret Hinkle at 969-5925.

Innovations In Sound

You've probably never thought of your car as an ideal stereo listening studio. Well, it is! The minute you sit in your stereo equipped auto, you're blanketed in thrilling sound. You'll witness an entirely new perspective in stereo listening; a richness in stereophony and realism of sound reproduction that has never before been possible. Now, with stereo tape cartridges, whether you listen in your car, home, boat, plane or trailer you enjoy an unparalleled sound sensation . . . crisp clarity and maximum fidelity, superior craftsmanship . . . and a wealth of music for every taste from Broadway to The Beatles, from current hits to classical.

Stereo cartridges are carefully engineered to afford maximum reliability and convenience of operation.

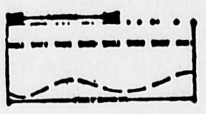
1. You never have to thread or even touch the tape.

2. You may change from one stereo program to another with the press of a button.

3. Tapes are continuous and never need rewinding.

4. With a minimum of care, the playing life of the tape is practically unlimited.

What is four-track and eight-track stereo tape? Within the ¼-inch tape width, music is recorded on four or eight parallel tracks which run the length of the tape. Two tracks play simultaneously and produce true stereo sound. Standard tapes provide up to 40 minutes of continuous music. Twin cartridges up to 80 minutes.



How does a tape cartridge work Stereo cartridges contain a tape in a continuous loop, which simply means that the tape runs from the center of the spool and is returned to the outer lap of the reel. Thus, never needs rewinding. Inserting the cartridge into the tape playback unit is probably as easy as replacing your cigarette lighter in the dash.

Seeing is believing, however, and perhaps the least expensive method for you to experience the unusual convenience engineered into a stereo tape is to visit a dealer and ask for a demonstration.

Realizing that stereo tapes are here to stay, Lechmere Sales of Cambridge and Dedham is now compiling substantial stocks. This foresighted record dealer and department store devoted exclusively to providing the consumer with even a larger and more complete musical selection than previously realized with the more traditional record album departments.

Long recognized as a retailing leader and innovator, Lechmere now features perhaps the largest selection of stereo tape cartridges in New England. It's a certainty that a visit to either Lechmere in Cambridge or Dedham will prove a most rewarding musical experience.

Private Citizens Assist Police Crime Fight

Newton police were assisted in their crime prevention role twice in the past few days when alert, private citizens notified them of suspicious happenings in the City.

Police said they were called to a Newton motor hotel by a desk clerk around 6:30 p.m. on Mar. 6 and subsequently made four arrests.

The clerk was prompted to call the police after he checked on a credit card used by two young adults to register and found it was stolen, according to the police report of the incident.

The police also checked on the vehicle listed by the suspects on their motel, registration card and discovered it had been taken from its Hingham owner at knife point three days earlier, explained a police spokesman.

According to the same spokesman, Sgts. George Sorenson, Edward Ceurvels, Officers Frank Gorgone, Charles Doucette and Dets. Joseph Donohue and Arthur Fryar then arrested the two suspects and another man and woman in the room with them.

Charged with possession of a controlled substance were Lon Weston, age 22, 69 Laurel Drive, Bedford, N.H., Teresa M. Mayer, age 20, 16 Mallard Rd., Marshfield and a 16-year-old, female juvenile from Plymouth, according to police records.

Arrested and charged with armed robbery, possession of a stolen credit card and possession of a controlled substance, class A, was Daniel J. McCarthy III, age 23, 179 Craft St., Newton. Police said that McCarthy's description fit that provided to Boston police by the stolen vehicle's owner.

Police report receiving another phone call from an alert citizen who noticed two men lurking in the doorway of the Three and One Superette at 203 Elliot St., Newton Upper Falls.

Officer Paul Cantiloro and his K9 "Caesar" responded immediately and found two men behind the counter of the store owned by Patrick Kenney of Needham and John Areano of Milford.

Cantiloro and "Caesar" were assisted by Dets. Richard Forbes, Kenneth Donovan and William Dargon, police said.

Arrested and charged with breaking and entering in the night time with intent to commit larceny were Frank C. Caliri, 40, 24 Mechanic St., Newton Upper Falls, and Francis J. McCarthy, 31, 337 Elliot St., Newton Upper Falls, according to the police report.

Police also said they found a quantity of beer and cigarettes on the suspects when they were surprised in the store late Tuesday night.

A police spokesman expressed appreciation to the unnamed citizens responsible for the quick police action in preventing the alleged criminal activity.

Lasell Announces Fund Drive Plans

A number of Newton businessmen and community leaders have volunteered to accept major responsibility for Lasell Junior College's forthcoming $5.5 million fund drive, the college announced last week.

Arthur T. Gregorian, president of Arthur T Gregorian, Inc., Newton Lower Falls, will serve as chairman of the college's Leadership Gifts Division.

Richard A. Winslow, of 20 Exeter St., West Newton, has accepted the chairmanship of the Evaluations Committee.

Bruce B. Bredehoft, Lasell treasurer, will act as chairman of the Finance and Audit Committee, while his wife, Marion Nutter Bredehoft, will be chairman for the Greater Boston Region. Mrs. Bredehoft will be in charge of the Boston Area Kickoff Dinner April 4 at the Marriott Hotel.

Mrs. R. Emerson Sylvester, of 81 Woodland Road., Auburndale, will serve as chairman of the West-of-Boston Area. The heaviest concentration of Lasell alumnae, numbering more than 1,000, lives in her area.

Lasell's fund drive, to be conducted in two phases over the next eight years, is expected to provide several new buildings, including a new Student Center, dormitory and Fine Arts Building, plus additional student scholarship opportunities and endowment.

Founded in 1851, Lasell is a private, non-denominational, fully accredited two-year college for women, offering both liberal arts and a wide variety of career curricula. Its current fund drive is the first of its kind in Lasell's 122-year history.

Budget -

tion of City Solicitor Melvin Dangels' salary to its 1972 level.

Aldermen in previous sessions voted to grant Dangel a raise, but did not give raises to other department heads.

Alderman Richard McGrath, who sought reconsideration of the raise, argued "the Board of Aldermen should be consistent in this matter. If we're going to grant an increase in the Law Department, we should do the same for others."

By a vote of 12-9, the salary was cut back to $21,531.

Police Chief William Quinn indicated in a letter to the board that it had deleted a request for new equipment that was being made for the third year in a row and asked that the funds be restored. Quinn got $12,000 put back in his departmental budget.

Discussing the funds for revaluation, aldermen wound up in another debate on the law suit pending against the city and the merits of revaluing property.

There were indications the suit will be suspended by mutual agreement when the city submits a firm plan for revaluing.

Alderman Alan Barkin said Monday it is thought the judge will lift the restraining order in force against Newton now when a firm is selected. and a plan has been prepared to have all property revalued for assessment purposes in the 1975 fiscal year (July 1, 1975).

Newton cannot send out its tax bills this year until the restraining order is lifted.

Aldermen have already voted to appropriate $135,000, an initial request from the mayor that enabled him to go out to bid for a private firm to conduct revaluation.

Members of the Board of Aldermen have indicated they want a chance to review bidders and want some control over the actual selection of a firm.

Alderman Michael Antonellis Monday indicated he will seek board approval of his plan to have aldermen hire their own independent consultant to assist them in reviewing bidders and advise them when the bidders are reviewed.

Aldermen voted 19-4 to place the money in budget reserve.

The lone dissenting vote cast on the budget when it was approved came from Ald. Peter Harrington.

Fiber Glass Now Used In House Building

By DOROTHEA M. BROOKS

NEW YORK (UPI) — One thing leads to another!

For Mr. and Mrs. Robert Wesson of Southbury, Conn., first it was a fiber glass sailboat.

Now they own the only fiber glass house in their neighborhood.

In fact, it's one of just 12 homes in Connecticut, Pennsylvania, Georgia, New Hampshire and New York using fiber glass reinforced plastic (FRP) arched wall-ceiling sections in a new Polyarch building system developed by Rudkin-Wiley Corp., Stratford, Conn.

The Wessons say they wanted a house "that would be as comfortable to live in as it would be to look at. A house that would be personal and different yet fit in easily with its surroundings. A house that would be easy to care for."

They feel their two-level contemporary home, nestled in a heavily wooded area, does just this. It combines graceful, curving wall-ceiling sections with ample expanses of glass, rich wood trim and, as a dramatic focal point, a free-standing, stone fireplace and chimney rising from a conversation pit through the glassed ceiling of the living room.

Says Mrs. Wesson: "We're quite proud of the house. People like to see it because it's so different. If we had to do it over again, we'd definitely pick fiber glass since we've found the material to be as good as we expected from our experience with the boat."

Takes Courage

Says Hal Mathews, Rudkin-Wiley marketing manager: "It takes a certain amount of courage for a young family like the Wessons to build a house like this. After all it's new and innovative."

But, he added, "fiber glass is a proven material, dating from its first use as an industrial building insulator 30 years ago. Its use in home building is only just beginning."

Mathews says his company expects to sell 125 Polyarch homes this year and is planning an adaptation of the system for town houses and garden apartments. He predicts within five years 5 per cent of the new home market will consist of fiber glass homes.

In the Wesson home, the FRP sections form the main structural element and are bolted to prefabricated mahogany window, door and solid panels to form the enclosed area.

The home is built over a full, finished concrete lower level, but Mathews says the system will work with any type of foundation, including piers, crawl space, basement and slab. It can be built in any climate.

The Polyarch segments, L-shaped, can be turned in any direction so that home design and layout possibilities are virtually unlimited, Mathews said.

Color is impregnated into interior and exterior surfaces to eliminate painting. The panels have high impact and scratch resistance. Gutters and drains are not required because of the curved surfaces.

For the advanced do-it-yourselfer, the fiber glass segments and window, door and solid panels can be purchased and erected without special equipment. Each 400-pound section is 25 feet long and 6 ½ feet wide, predrilled at the factory for universal mating.

Only 45 Days

"Since the home is basically prefabricated," Mathews said, "it may take as little as 45 days from start of excavation to occupancy. The shell of the house itself—the arched sections—can go up in a single day."

He said the standard packaged homes the firm has built range in price from $20,000 to $50,000 with custom designed homes reaching the $100,000 range.

"Builders costs for putting up one of our homes," he said, "range from $14 to $20 per square foot, compared with $12 for tract homes and as high as $30 for contemporary packaged homes."

Rudkin-Wiley, one of the innovators of fiber glass forms used in highrise building construction such as l'Enfant Plaza in Washington, the Christian Science Center in Boston, the F.B.I. Post Office Building in New York, is manufacturing the Polyarch system on the East Coast at present, with expansion planned to serve the rest of the country.

If things go the way the people at Rudkin-Wiley think they will, fiber glass homes might just become as commonplace as fiber glass boats. But then, it was not too long ago that owners of fiber glass boats were the first in their marinas.

PTA Meetings Planned

BEETHOVEN SCHOOL

The spring meeting of the Beethoven School Parent Teacher's Association will take place at the school gymnasium on Monday, April 2 at 8 p.m. in Waban.

The program will consist of a panel discussion on "School taxes and budget and how the community will be affected by them."

Panelists for the evening will be Newton Mayor Theodore Mann; Newton Superintendent of Schools, Aaron Fink and school committee member, Dr. Joan Needleman.

The meeting will be open to all interested persons in the Newton community. Refreshments will be served immediately following the discussion.

MONTESSORI SCHOOL

The Montessori School of Newton announced that there will be a guest speaker at its next PTA meeting on Wednesday, April 4, at 8 p.m. A lecture-demonstration will be given by Mrs. Mary Dwyer, the Junior Montessori Teacher from the Blue Hills Montessori School, which will center around the importance of practical life activities in the classroom. The meeting will take place at the Church of the Open Word, 11A Highland avenue, Newtonville, and is open to all interested parents and educators.

Mrs. Dwyer attended the Assumption Montessori Training Center in Dublin, Ireland. Her training program covered the education of children between the ages of 3 and 12. She received her B.A. degree from Boston University and is presently completing the requirements for the Master of Arts degree in open education from Lesley College.

SHULAMITH, an Israeli folk singer from Newton displays the national dress she will wear to this year's 36th Annual International Ball. The ball will benefit the International Institute and begins at 7:30 p.m. Friday, April 6 at Boston's Statler Hilton Hotel. Phone 536-1061 for information. (Guedes photo)

BROOKLINE HOSPITAL WOMEN'S AUXILIARY'S dinner-theatre party will be held Sunday, April 29 at Framingham Chateau deVille. Aiding in the promotion of the affair are Mrs. Louis Gordon, left, chairman of sponsors, and Mrs. C. Gerald Drucker, chairman of reservations.

Pen Women Hold Meeting

The Wellesley branch, National League of American Pen Women, held a guest night March 9 at the Wellesley Village Congregational Church.

Dr. William Albert, on leave of absence as minister of the Old West Church, Boston, spoke on the subject, "The Church That Would Not Die."

Branch president, Jo Brewer of Auburndale greeted members and guests. Her guests included her husband, George F. Brewer, her son, Jeff, Mrs. Joan Minkoff, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Olton and Mr. and Mrs. Richard Husher, all of Newton Highlands.

Nutrition Talks Planned

The Women's Auxiliary to the Massachusetts Dental Society will present a five part series of lectures on basic nutrition, dental nutrition and physical fitness starting Tuesday, April 3 at 9:30 a.m. at Boston University School of Graduate Dentistry, 100 East Newton street, Boston.

Frederick Stare, M.D., Harvard University professor of nutrition will open the series April 3 with a lecture on "Facts on Nutrition." Shirley W. Thenen, Ph.d., assistant professor of nutrition, Harvard, will speak April 10 on "Diet and Weight Control."

"Nutrition in Preventive Dentistry" will be the topic on April 24 when Abraham E. Nizel, DMD, Tufts University will speak. On May 1 Margaret Ross, Ph.d., Director of Nutrition, First National Stores, will discuss "What's Happening to Food Labeling."

Maggie Lettvin, star of a national public television show, "Maggie and the Beautiful Machine," will present a program on May 8.

There will be a registration fee of $10 to attend the series. For further information write Mrs. Ronald Singleton, program coordinator, 125 Upland road, Newton, or auxiliary president, Mrs. Leona Vetstein, Newton.

City Schools Seek Things Rural Ones Already Have

BIG TIMBER, Mont. (UPI) — One room? It's all you need?

In fact, says Mrs. Byron Grosfield, one-room country schools are so backward they have become avant garde.

"Progressive city schools are just now getting around to doing things that we have long taken for granted," she said.

"We have individual instruction, upgraded participation and all the things that modern city schools are tearing down walls to achieve."

Mrs. Grosfield is the faculty of Bridge School—a one-room school eight miles west of Big Timber. Bridge School is Sweetgrass County's last one-room facility, although there are a dozen or more elsewhere in Montana.

A collection of country kids, freckled and shy, make up the student body of about a dozen. Their school sits atop a hill, looking out on the Crazy Mountains along the Yellowstone River.

On the walls inside, above a hardwood floor, hang the traditional portraits of Washington and Lincoln. An American flag completes the scene.

Mrs. Grosfield is convinced it's the ideal situation for rural students. Rural students, she says, tend to be shy.

"You can't take the country out of the kid," she says.

"In the family-like atmosphere of the one-room school, they learn to overcome inhibitions while shyness turns to seriousness.

"They really learn to concentrate and study in this setting.

"I like to let these kids be individuals. I want them to do their own thing."

Purple and Polka Dots

The students do just that. Their selection of school colors, purple with pink polka dots, is an example.

Doing their own thing also is encouraged in their studies.

"Here slow students are given a chance to catch up. In a larger school they might be l e f t b e h i d," she says.

At the same time, brighter students are urged to carry on.

"All this modern education we've been hearing about is really pretty old fashioned," she added smiling.

"The "modern education" she referred to is the so-called "open classroom" —essentially a one-room school. It is a school without partitions separating the grades and a school in which all kinds of activities go on at once, each group of students doing its thing: learning fast or learning slowly, depending on the educational ability.

The open classroom is being hailed in many educational circles as the really enlightened way to sock the learnin' to the kids.

Is it, as Mrs. Grosfield suggests, the one-room school all over again? What do you think?

Evacuation Exhibit At the State House

March 28 will mark the 197th anniversary of a Thanksgiving celebration held in Boston to note the withdrawal of British occupation forces, State Secretary John F. X. Davoren announced as he drew public attention to the special Evacuation exhibition on display in the main entrance to the Archives Museum in the State House.

The entire foyer of the museum has been turned into a colorful and eye-catching panorama of events leading up to the withdrawal of British troops during those tension-filled days of nearly 200 years ago.

Depicted by sketches, old engravings, paintings and reproductions of original documents are the artful doing of Gen. George Washington and the patriots who rallied from the "defeat" of Bunker Hill (Breeds Hill) as they rallied their forces to oust the hated British foe.

Heavy guns, some weighing a ton, were hauled by boat and overland by sled all the way from Fort Ticonderoga in upstate New York because it was feared the occupying troops would return or else invade New York City. After languishing offshore in the Nantasket Roads, however, the British sailed to Halifax, Nova Scotia.

For Washington, the country awarded its first Congressional Medal of Honor to the general whose maneuvers had completely bamboozled the British and removed them forever from Dorchester Heights.

"For those who love history and the important part Massachusetts played in those early, tremulous days this is indeed an outstanding exhibit and one that will be enjoyed by all," Secretary Davoren said.

TRAVEL TRAILS by Julian Roberts

When traveling in places new to them, vacationers sometimes are puzzled about how much to tip. While there are different customs and standards in many places—particularly in foreign countries—the truth is that you should tip not so much by an arbitrary standard but according to the quality of service you receive . . . Wherever you go, tipping should be a mark of appreciation for services well rendered, not an obligation. A tip should always be figured on your food and beverage total, less tax . . . Some resorts or restaurants add a 15-per-cent service charge to meal checks automatically.

Vacations are fun at any time of the year. Let the staff at REGENCY TRAVEL, INC., handle your entire trip. We are specialists in group and individual travel all over the world and have six qualified agents to give personalized service. For complete travel service stop by REGENCY TRAVEL, INC., 1330 Boylston St., 731-4271. Hours: Monday thru Friday 9:00 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Evenings and Saturdays by appointment.

Church Women United Observe "Concerns Day"

The April meeting of Church Women United in Newton will be observed as "Community Concerns Day" on Friday, April 6, at Myrtle Baptist Church, 21 Curve St., West Newton, at 9:30 a.m.

The program, which has been arranged by Richard W. Bauer, chairman of the day, will consist of representatives from four key social service agenices who will explain the valuable services which are available to the community.

Mrs. Thomas Fitzgibbons and Mrs. David Kelley, co-coordinators of Newton FISH, describe their organization as "a group of men and women who hope you will think of them as your neighbors when no other neighbor is available." They will explain other functions and help offered by FISH.

Inter - Community Homemaker Service, a service of trained mature people who can step into a home to help out when a family faces illness, disability or other crisis, will be further explained by Miss Katherine Curran, executive director.

Family Counseling Service, Region West, will be described by Ray Saari, director. Rev. Kenneth Broker, M.A., Director of Counseling, will explain the functions of the Interfaith Counseling Service. All of the representatives will be glad to answer questions concerning their agenies and services.

Mrs. R. Curtis Reed, celebrations chairman, will open the meeting and call for devotions prepared by Mrs. William C. Lowe, spiritual life chairman.

Coffee will be served at 9:30 a.m. and Mrs. Matthew Jefferson, hostess of the day, will have Mrs. Harold A. Pulley and Mrs. Walter Hill assisting her. Free baby - sitting services will be provided.

All Newton women are cordially invited to attend this program and hear the detailed information from the speakers about these much-needed services

Emanuel Chooses 'Man Of The Year'

Frank Brezniak will be honored as "Man of the Year" at the Annual Breakfast of the Brotherhood of Temple Emanuel, Newton to be held in the Community Hall of the temple on Sunday, Apr 8, at 9:30 a.m.

Brezniak, who joined Temple Emanuel in 1936, has been active in every phase of temple activity. Since 1958, he has been an officer of the congregation and is currently serving as first vice-president.

A deeply religious person, he regularly attends services and just three years ago endowed the chapel of Temple Emanuel in memory of his and his wife's parents.

Over the years, his special sphere of temple participation has been in the area of fund-raising. He has led the way in campaigns for the mortgage redemption and mortgage burning, the establishment of the endowment fund and special funds for the support of the Jewish Theological Seminary of America - of which he is a patron.

He has been cited by the Israel Bond Committee for the great strides made at Temple Emanuel during his tenure as Israel Bond Chairman. He is a trustee of the State of Israel.

Frank's interests and activities encompass the organizational structure of the Jewish community.

Long active in the Zionist Organization of America, he has served as national vice-president and is honorary treasurer of both the New England Region and the Brookline - Brighton - Newton District.

Brezniak is a former vice president and treasurer and is now serving on the Board of Directors of the Brookline Hospital to which the Brezniaks donated the lobby.

The Hebrew Rehabilitation Center for the Aged recently honored Brezniak with election as an honorary member of the board and he and his wife have contributed two rooms in that facility.

Some other affiliations include: associate treasurer, Associates Synagoges; board member of the Greater Boston Brandeis Club; board member, Market Lodge, B'nai Brith; board member, New England Region, Anti - Defamation League; vice president, Greater Boston Diabetic Society

Brezniak resides in Chestnut Hill with his wife Sonia, they are the parents of three children and eight grandchildren.

Dr. Max Arzt, vice-chancellor of the Jewish Theological Seminary, will be guest speaker.

Dr. Leon Ginsburg is president of the brotherhood.

Lecture Delves Into Mysticism

"Hasidism: An Expression of Jewish Mysticism" will be the subject of a lecture by Rabbi Israel J. Kazis of Temple Mishkan Tefila on Tuesday, April 3, at 9:15 p.m. at Temple Reyim, 1860 Washington St., Newton.

The lecture, part of the combined adult education program of the conservative temples in the Newton-Chestnut Hill area, will deal with the teachings of Hasidism and the way of life practiced by its adherents.

Dr. Kaziz did his undergraduate work in Semetic languages at Harvard University where he received his M.A. and Ph.D. degrees.

A graduate of Hebrew Teachers College of Boston, he was ordained at the Jewish Theological Seminary of America.

Serving with the infantry during World War II, he was discharged from the Army in 1946 with the rank of major Since that time he has been with the congregation of Mishkan Tefila, the oldest conservative congregation in New England.

Actively involved in Jewish and communal affairs, he is president of the Massachusetts Board of Rabbis, a member of the Committee for the Study of Juvenile Delinquency in Massachusetts, and a member of the Task Force of the United Fund Campaign of Greater Boston. He serves on the boards of many organizations including the Combined Jewish Philanthropies of Greater Boston, the Bureau of Jewish Education of Greater Boston, the Hebrew Teachers College of Boston and the Opera Company of Boston.

Dr. Kazis was a member of the faculty of the Religious and Social Institute of the Jewish Theological Seminary, 1955-1956. He is the author of "The Book of the Gests of Alexander of Macedon" published by the Medieval Academy of America and has written for numerous periodicals.

The lecture is open to the public. For further information call the offices of the participating temples: Temple Emanuel; Temple Emeth; Temple Mishkan Tefila or Temple Reyim.

Xanadu Players Present Comedy

The Xanadu Players, a dramatic group of young people sponsored by the Church of the Good Shepherd in Waban will present their latest production "Father's Been to Mars", a comedy by William Dalzell and Newt Mitzman.

The performance will begin at 8 p.m. and will run over the two evenings of Friday, April 6 and Saturday, April 7.

Marriage Planning Involves More Than License, Church and Reception

Will you be making a marriage commitment soon? Are you preparing more for the wedding day or for the marriage?

To help engaged couples learn more about the marriage adventure, there will be a Pre-Cana ("before marriage") Conference on Sunday, Apr. 1, Tuesdays, Apr. 3, 10, and Sunday, Apr. 15, 8 p.m. at St. Philip Neri Parish Hall, 1518 Beacon St., Waban.

The conference, presented by the Newton Deanery Pre-Cana married couples in conjunction with the Rev. Jack Corcoran of Sacred Heart Church in Newton, and funded by contributions, covers early adjustment and growth in marriage.

One session will include a panel of married couples discussing practical aspects of marriage and family life, the engagement period, the role of sex, and discovering a fiance's differences of opinion and attitudes.

At another meeting, Fr. Corcoran will cover the history and theology of marriage, forming a common conscience, and new church declarations on marriage.

Dr. Herb and Mila Hoffman, joint co-therapists of Auburndale, will present techniques to encourage deeper couple communication. Also Dr. Robert Schoenfeld, specialist in obstetrics and gynecology, will talk about the medical aspects of marriage, destroy some "old wives' tales" and freely answer questions.

The four session conference, to which engaged couples of all faiths are welcome, will also include films, hand-outs, and discussion groups.

Baptists Schedule Communion Service

A service of communion will be held at the First Baptist Church, Newton Centre, at 10 a.m. worship service on Sunday, Apr. 1.

Dr. Gene E. Bartlett will deliver a sermon entitled "Shall We Discard the Belief in Sin?"

The morning service will also include the dedication of children.

Following the service there will be a time for coffee and fellowship before the three adult discussion groups begin.

The groups will discuss "Religion and Rock" led by Kent Wittrup, "The Christian and Wealth-Can the Camel Go Through the Eye of a Needle?" led by Richard Wittrup and Philip Croteau-Chonka, and "Being a Christian Seven Days a Week" with Sue Ellen Scrogin and Dr. Lynn Verhey.

The evening activities will include continuation of the family cluster groups meeting on Wednesday and Sunday evenings through the Lenten season, providing a time for family fellowship for people of all ages.

All are welcome at these "box lunch" suppers, held Wednesdays at 6:30 p.m. and Sundays at 6 p.m.

Chess Results

Country Day School Program To Continue

The Board of Trustees of Newton College and the Country Day School of the Sacred Heart have announced the continuance of the boarding program at the Country Day School.

Amember of the Sacred Heart system of schools throughout the world, the Country Day School in Newton, has had students from all of the New England states, N. Y., New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Illinois, North Carolina and Florida, as well as Central and South America, India, Africa, Europe and Vietnam. The boarding program provides social and cultural diversity within the student community.

As a Roman Catholic school, the Country Day School of the Sacred Heart is unique in the New England area. It is one of only three boarding schools in the eight diocese of New England, serving parents who desire a boarding school with a Catholic religious affiliation.

Having merged with Newton College in 1972, the Country Day School of the Sacred Heart is now able to offer an expanded curriculum. Opportunities are available for gifted students to begin college level courses while completing high school requirements

Our Lady Revises Schedule

The Sunday Mass schedule for Our Lady, Help of Christians, Parish, Newton is being revised partially as of next Sunday, April 1, in order to comply with a directive recently issued by Cardinal Medeiros that "all Masses celebrated on Saturday evenings and Sundays in the parishes of the Archdiocese of Boston, and in all places of public worship within the Archdiocese are to be spaced a minimum of one hour and fifteen minutes apart."

Effective next Sunday, the 7 a.m. and 8 a.m. Masses in Our Lady Parish will be combined into a single Mass at 7:30 a.m. in the upper church.

The new schedule is as follows: Saturday, 5 and 7:30 p.m.; Sunday: 7:30, 9:00, 10:15, 11:30 a.m. and 5 p.m.; plus a folk Mass in the lower church at 9 a.m.

The special Lenten schedule in the parish includes the following: daily Mass, Monday through Friday at 6:45, 7:30 and 9 a.m., plus a Mass Wednesday evening at 7:30 p.m. with homilist; Saturday masses at 6:45, 7:30, 8:00 and 8:30 a.m. Stations of the Cross on Friday at 4 p.m.

College Choir Performs For Newton Church

THE SISTERHOOD of Temple Mishkan Tefila will hold its annual Queen's Luncheon in Chestnut Hill on Wednesday, April 4, at noon in the social hall. Mrs. William Silberstein, luncheon chairman, has announced an "aisle of boutiques" will precede the spring luncheon and a fashion show will also be presented. Please call the temple office for information regarding reservations.

Temple Opens Nursery School

The new Temple Shalom Nursery School is well on its way towards opening day in September of 1973.

The board of directors is now in the process of interviewing applicants for the various available teaching positions. Equipment and materials are now being purchased.

The school, housed in the modern classrooms of Temple Shalom will accomodate 20, three and four-year-olds for a five day nursery program. The school's enrollment is now more than half filled.

The major goal of the nursery school will be to help the preschool child understand himself and his environment, while learning to live harmoniously with both.

The values and customs of Reform Judaism will be an integral part of the curriculum. The school is open to temple members as well as to the entire community.

To convey your interest and acquire further information please call Emily Lipof at 244-5254 or Phyllis Freed at 332-5316.

Temple Reyim Nets Increase Of Members

The Membership Drive of Temple Reyim recently realized its greatest gain in many years.

The growth was attributable to a unique and economical introductory offer plus a well received host family program.

The financially attractive introductory membership plan was designed to attract both new and unaffiliated families in the Newton, Needham, Wellesley, Weston and Waltham areas and familiarize them with the religious, educational, cultural and social facets of congregational life at Temple Reyim (the Temple of Friends).

The host family program was established to make each new member family welcome and confortable in the temple environment.

It was done through an individual family accepting the responsibility of escorting a new member family to religious services, social functions and other activities during the year.

An additional feature of the program was a one-year complimentary membership in the sisterhood, brotherhood, PTA and Couples Club.

The drive for new members was so successful and enthusiasm within the congregation so high the drive will continue indefinitely.

Anyone interest in affiliation or further information may call Membership Committee Co-Chairmen Nat Seltzer at 969-8518, Phil Marsh at 527-8223 or Pearl Levine at the Temple office-527-2410.

Center Sets Registration

Anthony J. Bibbo, executive director of the Newton Community Service Centers, Inc., announces the opening of registrations for nursery school for September of 1973.

In making this known, he stated that this early start would provide parents who register at the school a chance to also look at other programs to determine the most appropriate school for their particular youngster.

The school operates five days per week between the hours of 9 a.m. to noon, under the direction of Mrs. Herbert Stearns. A school calendar is scheduled to cover a 39-week period with vacations coinciding with that of the Newton school system. Transportation is available.

This program offers young children age three to six their first introduction to a socialization - education experience. Stories and games for imaginative growth, and art projects for creative expansion are among the activities engaged in daily.

Games and procedures are geared to foster attitudes of cooperation allied with a sense of the need for personal recognition. The adjustment of the child to others of his own age is one of theprimary goals of the nursery school program.

For additional information or a registered application, contact the Center at 429 Cherry St. in West Newton, 969-5906.

Fraktman Looks For Improved Season On Diamond

BY DAVID CUTLER

Coaching a baseball team and being a school administrator have very little in common, except at Newton High School, where they are both done by the same person. Edwin Fraktman is the Housemaster of Riley House and head coach of the Tiger baseball squad. Every day, after seven hours of handling student problems and teacher meetings, he turns his attention to spikes and strikes.

Last year Newton High was 8-8 in the Suburban League and 8-12 overall. "We were quite young a year ago," said Fraktman. "The experience we have this season will be one of our main strengths." Returning seniors Paul Austin, Ed Beckler, Ken Billings, Dave Boyajian, Paul Goldman, and Ron Wilson give the team much-needed experience. "Our veterans will be the core of our strength," added Fraktman.

In affition to overall strength through experience, Fraktman sees a few particularly well fortified positions. "I think we'll be good behind the plate, at shortstop, and at second base. I'm also looking forward to reasonable pitching."

Pitching is the most important aspect of high school baseball as it is at any level of the sport. "We have the potential for a fine pitching staff," asserted Fraktman. "We should be one of the contenders for the league title."

Fraktman feels that there will be four other teams challenging Newton for the Suburban League Championship: Arlington, Cambridge Latin, Brockton, and Weymouth North. "The players sense we can do well," said Fraktman. "The attitude and hustle have been excellent."

"The squad has only been practicing outside for a week, so it's much too early for predictions. We'll just have to see how the pieces fall together," said Fraktman.

With that Ed Fraktman got back to his excuses, expulsions, cut slips, and cuts from the varsity roster.

South LL Tryouts This Weekend

Any boy, wishing to play Major, Minor or Pee Wee League baseball for the Newton South and Highlands Little League teams must submit an application in order to be assigned to a team. All candidates except the boys who are already on Major League rosters must appear for at least one tryout and obtain a player number to be eligible.

Eight year old boys do not need to tryout as they will be assigned automatically to teams. All tryouts will be held at Richardson Field, Alan Avenue in Waban, Saturday March 31st.

Nine year old boys will tryout at 9 a.m., 12 year old boys at 10:30 a.m., 10 year olds, 1 p.m., and 11 year olds at 2:30 p.m. In the event of rain or bad weather the schedule will apply Sunday April 1st.

The second tryout date will be Saturday April 7th. Any questions contact Mr. Charles Aries at 244-3717 or president Dick Bradley at 244-6611.

Dual County Hoop Stars

Newton South High's leading scorer, Rich Spector, was nemed to the Dual County League all - star team, last week.

The last time a Newton South basketball player made an all - star team was 1966-67 when the Lions were still in the Suburban League.

Steve Coopeer, one of the greatest scorers and rebounders in Lion lore was selected as the utility performer on the Suburban first - team that year.

Spector, a 6-5 junior center, was a second - team pick. Spector fired in 202 points for an 11.8 per game average, and hauled in 131 rebounds.

The Dual County first - team consisted of guards Mike Elias, Bedford; Brian Dee, Concord - Carlisle; and Charlie Woodson, Lincoln - Sudbury. The front court selections were, Joe Mewborn, Lincoln - Sudbury; Joe Harrington, Acton - Boxboro; and Fritz Nately, Weston.

Spector was joined in the second - team front court by Dave LeSage, Maynard, and Don Borger, Wayland. The guards on the second - team were Jim Diebold, Bedford; and Jack McGrail, Westwood. — LEWIS FREEDMAN.

North Little League Awards Night April 5th

The annual Newton North Little League Awards Banquet will be held this year on Thursday evening, April 5th, at 6:30 p.m. at the new F.A. Day Junior High School.

The price for the delicious Roast Beef dinner will remain at $2.00. This is one of the few things that hasn't increased in price in 1973. Included in the evening's entertainment will be a film of the 1972 World Series.

The Mayor, State Senator and State Representatives have been invited and only 350 tickets will be available. They may be obtained now from the following Little League Officers and Board of Directors and daily at the Oakley Spa, Washington Street from Micky Boyajian.

Newton South Flashback

By LEWIS H. FREEDMAN
Asst. Sports Editor

From the beginning, it looked like the Newton South baseball team would be a tough contender in the tough Suburban League in 1969, and despite some ups and downs, the team turned into one of the best nines in school history.

Neil McPhee, fresh from a few years in the Minnesota Twins' farm system, was the new coach, and he inherited a 10-8 club from Paul Linscott. It was a team hungry for the league pennant.

Frank Hurvitz, who stood just 5-6, but who had an arm like a cannon, fired a one-hit, 10-strikeout shutout at Rindge Tech in the opener, as South carried off a 1-0 triumph.

Pitching was the name of the South game, as Hurvitz threw two more shutouts in a row, Thurston Tarter hurled one, and southpaw Jimmy Gamble added low-hit efforts.

A third of the way into the season the Lions were in first place with a 5-1 mark. Hurvitz was cruising along with an 0.46 earned run average.

Ken Stuart (catcher), Bob Eisenberg (1b), infielders Gamble, Tom Rezzuti, and Clem Virgilio were providing offensive firepower.

Then the team went into a slump, however, and dropped two straight games. That was the only time the team faltered all year, though, and it bounced back with six straight victories.

The winning streak boosted the club to 11-3 and back into first place.

The beginning of the skein was the work of Gamble. In a 9-1 victory over Rindge Tech, he knocked in four runs with two hits and in a 7-0 rout of Arlington he hurled a no-hitter, blasted a home run, and drove in two runs.

Gamble's heroics awakened the team again. Hurvitz started winning again and Gamble recorded his third straight shutout.

Rezzuti, who was later named all-state, upped his average to .400 and Gamble extended his shutout streak to 22 innings.

Coming into the last week of the regular season South, holding down first place, was in excellent position to claim the crown. But first Cambridge Latin upset the Lions and then Newton High came through to drop South and take first place for itself.

So South sat by, its season finished, and watched as Weymouth High pulled into a second-place tie. Only two teams from a league were allowed into the state tournament so the two 11-5 clubs had to have a playoff.

McPhee chose Hurvitz to start and the fireballing right-hander came through with a two-hit performance to catapault the team to a first-round showdown with Stoneham.

In what was later to become a trademark of Newton South teams, the Lions upended the Middlesex League champions, 2-1, on a perfect suicide squeeze bunt in the top of the ninth inning.

The game was scoreless until the ninth inning when both Gamble and Stoneham's Mike Asci tired and all the scoring took place. Hurvitz' bunt knocked Stuart in with the gamewinner.

The win over Stoneham, coupled with Newton High's victory over Reading, set up a grudge match between the cross-town rivals.

The two teams battled through 14 innings for four hours and 35 minutes, with no results. At the end of the long afternoon the score was deadlocked at 4-4.

Hurvitz and Gamble, who all year had played their "Spahn and Sain and two days of rain" routine perfectly, each tossed seven innings.

The hitch came there, though. There was no two days of rain — nor even two days. The replay the next day was a massacre. Newton High raked over South's inexperienced hurler Emmons Levine (one inning of pitching all year) for a 12-1 decision and a berth in the state semi-finals.

The Lions, who many thought were the second-best team in the state, finished out early with a 13-6 record.

Drinan Files Health Care Extension Bill

Congressman Robert F. Drinan (D. Mass.) last week sponsored legislation which would extend various federal health programs for one year.

"The Administration's proposed budget for fiscal year 1974 does not provide for at least 12 health and medical programs which are presently due to expire on June 30, 1973," Congressman Drinan said.

The programs earmarked for the one-year extension under this legislation are: health service research and development, health statistics public health training, migrant health, comprehensive health planning, Hill-Burton Act, allied health training, regional medical programs, medical libraries, community mental health centers, developmental disabilities and family planning.

"There is no doubt that many of these programs should be revised" Drinan said. "but such actions should not be allowed to occur until Congress has had ample time to evaluate and propose alternatives where needed.

"With less than four months remaining before the June 30 deadline, it is quite clear that there just isn't enough time to do a responsible job," Drinan said.

"The state of the nation's health care system is too important to be handled in such a haphazard manner," he said. "Without the opportunity to devise workable and responsive programs to replace those being terminated, we could face serious problems in our efforts to continue the fight to conquer disease and provide needed health care"

Congressman Drinan said the legislation calls for no new funding, but merely extends the programs for one year.

A similar proposal was introduced last week in the Senate by the Labor and Public Welfare Subcommittee.

Cub Pack 375 March Meeting

Cub Scout Pack 375, Auburndale held its March Pack Meeting at the Williams School. "Knights of Old" was the theme and Den 6, Mrs. Jane Lawson, Den Mother, prepared the meeting program.

Cub Scouts receiving awards included Webelos Den—M. Rittenberg—engineer award; Den 1—Bear Badge—C. Putnam; Wolf Badge—S. Carey; Den 2 Bear Badge—R. Barry and W. Graham; Gold and Silver Arrow Points—W. Graham, M. Abrams; Den 3—Wolf Badges—J. Ralph, D. Carroll; Silver Arrow Point—Glen St. Coeur,D. Carroll; Gold Arrow Points—D. Carroll; Den 6—Wolf Badges—J. Chassion, E. Herndon, M. Lawson, P. Vaccaro, E. Vogal, M. Weiner; Bobcat Award—P. Watts; Silver Arrow Points—P. Vaccaro, M. Weiner.

The Wellesley College fencing team conducted a demonstration of fencing stances in which the Cub Scouts participated. "Knights of Old" used the same fencing techniques, only they probably fenced for keeps!

A Mace race was held with Dens divided into Blue and Gold teams. Cub Scouts ran a relay-race swinging a homemade Mace to strike a revolving target. The Blue team won!

Den 6 led the closing song "Good Night Cub Scouts." Refreshments were served to the Blue team first, by Mrs. Bee Antonellis.

Student Exchange Programs

Jack McCann of Needham, chapter president of Student International Service Foundation (SIS), announced there is still time to apply for the Student Exchange Programs for this year.

Applications are currently being accepted for American students who wish to visit Europe for either the four week summer program or the full school year program. In addition SIS is actively seeking host families for European students coming to the Greater Boston area for the summer and full school year.

In 1973, July 19 through August 17, SIS will offer American students a homestay program in Sweden, England, and France. In Sweden the students will be welcomed by two host families, living in the southern part of the country. They will remain about one week with each family. Then the program will be continued in Brighton, the most popular resort on the English Riviera. After 10 days with a British family the American students will go by boat to France.

The last four days of the program will be spent in Paris where the students will be accommodated in a pleasant central hotel. From Paris a coach will take them through the eastern part of France to Luxembourg from where the flight back departs.

Under the 1973 SIS program an American full school year student may have the opportunity to be an exchange student to one of several European countries. Students for the full year program should preferably be in their last year of high school.

Even if your son or daughter is not quite ready to enter the program, your family can participate by hosting a European student for four weeks or for the school year. Some of the countries represented include Norway, Denmark, Sweden, Finland, England, Germany, Holland, Italy and France.

Each prospective host family should possess the desire and interest to host a foreign student and treat him or her as a member rather than a guest of the household. They should express the willingness to understand and learn from the differences in habits, customs, etc., of a representative from another country and culture.

Host families are expected to provide adequate living accommodations and meals only. All fees are paid by the student. The host family is not expected to provide the student with pocket money and all medical expenses if incurred are paid by SIS.

Student International Services Foundation, Inc., is a non-profit educational organization, established February 1, 1971, and exists under Chapter 180 of the General Laws of Massachusetts. The principal objective of SISF is generally to carry on work for international understanding through the development of homestay and educational programs for young people of the world.

The Department of State has designated SISF the sponsor of an Exchange-Visitor Program in accordance with the administrative regulations issued under the Mutual Educational and Cultural Exchange Act of 1961.

The SIS Foundation maintains a working relationship with Student International Service of Europe AB (SISE), a Swedish-based, non-profit student exchange organization with offices in principal Western European countries Japan and the U. S. For over eight years SISE has arranged and supervised large groups of European young people on student exchange homestay programs.

Over 2,000 American families have hosted 3,000 European students for the four-week summer program since 1969. Also there are 81 full school year students in the United States this year. All of the students who will study in the United States under the Foundation's program will apply to and be screened with the assistance of SISE.

Anyone who is interested in more information on SIS programs may contact chapter President Jack McCann, 26 Otis street, Needham 02192 (Telephone 449-3164) or Daphne Lewis, national director, at Boston headquarters, 5 Louder's lane, Boston 02130 (Telephone 524-1680).

Blood Pressure Clinic At the Dedham Mall

The Community Hypertension Evaluation Clinic (CHEC) will offer to all area residents an opportunity to have their blood pressure checked free of charge this weekend.

The CHEC program will be in operation at Dedham Mall on Friday and Saturday, March 30-31 from 1 p.m. to 9 p.m., as a community service, sponsored by both the Mall and the CIBA Pharmaceutical Co.

Everyone tested will be given a card with his blood pressure recorded on it to be given to his private physician. When an individual's pressure is considered too high for his age and weight he will be encouraged to consult with his physician as soon as possible.

However, more than one high reading is necessary before it can be determined whether a person is hypertensive.

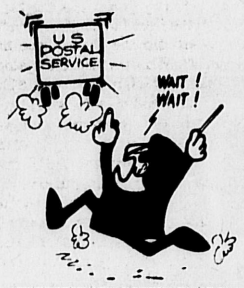
It is estimated that at least 20 million Americans have high blood pressure and that half of this number remain undetected. Moreover, only about half of those whose hypertension has been detected are under treatment. High blood pressure is often symptomless.

Medical findings have pointed to the knoweldge that early detection of hypertension in most cases permits control with appropriate antihypertensive drugs and modification of diet.

The American Medical Association recently reported that early detection and treatment of high blood pressure lessened the probability of heart disease and stroke, two of the leading causes of death in the nation.

A series of CHEC Clinics around the country will be sponsored by local health organizations and CIBA Pharmaceutical Company to help physicians uncover the estimated 10 million undetected hypertensives.

It is hoped that as many individuals as possible will avail themselves of this opportunity for free testing.



DON'T FORGET TO SIGN YOUR FEDERAL TAX RETURN.

Medfield Square Dance Club Holds Graduation

The Medfield Scrambled Eights Square Dance Club held its class graduation recently with the following members receiving their diplomas after completing the course: Deane and Debby Ellis, Ed and Geraldine Ferreira, Tim Harman, Nancy Hallock, Howard and Dot Kane, Philip MacLaren, Jack and Irene O'Toole, all of Medfield, and Frank and Linda Falvey of Franklin, Hal and Mary Hagan of Roslindale, Ken and Bibi Joseph of Walpole, Beverly Carpenter of Holliston, Tom and Jean Pope of Milford, Rodney and Mary Woodcock of Millis.

Also celebrating St. Patrick's Day, green decorations were displayed throughout the hall. Blue mortarboards with white tassles, the club's colors, were worn by the graduates.

After the grand march, club president and first lady, Dick and Ann Dugdale presented the graduates with their diplomas.

The class representative, Tim Harman, presented teacher and caller, Bill Bean and his wife, Kitty, with gifts of appreciation.

Throughout the evening the graduates demonstrated their dancing knowledge in mixed squares. Over 100 people attended this gay event. Guests were from the Norwood Squares; Lofty Squares of Weymouth; Do-Si-Doers of Walpole, and Riverdale Roundaliers, Dedham.

Refreshments consisted of a buffet table of sandwiches and sweets surrounding a huge graduation cake decorated in green with a Shamrock in the center.

The drawing for the lucky couple of the class was won by Tim Harman and Nancy Hallock.

The Scrambled Eights Club has opened dances the first and third Wednesdays of every month at the American Legion Hall in Medfield.

Meet Ellen Corby . . .

The Grandma Of "The Waltons"

By VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Ellen Corby, the peppery grandma of "The Waltons," has no family of her own and enjoys reporting each day to the set where all the youngsters who play the Walton children automatically become her grandchildren.

Mrs. Corby, divorced many years ago from her cameraman husband, lives alone with a Burmese cat named Charlie Brown in an 80-year-old house just below the Sunset Strip.

She's proud of the home which is ancient by Hollywood standards.

It's a quaint abode with walnut balustrades, an old-fashioned pantry and two bedrooms. The pantry comes in handy because the actress dislikes food shopping forays and can stock up for weeks at a time.

She bought the house years ago when her mother was alive. Throughout her life, even during her married years, Mrs. Corby lived with her mother who died nine years ago.

Since her mother's death Mrs. Corby has become a devout student of eastern and western religions.

In the second bedroom, which she uses as an office, there is a collection of religious oddments. One is a sign bearing a quotation from the Oriental philosopher Lao Tse:

"As Rivers Have Their Source in Some Far Off Fountain, So The Human Spirit Has Its Source To Find This Fountain of Spirit Which Is To Find The Secret of Heaven and Earth."

Mrs. Corby's home can best be described as original. It is filled with mementoes picked up on her travels around the world.

There is a cluster of Indian tables, a Persian rug, a Chinese porcelain horse. The walls are crowded with oil paintings from Rome, Spain and Denmark, where her mother and father were born.

Veteran Performer

Mrs. Corby is a veteran of more than 500 motion pictures and television shows. Now she doesn't mind arising at 5:30 a.m. for yoga exercises and meditation before reporting to Warner Bros. where she works in the CBS series from 7:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m.

She doesn't like to cook. So lunchtime is her big meal which she eats at the studio. Unlike her television role the actress spends little time in the kitchen; just enough to have a snack before going to bed.

When she's not working in the show Mrs. Corby often can be found in that second bedroom pecking at a typewriter.

She is writing a novel titled "The Pebble of Gibraltar" which she describes as "not a boy-meets-girl love story."

There is an independent spirit about Ellen Corby which comes through in her characterization of Grandma. When the mood seizes her she rolls off in her camper for scenic areas in Southern California.

This year when the show goes on hiatus she plans a trip back east to visit old friends.

"I'm not making any firm plans or even plotting my journey in advance," she says. "I'll take Charlie Brown and the two of us will start off down the highway, stopping when we find a place we like."

When she is in the city on Sunday mornings Mrs. Corby unfailingly attends a Science of Mind church. She says the services are inspiring and intellectually stimulating.

On occasion Mrs. Corby will visit friends for dinner. She very rarely entertains at home herself. But social activities are not her forte.

"I believe in all religions," says Mrs. Corby. "And I also believe in the Walton family. It's the sort of entertainment I'd like to see them bring back to motion pictures.

Kenneth Tells His Biggest Secret

NEW YORK (UPI) — Kenneth, one of America's top hairdressers, divulged a few secrets when he talked about the importance of the soft, contemporary look for engagement portrait sittings and through wedding day and honeymoon. The biggest secret? Look natural.

Kenneth advises brides to be prepared when they visit their professional photographers for engagement and wedding portraits. He told how, saying:

"Your appearance should reflect your basic self. If it doesn't, you'll feel tense, insecure and look it," says Kenneth, who has coiffed thousands of heads, including those of the most illustrious members of the jet set.

To reflect your best basic self, this master of the beauty world suggests that your hair be trimmed rather close to the time you have scheduled your portrait. It should be set gently, no extremes in line and combed into your best everyday look. In addition, makeup should be equally natural. An extra sweep of mascara to make lashes appear longer is allowed.

If your look is casual, wear a turtleneck, blazer or whatever your favorite daytime choice would be. A minimum of jewelry or none is suggested. If you like a dressier look, you will find that the best photographic results are achieved with the simplest possible neckline, so that your face will be the focus of your portrait.

Kenneth feels that your best wedding day look is one your groom will recognize as the most familiar. He suggests that you take your headpiece to your favorite hair stylist soon after you receive it. You are aiming for an enhanced everyday look, not something new and complicated, as well as unrecognizable to those who know you.

Stylist Needs Time

Your stylist needs plenty of time to experiment with such fillips as braids or curls. Giving him this time, Kenneth points out, will guarantee that you will be presenting your favorite mirror image on the day of your bridal portrait. The same successful coiffure can be copied, step by step, on the big day itself.

A great favor to your hairstylist and to yourself is to go at a time when he can experiment with your headpiece, preferably not on your lunch hour on on the day before a holiday when the salon is packed.

If you're to be a wife who travels a lot, Kenneth advises having a blunt cut with sides a bit shorter than the back. That way, almost any stylist anywhere can transform your hair into curls or an evening look if necessary.

You yourself can tie it back in all kinds of weather or even slip it beneath a new synthetic wig. These tips go for your honeymoon as well, when you may be exposed to the humidity of one of the romantic islands, ski winds or mountain dampness.

Be prepared. Buy a selection of coordinated ribbons. There are new barrettes, as well, to help with last-minute adjustments.

If you are short on time and money, as many student wives are, Kenneth recommends hair cut very short or in a long, silky style or "Buster Brown," needing only occasional trims.

Barbo's is deeply moved.

We have to leave Dedham. And in all sincerity, it's an emotionally wrenching situation for us. We've had this store for over 14 years, and have formed many lasting relationships with the people in this area. We've truly enjoyed doing business here, and we'd like to thank all our customers for making our stay so pleasant.

In addition to being emotionally "moved", we're also moved in a physical sense. We've taken everything from the Dedham store and put it in our Stoneham store (and we've got an enormous selection). We're going to keep right on selling the finest quality furniture from the Stoneham store. When you're looking for furniture, remember to come see us. # Community Boating Plans 1973 Sailing Program

Winter-weary sailors land-locked through a long season of ice, snow and mud, have only days to wait for the 1973 sailing season to begin on the Charles River.

And to quicken their pulses, Community Boating of Boston—largest and oldest public sailing club in America—hopes to let them get the jump on other local sailors with its Saturday, March 31, opening date.

Located near the Hatch Memorial Shell and the Charles Street station of the MBTA, Community Boating will officially open at 9 a.m. Saturday. Club officials announced that besides the traditional welcome to past members, Community invites the general public to visit the boathouse at 21 Embankment Rd., off Storrow Dr.

And for its guests, Community has planned a weekend of free sailing, refreshments, film showings, and the chance to inspect club facilities and its many low-cost membership plans.

Community greets its 1973 membership under new management, and with a shiny yachting award hanging on its trophy wall.

The 1972 "Yacht Club of the Year Award" was given last winter to Community by the Yacht Racing Union of Massachusetts Bay. The honor, presented annually to an "outstanding yacht club," went to Community Boating "For its pioneer work in the field of public sailing."

The Racing Union trophy cited Community "as a program that truly lives up to the sign over its door, 'Sailing Here for All'."

Community will be managed in the 1973 season by Steven Winkler of Brockton. Active in many community programs since his junior year, Winkler was named acting manager last fall.

Community's membership averages about 4,000 each year and, as such, is believed the largest non-profit public sailing club in the United States. It has, moreover, been described by many as the nation's most successful such club, and one for which others across the country have patterned similar programs.

Membership in the club includes unlimited instruction and free use of Community's large fleet of sailboats. An active social calendar and a highly-organized racing program, also are features in Community's seven-month long season.

Community sponsors a strong junior sailing program, which traditionally begins after the close of the Boston public schools in June. Until then, however, senior members use the club daily without restriction. Weekend and holiday hours are from 9 a.m. to sunset, while weekday hours are from 1 p.m. to sunset.

Weekend visitors to Community Boating—and those who would try their skills on the water with the help of qualified helmsmen—are asked to wear sneakers and warm clothing. Coffee and donuts will be served over the two days.

Further information about Community Boating, its hours and membership details can be learned by telephoning 523-9763 or 523-8751.

With the end of the war, Veterans Administration hospitals need more, not fewer, volunteers to help patients, Administrator of Veterans Affairs Donald E. Johnson said today.

Johnson said that injured combat veterans and other young men who need long-term rehabilitation are now being transferred from military to VA hospitals. These are the men paralyzed by spinal cord injuries, and others with severe disabilities.

Transfers of military patients to VA hospitals are expected to remain at a high level during the coming year, according to Johnson. VA hospitals will be receiving former prisoners of war, although perhaps not for some months.

"There is a real and continuing need for volunteer assistance in VA hospitals," Johnson said. "As President Nixon has pointed out, voluntary service in the VA hospitals is a splendid way to say 'thank you' to those who were ready to sacrifice everything to preserve the freedom we cherish."

Although many volunteers enter the VA Voluntary Service through their veterans, welfare, civic, and fraternal organizations, those who would like to join directly can contact the director of voluntary service at any VA hospital.

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Veterans and their families are asking thousands of questions concerning the benefits their Government provides for them through the Veterans Administration. Below are some representative queries. Additional information may be obtained at any VA office.)

Q — I know I read it somewhere, but can you tell me when I will receive the 1973 dividend on my "V"-prefixed National Service Life Insurance policy?

A — The dividend will be paid automatically on the anniversary date of your policies still in force. The same holds true for veterans with "K"-prefixed United States Government Life Insurance policies.

Q — My wife and I were recently divorced, and I am in school under the GI Bill. When will my allowance be cut to the amount for a single veteran?

A — Your allowance will be reduced at the end of the year, or at the end of your current term, whichever comes first.

Q — I am a married female veteran with three children. I am 50 percent disabled, and drawing compensation and allowances for my children, but not my husband. Why can't I receive such an allowance for him?

A — You should contact the Veterans Administration immediately. A law passed last October (PL92-540) now entitles you to claim him for an allowance.

Public Is Invited to Open House at Wentworth Instit.

More than $1,000,000 in laboratory equipment will be shown at the traditional Open House at Wentworth Institute in Boston on Wednesday, April 4, at 550 Huntington Ave., from 10 a.m. to 9 p.m.

High School students and general public are invited to view the fascinating exhibits at this largest accredited technical institute in the U. S. for engineering and industrial technicians.

Thousands of students, educators, civic dignitaries, and parents are expected to attend the all day program sponsored by the Wentworth Institute student council and faculty.

Work done by Wentworth students as well as special research and instrumentation work for the United States Air Force will be shown. Wentworth is the only technical institute in the U. S. which conducts research and development work for the Air Force.

One of the most interesting centers in the school is the electronics department with its sophisticated gear. There will be a PDP8 computer programmed to solve problems, play games and draw graphs. Specialized measuring techniques using advanced instruments and including microwave devices will be demonstrated.

Other highlights in the department will include lasers, digital scanner, linear integrated circuits, printed circuits, magneto-hydrodynamic generator, shaded pole motor, Jacob's ladder, model power distribution system and other items.

In the aeronautical and space engineering technology department lab the effects of supersonic flow on aircraft models of various configurations will be shown and shock waves photographed. In the mechanical power engineering lab internal combustion engines; steam, gas and water turbines; fluid flow and refrigeration equipment will be in operation. Megatech and Cussions engines will be demonstrated. The Magatech is a transparent engine enabling the viewer to see the combustion process and effect of a change in air-fuel ratio.

Plant layout designs for efficiency, computer solutions to production problems, and machines built for automatic packaging and feeding will highlight the production engineering technology's department.

The nuclear instrumentation lab, radioisotopes lab, and radiological health lab will have sophisticated nuclear equipment for demonstrations. Work involved in mechanical design engineering technology dept. and scale models and renderings by architectural department will be shown. Other departments will also have interesting exhibits involving their particular specialization.

Soccer Talk

By PAUL ELDRIDGE, JR.

The Mass. Soccer Association held their final pre-season meeting last week. At this meeting, they wrapped up all of the loose odds and ends pertaining to the coming Spring season. New rules and regulations were also explained.

One of the more important items on the agenda was the radification of the new referee's group by the member teams. This was passed by an overwhelming majority.

Mr. Goran Peterson, President of the Boston Area Youth Soccer League, expressed concern because some of the referees were leaving the association, that gave the BAYS their referees, in order to join the new association. His main concern was if there would be enough referees to do the youth league games.

Mr. Joe Dente, President of the M.S.A., then told Mr. Peterson that if he needed referees, all he had to do was to mention so and he would have all he needed.

Also at the meeting, they held the draw for the quarter-finals of the Knock-Out Cup. These games will be played on May 6. The draw is as follows:

Sons of Italy at Polish Eagles

Westwood (Boston) United at Norwood Kickers

East Boston at Sulmona

Boston Sporting Club at M.I.T.

The one remarkable thing about this draw is that a third division team will be in the semi-finals.

The BAYS League will have 94 teams in 36 towns this Spring. Area wise this league will stretch from Topsfield to Brockton and Marlboro to Boston. I think that a short history of the BAYS is now in order.

During the Beacons games in 1968, Joe Dente and Joe Lane were in charge of the Beacons Ball Boys. Before the games and at half-time, they would play games against the CYO teams and those from the Blackstone Valley League. That Fall, Mr. Dente and Mr. Lane, along with Rai Copland and a few other gentlemen came up with an idea to form a league to get boys interested in playing the sport of Soccer. It also would give those boys who were playing Soccer in the Fall, a chance to play in the Spring.

The first year of play wasin 1969 with nine teams. This increased to 24 in 1970, to 48 teams under Stan Willox's presidency in 1971 and last year there were 70 teams.

There are five divisions in the BAYS this year. They are: in "AA" for boys under 19, "A" for boys under 17, "B" for boys under 15, "C" for boys under 13, and "D" for boys under 11.

So a boy could conceivably play in this league from eight years of age till he is eighteen.

The object of the league is to provide the opportunity and training for boys to learn the game of Soccer through the development of individual skills, fitness, teamwork, fairplay. The BAYS will open their season on the weekend of April 14 and 15th.

SOCCER SHORTS

Congratulations to Alan Peterson and his wife on the birth of their daughter, Karen. Alan is the Secretary of the M.S.A. Maybe Alan and I should get together and start a girls Soccer teams.

By the way, Alan has catalogues on soccer equipment and uniforms at good prices. You can obtain one by writing to him at 48 No. Belgian Rd, Danvers, Mass. 01925.

Don't forget that Soccer Coaches Clinic at Archbishop Williams High in Braintree. Those dates are April 4th and 11th from 8 p.m. to 10 p.m.

Natick Ford Winnebago Homes Dealer

Winnebago Industries announces the appointment of Natick Ford, 157 West Central street, Natick, as the Boston area's newest dealer of Winnebago Motor Homes. This includes all four lines of the 1973 Winnebagos the low-cost Braves, the luxurious Chieftains and the new Winnebago "Minnie Winnies", their new line of mini motor homes.

Charles K. Ribakoff, of Natick Ford, stated that adding recreational vehicles to his company's operation fits into their overall strategy of a total transportation organization.

"We have carefully studied the Recreational Vehicle Market," said Ribakoff, "and it's doubling in size every two years. And here in New England it is expanding. We feel that with Winnebago, the industry leader, we can further this growth even faster." He added that the recreational vehicle industry had sales of $1.6 billion, an increase of 41 per cent over 1970. Today there are over 3 million recreational vehicles on the road.

Natick Ford Also has a complete recreational vehicle service department open Monday through Friday to 9 p.m. and a complete rental department.

The growth of R-V's can in great part be attributed to the increase in leisure time and affluence of our society. People are tyring to get out of the city and into the country fresh air for outdoor living and camping. People are also using recreational vehicles for family vacations to spots like Disneyworld, the Gulf Coast and Canada. There are over 10,000 private camping facilities and over 7,500 public facilities available to these vehicles.

Ribakoff added that the recreational vehicles, such a the Winnebagos, have become far more sophisticated, better designed, and more luxurious. Perhaps above all, they have become more homelike and comfortable, have greater woman-appeal.

'All In The Family' Producer Is Also Director And Censor

You would know at once that this 46 year - old man in grey flannels, with conservatively cut graying hair, has assurance and authority. But it doesn't come from the three yeers Bud Yorkin spent as a lieutenant in the Naval Air Force.

It's undoubtedly due to the fact that every other television producer in America grinds his teeth with rage and envy when he looks at the ratings Bud and his partner Norman Lear have rolled up with three top programs — "All In The Family," "Sanford and Son" and "Maude."

If you own a television set you are probably devoted to one of these offerings. "All In The Family," for instance, has won seven Emmys. The others have their share of awards.

But it wasn't as a TV producer that Bud came to Boston. He came to talk about his picture "The Thief Who Came To Dinner" and to admit that it was a 33 - year - old film, "Boom Town" which inspired it.

Clark Gable and Spencer Tracy were the stars of "Boom Town." "It was a picture about the love - hate relationship of two men," Yorkin stated, "men who hated and envied each other, and who eventually found themselves admiring each other. That is the basic relationship between my two stars, Ryan O'Neal and Warren Oates. But this is not a melodrama.

"The Thief Who Came To Dinner" is a comedy with a great deal of fantasy. You couldn't possibly take a thief very seriously who plays a chess game for publicity and makes a new move in a front page game with a local chess editor every time he grabs off the jewels or the hidden cash."

But why the model - handsome O'Neal as the thief, I asked, thinking someone less beautiful might have made more of an impact in the role.

"Tell me who," replied Bud. "Do you realize there are only three actors, in the star class, who could play this part and make it convincing? I was lucky to get O'Neal, but I could have settled for Jack Nicholson or Robert Redford.

"Of course there are less well known actors who are young enough and possibly capable enough. Remembering "Boom Town" I couldn't take a chance on unknowns. I had to have top stars to make it believeable."

Because the world has turned hard and difficult today, with far too many problems, Yorkin thinks that escapist humor, on TV and in the movies, is the best solace to the mind.

"The popularity of "All In The Family" is based on people being able to laugh (and occasionally think about) the worst problems which are plaguing the world. The head of the family, Archie, may be intolerant, vulgar and vituperative as he dicsusses, with no holds barred, his ideas on abortions, civil rights, narcotics, juvenile delinquency and labor fights."

"But everyone else in the group has his or her say, and underneath the jokes and the fun there is social commentary with every side given a chance. People roar with laughter at Archie and his family but there are more people agreeing and disagreeing with them on matters of serious nature than listen to all the prestigious authorities who pontificate on these world wide topics on TV, the magazines and on radio."

To Yorkin, time is so valuable that he needs a computer, Between making and editing TV programs, Yorkin had to make his film (without Lear). He is both producer and director. He is also unofficial censor. There was a scene in which too much of heroine Jacqueline Bisset showed. So out came the footage, to the annoyance to some of his advisors.

"This is not intended to be either a violent or a sex production," he says.

"Of course a great many exhibitors ask hopefully "Is it like 'Last Tango in Paris' or 'Deep Throat?' " These shockers are breaking financial records, of course.

"But I know there is a larger public throughout the worls which still wants entertainment to make them laugh. I like to think of people leaving this picture with pleasure, still laughing on their way home.

"Movies held my family together when I was a boy. We didn't have much money to spend, but invariably we went to the movies together.

"I now sit down with my two children, Nicole and David, and find out what they think of the films they have seen. We talk them over and they give me ideas."

Bud and his longtime partner Lear, are not worried about the secret of attracting film audiences. There's a shortage of their kind of comedy, they declare.

Yorkin's former pictures include "Never Too Late," Divorce, American Style," "Cold Turkey," and "The Night They Raided Minsky's."

"I like to think that we make the same kind of picture in which Fred MacMurray, Cary Grant and Gary Cooper starred," says Yorkin.

He doesn't have to look for pornography and blood to get people to see films made by their company, Tandem Productions.

—o—

BUD YORKIN, right, producer-director, is currently riding the crest of unprecedented success in television, with his partner Norman Lear, producing "All in the Family," "Sanford and Son," and "Maude," with all three of them rated in the top ten. However, Yorkin admits to a preference for motion pictures. "The Thief Who Came to Dinner" is the sixth movie he has directed. Here he discusses a scene with the film's star, Ryan O'Neil. The Tandem-Warner Bros. production also co-stars Jacqueline Bisset and Warren Oates.

Cinema Review: Save The Tiger

SAVE THE TIGER gives Jack Lemmon a role unlike any he has played before. He portrays a modern businessman who believes that any financial dodge and sharp practice is morally justified if it prevents an essentially decent firm from collapsing and putting more than 200 employees on the street.

It's not a "big hero" role any way you present it, but Lemmon depicts the part with a certain amount of sympathy and through his own appealing personality, asks a somewhat surprised audience for understanding. Aside from Lemmon's excellent characterization, Jack Guilford, as his conscientious partner and Thayer David, as an arsonist, keep the quality of performance high.

But not all the picture is first - rate. Most of us could do without that long nostalgic memory excercise between Lemmon and his pick - up girlfriend, Laurie Heineman. There's also too much melodrama which Steve Shagam, as both author and producer, must have loved so devoutly that he refused to dispense with a single frame.

What the picture proves is that Lemmon is an intelligent actor — which we already knew —, that there are new areas of plot and charecter not yet sufficiently explored in movies, and that a good sharp pair of shears weilded by a smart cinema editor is an absolute necessity in a good film, no matter how much star and writer scream.

Sarah Caverly

Newton native Sarah A. (MacDonald) Caverly, the first woman to be elected a selectman in Dennis, died Friday (March 23) after a long illness.

She was the wife of the late Reginald E. Caverly; and for many years, operated the Maple Leaf Restaurant in Newton Corner. She and her husband moved to Cape Cod in 1951.

Mrs. Caverly is survived by two sisters, Mrs. Jennie Paul of Newtonville and Mrs Christine Lyman of Framingham; two nieces, Mrs. Jean Weeks of Manilus, N.Y., and Mrs. Carol Mills of Wayland.

A funeral mass was celebrated in Holy Trinity Church on Tuesday (March 27) and burial was in Newton Cemetery.

George J. Rogers

George J. Rogers, 58, of 72 Warwick Rd., West Newton, died Tuesday (March 20) in Newton-Wellesley Hospital.

A native of the Garden City, Mr. Rogers attended Newton schools and entered the retail grocery business. For the past 20 years, he had been employed as a meat cutter at the Waltham Supermarket. He was a member of the Loyal Order of the Moose of Waltham, and a World War II veteran.

Mr. Rogers is survived by his parents, George B. and Mary E. Rogers; two sisters, Mrs. Jean Duval of West Hartford, Conn., and Mrs. Mary McKeown of Kansas City, Mo.; and seven nieces and nephews.

Funeral services were held in St. Bernard's Church Friday (March 23). Burial is in Newton Cemetery.

James G. Powell

A funeral service was conducted Friday (March 23) at the Parish of St. Paul in Newton Highlands for James G. Powell, 71.

Mr. Powell of 20 Oak Terrace, Newton Highlands, died March 20 in Newton-Wellesley Hospital. He was a retired shipping supervisor for the Gamewell Company. He was a member of the Newton Highlands Men's Club.

Mr. Powell is survived by his wife, Mrs. Dorothy Powell; his son, James Powell Jr. of Winston-Salem, N.C.; grandchildren, Cathy Lynn, David, Wayne and James G. III; and two brothers, John C. of Somerville and Philip of Newton Upper Falls.

Burial is in Newton Cemetery.

William J. Delahanty

Willliam J. (Red) Delahanty, 65, formerly of West Newton, died Saturday (March 24) in Quigley Memorial Hospital in Chelsea following a heart attack.

A native of the Garden City, Mr. Delahanty had lived in Newton until moving to Florida a little over a year ago. He was the husband of Eleanor J. Delahanty and is survived by two sons, William J. Jr. of Miami, Fla. and J. Peter of Natick; two daughters, Mrs. Jean M. UP with good lawns!
The better the fertilizer, the better the lawn. That's why Scotts TURF BUILDER is America's favorite lawn fertilizer. Turf Builder is made by the exclusive Trionized process which releases its nutrients over a prolonged period. So there's no excess surge growth to cause extra mowing, and there's no wasteful over-feeding or nutrient loss due to leaching. Just a thicker, greener, sturdier lawn. Spread Turf Builder on your lawn this weekend, and see for yourself.

DOWN with crabgrass!
You can put down crabgrass even before it starts by spreading Scotts HALTS PLUS For Established Lawns. One application forms an invisible barrier that will stop crabgrass as it sprouts, so the ugly stuff can't get started this year. It feeds your lawn at the same time, making good grass grow greener and sturdier. Result? A thicker, more vibrantly green lawn—without ugly crabgrass

Children's Zoo To Open April 28

The Children's Zoo in Franklin Park, operated by the Boston Zoological Society, will open for the season on Saturday, April 28, at 10 a.m. On hand for the big opening day will be television personalities, Rex Trailer and Sgt. Billy O'Brien, stars of WBZ-TV's "BOOMTOWN." Rex and Billy will be on hand at 2 p.m. with a big show for the visitors. In addition, there will be balloons and a band. Special new animals will be waiting to meet you this year. Scheduled to arrive, about opening day, will be a baby African elephant.

After opening day, the Children's Zoo will present a summer-long series of special days for the public.

The Children's Zoo is fun for the entire family. Youngsters can feed baby goats and sheep, pet an alligator, touch a wooley monkey, or watch a cow being milked.

The Children's Zoo is owned by the Metropolitan District Commission and operated by the Boston Zoological Society. Admission is 75 cents for adults and 25 cents for children under 12. Groups, with advance reservations, are admitted for 15 cents per person. This year there is plenty of free parking at the zoo.

Members of the Boston Zoological Society are admitted free. One may become a member by sending $10.00 to the Boston Zoological Society, Franklin Park Zoo, Dorchester, Mass. 02121.

Honor Roll at Ursuline Academy

Twenty-one area girls have received first honors at Ursuline Academy, 66 Lowder St., Dedham, for the second semester of the 1972-73 school year. Thirty-three students were awarded second honors.

To receive first honors a pupil must attain an average of 92 or above and must not have any subject below a 92. Students who have attained an overall average of 90 are on the second honor list. If a pupil's average is 92 or over but one or more subjects fall below 92, she is named to the second honor roll.

The following students have been named to the first honor list:

Grade 8: Stephanie Kostaras, West Roxbury, 96.8 average; Patricia Foley, West Roxbury, 94.5; Amy Cantwell, West Roxbury, 94.3 and Elizabeth Guptill, West Roxbury, 92.5.

Norfolk County Trust Shows Gain in 1972

At the annual meeting of the stockholders of Norfolk County Trust Company held in Brookline on March 20, John S. Marsh, chairman of the bank's board of directors, reviewed the recent developments and future prospects of the commercial banking environment in Massachusetts.

Marsh also reviewed the results of the year's operations at Norfolk County Trust Company which showed gains in both net earnings and total assets. On December 31,1972, total assets amounted to $326,841,272 and deposits stood at $291,686,023, constituting increases of 8.5 percent and 8.1 percent respectively. The bank's capital accounts increased to more than $25,000,000 as a result of retained earnings.

At the meeting, the stockholders re-elected the bank's board of directors. Directors residing in Dedham were Harold B. Nash and John W. Kunhardt.

Officers re-elected were Robert J. Reynolds, assistant treasurer and officer-in-charge of the Dedham square office and John E. DePace, assistant treasurer and officer-in-charge of the Elm Street, Dedham office.

Busy Year For Red Cross Safety Programs

In one of its busiest years on record, American Red Cross Safety Programs last year issued 4,414,156 certificates to persons completing courses in first aid, small craft and water safety, Charles F. Woodard, chairman of the Greater Boston Red Cross Chapter, said today.

The organization also presented its highest award, the Certificate of Merit, to 164 persons for saving lives by the application of Red Cross-taught safety techniques.

Here in Greater Boston, Woodard said the Red Cross last year conducted 1,954 classes in first aid, small craft and water safety and certified 16,918 individuals in various levels of instruction.

Certificates issued nationally for completion of courses in swimming, life saving and small craft safety totaled 2,704,664. They included the 50-millionth water safety certificate awarded since the program began in 1914.

Accounting for most of the 24 percent increase in first aid certificates nationwide—1,709,492 in the 1971-72 fiscal year as against 1,376,300 in 1970-71—was the giant project to provide first aid training opportunities to millions of employees of business and industry, Mr. Woodard said.

This project, launched in fiscal 1971-72, was undertaken under a Red Cross-U. S. Department of Labor agreement to help employers meet a requirement of the 1970 Federal Occupational Safety and Health Act— to have first aid-trained employees on job sites not in near proximity to a hospital infirmary or clinic. It increased by 300,000 the number of employees trained in first aid by the Red Cross.

The Greater Boston Chapter alone in 1972 provided this instruction for 203 instructors from 129 companies employing almost half a million people.

This month, the chapter is appealing to members of the community to join Red Cross by becoming individual members of the chapter.

"Thanks to the Massachusetts Bay United Fund," Woodard said, "The chapter is able to meet three-fourths of its financial commitments. Individual memberships will make up the difference."

Ruth Lenson

Lent is traditionally the season for a change in family menus. Generally thought of as a time of self - sacrifice — the giving of oneself through good works — recipes for meatless dishes are very much in demand.

In these trying times when meat prices are soaring, the Lenten season offers the homemaker an opportunity to prove to her family that protein comes in less expensive forms that are equally enjoyable and certainly a help to the sorely tried food budget.

For instance, let's talk about eggs which are an excellent protein value. There are 24 ounces in a dozen eggs; that's one and a half pounds of protein. Suppose you pay 60 cents per dozen — this makes a pound of eggs 40 cents. Where else can you buy protein at that price per pound?

As an added bonus, it would be noted that you can freeze eggs. Freeze whole eggs by stirring first and then adding 1 tablespoon of salt per cup or 1½ tablespoons of sugar per cup. Or, separate egg yolks and egg whites. Freeze egg yolks the same as whole eggs and freeze egg whites the way they are. Recommended storage times is 6 to 8 months.

In shopping for eggs, there is a method for getting the best buy. We could get into the weight of eggs by pound, but there's an easier way — if the price difference between two size grade eggs is less than 7 cents, the larger size is the better buy. If it's more than 7 cents, you get more egg for your money in the smaller grade size.

Here are some more egg tips: When beating, remember egg whites will triple in volume; yolks double. Choose the bowl with this in mind.

Eggs separate most easily when cold, straight from the refrigerator. Eggs beat up to greater volume if allowed to come to room temperature. To cook a cracked egg, add a few drops of vinegar or lemon juice to water. A serving of 2 eggs provides nearly one - fifth the daily requirement of protein.

Grade AA egg is the best in terms of firmness and full yolk; however, Grade A is still excellent for serving. Grade B is a wholesome egg, but the yolk might not be as firm — you might prefer it for baking.

POACHED EGGS WITH CHEESE SAUCE

3 English muffins, split
6 sausage patties, grilled
1 cup cream
Salt and pepper
6 eggs
½ cup shredded cheddar cheese

Toast muffins, place a sausage patty on each and keep warm in oven. In a skillet, heat cream to boiling point. Season with salt and pepper. Break the eggs, one at a time, into a saucer, and slip into cream. Lower heat and cook until eggs are set, spooning the cream over the eggs. Remove and place one egg atop each sausage patty. Add the cheese to the cream and heat, stirring until cheese is melted. Pour cheese sauce over eggs. Garnish with watercress or parsley and a sprinkling of paprika, if desired. Makes 6 servings.

EGG FOO YUNG

6 eggs
1 cup drained bean sprouts
1 cup cut up cooked shrimp
1 cup thinly sliced onion
¾ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon monosodium glutamate
3 tablespoons oil (approximately)
Chinese sauce

Beat eggs in a bowl; stir in drained bean sprouts, shrimp, onion, salt and msg. Heat about a tablespoon oil in large skillet; pour about ¼ cup egg mixture into skillet; fry until golden brown on bottom; turn and cook until set. Fold and place on baking sheet; keep in warm oven. Repeat using remaining egg mixture, adding more oil as needed. Serve with warm Chinese Sauce.

CHINESE SAUCE

Blend 2 teaspoons cornstarch, 2 teaspoons sugar and 1½ teaspoons salt in a small saucepan. Stir in 1 cup water, 4 teaspoons soy sauce and 2 teaspoons vinegar; cook and stir until sauce boils. . . ½ minute.

CHEESE SOUFFLE

¼ cup (½ stick) butter or margarine
¼ cup regular all purpose flour
¼ teaspoon salt
Dash of cayenne pepper
1 cup milk
2 cups (8 oz.) shredded Cheddar cheese
¼ cup grated parmesan cheese
5 egg yolks, slightly beaten
¼ teaspoon cream of tartar
5 egg whites

In a saucepan melt butter; stir in flour, salt and pepper. Remove from heat; gradually stir in milk. Cook over medium heat, stirring constantly, until thickened. Cook 2 additional minutes. Remove from heat and stir in Cheddar and Parmesan cheeses until melted. If necessary, return to low heat to finish melting cheeses but do not boil. Blend a little of hot mixture into egg yolks; return all to saucepan and blend thoroughly; set aside. Sprinkle cream of tartar over egg whites, beat until stiff but not dry. Carefully fold cheese sauce, while pouring very slowly, into egg whites. Pour into casserole or souffle 2 - quart dish. Bake for 45 minutes in preheated 350 degree oven and serve immediately. Serves 6.

THE OMELET is an old favorite. Quickly made, filled with tasty chili or cheese, it is great for lunch, supper, or a late Sunday night snack. For recipe, refer to Across the Kitchen Counter.

COTTAGE CHEESE EGGS AND ASPARAGUS BAKE

Hard cooked eggs
One-third cup cottage cheese
2 tablespoons mayonnaise
¾ teaspoon salt
4 slices rye bread, tosted
1 pkg (10 oz.) frozen asparagus, cooked and drained
1 can (10¾ oz.) condensed cheddar cheese soup
¼ cup milk
1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
½ cup fine, soft rye bread crumbs
1 teaspoon melted butter or margarine

Cut eggs in half lenghwise. Remove yolks. Mash with fork; add cottage cheese, mayonnaise, salt and pepper. Blend until light and fluffy. Mound into egg white cavities. Arrange toast slices, in well-greased baking dish. Arrange asparagus over toast. Top with stuffed eggs. Combine soup, milk and Worcestershire sauce. Stir until smooth. Pour over eggs. Toss breadcrumbs with butter; sprinkle over top of casserole. Bake in oven, preheated to 400 degrees for 12 minutes or until brown. Serves four.

FILLED OMELETS

For each omlet:
2 eggs
2 teaspoons cold water
⅛ teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon Tabasco pepper sauce
1 tablespoon butter or margarine

Break eggs into bowl. Add water, salt and Tabasco; beat with fork until mixed but not frothy. In seasoned 8 - inch heavy skillet or omelet pan, heat butter until bubbly but not brown. Add beaten eggs. Over high heat, hold pan firmly and briskly shake pan to prevent eggs from sticking to surface. The eggs will cook quickly, so that it may be necessary to lift sides with a spatula to allow mixture to run under the cooked edges. Place filling in center of omelet and with a spatula fold in half. Slide onto heated plate and top with extra filling if desired.

Suggested fillings: Chili — heat a 1 - pound can of prepared chili without beans in small saucepan. Allow ½ cup per omelet.

Cheese — ¼ cup crumbled blue cheese, shredded Cheddar, Swiss or American per omelet.

Apple and sausage — Cut 1 pound sausage links into pieces. Brown in skillet. Drain off excess fat. Add 1 can apple pie filling, 1 teaspoon lemon juice, ¾ teaspoon crumbled leaf sage. Heat. Allow ½ cup per omelet.

Household Hints

Egg prices vary by size for the same grade, the Department of Agriculture reports. Generally speaking, if there is less than a seven cent price spread per dozen eggs between one size and the next smaller size in the same grade, you will get more for your money by buying the larger size.

Refrigerate eggs promptly at home, large end up, to help maintain quality.

Variations in temperature while the eggs are stored causes egg whites to become thin.

Use only high-quality clean eggs with sound shells when making egg nogs, milk shakes, or lightly cooked dishes.

Cook eggs at low to moderate temperatures. High temperatures and over-cooking toughen eggs.

Eggs contain significant amounts of vitamin A, iron, protein, and riboflavin (Vitamin B2) as well as smaller amounts of many other nutrients.

The thick, white, cord-like material located on the opposite sides of the egg yolk is called the chalaza. It is a normal part of the egg. The chalaza holds the yolk in place in the white.

Egg shell color is determined by breed of the hen and does not affect the grade, nutritive value, flavor, or cooking performance of the egg.

Egg protein is so near perfection that scientists often use it as a standard to measure the value of protein in other foods.

Eggs are an important, easily and completely digested food for all ages —from infancy to old age.

Eggs are versatile—serve them often. Serve them "as is" or in combination with other foods.

When buying eggs, look for the USDA (U.S. Department of Agriculture) shield. It tells you grade quality and size. The shield usually is on the carton or on a tape sealing the carton.

Sweaters - The Soft Wrap

If we're going to discuss sweaters, we've got to start with the most luxurious of all . . . cashmere. There was a time when cashmere sweaters were a status symbol of college girls and the envy of high schoolers—this was the period B. J. (before jeans).

Cashmere is the fine cloudlike fleece produced by a mountain goat that lives on the high plateaus of inner Asia. The fleece, grown under a thick outer coat of coarse hair, insulates the goats against the severe cold of the nights and scorching sun of the day.

Many efforts have been made to increase the limited cashmere supply by re-establishing the breed elsewhere, including the Alps, but the goat refuses to grow the fleece anywhere except in its original habitat, although it will continue to thrive and reproduce itself.

Cashmere fabrics are now being produced in the United States through new techniques in spinning and finishing cashmere for both knitted and woven cloth developed by Amicale Industries. From importing the raw cashmere fiber through the processing, weaving and knitting of the fabric, it is no longer necessary for designers to resort to foreign markets for these quality fabrics.

Designer Halston began the present cashmere craze when he asked a model to throw a cashmere cardigan over her shoulders and tie the sleeves in front for a bit of throw-away chic. Result? Anew fashion look was created.

This spring's sweater story braves conventions that say "right" or "wrong". Everything from the body-hugging sweaters (the familiar skinny ribs) to the newer bulky ones are RIGHT.

Layering is still going strong with sweaters playing the jacket role on chilly mornings. The cardigan in solid color is usually worn over printed tailored shirts. (Try rolling back those sweater sleeves and show off your shirt print.)

In recent Paris showings, Givenchy used a handsome seagull motif on navy for a brief halter to be worn with matching wide navy pants. Valentino's spring showing of sweaters were easy-to-wear mannish cardigans worn over silk blouses, pants or skirts. He predicted that sweaters will replace coats, shawls and small wraps for cruise wear as well as cool summer evenings. The evening skirt and top, he feels, demands the addition of a pretty cardigan sweater.

There's nothing new about the twin sweater set. It was a fashion due to return because of the important layered look. For supreme elegance it's got to be cashmere twins consisting of a cashmere cardigan over a sleeveless or short-sleeved sweater.

If, however, cashmere is but a dream, don't fret. Less expensive angora can offer you the look of softness and delicacy. How to overcome the nuisance of angora shedding on your dinner partner? There's a remedy discovered back in the 1930's—when your angora is not being worn, put it into a plastic bag and pop it into the refrigerator (so they tell me).

Designer Adolfo's angora and cashmere sweaters have been pleasing women who don't blink at $300 price tags. Gloria Vanderbilt Cooper, Adolfo's favorite client, owns his waist length angora baby sweater in pink, white and ice blue.

Last year's shrink sweater had great appeal for the young set. This season's cardigan sweaters will generally cover the derriere, and this is a blessing for women who are more comfortable with this length. Sweater suits, some with interesting oxford styling, are new this spring—they feature the hip-length cardigan sweater-jacket.

Calvin Klein's "Sweater girl" wears a black cardigan sweater over an imported challis multi-color pinstripe shirt and coordinating plaid wrap skirt. A braided belt on the sweater completes the sweater suit styling.

The sweater set plays an important role in most spring-summer collections. For day, on the golf links or the tennis court, sweaters are teamed with pants and skirts coordinated in color and motif.

After five the sweater goes slinky—especially when topping the new matte jersey skirts. These sweater jackets are sometimes knitted in bold checks of black and navy design. A bit less spectacular, the elongated cardigan hip-length jacket done in neutral tones in loosely crocheted and knitted fabrics.

When she's wearing a sweater, chances are he will be wearing one too. Hers might be a red polo sweater with high ribbing at the waistline and trimmed at the neck in red and white gingham. His a stylized Indian patterned V-neck pullover worn over a foulard print shirt.

New sleeve treatments in sweaters include the square-cut sleeve, funnel sleeve, puffed sleeve and dolman sleeve. Necklines are round, square, V-necked or notch collared in a non-matching fabric.

If you're getting down to the nitty-gritty of sweater wearing, it's really not the quantity or quality of the sweater you'll be wearing but how you sport the fashion that counts.

Tying your sweater sleeves at the neck or around the waist—using a lacy mohair sweater as though it were a cape is another—wearing a scooped neck sweater over a long-sleeved shirtdress.

Why all the fuss about sweaters this season? As one designer put it, "Sweaters are the easiest fashions to wear. They're pretty, soft and feminine, and after all, these are the things a woman loves."

SLEEVELESS WOOL SWEATER—this all-American wool style by Geist and Geist plays a flash of striping around the new deep V-neckline and at the midriff, is color-cued to a free moving gored skirt in easy-flexing double-knit wool. The sweater can be layers over a variety of shirts, blouses and pullovers, or can be worn as a bare-armed companion to skirts and slacks.

Information Please

Ruth Lenson

This is the reader's column. If you have a question or a recipe to share with other readers, please write to: Information, Please, Transcript Newspapers, 420 Washington street, Dedham, Mass. 02160.

Question: I am most interested in your columns and read them every week. I hope you may have a recipe that I've been looking around for, Grapenut Pudding. It seems all my cookbooks, over 20 of them, do not have this one; would appreciate this very much. Thanks loads.—Mrs. S. Porter, Newton Centre

Answer: In going through my files I found two Grapenut Pudding recipes; therefore, I'll let you be the judge — enjoy them both!

OLD-FASHIONED GRAPENUTS PUDDING

¾ cup grapenuts
¼ cup butter, melted
½ cup sugar
3 eggs, well beaten
2 cups milk
¼ cup raisins (optional)
1 teaspoon vanilla
⅛ teaspoon nutmeg or cinnamon
½ teaspoon salt

Thoroughly mix grapenuts with melted butter. Blend sugar into beaten eggs; add grapenuts mixture and remaining ingredients. Blend well. Pour into a 1-quart baking dish; place in pan of hot water. Bake in preheated 350-degree oven for 30 minutes; stir thoroughly. Then bake about 20 minutes longer, or until a knife inserted 1-inch from center of the pudding comes out clean. Serve warm or cooled. Makes 6 servings.

GRAPENUTS PUDDING

2 eggs, slightly beaten
One-third cup sugar
⅛ teaspoon salt
2 cups scalded milk
1 teaspoon vanilla
One-third cup grapenuts

Combine eggs, sugar and salt. Add milk gradually, mixing thoroughly. Add vanilla. Put 1 tablespoon of grapenuts in each custard cup and fill with custard mixture. Bake in 325 degree oven for 40-45 minutes or until a knife inserted comes out clean. Serves 5.

Question: Will you please print a recipe for Pumpernickel Bread? The recipe I have doesn't have the true pumpernickel taste. How does it differ from Russian Bread? I read your very interesting columns weekly. — Mrs. Dorothy Goldberg, Newton Centre

Answer: To be perfectly frank, I have tried to duplicate the flavor of the true "black" Pumpernickel bread and while I get a good loaf it is not the equal of what is purchased in bakeries (it hurts, but I must be honest). Professional bakers tell me that it is not possible to duplicate this bread at home — however, the following is and excellent Pumpernickel. Please let me know if it reaches your expectations.

PUMPERNICKEL BREAD
(3 Loaves)

9 cups unsifted white flour
3 cups unsifted rye flour
2 tablespoons salt
1 cup whole bran cereal
¾ cup yellow corn meal
2 pkgs. Active Dry Yeast
3½ cups water
¼ cup dark molasses
2 squares (1 oz. ea.) unsweetened chocolate
1 tablespoon margarine
2 cups mashed potatoes (at room temp.)
2 teaspoons caraway seeds

Combine white and rye flours. In a very large bowl thoroughly mix 2 cups flour mixture, salt, cereal, corn meal and undissolved active dry yeast. Combine water, molasses, chocolate and margarine in a saucepan. Heat over low heat until liquids are warm (Margarine and chocolate do not need to melt.) Gradually add to dry ingredients and beat for 2 minutes at medium speed of electric mixer, scraping bowl occasionally. Add potatoes and 1 cup flour mixture, or enough flour mixture to make thick batter. Beat at high speed for 2 minutes, scraping blowl occasionally. Stir in caraway seeds and enough additional flour mixture to make soft dough. Turn out onto lightly floured board; cover dough with bowl and rest for 15 minutes. Then knead until smooth and elastic, about 15 minutes. Place in greased bowl, turning to grease top. Cover; let rise in warm place, free from draft, until doubled in bulk, about 1 hour. Punch dough down; let rise again for 30 minutes. Punch dough down; turn out onto lightly floured board. Divide into 3 equal pieces. Shape into round balls. Place in 3 greased 8 or 9-in. loaf or round cake pans. Cover, let rise in warm place until doubled, about 45 minutes. Bake in 350-degree oven about 50 minutes, or until done. Remove from pans and cool on wire racks.

Our thanks to Mrs. M. F., Newton Highlands who writes: "Recently, E. A. of Chestnut Hill asked for ways to use leftover boiled chicken. Since I have much enjoyment from your columns, I thought you might like to share my method. After making my chicken soup with an over 5-pound fowl, I faced days of eating chicken sandwiches. One day I thought up a tasty, easy method of turning it into a meal. I leave wings and gizzards in my soup and remove and drain all the rest. I separate chicken from bones and divide it into pieces from 2 x 4" size or smaller. Skin can stay on or be removed.

1. Melt ¼ lb. butter in skillet; add vegetable oil if more fat is needed, (about 4 tablespoons). 2. Season crumbs, or meal, with garlic powder, oregano, basil, minced onion, salt and pepper to taste. 3. Whip an egg with a small amount of water (as if to make scrambled eggs). 4. Dip chicken pieces in egg, then in crumb mixture until well coated. Brown in butter and oil until golden brown. Remove from pan. Pour fat into container and reserve.

In skillet, put melted butter and fat (2 tablespoons) and blend in: 1 tablespoon cornstarch, ½ teaspoon salt, ⅛ teaspoon pepper. Gradually add 6 oz. defrosted orange juice and 2 oz. water. Mix until smooth. Cook over medium heat, stirring constantly until mixture thickens, comes to a boil and boils one minute. (What it really is, is a white sauce made with orange juice instead of milk.) 6. Return chicken to skillet and let stand in sauce a half hour with cover on skillet. 7. On very low light, heat covered one-half hour! It's ready to serve! (P.S. Yes, I am the Ruth Lenson your mother told you about — but what did she tell you?)

Question: I was visiting my mother-in-law, on her 84th birthday, and she passed around some refrigerator cookies she had received — they were so delicious I would like to have the recipe for what I think were Butterscotch Refrigerator Cookies. — Mrs. E. S., Waban.

Answer: Our congratulations also to your mother-in-law! Here is the recipe:

BUTTERSCOTCH REFRIGERATOR COOKIES

3½ cups all purpose flour
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon cinnamon
1 teaspoon baking soda
½ cup shortening
½ cup margarine
2 cups light brown sugar, firmly packed
2 eggs, well beaten
2 tablespoons warm water
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 cup finely chopped nuts

Combine flour, salt, cinnamon and soda. Cream shortening and margarine; gradually add sugar and beat until light. Add eggs, water and vanilla, mixing well. Combine dry ingredients and creamed mixture and blend well—add nuts. Divide dough in half and place each, in roll form, on waxed paper — wrap tightly and refrigerate overnight (for quicker results, put dough in freezer for 2 hours) to bake, slice in ⅛-inch slices and bake 2-inches apart on lightly greased sheet in 350 degree oven. Bake 10-12 minutes, or until cookies are golden brown. Remove to racks to cool. Yield: 6 dozen.

PROBATE COURT

To Enrico J. Petrucci of Newton, and Goldstar Wholesale Nursery of Lexington in the County of Middlesex, Suffolk Franklin Savings Bank, Division Employment Security, and Crystal Coal & Oil all of Boston in the County of Suffolk, and Grossman Sons, Inc. of Braintree in the County of Norfolk and to all other persons interested.

A petition has been presented to said Court by Elia V. Petrucci of Newton in the County of Middlesex representing that she holds as tenant in common one undivided half part or share of certain land lying in Newton in said County Middlesex and briefly described as follows:

(1) A certain parcel of land now known as 121-123 Warren Street in Newton, Middlesex County, and being shown on a plan of land by E.S. Smilie, Surveyor, dated August 13, 1925, recorded Middlesex South District Deeds at end of Book 4890, and bounded and described as follows: SOUTHWESTERLY by Warren Street, seventy (70) feet; EASTERLY by land now or formerly of Della H. Willien, one hundred fifty (150) feet; NORTHERLY by land now or formerly of Della H. Willien, seventy (70) feet; and WESTERLY by land now or formerly of Alexander Montgomery, one hundred fifty (150) feet. Containing 10,500 square feet of land according to said plan. Being the same premises convey to Enrico and Elia Petrucci by Anthony W. Orlandella, M.D. and Elinor Rose Orlandella dated January 18, 1960, recorded in Middlesex South District Deeds Book 9540, Page 172.

(2) A certain parcel of land being the same shown as Lot 1 on a plan entitled "plan of Land in Newton Centre, Massachusetts, dated September 7, 1951, Everett M. Brooks, Co., Civil Engineers" and bounded and described as follows: SOUTHEASTERLY by land now of Enrico and Elia Petrucci seventy (70) feet; EASTERLY by land now or formerly of Sara S. Sigel and Horold H. Sigel one hundred thirty three and 5-10 feet (133.5 feet); NORTHERLY by land of Boston & Albany Railroad Co. seventy and 26-100 (70.26) feet; WESTERLY by land now or formerly of Alexander Montgomery one hundred twenty eight and 83-100 (128.83) feet. Containing 9228 square feet of land, more or less.

Setting forth that she desires that all of said land may be sold at private sale for not less than thirty-eight thousand dollars, and praying that partition may be made of all the land aforesaid according to law, and to that end that a commissioner be appointed to make such partition and be ordered to make sale and conveyance of all, or any part of said land which the Court finds cannot be advantageously divided either at private sale or public auction, and be ordered to distribute the net proceeds thereof.

If you desire to object thereto you or your attorney should file a written appearance in said Court at Cambridge before ten o'clock in the forenoon on the ninth day of Apirl 1973, the return day of this citation.

Witness William E. Hays, Esquire, First Judge of said Court, this sixth day of March 1973.

200 Mile Limit Gets More Support

By JACK WOLSTON

NEW YORK (UPI) — At least 26 Congressmen are backing legislation to extend U.S. jurisdiction over the nation's coastal fisheries to 200 miles from the present 12-mile limit.

The lawmakers cite continuing depletion of U.S. coastal fish stocks by Russian, Japanese and other foreign fleets, threatening not only the future of American commercial fishing but that of sports fishing as well.

"It's clear that we've got to take some action soon or we're going to find this country minus one more important natural resource," said Rep. Norman F. Lent, R-N.Y. "If we wait for the United Nations to act on this, our coastal fish populace may soon rival that of the American buffalo."

Lent said the foreign fleets were operating just 20 to 30 miles off the productive Long Island coast and were beginning to move toward waters off New Jersey.

Some Polish vessels, he said, were observed by the Coast Guard transferring catches to huge "factory ships" as close as 10 miles from shore.

"This concentrated foreign fishing effort which began about 10 years ago has seriously jeopardized the survival of several species, among them haddock, herring and whiting," Lent said.

Previous attempts at international accommodation on the fishing question have produced various polite agreements between the United States and its competitors on the seas, Lent said, but the documents are without mutual inspection provisions, which U.S. commercial and sportsfishing interests contend render them useless.

Several nations in the Western Hemisphere already have unilaterally extended their jurisdiction over coastal fishing to 200 miles from their shores.

- Nice Catch

On the subject of fishing, here is a story of a fisherman who cast his line and came up with a chair company.

Businessman John Tarrant Kenny was fishing several years ago on the Farmington River in Connecticut with little luck when he looked up from his rod and saw nearby the ruins of the Hitchcock Chair Company which had manufactured elegantly stencilled chairs in the 1800s.

The thought came to mind that the old factory, standing securely on its cut stone foundations, could be restored and again produce the furniture that had made the area famous a century ago.

After considerable investigation, he purchased the property. The factory was restored and now Hitchcock chairs are a[re] on the market.

To spare other anglers the disappointment of a fishless day—and mark the unsuccessful fishing day that inspired his company—Kenny has seen to it that the Farmington River is stocked with fish.

Each year he stages the Hitchcock Fishing Derby and anglers come from miles around to test their skills. The winners go home with their fish —and a Hitchcock chair.

Health For All

PHASING OUT OPEN DUMPS

Open dumps are getting closed. But not fast enough.

In 1970, 11.2 million tons of pollutants were spewed into the air by burning solid waste. Much of the burning took place in open dumps. The dumps not only defile the air and blight the landscape but also create breeding grounds for rats and disease.

Our society has developed the most sophisticated technology in history to produce a cornucopia spilling over with consumer goodies. But it has in no way coped with the problem of disposing of these goods. In thousands of American communities, the most primitive and unsanitary means of disposal — the open dump — is still burning away.

We are a nation of throwaways. Into the gargantuan trash heap every year go 71 billion cans, 7 million TV sets, 7 million cars and trucks, and 35 million tons of paper. Many throwaways defy destruction by natural processes. Waste is overwhelming us.

Mission 5000 sounds like another James Bond extravaganza. Actually, it is a nationwide citizen project to close up 5000 open dumps. Launched in 1970, it represents a combined attack on environmental pollution by local, state, and federal government agencies with scores of civic and conservation groups — including the National Tuberculosis and Respiratory Disease Association.

Within the first two years the citizen groups have rubbed out 1600 dumps. Hundreds more are scheduled for early replacement.

How do you replace an open dump? With sanitary landfills. By recycling and reusing second-hand materials. By energy recovery — burning solid wastes to produce heat or power. Finding alternatives to open dumping means work. Find out what you can do. Contact the local Boston Tuberculosis and Respiratory Disease Association. It's a matter of life and breath.

Concert to Cover Wide Time Span

A concert covering ten centuries of musical innovation will be performed by the New England Conservatory Symphony Orchestra on Wednesday, April 4, at 8:30 p.m. in Jordan Hall.

Conductor Gunther Schuller has selected works that cover the highlights of the ten-century span, beginning with Etenraku Japanese court and ceremonial music from the 9th century. From the 14th century, [the] motets of Phillipe deVitry will be performed: Petre[s] clemens and Vos Qui A[d]miramini. Madrigals by Monteverdi, 17th century, include La Piaga c'ho nel core, Con che soavita, and Lamento della hin fa.

Beethoven's Symphony No. [1] in F major, Op. 68 (The Pastorale), is the representative work of the 19th century. From the early 20th century Arnold Schoenberg's Erwartung, Op. 17, featuring Linda Phillips, soprano, will be performed. Ligeti's Lontano (mid-20th century) will close the program.

The concert is free and open to the public.

ARIES LIKE PISCES

Q. I would be interested to know what the reading on my astrology chart would be. My birth date is March 27, 1943 at 11:30 p.m. in Boston, this would make me Aries. I have very few if any of the typical personality characteristics of this fire sign but I can readily identify with nearly all of the Pisces characteristics. Is this because of the other factors, Ascendent and such that influence a horoscope? Thank you, I enjoy your column. — N. B.

A. You did not state what you consider "typical personality characteristics" of Aries or Pisces but the planet Mercury, the indicator of the conscious mind, was in the Sign of the Zodiac Pisces at the moment of your birth and in quadrature aspect to the Moon which was in Sagittarius in your First House. The Sun in Aries was in your Fourth House.

These indicate that you would think and receive impressions from your environment like a Pisces, that is subjectively, as you feel about them or as they fit into your personal plans. Try to develop the ability to see things, people and conditions objectively, that is as they really are not permitting personal inclinations to influence your judgment.

You are far more sensitive than the average "Aries Sun Sign," but you do have a basic Aries desire to be independent. There may be times when you are confronted with an inner conflict between courage and timidity which may manifest itself as a show outwardly of much self confidence when inwardly there may be considerable anxiety about the outcome.

The planet Neptune, the ruler of Pisces is in aspect to your Sun and Moon, indicative of a love of that which is mysterious but indicating a need to face up to realities.

Bring Your Own Beef, Guests

Virginia Payette says:

Maybe the way to beat those food prices is to go backward . . . to the days when were all scrimping along on beginners' salaries and most Saturday-night parties were on a B.Y.O.B. basis.

Back then that was "bring your own bottle." Today it could mean "bring your own beef."

Or even bacon . . . bananas . . . beets . . . and butter.

This solution surfaced the other day as I pushed a grocery cart through three different supermarkets (gotta watch for those "specials," you know) to stock the shelves for two houseguests.

In less than an hour I spent $100.19. Not on sirloin or prime ribs, either. These guests are going to get chicken, fish and eggs (which are all going up, too), plus whatever vegetables I can work with hamburger.

And all the while I kept thinking of those Bureau of Labor statistics that insisted — down to the last decimal point — I wasn't suffering as much as I thought I was.

Sure, food prices are up 33 per cent from 1965, they admit. But look at my income; it's up a whopping 62 per cent. (THAT was news to me, too.)

What those statistics don't explain is: After I settle with the checkout counter, why do I feel so broke?

Time was when you could fill up your family on plant salads. But not these days. With lettuce at 49 cents a head, I paid close attention to that man on the talk show the other night who has dedicated himself to scrounging the wilds for edible weeds. It may come to that.

I am willing to buy the experts' explanation that it's not the farmer's fault. Or even the middleman's. They might even be right when they tell me the supermarket is not the villain, either.

And I can remember enough from Economics 101 back at Chaffey High to see that when Americans earn more, they eat better. In 1968 per-capita consumption of beef was 88 pounds; this year it's going up to 113 pounds.

That's a jump of 34 per cent (brought on partly by higher welfare payments and expansion of the food-stamp program) and everybody knows by now what increasing demand and dwindling supply does to prices.

I can even understand most of that agricultural jazz about the cost of wheat, corn and soybeans going up because of last year's crop failures in Europe, Russia, India, China, etc., and how we're generously exporting our feed grains to foreign markets.

When soybeans, for instance, go from $3.30 a bushel to $6.65 in less than a year, even I can figure out that if it costs more to feed a steer, it's going to cost more to feed the houseguests. (Nowadays you can tell when someone really likes you; she invites you to dinner.)

But it's small comfort to have some agricultural analyst try to tell me the surprising thing about food prices isn't that they're so high, it's that they're not even higher. What with personal income dollars up twice as much and all that.

Sorry boys. But every time that cash register clinks its final clank, I'm surprised. And I get more surprised every week.

The SLIM Gourmet

Calorie-Conscious Cooking

By BARBARA GIBBONS

Protein. Fat. Carbohydrate. Do these words confuse you?

It's impossible to talk about diet or nutrition without running into this trio of terms, yet most would-be slimmers have only a fuzzy notion of what they mean.

How about a crash course!

For openers:

Everything edible can be categorized as either protein, fat or carbohydrate . . . just as the inedible world can be divided into animal, vegetable and mineral. But few foods are purely protein, or purely fat, or carbohydrate. Most are a combination, just as your inedible umbrella is animal (bone handle), vegetable (fabric covering) and mineral (metal shaft).

PROTEIN, of course, s "animal" food: meat, poultry, fish, and eggs. But none of these is "pure" protein, because they also contain such non-nutritive and inedible matter as moisture and bone . . . as well as fat in varying degrees. And the fatter the food, the more valuable protein is displaced!

Protein is also found, along with fat and some carbohydrates, in such dairy products as milk and cheese. But the more fat, the less protein!

Protein is also found in beans, but vegetable proteins are less complete. There's one exception: soybeans. Soybeans and soy-enriched products are very valuable to protein seekers.

For the dieter protein is a particularly significant category; it's the one food element you simply cannot skimp on! Also, protein food has a tummy-filling quality that's particularly valuable.

FAT is either animal or vegetable in origin — both have the same calorie count! Ounce for ounce, fat has twice the calories of either protein or carbohydrate. Some fat is needed in every diet to help absorb nutrients properly, so a completely fat-free diet would be unhealthy. But a fat-free diet is virtually impossible, since fat exists in so many foods, both natural and processed.

Americans have the fattest diet in the world, as well as the highest cholesterol levels and heart-disease rate. The American Heart Association has urged Americans to cut down on all fat in their diets, but particularly animal fat, which is believed to raise cholesterol levels.

CARBOHYDRATE, simply speaking, is everything else — fruits and vegetables as well as starches and sweets. In recent decades the popularity of recurring low-carbohydrate fad diets has given this important food category a bad name, unfortunately. Fruits and vegetables are a delectable and important source of needed vitamins and minerals. High in moisture and noncalorie roughage, fresh fruit and vegetables are appetite-appeasing as well.

What should be avoided in this category are the refined sugars and starches that have been stripped of everything worthwhile, except empty calories!

What does it mean to the person who would like to achieve permanent slimness without drastic dieting?

If you're overweight, examine your own everyday eating pattern and see how you can improve your balance of protein, fat and carbohydrate. For example:

More lean meat, poultry and seafood. Skim milk and low-fat cheeses. Fresh or frozen, unfussed-with fruits and vegetables. Fat-reduced and sugar-reduced products. Protein-enriched breads and cereal products. More homemade treats made with protein and dairy foods or fresh fruits.

Fewer fatty steaks. Less butter, margarine and oils, fewer fatty cheeses and fried foods. Less canned, sweetened fruit or sauced-up vegetables. Fewer processed foods with hidden fats, sugars and starches. Less sugars, sweets, syrups and jellies. Fewer packaged and prepared desserts.

The Stinkpotter

Generally, the publication called The Massachusetts Physician devotes itself almost entirely to material that is of interest solely to doctors — meetings, learned papers, latest developments, etc.

But a recent issue of MP, of which Carl Bearse, M.D., is editor-in-chief, contained an article entitled: "The Stinkpotter Memorial John" that I've just got to share with you. And here, with Dr. Bearse's permission, it is:

"Time was when a building such a medical school, research laboratory, or hospital was often named after someone prominent in the applicable field of endeavor. This, however, was not invariable the case.

"Certainly we do not know of any great medical scientific feat performed by Fannie E. Tackaberry, whose name adorns the laboratories of the Peter Bent Brigham Hospital. Nor did Collis P. Huntington do much for cancer research except to contribute funds therefore.

"Obviously, some people believe such contributions are in themselves sufficient reason to commemorate the donor. However, it was formerly not uncommon for philanthropists and friends to contribute funds to name a building in honor of a great scientist or practitioner of medicine rather than for a major financial contributor.

"Today, the practice of naming buildings for all sorts of personages with dubious claims to fame, except for the fact that they have money, has reached an all-time high.

"Development offices have been established in most educational institutions, hospitals, research institutes, and similar charitable organizations. The responsible officers are constantly on the lookout for anyone with money with the intent of parting some of this from its owner."

"Since they must offer some reward for this generosity, about the only bait they can dangle to the donor is to promise that his name will appear in large letters on a building or on some part of it."

"Emphasis is placed on the size of the contribution to be given. This is made more palatable by the charitable and, therefore, tax-exempt status of the organization so that the larger the donation 'the less it costs you.'

"Greatly in demand is the elderly individual known to possess reasonable amounts of 'filthy lucre' and who has no immediate descendants to whom he might legitimately leave it. There will always be a number of cousins, nephews, nieces, or other more distant relatives who remember 'good old Uncle Joe' much better as he gets closer to his just reward, in hopes of being equally remembered in his will.

"Fending off these vulturous characters is no great feat, since they cannot hope to compete with an architect's drawing of a magnificent building on which is emblazoned the donor's name in huge letters (lighted at night) for all posterity to see from then on (or until the next generation demolishes the building to make room for an espressway).

"The potential donor whose wealth was obtained in ways not totally respectable poses a problem. Thus, the owner of a string of houses of ill fame might expect to have his name on a less prestigious building than if his fortune had been obtained from manufacturing hairpins or piston rings.

"Downright crooks will continue to have difficulty making naming gifts for themselves, chiefly because the acceptance might have a deleterious effect on the willingness of other potential givers to contribute to the same institution. Thus we are not aware of any Al Capone memorial blood banks or Bugsy Siegel memorial centers for alcoholics. Possibly they lived a generation too soon.

"Entrepreneurial development officers will look to new fields to conquer. The small-time donor might be able to afford to fund a memorial broom closet in the new building. Or how about the Willington P. Overstuffed Memorial File Cabinet? Or the Gustavus O. Bulging Memorial Waste Basket?

"Anyone wishing to forward funds for the Matthias Q. Stinkpotter Memorial John may do so by contacting our development officer. (Matthias Q. Stinkpotter was the world renowned motor boatman whose claim to fame lay in his refusal to step aboard any boat which carried sail of any kind.)"

Sort of gets the idea across! And there go my fine plans for a Norton Mockridge-Frank Costello Memorial Monkey House at the Bronx Zoo!

'Grandpa' or 'Joe'?

by Amy Vanderbilt

"DEAR MISS VANDERBILT: As a child, a boy was not taught to say Yes ma'm and No, ma'm or Yes, sir and No, sir to his parents. He was allowed to call all relatives by their first names. Now this boy is grown and has a family. He is not teaching his children to honor and respect his parents by calling them Grandmother or Grandfather. Would you believe they call their grandparents by their first names?

"What is so insulting is that this policy is not 'cute' enough to extend to his wife's people. They are called by the titles denoting grandparenthood. Should the grandparents talk to their son, their son and his wife or directly to the grandchildren? Or should they just continue to be shown this disrespect?—Mrs. C. N., Nashville, Tenn."

Saying Yes, ma'm, No, ma'm, Yes, sir, No, sir to parents is for the main part a Southern custom and one even in the South that is beginning to disappear, probably because of the influx of people from the North.

My own feeling is that a courteous "Yes" or "No" is enough. Of course, it depends on the teaching of the parents and community custom. Perhaps if I lived in the South I would feel differently about it.

Evidently, the boy you mention was brought up by a family with progressive ideas with which he was comfortable, as he is teaching his own children the same thing. Perhaps the parents who raised him in this way prefer to be called by their first names by their grandchildren. Some granparents do.

It is obvious that the maternal grandparents are not permissive types, and perhaps their very bearing has made it clear enough that they prefer to be called by the titles denoting grandparenthood. I think they should leave well enough alone.

If they disapprove of the way the boy was raised, they are certainly not going to be comfortable if they are called by their grandchildren, just because the paternal grandparents are so called. I think in this case I should forget about respect and disrespect and just concentrate on love and affection.

The grandparents' titles are titles of respect. I can't believe that people who value them would be comfortable at all being called "Joe" and "Alice" by their grandchildren. Post cards, please.

PICKY

"DEAR MISS VANDERBILT: My husband's family is coming for a visit, and if possible I would like to avoid a problem I encountered the last time they were here.

They are all very picky eaters. At their house, my mother-in-law is in the habit of fixing many different dishes for each meal so as to please all the children.

"For instance, when I produced pancakes and sausage for breakfast, my sister-in-law asked for peanut butter! While I cooked, my mother-in-law would stand beside me, mentioning that this one didn't like too much salt, that one didn't like butter on vegetables, this one didn't eat green beans and so on and on. This nearly drove me up the walls, since they were here several days.

"I don't like to be rude, but I am considered a very good cook, and when I prepare a meal I expect it to be eaten (or not eaten) without comment—and without anyone asking for a tuna sandwich instead.

"My in-laws are very sweet otherwise, but they are homebodies and never eat anyone else's cooking. I have decided to keep the menus simple, but even this may not solve the problem. What else can I do?—Mrs. H. S., Middletown, N. J."

As your mother-in-law and you seem to be on very good terms, explain to her in time that you cannot possibly do as she does, that you will have meals that will include if possible some of their preferences, but that you cannot run a short-order kitchen.

It probably would be a good idea to explain this separately to the others. They can't expect the world to cater to their finicky tastes, and you will be doing them a favor to re-educate them.

Nixon Dream: House Majority

President Nixon is sending private assurances to his own party leaders that he will back any purge of liberal Republican senators next year and that he will seriously try to achieve "the impossible dream" — a Republican majority in the House of Representatives.

Several Republican senators who have opposed the President, time after time, on important votes have been worrying about reports that the White House palace guard would seek revenge by giving them the "Charlie Goodell treatment" in their 1974 re-election races.

But National Chairman George Bush has passed the word from the Oval Office to the Senatorial Campaign Committee that there will be no repetition of the 1970 maneuver, whereby liberal New York Republican Senator Charlie Goodell lost a three-way race to Conservative Jim Buckley, who enjoyed the open financial support of the Administration and vocal backing by Vice-President Spiro T. Agnew.

Nixon also is taking no part in any move to stir up primary foes to run in '74 against Sens. Charles "Mac" Mathias of Maryland, Peter Dominick of Colorado, Bob Packwood of Oregon, and Bill Saxbe of Ohio, all of whom have angered the White House on occasion.

The President, freed from the crushing burden of the Vietnam war, which claimed so much of his time, is giving personal attention to building his much-advertised new Republican majority. He intends to broaden the party's base to include many former Democrats and Independents, and certainly has no intention of chasing off any Republicans, no matter how liberal they may be or how they may infuriate his own palace guard.

Having persuaded George Bush to give up his prestigious post as Ambassador to the United Nations, to take on the party chairmanship, Nixon is showering him with attention.

Including Bush in his meetings with the Cabinet and visiting governors, the Chief Executive sometimes turns to the chairman and asks, "What do you think of the idea, George?"

The former chairman, Kansas Sen. Bob Dole, never enjoyed such solicitous treatment. Dole used to make wry wisecracks about his inability to see the President. Once he told an entirely fictitious tale of a palace guardsman who told him, by telephone: "I understand you want to see the President . . . Well, he's making a television speech tonight. You can see him on Channel Nine."

Nixon has laid down the law to his party chieftains: They must recruit more young, capable, attractive candidates. Those for the House must be in their 30s; those for the Senate in their 40s.

Henceforth, he is insisting, there will be "no more free rides" for Democratic Congressman, except for a few unbeatable Southern conservatives who usually stick with Nixon on key votes, anyway. The Republicans must hold all their 192 seats and gain 26 more to reach a House majority, 218.

The betting odds are about 10 to 1 against them. But they could score a net gain by making a real fight for Southern and Border State seats which they have been conceding to the Democrats.

Patrick J. Buchanan, a presidential speech writer and White House resident conservative, says in a stimulating book, "The New Majority," that Nixon aims at the "historic achievement" of making a New American Majority the successor to the Franklin D. Roosevelt coalition, which dominated the 1930s and 1940s.

Buchanan writes that "the Catholic and ethnic and Southern conservative foot soldiers who gave FDR those great landslides are in fundamental disagreement with the isolated, intellectual aristocracy and liberal elite who now set the course of their party." These disaffected Democrats assured Nixon's triumph over George McGovern, a victory of traditional American values and beliefs over the claims of the "counter culture," a victory of Middle America over Woodstock.

Now the President and his party are trying to persuade those voters, who chose Nixon over McGovern, to go all the way and vote Republican for Congress, too.

Nature's Ways

By WAYNE HANLEY
(Mass. Audubon Society)

Blue jays are returning to eastern Massachusetts.

As a news item, the statement sounds about as surprising as an annual announcement that the village church will be painted white.

But, not this year. For blue jays have been rare birds inside that huge arc of highway, I-495, which slices an eastern quarter away from the mass of the commonwealth.

As residents of Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, Connecticut and Rhode Island can testify, the fugituve and aberrant actions did not filter across the highway and infect their blue jays.

James Baird, a naturalist intrigued by the unusual in wildlife, asked for reports from around New England on winter blue jay trends. He was inundated by letters. In general, the writers asked: "What shortage of blue jays? I've got so many around my house, I'd gladly ship you a few."

All of these letters, however, came from the hinterlands, far from the Hub of the Universe. So far, there has been no clue to the blue jay drought around Boston. Perhaps, without commenting upon the quality of the culture, one might speculate that the cultural climate around Boston has discouraged the jays.

In some respects, it has been a Silent Winter even outside I-495. For instance, in New England as a whole, the cardinal-tufted titmouse count this winter dropped from 6003 cardinals and 4464 titmice last winter down to 4295 cardinals and 2838 titmice this winter.

Only Maine, which doubled its cardinal count this winter with cardinals increasing from one to two for the state, showed surprising improvement. Of course, one might say that it did even better on tufted titmice, since the increase was from zero to one bird. One may multiply zero into infinity, so there is no way of calculating the astronomical magnitude of the increase.

Vermont did a little better on both birds, although the increase could reflect greater enthusiasm with more counters during the count period. The population increases there were cardinals increasing from 769 to 784, and titmice, from 23 to 27.

The other states lost birds. The count in Connecticut did not happen, therefore the numbers there are uncertain but probably down. The Massachusetts figures were cardinals down from 4807 to 3203 and titmice down from 4258 to 2657.

New Hampshire lost cardinals, down from 241 to 172, but gained titmice, up from 50 to 100. Rhode Island lost on both birds. Cardinals were down from 231 to 133, and titmice, from 144 to 54.

In New England, the cardinal-tufted titmouse census measures the success of marginal birds, since neither species regularly occupied the area. Both are southern birds, primarily. Oddly, however, the tufted titmouse decline agrees in direction, if not in quantity, with the nationwide breeding bird census which considers all species. In that count, tufted titmice are among four birds that have shown the greatest decline over a five-year period.

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (UPI) — There were more than 4,500 manufacturing facilities in Alabama in 1972. They provided employment for more than 305,000 persons with an annual payroll of more than $1.5 billion.

How To Use Battery Cables

CAUTION — If used improperly, jumper cables can damage your car's electrical system or cause personal injury, according to Ford Customer Service Division. For your own safety, remove battery vent caps and cover the vent holes with a cloth. Then connect one of the jumper cables to the positive (+) terminal post on each battery. Attach the second cable to the negative (-) terminal of the strong battery, and ground it to the engine block of the disabled car, as shown above.

Backyard Frontier

By POLLY BRADLEY
(Mass. Audubon Society)

Busy people without a moment to spare can waste a lot of time and energy resisting Spring Fever.

No need to feel guilty about succumbing any more. There are several valuable things to do while actually enjoying the new warmth of the air and the new green of the earth.

First of all, you can go out and educate some children — always a worthwhile occupation.

Last week I had the Cub Scouts out scouting for signs of spring, and we discovered snowdrops, crocuses, and a lone bud of an early daffodil smuggling close to a south wall under the warm breath of a clothes dryer vent.

Pussy willow was starting to open in our yard, and each Cub took home a branch to watch it blossom. The forsythia still looked barren and wintery, but I cut a branch for each boy and assured him that if he brought it into the house, he could fool it into thinking spring had come.

Now we have forsythia and pussy willow on our window sill, looking very cheerful and tempting us outside again.

If you have no children, no neighbors' children, no Cub Scouts, or no such insane inclination, there are numerous valuable things you can do alone.

As fast as houses and buildings are going up these days, it would be useful some day when you have Spring Fever to check your favorite natural areas for signs of development. Is the skunk cabbage still stinking by that babbling brook?

If any unusual human activity is going on, a phone call to the local Conservation Commission will tell you whether the necessary permits have been obtained . . . and will alert the Conservation Commission to keep its eye on what is happening.

Another excellent place to indulge Spring Fever is in spots where the red maple grows in great numbers. In the early spring, its soft red flowers make a most aesthetic red glow in low wetlands.

You can enjoy their beauty while making sure that no one is dredging, filling, removing, or altering the area without a permit. With the new Wetlands Protection Act in Massachusetts, citizens will need to keep their eyes open for illegal changes in wetlands.

Sometimes wetlands are obvious, because they are under water, but areas subject to periodic flooding are not always so easy to spot except for experts and old-timers. Red maples are a good clue to damp areas. Here, again, a call to the local Conservation Commission will alert them to changes.

Incidentally, if you are buying a home this year, beware if there are too many red maples nearby. You don't want your cellar to turn into a swimming pool the first time it rains.

A trip to the seashore can also be included in useful methods of coming down with a bad case of Spring Fever. That same Wetlands Protection Act applies to changes in "any bank, beach, dune, flat, marsh, meadow, or swamp bordering on the ocean, or on any estuary, creek, river, stream, pond or lake, or any land under said waters or any land subject to tidal action, coastal storm flowage, or flooding."

Rocket Demonstration At MIT Mar. 30 - Apr. 1

More than 200 rockets will be launched during the sixth annual Massachusetts Institute of Technology Model Rocket Convention to be held March 30 to April 1.

More than 100 rocket enthusiasts from colleges and high schools in 15 states, from as far away as Virginia and Canada are expected to participate in the three-day convention.

Th launching will be held from 9 a.m. to noon on Saturday, March 31, in a field next to Jesse Wi e's Boats on Route 16 in Mendon (near Milford.).

Saturday's launch will feature rockets ranging from six inches to five feet in length and up to a pound in weight. They all use inexpensive, commercially-made solid fuel rocket engines. More than 15 million model rockets have been launched since 1957 without accident or serious injury.

Several model rocket manufacturers also will demonstrate new products, including large rockets expected to reach an altitude of over one mile and rockets equipped with radio transmitters and movie cameras.

Convention Chairman Christopher Flanigan, a sophomore in aeronautics and astronautics from Fort Pierce, Fla., will speak at opening ceremonies at 7 p.m. on Friday, March 30, in the M.I.T. Student Center.

Convention participants will form small groups to discuss specialized technical subjects such as aerial photography from model rockets, internal ballistics of model rocket engines and scale modelling techniques.

Saturday's activities, following the launching, will include presentation of research papers and a banquet. James S. Barrowman, an engineer at the NASA Goddard Space Flight Center and president of the National Association of Rocketry, will discuss "Techniques of Research with Model Rockets" at the banquet, beginning at 7 p.m.

The convention will close with a speech on "Employment Prospects in the Aerospace Industry" at 11 a.m. Sunday.

A BRIGHT FUTURE WITH GOOD PAY!

Isn't that what we're all seeking?

We'll pay you a starting salary of $150-$170 to learn our business and provide a good fringe package and raises as fast as you can earn them.

When you are promoted to Manager 12-24 months from now, you will be earning $200-$250 a week immediately with prospects for more as soon as you show us you can build business and control costs.

We have many Managers making $300-$400 a week and they aren't working 70 hours per week to do it. But, they have complete responsibility for making our business successful and that's why they are paid so well. Candidates must be over 21, have high school diploma and transportation.

Give us a call or drop us a line and we'll arrange an interview to discuss how you can be a Friendly success story, too.

'Jack' Goes Nationwide

"Jack and the Beanstalk," an opera with music, libretto and narration composed by Henry Lasker of the music department of Newton North High School, was recently performed by the Opera Theatre of Memphis State University, Memphis, Tenn.

George Osborne, chairman of the opera department at the university, produced and directed the performances.

Thirty-two performances within a two-week period were presented, making it possible for thousands of Memphis children to see the opera.

Four different casts, five narrators from the university's opera department and six guest narrators representing the various radio and T.V. stations in the area were involved.

The opera was originally performed by the opera department during the 1970 season and was repeated this year by popular demand.

Lasker viewed the last several performances and reported the productions excellent and enthusiastically received.

While in Memphis he was the house guest of Dr. and Mrs. Lester van Middlesworth.

Their daughter, Jane, now a music major at Southern Methodist University in Dallas, studied composition under Lasker at the Neton Creative Arts Center during a recent summer while her father, a professor of physiology at the University of Tennessee and an international authority on thyroid, was engaged in research in Boston.

"Jack" has been produced in miscellaneous places throughout the United States. Recently Radio-Television Ljubljana, Yugoslavia, presented it with the libretto translation in the Slovenian language.

The New England Regional Opera Company, Richard Marshall directing, is currently presenting it throughout the six-state area.

On Apr. 8, they will perform at Brookline High School under the sponsorship of the Jewish Music Forum, Mary Wolfman Epstein, president.

"Jack" will be presented on Apr. 15, at Meadowbrook Junior High School, Newton, under the sponsorship of the Newton Creative Arts Council, Mrs. Syrille Rosman and Mrs. Beverly Beruson, co-chairman.

GERALD BERNSTEIN of 11 Chester St., Newton, actor and director of development for the Boston Repertory Theatre, is appearing in all three repertory productions presented under the umbrella title, "Performances-73" and offered by the Metropolitan Cultural Alliance at Walnut Hill School in Natick. "The Night Thoreau Spent in Jail" was presented March 21, followed by "The Little Prince," March 28; and "The Thirteen Clocks" on April 4. For information, call 655-4234.

"A VIEW FROM THE BRIDGE" — Newton South High School students will present this Arthur Miller play Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, April 11, 12, and 13 at 8 p.m. Rehearsals have been underway since the close of their musical. The cast is headed by Andrew Golov as Eddie Carbone and Cheryl Kaplan as his wife, Beatrice. Tickets go on sale at Newton South on April 4 and may be reserved at the high school. This production is an all-student project.

The Rain In Spain . . .

The students of Our Lady Help of Christians High School, 575 Washington St., Newton, will present a production of "My Fair Lady" on Apr. 7-8 at 8 p.m.

Admission price is $2.

FOLK SINGER AND GUITARIST Tony Saletan will present a children's concert, sponsored by the Brookline-Brighton-Newton Jewish Community Center, on Sunday, April 1 at 3 p.m. in Brookline High School auditorium. Saletan creates and writes his own songs and has appeared on "Sesame Street" and "Zoom." His concert April 1 will be directed at people ages 3 to 12. Tickets are available at the center. Concert proceeds will be used to establish a nursery school scholarship.

BC Sets Divergent Events

The Boston College Humanities Series will sponsor three exciting and divergent events for the general public the week of Apr. 1.

British theologian, Thomas Corbishley, S.J., will appear in McGuinn Auditorium on the Boston College campus on Wednesday, Apr. 4 to discuss "The Eucharist an Ecumenical Approach."

Poetess Ruth Whitman will also come to McGuinn Auditorium on Thursday, Apr. 5 to read from her works.

On Friday, Apr. 6, the Yale Russian Chorus will appear in Campion Auditorium to present a concert of Russian religious, military and folk music.

All three events of the Humanities Series will begin at 8 p.m. and are free.

Thomas Corbishley, S.J., a prominent member of the Ecumenical movement in England, is the first Catholic priest since the Reformation to have preached in Westminster Cathedral. A graduate of Oxford, he also was Master of Campion Hall for thirteen years.

Rev. Corbishley is the author of several publications which include "The Spirituality of Teilhard de Chardin," "The Contemporary Christian," and "Spiritual Exercises of St. Ignatius."

Ruth Whitman, often described as a poet of celebration and compassion, is an instructor in poetry at Radcliffe and is director of Poetry Writing Workshops in the Massachusetts elementary schools.

An acclaimed translator of Modern Greek, French, and Yiddish poetry, she also has won many awards during her distinguished career, including the Reynolds Lyric Award and the Alice Fay di Castagnola Award of the Poetry Society of America.

Ms. Whitman has published extensively and is the author of "The Passion of Lizzie Borden, "New and Selected Poems," "The Marriage Wig and Other Poems," and "Blood and Milk Poems."

The Yale Russian Chorus has been a frequent and popular guest of the Humanities Series for the past several years. Known for its outstanding ability to convey the tonal and emotional reaches of Slavic music, the chorus has become a forceful instrument of cultural exchange through its many successful East European tours.

In addition to extensive tours of the United States each year, the chorus also helps bring musicians, singers and dancers together in New Haven by sponsoring the annual Festival of Slavic Music.

Wind Symphony Stages Premiere

The Metropolitan Wind Symphony will perform a concert of windworks, Thursday, Apr. 5, at 8:30 p.m. in Sanders Theater, Cambridge.

Jerry Gardner will conduct a program of original wind pieces by Rossini, Schoenberg, Stravinsky, Grainger, Persichetti and Milhaud.

Making a New England premiere will be "Aquarelles" by Robert Rollin. Tickets are available at the door or by calling 965-0554.

Metropolitan Wind Symphony, a community based symphonic wind group, was formed last year to provide an outlet for the many talented wind and percussion players in the Greater Boston area. The symphony is devoted to the playing and performance of contemporary as well as standard wind literature.

Newtonville resident Jerry Gardner is music director and founder of the symphony. Mr. Gardner is also director of music at Newton High School.

Other Newton residents performing with the symphony are Barbara Edwards, Peter Puzzanghero, and Chris Mowatt from Newtonville; Leonard Berman, Daniel Naiman and Frances Bayes from Newton Corner and Marsha Salamoff from Newton.

Players Tour

The Newton Country Players' annual touring children's show, a merry, musical, ghost story entitled "Gabriel Ghost," will open its spring season locally with one morning showing and two afternoon matinees this weekend.

Performances will be held Satruday, Mar. 31, at 10:30 a.m., at the Rebecca Pomroy House, 84 Eldredge street, Newton, a benefit performance with all proceeds going to Newton's Children's Day Care Center, and Saturday at 2 p.m., at the Cabot School, 229 Cabot street, Newtonville, for the Cabot School Parent Teacher Association.

A third performance will be given Sunday at 1:30 p.m. at Temple Emanuel's Community Hall, 385 Ward street, Newton, for the Temple PTA.

Stage I Performs

Having completed their special performance of "The Nights of the Rooster," Stage I theatre laboratory will now concentrate on extending their touring program to schools, churches and community groups.

The next engagement of their schedule is a program at Acquinas Jr. College Thursday (March 29). Under the direction of Kaleel Sakakeeny, the Stage I company will present a college of their various productions and working methods for the students of Acquinos and selected students from surrounding schools.

This tour is partially funded by the Massachusetts Council for Arts and Humanities.

YMCA Readies For Day Camp

The Newton YMCA announces that registrations are now open for Camp Chickami, its day camp in Wayland.

The camp, located on 25 acres of woodland and field areas, is designed for boys and girls seven years old (and now in second grade) through 12 years old. A complete program of instructional and recreational swimming, all field sports, floor hockey, nature, arts and crafts, campcrafts, tennis, archery and riflery is offered.

The camp season opens June 25 and runs for eight weeks, through August 17. Children may attend two or more two-week periods. Free bus transportation is provided throughout Newton and parts of Wayland and Weston.

Steven A. Kendall, of Auburndale, has been named the director for the 1973 season. Currently the associate youth director of the "Y," Mr. Kendall was a counselor at the camp for three years and last summer served as assistant director. He is a graduate of Vanderbilt University, with a bachelor of arts degree in political science, history and sociology.

LUCKY NUMBER

KALAMAZOO, Mich. (UPI) — The number 74 has been a lucky one for Western Michigan University football players. The last three players to wear the uniform bearing that number—defensive tackles Bob Rowe, Mike Siwek and Bernard Thomas, have been professional draft choices.

All Newton Music School Plans Scholarship Benefit

Violinist Joseph Silverstein and pianist Virginia Eskin will again perform for the benefit of the All Newton Music School Scholarship fund.

The pair will perform on Friday, April 6, at 8 p.m.

The program includes "The Devil's Trill" by Tartini, Beethoven's Sonata in A Major, opus 47; Bach's Sonata No. 3 in C major for violin solo; Weiniawski's "Legende" and Polonaise Brilliant No. 1 in D major.

Tickets will be available at the door and reservations can be made by calling 527-0102.

Newton High Presenting Wilder Play

Newton High School is presenting "The Skin of Our Teeth," by Thornton Wilder, April 5, 6 and 7 in the Newton High School Auditorium at 8 p.m.

Admission is $2 and tickets will be available at the door.

The famous Klondike Valley, scene of the most spectacular gold rush in the world, was originally pronounced "Throndiuk" by the Yukon Indians.
